je yeojachingu-neun romentik komidi-reul silheohamnida.

"My girlfriend doesn't like romantic comedies."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is -ㄹ(을)까.
액션 영화 볼까?
"Should we watch an action movie?"

We use the volitional form to express intention on the part of the speaker or to invite someone to do something in informal situations. Specifically, the speaker uses this form when asking someone whether he or she would like to do something with the speaker or with a group that includes the speaker. In English, we can translate this as "shall we...?" or "should we...?" In addition to inviting someone to do something, we also use it to ask for one's opinion, view, or appraisal about a certain fact. This form is a sentence ender.

Formation

-ㄹ/을까요? - (-l/eulkkayo) - standard politeness level
-ㄹ/을까? - (-l/eulkka) - intimate politeness level

I. We use -ㄹ까요? (-lkkayo?) with verbs that end in vowels.

For Example:

1. 보다 (boda) "to see," "to watch"
   보 - verb stem
   보 + ㄹ까요? (bo + lkkayo)
   볼까요? (bolkkayo?) "Shall we watch?" (standard politeness level)
   볼까? (bolkka?) "Shall we watch?" (intimate politeness level)

II. We use -을까요? (-eulkkayo?) with verbs that end in consonants.

For Example:

1. 재미있다 (jaemiitda) "to be fun" or "to be interesting"
   재미있 (jaemiit) - verb stem
   재미있 + -을까요 (jaemiit) + (-eulkkayo?)
   재미있을까요? (jaemiisseulkkayo?) "Will it be fun?"/"What do you think?" (standard politeness level)
   재미있을까? (jaemiisseulkka?) "Will it be fun?"/"What do you think?" (intimate politeness level)

볼까?

In this lesson, we use -ㄹ(을)까 (l/eulkka) in the form of 볼까? (bolkka?). This uses the above grammar formation with the verb 보다 (boda), meaning "to see" or "to watch." Combined with that construction, we translate the phrase 볼까 (bolkka) as "should we see?" or "shall we see?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is 있다.
한국어 사전 있어요?
"Do you have a Korean dictionary?"

The verb 있다 (itda) expresses existence. Do not confuse this with the Korean copula 이다 (ida), which expresses equation. We can use the verb 있다 (itda) to express existence, location, or possession. In this lesson, the speakers use 있다 (itda) to express possession.

To show possession, we can use있다 (itda) to say "to have."

For Example:

1. 저는 남자친구가 있습니다.
   jeo-neun namjachingu-ga isseumnida.
   "I have a boyfriend." (Literally, "I, boyfriend, exists" - "A boyfriend exists for me.")

Formation

Dictionary form: 있다 (itda)
Verb Stem: 있 (it)

	Korean	Romanization
Formal	있습니다	isseumnida
Standard	있어요	isseoyo
Intimate	있어	isseo

Other Uses for 있다 (itda)

In addition to using 있다 (itda) for possession, we can use 있다 (itda) to express location and also existence.

We can use 있다 (itda) to say "to be" (location).

For Example:

1. 저는 학교에 있습니다.
   jeo-neun hakgyo-e isseumnida.
   "I am at school." (Literally, "I, school, at, exist" - "I exist at school.")

We can use 있다 (itda) to express "to be" (existence).

For Example:

1. 여기 고양이가 있습니다.
   yeogi goyangi-ga isseumnida.
   "A cat is here." (Literally, "here, cat, exist" - "A cat exists here.")

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 한국어 사전 있어요?
   hangugeo sajeon isseoyo?
   "Do you have a Korean dictionary?"
2. 영어 사전 있어요.
   yeong-eo sajeon isseoyo.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is 없다 (eopta).
직원: 없어요.
"Worker: No, we don't."

없다 (eoptda) is the verb that expresses "to not exist." Do not confuse this with the negative Korean copula 아니다 (anida), meaning "to not be." This can express absence or lack of possession. In this lesson, we use 없다 (eoptda) to express a lack of possession.

We can use 없다 (eoptda) to express "to not have" (possession).

For Example:

1. 저는 친구가 없습니다.
   jeo-neun chingu-ga eopsseumnida.
   "I don't have friends." (Literally, "I, friend, not exist" - "Friends do not exist for me."

Formation

없다 (eoptda) - Dictionary form
없 (eopt) - Verb stem

	Korean	Romanization
Formal	없습니다	eopsseumnida
Standard	없어요	eopsseoyo
Intimate	없어	eopsseo

Other Uses for 없다 (eoptda)

In addition to lack of possession, we can use 없다 (eoptda) to express "to not be" (absence, non-existence).

For Example:

1. 김치가 없습니다.
   kimchi-ga eoptseumnida.
   "There is no kimchi." (Literally, "kimchi, not exist" - "kimchi does not exist")

Example From This Dialogue

1. 직원: 없어요.
   jigwon: eopseoyo.
   "Worker: No we don't."

Sample Sentences

1. 제윤 씨는 친구가 없습니다.
   jeyun ssi-neun chingu-ga eopsseumnida.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is the Question Word 언제.
언제 퇴근해?
"When do you get off work?"

The focus of this lesson is the question word 언제 (eonje), which we translate as "when." When asking a question in Korean, the question word typically comes at the front of the sentence. Immediately after that, we say the verb. Oftentimes in Korean, a subject is unnecessary and we can ask a question without a subject. When we leave out a subject, we can usually assume it from the context of the conversation.

Formation

(Subject) + Question Word + Action Verb

For Example:

1. 언제 가요?
   eonje gayo?
   "When are you going?"
2. 희준 씨는 언제 와요?
   huijun ssineun eonje wayo?

거울 있어? geoul isseo? "Do you have a mirror?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is the Question Word 누구.
저 남자 누구예요?
"Who's that man?"

누구 (nugu) is a question word that is equivalent to "who" in English. To ask who someone is in Korean, you should use the question word 누구 (nugu) along with the Korean copula 이다 (ida), which is equivalent to "to be" in English. 이다 (ida) has a number of conjugations, but in conjunction with the question word 누구 (nugu), the conjugation becomes 예요 (yeyo).

The phrase "Who is (he/she)" in Korean is 누구예요? (nuguyeyo?).

This lesson also uses the demonstrative modifier 저 (jeo), which we translate as "that." This can be useful if you wish to refer to a specific person when asking "who."

Example From This Dialogue

1. 저 남자 누구예요?
   jeo namja nuguyeyo?
   "Who's that man?"

Sample Sentences

1. 누구세요?

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is the Phrase 이거 뭐예요?
아빠.. 이거 뭐예요?
"Dad...what's this?"

이거 뭐예요? (igeo mwoyeyo?) is a phrase that literally means "What is this?" The first part of the phrase is 이거 (igeo), which means "this." The second part of the phrase is the question word 뭐 (mwo), which means "what," along with a conjugated form of the copula, 이다 which we translate as "is."

Literally, this phrase is "this" "what" "is," but we translate this phrase as "what is this?"

Politeness Levels

The phrase 이거 뭐예요? (igeo mwoyeyo?) is in the most common form, the standard politeness level. It is polite, yet conversational. See below for a chart of different politeness levels.

Politeness Level	Korean	Romanization	"English"	Notes
Formal	이것은 무엇입니까?	igeoseun mueotimnikka?	"What is this?"	Most formal, not conversational Korean
Standard	이거 뭐예요?	igeo mwoyeyo?	"What is this?"	Conversational and polite
Initimate	이거 뭐야?	igeo mwoya?	"What is this?"	Conversational, used only for close people

아직 자요? ajik jayo? "Are you still sleeping?"	지금 너무 슬퍼요. jigeum neomu seulpeoyo. "I'm so sad now."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is the Question Word 왜 (wae).
아빠... 왜 울어요?
"Dad...why are you crying?"

We translate 왜 (wae) as "why" in English. In the same situations we use "why" in English, we can also use 왜 (wae) to find a specific reason or explanation for something.

In the context of this lesson, a verb follows 왜 (wae). We use왜 (wae)to find out the reason for the action of the verb. The formation of this particular usage is as follows:

왜 + 동사 (wae + dongsa) "Why + verb"

* Note: We can often omit subjects in Korean. We have omitted the subjects in all the lines of the dialogue in this particular lesson.

Examples From This Dialogue

---

1. 아빠... 왜 울어요?
   appa... wae ureoyo?
   "Dad...why are you crying?"
2. 왜 슬퍼요?
   wae seulpeoyo?
   "Why are you sad?"
3. 왜 자요?

그 아저씨를 발로 찼어. geu ajeossireul ballo chasseo. "I kicked that man."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is 어떻게 해요?
던지기 어떻게 해요?
"How do you throw?"

We translate the phrase 어떻게 해요? (eotteokehaeyo?) as "how do I (verb)." We can use this phrase to ask how to perform a certain action. The verb or action comes in front of the phrase. Also, we can use this phrase on its own without a specific verb or action placed in front. In that case, we imply the verb or action from context.

Breakdown

We can break down 어떻게 해요? (eotteokehaeyo?), meaning "how do I (verb)," into two separate words.

어떻게 (eotteoke) "how"
해요 (haeyo) "do"

We can use the phrase 어떻게 (etteoke) in conjunction with verbs other than 해요 (haeyo), meaning "do." Simply replace the verb 해요 (haeyo) with different verbs.

For Example:

1. 어떻게 먹어요?
   eotteoke meogeoyo?
   "How do I eat (it/this)?"
2. 어떻게 가요?
   eotteoke gayo?
   "How do I go?"
3. 어떻게 보내요?
   eotteoke bonaeyo?
   "How do I send (it)?"

Politeness Levels

The phrase 어떻게 해요 (eotteoke haeyo), meaning "how do I do (it)?" is in the standard politeness level. It is polite and conversational. Below is a chart of different politeness levels for this phrase.

Politeness Level	Korean	Romanization	Notes
Formal	어떻게 합니까?	eotteoke hamnikka?	Most formal, not very conversational
Standard	어떻게 해요?	eotteoke haeyo?	Polite and conversational
Intimate	어떻게 해?	eotteoke hae?	Informal and conversational

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 차기 어떻게 해요?
   chagi eotteke haeyo?
   "How do you kick?"

2. 막기 어떻게 해요?
   makgi eotteoke haeyo?
   "How do you block?"

3. 던지기 어떻게 해요?
   deonjigi eotteoke haeyo?

요구르트를 먹었어요. yogureuteureul meogeosseoyo. "I ate yogurt."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is -ㄹ/을래.
난 치즈 소주 마실래.
"I want to drink cheese soju."

We use the grammatical structure -ㄹ/을래 (l/eullae) to convey our desired intention for the future. It does not express our actual intention, but our desired intention. We often translate it as "want to (verb)." We use this construction with action verbs.

This grammatical construction is in the intimate politeness level. The standard politeness level adds the politeness particle -요 (-yo). We use this structure in colloquial situations. There is no formal politeness conjugation.

In this lesson, we used this construction with the verb 마시다 (masida), meaning "to drink." This construction, along with the verb 마시다 (masida), meaning "to drink," becomes 마실래 (masillae), which we translate as "want to drink."

Formation

Verb Stem +ㄹ/을래

We use "-ㄹ래" for verb stems ending in vowels.

For Example:

1. 주다 (juda) "to give"
   주 + ㄹ래
   줄래(요) "I want to give (something)."

We use을래 for verb stems ending in consonants.

For Example:

1. 잡다 (japda) "to grab"
   잡 - verb stem

잡 + 을래
잡을래 (요) "I want to grab."

With Other Verbs

This lesson uses the grammatical construction with the verb 마시다 (masida), meaning "to drink." Below are a list of other useful verbs that use this construction.

Verb	+ ㄹ/을래(요)	Romanization	"English"
자다	잘래(요)	jallae(yo)	"I want to sleep."
보다	볼래(요)	bollae(yo)	"I want to watch."
먹다	먹을래(요)	meogeullae(yo)	"I want to eat."
가다	갈래(요)	gallae(yo)	"I want to go."
하다	할래(요)	hallae(yo)	"I want to do."
마시다	마실래(요)	masillae(yo)	"I want to drink."

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 뭐 마실래?
   mwo masillae?
   "What do you want to drink?"
2. 음... 칵테일 소주 마실래!
   eum... kaktaeil soju masillae!

2. billi : joesonghamnida. hangukmal jal mothaeyo.
3. yerin : oeguksaramineyo!
4. billi : joesonghamnida. hangukmal jal mothaeyo.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
한국말	hangukmal	Korean (language)	noun
죄송합니다	joe-song-hamnida	I'm sorry.	expression
외국 사람	oeguk saram	foreigner	noun
잘 못해요	jal mothaeyo	not very good (at)	expression

SAMPLE SENTENCES

한국말 안 어려워요. hangukmal an eoryeowoyo. "Korean is not difficult."	늦어서 죄송합니다. neujeoseo joesong-hamnida "Sorry for being late."
외국 사람입니다. oeguk saramimnida. "I'm a foreigner."	그 배우는 연기를 잘 못해요. geu baeu-neun yeongi-reul jal mothaeyo "That actor is bad at acting."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is the Phrase 잘 못해요.
한국말 잘 못해요.
"I don't speak Korean well."

잘 못해요 (jal mothaeyo) is a phrase that we use to express a person's lack of adequate ability. We can translate this phrase as "not very good at." 잘 못해요 (jal mot haeyo) is in the standard politeness level. It is polite and conversational.

Examples

From this Dialogue:

1. 죄송합니다. 한국말 잘 못해요.
   joesonghamnida. hangugmal jal mothaeyo.
   "Sorry. I don't speak Korean well."

Other Useful Examples:
This lesson's dialogue focuses on only one such example: 한국말 잘 못해요 (hangugmal jal mothaeyo), which means "I can't speak Korean well."

Below is a list of a few more examples that you may find useful.

For Example:

1. 운전 잘 못해요.
   unjeon jal mothaeyo.
   "I'm not good at driving."
2. 공부 잘 못해요.
   gongbu jal mothaeyo.
   "I'm not a very good student." (Literally, "I'm not good at studying.")
3. 술 잘 못 마셔요.
   sul jal mot masyeoyo.
   "I have low tolerance." (Literally, "I'm not good at drinking.")
4. 컴퓨터 잘 못해요.
   keompyuteo jal mothaeyo.
   "I'm not good with computers."

5. 스포츠 잘 못해요.
   seupocheu jal mot haeyo.
   "I'm not good at sports."

Note: Alternatively, you can express that you are "good at something" by simply using 잘 (jal) instead of 잘 못 (jal mot). Or you can express a stronger inability by using 못 (mot), instead of 잘 못 (jal mot). See the explanation below.

Other Formations

We can break down잘 못해요 (jal mothaeyo) into two different grammatical elements. 잘 (jal) is an adverb that expresses adequate ability. We can translate this as "well" in English. See below for examples.

For Example:

1. 한국말 잘 합니다.
   hangugmal jal hamnida.
   "I speak Korean well."
2. 주희는 태권도 잘 해요.
   juhuineun taekwondo jal haeyo.
   "Juhui is good at taekwondo."

The second grammatical element is 못 (mot), which we use to express impossibility, inability, strong denial, or strong refusal. We translate it as "impossible" or "can't" in English.

For Example:

1. 영어 못해요.
   yeongeo mot haeyo.
   "I can't speak English."
2. 운전 못해요.
   unjeon mot haeyo.
   "I can't drive."

2. Billy : No. It's okay.
3. Yerin : Try it. It's good.
4. Billy : It's okay.

ROMANIZATION

1. yerin : meogeo bwayo.
2. billi : anieyo. gwenchanayo.
3. yerin : megeo bwayo. masisseoyo.
4. billi : gwenchanayo.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
먹어 보다	meogeo boda	to try some food	verb
아니다	anida	to not be	verb
맛있다	masitda	to be delicious	verb
괜찮다	goaenchanhta	to be okay, to be all right (to deny an offer)	adjective

SAMPLE SENTENCES

갈비찜 처음 먹어 봐요. galbijjim cheoeum mageo bwayo "It's my first time eating Galbijjim."	저는 배우가 아닙니다. jeoneun baeuga animnida "I'm not an actor."
와... 맛있겠다! wa... masikketta! "Wow...looks delicious!"	이 찌개는 맛있어요. i jjigaeneun masisseoyo. "This stew is delicious."
괜찮아. 어렵지 않아. gwaenchana. eoryeopjji ana. "It's okay. It's not hard."	창문 열어도 괜찮아요? changmun yeoreodo gwaenchanayo? "May I open the window?"
제 그림인데, 괜찮아요? je geurimindae gwenchanayo? "This is my drawing, but is it ok?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Refusing Requests.
아니에요. 괜찮아요.
"No. It's okay."

To refuse a command or a suggestion politely, we can use 괜찮아요 (gwenchanhayo). This comes from the verb 괜찮다 (gwenchanta), which means "to be okay" or "to be all right." This politely refuses a request from someone and states that the person would not like to fulfill that request.

Another way to refuse requests is to use 아니에요 (anieyo), which comes from the negative copula 아니다 (anida) and means "to not be." We often follow this with 괜찮아요 (gwenchanhayo) in a refusal.

Politeness Levels

괜찮아요 (gwenchanayo) and 아니예요 (anieyo) are both in the standard politeness level. See below for a list of괜찮아요 (gwenchanhayo) in different politeness levels.

For Example:

Politeness Level	Korean	Romanization	Notes
Formal	괜찮습니다	gwenchanhseumnida	Most formal
Standard	괜찮아요	gwenchanhayo	Formal and colloquial
Intimate	괜찮아	gwenchana	Informal and colloquial

Here are some examples of 아니에요 (anieyo).

For Example:

Politeness Level	Korean	Romanization	Notes
Formal	아닙니다	animnida	Most formal
Standard	아니예요	aniyeyo	Formal and colloquial

SAMPLE SENTENCES

이 장갑 얼마예요? i janggap eolmayeyo? "How much are these gloves?"	오백원만 주세요. obaegwonman juseyo. "Please just give me five hundred won."
저거 누구예요? jeogeo nugu-yeyo? "Who is that?" (when you point someone in the picture)	그 아저씨를 발로 찼어. geu ajeossireul ballo chasseo. "I kicked that man."
많이 주세요! mani juseyo "Please give me a lot!"	이거 뭐예요? igeo mwo-yeyo? "What is this?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Asking "How Much."
아저씨. 이거 얼마예요?
"Sir, how much is this?"

To ask in Korean how much something is, you can use the phrase 얼마예요? (eolmayeyo). We use this question to ask the price of a certain item. We place the item we are inquiring about in front of the phrase 얼마예요? (eolmayeyo).

Items to Inquire about

Here are some examples showing how we place common items that we might ask questions about in front of the phrase 얼마예요? (eolmayeyo).

For Example:

1. 이거 얼마예요?
igeo eolmayeyo?
"How much is this?"
2. 저거 얼마예요?
jeogeo eolmayeyo?
"How much is that?"
3. 표 얼마예요?
pyo eolmayeyo?
"How much is a ticket?"
4. 물 얼마예요?
mul eolmayeyo?
"How much is water?"

Politeness Levels

얼마예요? (eolmayeyo) is in the standard politeness level, and we can use it with strangers while being polite. As we most commonly use this phrase while shopping with strangers, the standard politeness level is form we most commonly use. Below is a reference table for the other politeness levels.

Politeness Level	Korean	Romanization	"English"
Formal	얼마입니까?	eolmaimnikka?	"How much is this?"
Standard	얼마예요?	eolmayeyo?	"How much is this?"
Intimate	얼마야?	eolmaya?	"How much is this?"

Examples from This Dialogue

1. 아저씨. 이거 얼마예요?

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is -(아/어/여)야 되다.
지하철 타야 돼요.
"You have to take the subway."

This grammatical construction expresses obligation in Korean. We use it with all verbs (both action and descriptive) to express what someone must do or must be. We often translate this grammatical structure as "have to (verb)" or "must (verb)."

The final verb, 되다 (doeda), usually means "become," but it can also mean "work out smoothly," "go without problem," or "be able to achieve."

The verbs되다 (doeda) or 하다 (hada) regularly express the tense and politeness level. The first verb, however, regularly expresses negation.

Formation

Verb stem + (아/어/여)야 되다 [(a/eo/yeo)ya doeda]

We use 아 (a) with verb stems that end with the vowels ㅏ (a) or ㅗ (o).
We use 어 (eo) with verb stems with any other final vowels.
We use 여 (yeo) with 하다 (hada) verbs.

For Example:

1. 준비하다 (junbihada) "to prepare"
   준비하 (junbiha) - verb stem
   준비하 + (여)야 되다 - 여 (yeo) conjugation is used with 하다 (hada) verbs
   준비해야 되다 (junbi haeya doeda) "to have to prepare"

Useful Examples

As this lesson is geared toward Absolute Beginners, here are a few examples those who are just starting to learn Korean may find helpful.

For Example:

1. 가야 돼요.
   gaya dwaeyo.
   "I have to go."
2. 해야 돼요.
   haeya dwaeyo.
   "I have to do it."
3. 공부해야 돼요.
   gongbuhaeya dwaeyo.
   "I have to study."
4. 와야 돼요.
   waya dwaeyo.
   "You have to come."

5. 자야 돼요.
jaya dwaeyo.
"I have to sleep."

6. 내일 일 해야 돼요.
naeil il haeya dwaeyo.
"I have to work tomorrow."

Examples from This Dialogue

1. 버스 타야 돼요.
beoseu taya dwaeyo.
"You have to take the bus."
2. 지하철 타야 돼요.
jihacheol taya dwaeyo.
"You have to take the subway."
3. 기차 타야 돼요.
gicha taya dwaeyo.
"You have to take a train."

Sample Sentences

1. 시끄럽게 하지마. 나 공부해야 돼.
sikkeureopge hajima. na gongbuhaeya dwae.
"Don't be loud. I have to study."
2. 전화하지마. 나 일해야 돼.
junhwahajima. na il haeya dwae.
"Don't talk on the phone. I have to work."

Language Expansion

In this construction, we can often replace the final verb 되다 (doeda) with the verb 하다 (hada) as the final verb and still hold the same exact meaning.

Verb stem + (아/어/여)야 되다 [(a/eo/yeo)ya doeda] = Verb stem + (아/어/여)야 하다 [(a/eo/yeo)ya hada]

For Example:

하다 (hada) - "to do"

	Korean	Romanization	"English"
되다	해야 되다	haeya doeda	"to have to do"
하다	해야 하다	haeya hada	"to have to do"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is -(아/어/여)서.
비가 와서...
"It was raining, so..."

This grammatical structure indicates the cause or reason for a consequence. It is a non-final ending, and thus we typically introduce a consequential statement after this structure. However, we commonly use it as a sentence ending because many times we can infer the consequential sentence. In this dialogue, we left out the consequential statement because we can infer the consequence from the context (she was late).

We can often translate this construction as "because..." or "...so" with the result coming after (or being inferred).

Formation

[verb] + -(아/어/여)서

For Example:

1. 괜찮다 (gwenchanta) "to be all right," "to be okay"
   괜찮 (gwenchanh) - verb stem
   괜찮 + 아서 (gwenchanh + aseo)
   괜찮아서... (gwenchanhaseo...) "because it's all right..."

Sentence 1 서, Sentence 2
Sentence 1 (sep), Sentence 2
Sentence 1 = (the reason)
Sentence 2 = (consequence)
Sentence 1 provides the reason for Sentence 2.

Useful Examples

As this lesson is geared toward Absolute Beginners, here are a few examples that you may find useful. These examples do not give a definitive statement, thus giving the user more flexibility in use.

For Example:

1. 늦게 자서...
   neutge jaseo...
   "I slept late, so..."
2. 술 마셔서...
   sul masyeoseo...
   "I drank alcohol yesterday, so..."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Parting Greetings.
안녕히 주무세요.
"Good night."

In Korean, there are a number of different ways to say "good-bye" to someone. We'll go over the specific vocabulary for saying "good-bye" in this lesson.

저 갈게요 (jeo galgeyo) "I'm going."

We translate 저 갈게요 (jeo galgeyo) as "I will go" or "I am going." It is stating your intention to leave.

In Korean, when leaving, we consider it polite to make the statement that you are leaving. For example, when you are leaving someone's house or leaving a party, we would consider it polite to state that you will be leaving instead of just saying good-bye. In English, making a statement like this may be considered unnecessary, but in Korean, making a direct statement such as this to state your intentions are considered the norm, even if your statement is obvious.

푹 쉬세요 (puk suiseyo) "Please rest."

We can translate 푹 쉬세요 (puk suiseyo) as "please rest." We can translate 쉬세요 (suiseyo) by itself also as "please rest." We translate 푹 (puk) as "soundly" or "deeply," and we use it as an intensifier for this phrase.

We commonly use this phrase toward those who are older. It is a polite parting phrase that we can use when exiting someone's home. We can also use it when leaving other people in a party. Using this with people who are sick is also common.

안녕히 주무세요 (annyonghi jumuseyo) "Good night"

We translate 안녕히 주무세요 (annyonghi jumuseyo) as "good night" or literally "sleep peacefully."

We usually use this phrase at night to wish people a peaceful slumber. In this form, it is a formal and respectful way to say good night.

An informal version of this phrase is 잘 자 (jal ja), and we should only use it with close friends.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Phrases Used When Seeing Someone for the First Time in a Long Time.
오랜만이에요
"It's been a long time!"

As reacquainting with someone requires some unique vocabulary, this lesson will focus on phrases you can use when seeing someone for the first time in a long time.

오랜만이에요 (oraenmanieyo) "It's been a long time."

We use the phrase 오랜만이에요 (oraenmanieyo) when seeing someone for the first time in a long time. We translate this phrase as "it's been a long time." This phrase comes from the adverb 오랜 (oraen), meaning "long"; 만 (man), a time particle indicating a length of time; and the verb 이다 (ida), which is the Korean equivalent of "to be." We can also use this phrase for situations other than meeting someone after a long time. This phrase is appropriate to use when you haven't done something in a long time. For example, if you haven't eaten a certain food in a long time or haven't gone to a certain place in a long time.

반가워요 (ban-gawoyo) "It's good to see you."

반가워요 (ban-gawoyo) is a conjugated form of the verb 반갑다 (ban-gapda), which roughly means "to be happy to see." We often use it when seeing someone for the first time in a long time. We also use this phrase in first-time meetings, but more likely we would hear it in the formal politeness level 반갑습니다 (ban-gapseumnida). When we use it in first-time meetings, we usually translate it as "it's nice to meet you."

For Example:

Politeness Level	Korean	Romanization	"English"
Dictionary	반갑다	ban-gapda	"to be nice to see"
Formal	반갑습니다	ban-gapseumnida	"It's nice to see you."
Standard	반가워요	ban-gawoyo	"It's nice to see you."
Intimate	반가워	ban-gawo	"It's nice to see you."

잘 지내셨어요? (jal jinaesyeosseoyo?) "Have you been good?"

잘 지내셨어요? (jal jinaesyeosseoyo?) is a phrase we commonly use to reacquaint ourselves with someone. We translate it as "Have you been good?" The first word is 잘 (jal), which is an adverb meaning "well." The second part is a conjugated form of the verb 지내다 (jinaeda), which we can roughly translate "to pass time." We can also use this phrase in situations when a person has not seen or spoken to someone else in a long time but is familiar enough to not have to reacquaint himself or herself with the other party (by using the second phrase above).

Politeness Level	Korean	Romanization	"English"
Dictionary	잘 지내다	jal jinaeda	"to be doing well"
Standard	잘 지내셨어요?	jal jinaesyeosseoyo?	"Have you been good?"
Intimate	잘 지냈어?	jal jinaesseo?	"Have you been good?"

Examples from This Dialogue

1. 제리 씨! 오랜만이에요!
   jeri ssi! oraenmanieyo!
   "Jerry! It's been a long time!

2. 반가워요. 잘 지내셨어요?

나는 거짓말쟁이 싫어! naneun geojitmaljaeng-i sireo! "I hate liars!"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Making Suggestions.
텔레비전 보자.
"Let's watch TV."

We use this sentence ending to express invitation, persuasion, or solicitation for an action. We use it to invite someone to perform an action together with the speaker(s). We only use -자 (-ja) with the intimate politeness level, so make sure you use it only with people with whom you are on intimate terms.

We often translate it as "let's [verb]".

Formation

To use this construction, simply take the stem of a verb and add 자 (ja) at the end of it.

For Example:

1. Dictionary form: 먹다 (meokda) "to eat"
   Verb stem: 먹 (meok)
   Construction: 먹 (meok) + 자 (ja)
   Result: 먹자 (meokja) - "let's eat"

For Example:

Verb	Meaning	+자	"English"
하다	"to do"	하자	"let's do (it)"
먹자	"to eat"	먹자	"let's eat"
보다	"to see/watch"	보자	"let's watch"
마시다	"to drink"	마시자	"let's drink"
가다	"to go"	가자	"let's go"

그리고 이건 뭐야? geurigo igeon mwoya? "And what is this?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Possessive Pronouns.
너 내 거야.
"You're mine."

In Korean, when you want to say "mine," "yours," "theirs," and so forth, you combine two words. It's very simple. You just put the word for "my," "your," or "their" and the word for "thing" together. The word for "thing" in conversational Korean is 거 (geo).

The object that is owned comes in front of the sentence.

Common Forms

The following is the list of possessive adjectives in their most commonly used forms.

Korean	Romanization	"English"
내	nae (intimate), je (polite)	"my"
니	ni (intimate - often omitted in polite language)	"your"
누구	nugu (both intimate and polite)	"whose"
n/a	(often replaced by the person's name)	"his/her/their"

And you just add 거 (geo) after this. 거 (geo) is a colloquial form of 것 (geot), and we use it more often simply because it is easier to pronounce it that way.

For Example:

Korean	Romanization	"English"
내 거	nae geo (often pronounced as nae kkeo	"mine"
제 거	je geo (often pronounced as je kkeo)	"mine" (polite)
니 거	ni geo (often pronounced as ni kkeo)	"yours"
누구 거	nugu geo (often pronounced as nugu kkeo)	"whose"

가까이 오지 마세요.

gakkai oji maseyo.

"Don't come any closer."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is -지 마(요/세 요).
전화하지 마세요.
"Please don't call."

-지 마(요/세요) (-ji ma(yo/seyo)) is the grammatical structure we use to tell someone not to do something. Therefore, we can use it only with action verbs, and we should change descriptive verbs into an action verb form to use them correctly with this structure. -지 마요 (-ji mayo) and -지 마세요 (-ji maseyo) are both in the standard politeness level, but we more commonly use -지 마세요 (-ji maseyo). This structure comes from 말다 (malda), which means "to stop," "to give," or "to quit."

We can translate -지 마세요 (ji maseyo) as "please don't."

Formation

To form this, simply take the verb stem and add -지 마세요 (-ji maseyo) to the end.

- Verb stem + -지 마 (-ji ma) - intimate politeness level
- Verb stem + -지 마요/마세요 (-ji mayo/maseyo) - standard politeness level

For Example:

1. 기다리다 (gidarida) "to wait"
   기다리 (gidari) verb stem
   기다리 + -지 마세요 (gidari + maseyo) = 기다리지 마세요 (gidariji maseyo)
   = "Don't wait."
2. 전화하다 (jeonhwahada) "to call"
   전화하 (jeonhwaha) verb stem
   전화하 + -지 마 (jeonhwaha + ji ma) = 전화하지 마 (jeonhwahaji ma)
   = "Don't call."

Sample Sentences

Below are some sample sentences that you may find useful.

1. 수업에서는 떠들지 마세요. (standard)
   수업에서는 떠들지마. (intimate)

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is 좋아하다.
저는 피자 좋아해요!
"I like pizza!"

The focus of this lesson is the verb 좋아하다 (joahada), which means "to like." The sentence order in Korean is different than it is in English. In English, the basic sentence order is Subject Verb Object. In Korean, however, the word order is Subject Object Verb. So we often find the verb 좋아하다 (joahada) at the end of simple sentences, with the object coming in front.

Word Order

The word order in Korean sentences is Subject Object Verb. Often in Korean, we can omit the subject, so a sentence can often start with simply the object and then end with the verb.

As an example, we will look at the phrase 저는 김치 좋아해요 (jeoneun gimchi joahaeyo), which means "I like kimchi."

For Example:

1. 저는 | 김치 | 좋아해요.
   jeoneun | gimchi | joahaeyo.
   subject | object | verb.
   "I | kimchi | like."

Since sentences can often omit subjects, we commonly use the following sentence structure:

1. 김치 | 좋아해요.
   gimchi | joahaeyo.
   object | verb.
   "Kimchi | like."

Some Common Korean Items

Here are some common Korean items that you may encounter in Korean sentences meaning "I like [object]."

1. 김치(gimchi) meaning "fermented Chinese cabbage"
   저는 김치 좋아해요.
   jeoneun gimchi joahaeyo.
2. 소주*(soju*) meaning "rice wine" (similar to vodka)
   저는 소주 좋아해요.
   jeoneun soju joahaeyo.
3. 비빔밥*(bibimbap*) meaning "vegetables and other toppings over rice" 저는 비빔밥 좋아해요.
   jeoneun bibimbab joahaeyo.
4. 김밥(gimbap) meaning "a roll of rice and other fillings" 저는 김밥 좋아해요.
   jeoneun gimbab joahaeyo.
5. 자장면(jajangmyeon) meaning "Korean-style Chinese black sauce noodles" 저는 자장면 좋아해요.
   jeoneun jajangmyeon joahaeyo.
6. 된장찌개(doenjangjjigae) meaning "fermented soy stew"
   저는 된장찌개 좋아해요.
   jeoneun doenjangjjigae joahaeyo.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is 싫어하다.
저는 밥 싫어해요!
"I don't like rice."

The focus of this lesson is the verb 싫어하다 (sireohada), which means "to not like." The sentence order in Korean is different than it is in English. In English, the basic sentence order is Subject Verb Object. In Korean, however, the word order is Subject Object Verb. So you'll often find this verb 싫어하다 (sireohada) at the end of simple sentences, with the object coming in front.

Word Order

The word order in Korean sentences is Subject Object Verb. In Korean, we often omit the subject, so a sentence can often start with simply the object and then end with the verb.

To take a look at an example, we will look at the phrase 저는 김치 싫어해요 (jeoneun gimchi sireohaeyo), which means "I don't like kimchi."

For Example:

1. 저는 | 김치 | 싫어해요.
   jeoneun | gimchi | sireohaeyo.
   subject | object | verb.
   "I | kimchi | don't like."

Since sentences can often omit subjects, we commonly also use the following sentence structure:

1. 김치 | 싫어해요.
   gimchi | sireohaeyo.
   object | verb.
   "Kimchi | don't like."

Some Common Korean Items

Here are some common Korean items that you may encounter in Korean sentences that mean "I don't like [object]."

1. 김치(gimchi) meaning "fermented Chinese cabbage"
   저는 김치 싫어해요.
   jeoneun gimchi sireohaeyo.
2. 소주*(soju*) meaning "rice wine" (similar to vodka)
   저는 소주 싫어해요.
   jeoneun soju sireohaeyo.
3. 비빔밥*(bibimbab)* meaning "vegetables and other toppings over rice" 저는 비빔밥 싫어해요.
   jeoneun bibimbab sireohaeyo.
4. 김밥(gimbab) meaning "a roll of rice and other fillings" 저는 김밥 싫어해요.
   jeoneun gimbab sireohaeyo.
5. 자장면(jajangmyeon) meaning "Korean-style Chinese black sauce noodles" 저는 자장면 싫어해요.
   jeoneun jajangmyeon sireohaeyo.
6. 된장찌개(doenjangjjigae) meaning "fermented soy stew"
   저는 된장찌개 싫어해요.
   jeoneun doenjangjjigae sireohaeyo.

Examples from This Lesson
Examples from This Dialogue

---

1. 저는 밥 싫어해요.
   jeoneun bab sireohaeyo.
   "I don't like rice."
2. 저는 밥이랑 김치 싫어해요.
   jeoneun babirang gimchi sireohaeyo.
   "I don't like rice and kimchi."
3. 저는 밥이랑 김치랑 김을 싫어해요.
   jeoneun babirang gimchirang gimeul sireohaeyo.
   "I don't like rice, kimchi, and roasted laver."

Language Expansion

The word 싫어하다 (sireohada) is a strong word. Culturally speaking, it is appreciated if someone is not so direct with their words. Often to not be so direct, Korean people often say 별로예요 (byeolloyeyo), which translates as "I don't particularly like (it)."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is -ㄹ/을 수 있다.
나 자전거 탈 수 있어.
"I can ride a bike."

-ㄹ/을 수 있다 (-l/eul su itda) is a grammatical structure we can use to express ability, capability, or possibility (e.g., whether you can or can't speak English, or you can or can't use a computer). We can translate this structure as "can" or "able to."

Formation

To use this construction, simply take the verb stem of the verb and attach -ㄹ/을 수 있다 (-l/eul su itda). We use -ㄹ 수 있다 (-l su itda) for verbs that end in vowels. -을 수 We use 있다 (-eul su itda) for verbs that end on consonants.

For Example:

1. 가다 (gada) "to go"
   가 (ga) - verb stem
   가 + -ㄹ 수 있다 (ga + -l su itda)
   갈 수 있다 (gal su itda) "I can go."
2. 먹다 (meokda) "to eat"
   먹 (meok) verb stem
   먹 + 을 수 있다 (meok eul su itda)
   먹을 수 있다 (meogeul su itda) "I can eat."

Useful Sample Sentences

Below is a list of sample sentences that Korean learners at this level may find useful.

1. 한국어 할 수 있어요.
   hangugeo hal su isseoyo.
   "I can speak Korean."
2. 영어 할 수 있어요.
   yeong-eo hal su isseoyo.
   "I can speak English."
3. 할 수 있어요.
   hal su isseoyo.
   "I can do it."
4. 갈 수 있어요.
   gal su isseoyo.
   "I can go."

Examples from This Lesson
Examples from This Dialogue

1. 나 자전거 탈 수 있어.
   na jajeongeo tal su isseo.
   "I can ride a bike."
2. 나 운전 할 수 있어.
   na unjeon hal su isseo.
   "I can drive."
3. 나 날아갈 수 있어.
   na nalagal su isseo.
   "I can fly."

Language Tip

To say the opposite (the inability to do something), you can replace the last verb 있다 (itda) with 없다 (eoptda):

-ㄹ/을 수 있다 (-l/eul su itda) "ability"

-ㄹ/을 수 없다 (-l/eul su eoptda) "inability"

This is a very simple and useful expression to call politely for someone, as in 저기요... 물 주세요...

2. 네... (ne) "Yes..."
This is a very simple and polite response, such as (저기요...) 네...

3. 감사합니다 (gamsahamnida) /고맙습니다 (gomapsseumnida) "Thank you."
This is a polite response after receiving any help from somebody. For example, after someone serves you, you could say 감사합니다...

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is on Noun + 주세요 ...
물 주세요.
Mul juseyo.
"Please give me some water."

Noun + 주세요... (juseyo) is a very useful and basic expression in Korean that we use to politely request something.

We can simply translate 주세요 (juseyo) as "please give me..."

Formation

To form this kind of phrase, simply use a noun(s) that you want to request and add 주세요 (ju-se-yo) right after the noun(s).

noun(s) + 주세요 (juseyo)

For Example:

1. 물 주세요.
Mul juseyo.
"Please give me some water."

Item	"Please give me..."	"Please give me [item]"	"English"
물 (mul) "water"	주세요... (juseyo)	물 주세요 (mul juseyo)	"Please give me some water.

2. 커피 주세요.
Keopi juseyo.
"Please give me some coffee."

Item	"Please give me..."	"Please give me [item]"	"English"
커피 (keopi) "coffee"	주세요 (juseyo)	커피 주세요 (keopi juseyo)	"Please give me some coffee."

Sample Sentences

Below are some examples that you may find useful.

1. 밥 주세요.
2. 사랑 주세요.
3. 책 주세요.
4. 잔돈 주세요.
5. 용돈 주세요.

6. 티슈 주세요.

Item	"Please give me"	"Please give me [item]"	"English"
밥 (bab) "rice/meal"	주세요 (juseyo)	밥 주세요 (bab jjuseyo)	"Please give me rice/meal."
사랑 (sarang) "love(n)"	주세요 (juseyo)	사랑 주세요 (sarang juseyo)	"Please give me some love."
책 (chaek) "a book"	주세요 (juseyo)	책 주세요 (chaek jjuseyo)	"Please give (pass) me a book."
잔돈 (jandon) "change(n)"	주세요 (juseyo)	잔돈 주세요 (jandon juseyo)	"Please give me change."
용돈 (yongddon) "pocket money"	주세요 (juseyo)	용돈 주세요 (yongddon juseyo)	"Please give me pocket money."
티슈 (tisyu) "tissue"	주세요 (juseyo)	티슈 주세요 (tisyu juseyo)	"Please give me a tissue."

So, all together, we have the following sentences:

1. 밥 주세요.
Bab jjuseyo.
"Please give me rice/meal."

2. 사랑 주세요.
Sarang juseyo.
"Please give me love."

3. 책 주세요.
Chaek jjuseyo.
"Please give me a book."

4. 잔돈 주세요.
Jandon juseyo.
"Please give me change."

5. 용돈 주세요.
Yongddon juseyo.
"Please give me pocket money."

6. 티슈 주세요.
Tisyu juseyo.
"Please give me a tissue."

Examples From This Dialogue

---

1. 물 주세요...
Mul juseyo.
"Please give me some water..."

2. 커피도 주세요...
Keopido juseyo.
"Please give me some coffee too..."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Here's One Way to Get What You Want in Korea

It's very important to be polite in Korea, especially when you try to ask a favor from someone you don't know well. Therefore, learn to use the form of noun(s) + 주세요 (juseyo) "Please give me..."

SAMPLE SENTENCES

안녕하세요. 여러분. Annyeonghaseoyo. yeoryeobun. "Hello, everyone."	저는 김경미입니다. jeoneun gimgyeongmiimnida. "I am Kyoungmi Kim."
저는 한국 사람입니다. jeoneun hanguk saramimnida. "I am Korean."	김치찌개를 좋아해요. 근데 매워요. kimchijjigaereul joahaeyo. geunde maewoeyo. "I like kimchi stew. But it's spicy."
저는 오늘 바빠요. 근데 내일은 괜찮아요. jeoneun oneul bappayo. geunde naeireun gwaenchanayo. "I'm busy today. But tomorrow is ok."	저 사람은 미국 사람입니다. Jeo sarameun miguk ssaramimnida. "That person is American."
지하철이 생각보다 편리한데? jihacheori saenggakbboda pyeollihande? "The subway is more convenient than I thought?"	외국 사람입니다. oeguk saramimnida. "I'm a foreigner."
저 사람은 미국 사람입니다. Jeo sarameun miguk ssaramimnida. "That person is American."	예, 알았습니다. ye, arasseumnida "Yes, I understand."
처음 뵙겠습니다. 만나서 반갑습니다. cheoeum boepgetseumnida. mannaseo bangapsseumnida. "How do you do? Nice to meet you."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 안녕하세요 (annyeonghaseyo) "Hello."
This is a formal way to greet someone

2. 만나서 반갑습니다 (mannaseo bangapsseumnida) "Nice to meet you."
This is a common expression when meeting someone for the first time.

3. 근데 (geunde) "by the way,..."
This expression is useful when trying to change the topic; in English, it means "by the way,..."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is on 저는 (name/noun) + 입니다 (imnida).
저는 팀 입니다. 저는 미국사람 입니다.
Jeoneun tim imnida. Jeoneun migukssaram imnida.
"I am Tim. I am American."

This pattern becomes the predicate of a sentence when followed by a noun.

We can translate 입니다 (imnida) as "to be" ("be" verb).

Formation

---

1. 저는 name + 입니다 (im-ni-da) meaning "to be"

입 니다 (imnida) is a "be" verb. Actually, its original form is 이다 (ida), meaning "to be"; however, the polite form becomes 입니다 (imnida). Korean people often use 입니다 (imnida) when saying their names.

저는 Name + 입니다 (im-ni-da)

For Example:

1. 저는 크리스 입니다.
2. 저는 요코 입니다.
3. 저는 린 입니다.

"I"	Name	"Be" Verb	Korean	"English"
저는 (Jeoneun) "I"	크리스 (Keuriseu) "Chris"	입니다 (imnida) "am"	크리스 입니다. Keuriseu imnida.	"(I) am Chris."
저는(Jeoneun) "I"	요코 (Yoko) "Yoko"	입니다 (imnida) "am"	요코입니다. Yoko imnida.	"(I) am Yoko."
저는(Jeoneun) "I"	린 (Lin) "Linn"	입니다 (imnida) "am"	린 입니다 Lin imnida.	"(I) am Linn."

2. 저는 noun + 입니다: since 입니다 (imnida) is a "be" verb.

We can use it when talking about nationalities, just like in English when we say "I am American."

저는 nationality + 입니다 (imnida)

For Example:

1. 저는 미국사람 입니다.
2. 저는 일본사람 입니다.
3. 저는 중국사람 입니다.

"I"	Nationality	"Be" Verb	Korean	"English"
저는 (Jeoneun) "I"	미국사람 (migukssaram) "American"	입니다 (imnida)	미국사람 입니다. (migukssaram imnida)	"(I) am American."
저는 (Jeo-neun) "I"	일본사람 (ilbonsaram) "Japanese"	입니다 (imnida)	일본사람 입니다. (ilbonsaram imnida)	"(I) am Japanese."
저는 (Jeo-neun) "I"	중국사람 (junggukssaram) "Chinese"	입니다 (imnida)	중국사람 입니다. (junggukssaram imnida)	"(I) am Chinese."

Sample Sentences

Below are some sample sentences that you may find useful.

1. (저는) 조지 입니다.
2. (그는) 외국사람 입니다.
3. (이것은) 물 입니다.
4. (저것은) 커피 입니다.

Subject	Name / Nationality / Noun(s)	"Be" Verb	Korean	"English"
저는 (Jeoneun) "I"	조지 (joji) "American name"	입니다 (imnida) "am"	[저는] 조지 입니다. ([jeoneun] joji imnida)	"(I) am George."
그는 (Geuneun) "He"	외국사람 (oegukssaram) "foreigner"	입니다 (imnida) "is"	[[그는] 외국사람 입니다. ([geuneun] oegukssaram imnida)	"(He) is a foreigner."
이것은 (Igeoseun) "This"	물 (mul) "water"	입니다 (imnida) "is"	(이것은) 물 입니다. ([igeoseun]) mu rimnida	"(This) is water."
저것은 (Jeogeoseun) "That"	커피 (keopi) "coffee"	입니다 (imnida) "is"	[저것은] 커피 입니다. ([jeogeoseun] keopi imnida)	"(That) is coffee."

So, all together, we have the following sentences:

1. (저는) 조지 입니다.
Joji imnida.
"(I) am George."

2. (그는) 외국사람 입니다.
Oegukssaram imnida.
"(He) is a foreigner."

3. (이것은) 물 입니다.
Mu rimnida.
"(This) is water."

4. (저것은) 커피 입니다.
Keopi imnida.
"(That) is coffee."

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 저는 팀입니다.
Jeoneun tim imnida.
"I am Tim."

2. 저는 쥴리아 입니다.
Jeoneun Julia imnida.
"I am Julia."

3. 저는 미국사람 입니다.
Jeoneun migukssaram imnida.
"I am American."

4. 저는 한국사람 입니다.
Jeoneun hangukssaram imnida.
"I am Korean."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Polite Korean Introductions

When two strangers meet for the first time in Korea, they will introduce themselves politely. In this lesson, we heard 안녕하세요 (annyunghaseyo), meaning "Hello"; [Name] + 입니다 (imnida), meaning "to be"; and 만나서 반갑습니다 (mannaseo bangapsseomnida), meaning "Nice to meet you." These three phrases are what you would say or hear when greeting someone or introducing yourself in Korea.

저는 뉴욕에 살아요. jeoneun nyuyoge sarayo. "I live in New York."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is the Topic-Marking Particle (은/는) and the Subject-Marking Particle (이/가) 저의 이름은 팀 입니다. 뉴욕에는 한국사람들이 많습니다.
Jeoi ireumeun tim imnida. Nyuyogeneun hangukssaramdeuri mansseumnida.
"My name is Tim. In New York, there are many Koreans."

In this lesson, we will cover both the topic-marking particle 은/는 and the subject-marking particle 이/가. Let's start with the topic-marking particle, its formation, and some examples to get you started.

Topic-Marking Particle: 은 (eun)/는 (neun)

A. We call -은 (eun) / 는 (neun) the topic-marking particle, and we place it after a noun to make it the topic under discussion. Using the topic particle is one way to designate a noun as the topic of a particular sentence.

B. We attach -은 / 는 (eun/neun) to the end of a noun, an adverb, or another particle.

C. We use 는 (neun) when the previous syllabic block ends in a vowel.

For Example:

저는 한국사람 입니다. (Jeo-neun han-guk-sa-ram imnida.)

Noun	Ends in a Vowel	Topic Marking Particle (TMP)	Complement	"Be" Verb	"English"
저 (jeo) "I"	Vowel	는 (neun) "TMP"	한국사람 (han-guk-sa-ram) "Korean"	입니다 (imnida) "to be"	"I am Korean"

Other Simple Examples:

1. 저는 *jeoneun
   "I"
   저 (*jeo) ends in an -o sound, which is a vowel. Therefore, it becomes 저는 (jeoneun)
2. 비행기는
   *bihaengineun
   "a plane"
   비행기 (bihaengi) ends in an -i sound, which is a vowel. Therefore, it becomes 비행기는 (bihaengineun)
3. 커피는
   *keopineun
   "coffee"
   커피 (keopi) ends in an -i sound, which is a vowel. Therefore, it becomes 커피는 (keopineun)

D. We use 은 (eun) when the previous syllabic block ends in a consonant.

For Example:

이름은 데비 입니다. (Ireumeun debi imnida.)

Noun	Ends in a Consonant	Topic Marking Particle (TMP)	Complement	"Be" Verb	"English"
이름 (*ireum) "name"	Consonant	은 (eun) "TMP"	데비 (Debbie) "English name"	입니다 (imnida) "to be"	"(My) name is Debbie."

Other Simple Examples:

1. 물은
   *mureun
   "water"
   물 (*mul) ends in an -l sound, which is a consonant; therefore, it becomes 물은 (mureun)

2. 밥은 *babeun
   "rice"
   밥 (bab) ends in a -b sound, which is a consonant; therefore, it becomes 밥은 (babeun)

3. 사랑은
   *sarangeun
   "love"
   사랑 (sa-rang) ends in a -g sound, which is a consonant; therefore, it becomes 사랑은 (sarangeun)

Subject-Marking Particle: 이 (i)/가 (ga)

A. -이/가 (i/ga) is a subject-marking particle. We attach this particle to the end of a word to indicate that it's the subject of the sentence. Sometimes we must use 이/가 with certain verbs as they are part of a set (아니다, 있다, 없다, etc).

B. We use 이(i) when the word it is attaching to ends in a consonant, as in 일본사람이 아닙니다 (ilbonsarami animnida). The subject is 일본사람 (ilbonsaram), and it ends in ㅁ (-m), which is a consonant. Therefore, we use 이 (i) here.

For Example:

책이 있습니다. (chaegi isseumnida.)

Subject Noun	Ends in a Consonant	Subject Marking Particle (SMP)	"Be" Verb	"English"
책 (*chaek) "a book"	Consonant	이 (i) "SMP"	있습니다 (isseumnida) "to be"	"There is a book."

C. We use 가(ga) when the word it is attaching to ends in a vowel, as in 가수가 아닙니다 (ga-su-ga a-nim-nida). The subject is 가수 (ga-su), and it ends in ㅜ (u), which is a vowel. Therefore, we use 가 (ga) here.

For Example:

(제) 친구가 일본사람 입니다. [(Je) chinguga ilbonssaram imnida.]

Subject Noun	Ends in a Vowel	Subject Marking Particle (SMP)	Complement	"Be" Verb	"English"
친구 (*chinguu) "a friend"	Vowel	가 (ga) "SMP"	일본사람 (ilbonsaram) "Japanese"	입니다 (imnida) "to be"	"(My) friend is Japanese."

Sample Sentences

Below are some samples that you may find useful.

1. 나는 일본사람 입니다. (Naneun ilbonssaram imnida)
2. 성은 김 입니다. (Seongeun gim imnida)
3. 여기가 좋습니다. (Yeogiga josseumnida)
4. 연필이 있습니다. (Yeonpiri isseumnida)

Subject	Ends in a Vowel / a Consonant	(TMP)/ (SMP)	Complement	"Be" Verb/ Verb	"English"
1. 나 (na) "I"	Vowel	는 (neun) "TMP"	일본사람 (ilbonsaram) "Japanese"	입니다 (imnida) "to be"	"I am Japanese."
2. 성 (seong) "family name"	Consonant	은 (eun) "TMP"	김 (gim) "Kim"	입니다 (imnida) "to be"	"(My) family name is Kim."
3. 여기 (yeogi) "here"	Vowel	가 (ga) "SMP"		좋습니다 (josseumnida) "to like"	"Here is good."
4. 연필 (yeonpil) "a pencil"	Consonant	이 (i) "SMP"		있습니다 (isseumnida) "there is"	"There is a pencil."

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 저는 미국 사람입니다.
   Jeoneun migulssaramimnida.
   "I'm American."
2. 이름은 팀입니다.
   Ireumeun Timimnida.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Object-Marking Particles: 을 (eul)/ 를 (reul).
아빠는 책을 읽습니다. 동생은 공부를 합니다.
Appaneun chaegeul ilsseumnida. Dongsaengeun gongbureul hamnida.
"My dad reads a book. My younger brother studies."

We use the object-marking particles 을 (eul) and 를 (reul) to mark the object of a sentence when attached to a noun.

- They mark the object of the sentence, which is the noun that the verb of the sentence is acting upon. We typically use this particle in conjunction with action verbs.
- We attach 을 (eul) to nouns that end in consonants.
- We attach 를 (reul) to nouns that end in vowels.

Formation

A. We use 을 (eul) when the previous syllabic block ends in a consonant.
If it ends in a consonant, put 을(eul).

For Example:

1. 동생은 물을 마십니다. (Dongsaengeun mureul masimnida)

Subject	TMP	Object	Object Marking Particle (OMP)	Verb	"English"
동생 (dongsaeng) "younger sibling"	은 (eun)	물 (mul) "water"	을 (eul) (OMP)	마십니다 (masimnida) "to drink"	"(My) younger sibling drinks water."

1. 아빠는 밥을 먹습니다. (A-ppa-neun bab-eul meok-sseum-ni-da)

Subject	TMP	Object	Object Marking Particle (OMP)	Verb	"English"
아빠 (appa) "dad"	는 (neun)	밥 (bab) "rice/meal"	을 (eul) (OMP)	먹습니다 (meoksseumnida) "to eat"/"to have"	"(My) dad eats meal/rice."

B. We use 를 (reul) when the previous syllabic block ends in a vowel.
If it ends in a vowel, put 를(reul).

For Example:

1. 엄마는 커피를 마십니다. (Eommaneun keopireul masimnida)

Subject	TMP	Object	Object Marking Particle (OMP)	Verb	"English"
엄마 (eomma) "mom"	는 (neun)	커피 (keopi) "coffee"	를 (reul) (OMP)	마십니다 (masimnida) "to drink"	"Mom drinks coffee."

1. 팀은 시계를 봅니다. (Tim-eun si-gye-reul bom-ni-da)

Subject	TMP	Object	Object Marking Particle (OMP)	Verb	"English"
팀 (tim) "Tim"	은 (eun)	시계 (sigye) "watch"	를 (reul) (OMP)	봅니다 (bomnida) "to look at"	"Tim looks at a watch."

Sample Sentences

Below are some samples that you may find useful.

1. 나는 너를 잘 모릅니다. (Naneun neoreul jal moreumnida)
2. 그는 그들을 잘 압니다. (Geuneun geudeureul jal amnida)
3. 동생은 컴퓨터를 합니다. (Dongsaengeun keompyuteoreul hamnida)
4. 그들은 서울을 잘 모릅니다. (Geudeureun seoureul jal moreumnida)
5. 우리는 오락을 합니다. (Urineun orageul hamnida)
6. 형은 당신을 잘 압니다. (Hyongeun dangsineul jal amnida)

Subject	TMP	Object	Object Marking Particle (OMP)	Verb	"English"
1. 나 (na) "I"	는 (neun)	너 (neo) "you"	를 (reul) (OMP)	모릅니다 (moreumnida) "not to know"	"I don't know you well."
2. 그 (geu) "He"	는 (neun)	그들 (geudeul) "they"	을 (eul) (OMP)	압니다 (amnida) "to know"	"He knows them well."
3. 동생 (dongsaeng) "Sibling"	은 (eun)	컴퓨터 (keompyuteo) "computer"	를 reul (OMP)	합니다 (hamnida) "to do/to play"	"(my) Sibling plays computer."
4. 그들 (geudeul) "They"	은 (eun)	서울 (seoul) "Seoul"	을 eul (OMP)	모릅니다 (moreumnida) "not to know"	"They don't know Seoul well."
5. 우리 (uri) "We"	는 (neun)	오락 (orak) "games"	을 eul (OMP)	합니다 (hamnida) "to do/to play"	"We play games."
6. 형 (hyong) "Elder brother"	은 (eun)	당신 (dangsin) "you"	을 eul (OMP)	압니다 (amnida) "to know"	"(my) Elder brother knows you well."

The Focus of This Lesson Is "How Is" and "How about?"
이 자리는 어 때요? 여기 반 찬들은 어때요?
I jarineun eottaeyo? Yeogi banchandeureun eottaeyo?
"How about this table? How are the side dishes here?"

A. Noun(s) + 어때요 (eottaeyo?) is a very basic and simple "how" question.

B. Koreans often politely (formally) ask about opinions by saying - 어때요? (eottaeyo?), meaning "How is?" or "How about?"

For Example:

1. 내 옷 어때요?
   Nae ot eottaeyo?
   "How about my clothes?"
   (Note: "my" is 내 (nae), and "clothes" are 옷 (ot))

C. When informally speaking, we use -어때? (eottae?), meaning "How is?" or "How about?"

Formation

Here is the way to form this construction:

- noun(s) + Topic-marking particle 은 (eun)/는 (neun) + 어때요 (eottaeyo?)

For Example:

Noun(s)	TMP/ SMP	"How is"/ "How about?"	"How is"/ "How about [noun(s)]?"	"English"
1. 여기 (yeogi) "here"	는	어때요? (eottaeyo?)	여기는 어때요? (Yeogineun eottaeyo?)	"How is here?"/ "How about here?"
2. 저기 (jeogi) "there"	는	어때요? (eottaeyo?)	저기는 어때요? (Jeogineun eottaeyo?)	"How is there?"/ "How about there?"
3. 이것 (igeot) "this"	은	어때요? (eottaeyo?)	이것은 어때요? (Igeoseun eottaeyo?)	"How is this?"/ "How about this?"
4. 저것 (jeogeot) "that"	은	어때요? (eottaeyo?)	저것은 어때요? (Jeogeoseun eottaeyo?)	"How is that?"/ "How about that?"
5. 이것들 igeotteul "these"	은	어때요? (eottaeyo?)	이것들은 어때요? (Igeotteureun eottaeyo?)	"How are these?"/ "How about these?"
6. 저것들 (jeogeotteul) "those"	은	어때요? (eottaeyo?)	저것들은 어때요? (Jeogeotteureun eottaeyo?)	"How are those?"/ "How about those?"

* Note: You won't need to attach a topic-marking particle (TMP) after each noun (but keep practicing using particles!).

Sample Sentences

Below are some examples that you may find useful.

1. 커피(는) 어때요?
   Keopi(neun) eottaeyo?
   "How is coffee?"/"How about coffee?"
2. 책(은) 어때요?
   Chaeg(eun) eottaeyo?
   "How is a book?"/"How about a book?"
3. 반찬들(은) 어때요?
   Banchandeur(eun) eottaeyo?
   "How are side dishes?"/"How about side dishes?"
4. 한국어(는) 어때요?

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
그래요	geuraeyo	Is that so? / That is so.	expression
제	je	my (humble-form)	noun
신발	sinbal	shoes	noun
알겠습니다	algesseumnida	Okay., All right., I understand.	expression
여성	yeoseong	women	noun
있습니다	isseumnida	there is/there are (polite form)	verb
남성	namseong	male	noun
내 것	nae geot	mine	pronoun

SAMPLE SENTENCES

그래요? 난 몰랐어요. Geuraeyo, nan mollasseoyo. "Is that so? I did not know that!"	제 이름은 민수입니다. je ireumeun minsuimnida. "My name is Minsu."
제가 모르는 사람입니다. jega moreuneun saramimnida. "It's somebody I don't know."	남자친구에게 신발을 선물하고 싶은데 고민이에요. namjachinguege sinbareul seonmulhago sipeunde gominieyo. "I want to give shoes as a gift to my boyfriend, but I am not sure."
새 신발이 필요해요. sae sinbari piryohaeyo. "I need new shoes."	오늘은 바빠요? 아... 네... 알겠습니다. oneuleun bappayo? a...ne...algesseumnida. "You're busy today? Oh...all right...I got it."
이것은 여성 목소리입니다. Igeoseun yeoseong mokssori imnida. "This is a female voice."	책상이 있습니다. Chaekssangi itsseumnida. "There is a desk."
남자 화장실은 어디에 있습니까? Namja hwajangsireun eodie isseumnikka? "Where is the men's washroom?"	저 차는 내 것입니다. Jeo chaneun nae geo simnida. "That vehicle is mine."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 있습니다 (itsseumnida) "there is/there are"
- 있습니다 (itsseumnida), meaning "there is"/"there are," is a polite form of 있다 (ittta), which means "there is"/"there are."

- Formation: "Be" Verb Stem (있 it) + 습니다
Note: Do not confuse this with the formal declarative sentence ending, which is "Verb stem + ㅂ 니다/습니다."

2. Gender/a number of people + 분 (bun) - 남성분 / 여성분
(nam-seong-bun/yeo-seong-bun) meaning "male as esteemed person"/"female as esteemed person"

Gender/A Number of People	Korean (Romanization)	분 (bun)
Male	남성 (namseong)	남성 분 (namseongbun)
Female	여성 (seong)	여성 분 (yeoseongbun)
Customer	손님 (sonnim)	손님 분 (sonnimbun)
One or two people	한두 (handu)	한두 분 (handubun)

3. 아... 그래요!? (A...geuraeyo!?) "Ah...is that so"/"Ah that is so!?"
This is an expression that we use when realizing a new fact or situation. For example, you want to study Korean and you haven't heard about KoreanClass101.com at all, and somebody just mentioned it to you. Then you would probably say 아... 그래요!? (A...geuraeyo) "Ah... that is so!?"

4. 알겠습니다 (algesseumnida) "I understood."/"I got it."
- 알겠습니다 (algesseumnida) "I got it" is usually followed by 네/예 (ne/yea) "yes."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is the Possessive-marking Adjective -의 (Ui).
남성분들의 신발은 여기에, 여성분들의 신발은 저기에 있습니다.
Namseongbundeurui shinbareun yeogie, yeoseongbundeurui shinbareun jeogie isseumnida.
"All the men's shoes are here; all the women's shoes are there."

When we use the particle 의 (ui) to connect two nouns, it indicates that the second noun belongs to the first. In this way, it is equivalent to the apostrophe "-s" ('s) in English. We sometimes omit it in casual conversation.

Formation

- Noun A + 의 ui + Noun B

For Example:

Noun A/ Person	Korean/ Romanization	+ 의 (ui)	"English"
"I"	저 (jeo) (formal) or 나 (na) (informal)	저의=제 (je) or 나의=내 (nae)	"my"
"you"	당신 (dan-shin) (formal) or 너 (neo) (informal)	당신의 or 너의 = 네 (ne)	"your"
"he"	그 (geu)	그의	"his"
"she"	그녀 (geu-nyeo)	그녀의	"her"
"we"	우리 (wu-ri)	우리의	"our"
"you"	당신들 (dan-shin-deul)	당신들의	"your"
"they"	그들 (geu-deul)	그들의	"their"
"male"	남성 (nam-seong)	남성의	"male's"
"female"	여성 (yeos-eong)	여성의	"female's"
"Tim"	팀 (tim)	팀의	"Tim's"

Note: In this dialogue, "I," 저/나, becomes "my," 제 (je)/내 (nae). This is because 저 + 의 becomes 제 (je) in a shortened form and 나 + 의 becomes 내 (nae) in a shortened form.

Sample Sentences

1. 이것들은 저의 신발입니다.
   Igeotteureun jeoui shinba rimnida.
   "These are my shoes."
2. 남성분들의 신발은 여기에 있습니다.
   Namseongbundeurui shinbareun yeogie isseumnida.
   "There are men's shoes here."
3. 여성분들의 신발은 저기에 있습니다.
   Yeoseongbundeurui shinbareun jeogie isseumnida.
   "There are women's shoes (over) there."

Language Tip: Possessive Adjective of Plurals: Plural + 의 (Ui)

We have also learned how to form the plural in the previous lesson.

For Example:

"English" Noun	Korean Noun	Plural: Noun + 들 (deul)	Possessive Adjective of Plural: Plural + 의 (ui)
"male"	남성 (namseong)	남성들 (namseongdeul) "males," "men"	남성 들의 (namseongdeurui) "males'," "men's"
"female"	여성 (yeoseong)	여성들 (yeoseongdeul) "females," "women"	여성들의 (yeoseongdeurui) "females'," "women's"

How to Form Possessive Pronouns

Now that we know how to form the possessive in Korean, making possessive pronouns is very easy in Korean. Simply add 것 (geot) right after the possessive-marking adjective.

Noun/ Person	Korean/ Romanization	Possssive: + 의 (ui)	Possessive Pronoun: PA + 것 (geot)	"English"
"I"	저 (jeo) (formal) or 나 (na) (informal)	저의=제 (je) or 나의=내 (nae)	저의 것 (jeoui geot)= 제것 (jegeot) or 나의 것 (naeui geot)=내것 (naegeot)	"mine"
"you"	당신 (dangshin) (formal) or 너 (neo) (informal)	당신의 or 너의	당신의 것 (dangshinui geot) or 너의 것 (neoui geot) = 네 것 (ne geot)	"yours"
"he"	그 (geu)	그의	그의 것 (geui geot)	"his"
"she"	그녀 (geunyeo)	그녀의	그녀의 것 (geunyeoui geot)	"hers"
"we"	우리 (wuri)	우리의	우리의 것 (wuriui geot)	"ours"
"you"	당신들 (dangshindeul)	당신들의	당신들의 것 (dangshindeurui geot)	"yours"
"they"	그들 (geudeul)	그들의	그들의 것 (geudeurui geot)	"theirs"
"male"	남성 (namseong)	남성의	남성의 것 (namseongui geot)	"male's"
"female"	여성 (yeoseong)	여성의	여성의 것 (yeoseongui geot)	"female's"
"Tim"	팀 (tim)	팀의	팀의 것 (Timui geot)	"Tim's"

Sample Sentences

1. 저것은 당신의 것 입니다.
   Jeogeoseun dangshinui geo simnida.
   "That is yours."
2. 책들은 그들의 것 입니다.
   Chaektteureun geudeurui geot imnida.
   "Books are theirs."
3. 한국어는 모든 사람들의 것 입니다.
   Hangugeoneun modeun saram-deurui geo simnida.
   "Korean is (for) everyone."

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 남성분들의 신발은 여기에,
   Nam-seong-bun-deul-ui shin-bal-eun yeo-gi-e,
   "All the men's shoes are here."
2. 여성분들의 신발은 저기에 있습니다.
   Yeoseongbundeurui shinbareun jeogie itseumnida.
   "All the women's shoes are there."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

What to Do with Your Shoes at Korean Restaurants

In Korean culture, when you enter at the Korean restaurants, people (not always) need to take their shoes off before entering the rooms. However, you need to be careful with your shoes, because sometimes you might lose your shoes: in particular, the more luxurious your shoes are, the greater the chance that you might lose your shoes.

Restaurants usually separate the shoes of males and females.

오늘부터 수영 배워요. oneulbuteo suyeong baewoyo. "I'm going to learn swimming from today."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

I. -도 (-do) "too," "also," "as well"
-도, (-do) expresses the meaning of 또 (tto) meaning "too," 역시 (yeokssi) meaning "also," or 또 한 (ttohan) meaning "as well" when attached to a noun or another particle.

Formation: noun(s)/a postposition + 도

For Example:

1. 수진은 수영을 좋아합니다.
   Sujineun suyeongeul joahamnida.
   "Sujin likes swimming."

2. 나도 수영을 좋아합니다.
   Nado suyeongeul joahamnida.
   "I, too, like swimming."

II. 같이/ 함께 (gachi)/(hamkke) "together"
We can usually, but not always, place the adverb 같이/함께 anywhere in the sentence.

For Example:

1. 우리 수영장에 가자.
   Wuri suyeongjange gaja.
   "Let's go to the swimming pool."

+ 같이/함께 (gachi/hamkke) "together"

For Example:

1. "Let's go to the swimming pool together."

1. 같이/함께 우리 수영장에 가자.
2. 우리 같이/ 함께 수영장에 가자.
3. 우리 수영장에 같 이/함께 가자.
4. 우리 수영장에 가자 같이/함께.

Note: As you can see above, we can speak and use each of these four sentences.

III. 좋아, 좋아! (joa, joa!) "That sounds good!"
We often use the expression using the doubled word 좋아 (jo-a), meaning "good," in Korea when two or more people totally agree with each other. This expression is very casual and friendly.

For Example:

1. 우리 커피(를) 마시자.
   Wuri keopi(reul) masija.
   "Let's drink coffee."
   If you totally agree with the proposal or idea, then you would respond like 좋아, 좋아! (joa, joa!)
   "That sounds good!"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is the Usage of "A and B," A 와 (wa)/과 (kwa) B.
나는 야구와 수영을 좋아해.
Naneun yaguwa suyeongeul joahae.
"I like baseball and swimming."

In Korean, we have two words that mean "and" that we use to connect two nouns. Which one we use depends on whether the previous syllabic block ends in a consonant or a vowel.

I. A and B = A 와 (wa) B
와 (wa) means "and," and we use it when the previous syllabic block ends in a vowel.

For Example:

A and B ("English")	A (Korean)	A + "and" (Korean)	B (Korean)	A 와 (wa) B (Korean)
"I and you"	나 (informal) (na)	나와 (na wa)	너 (neo)	나와 너 (na wa neo)
"you and I"	너 (informal) (neo)	너와 (neo wa)	나 (na)	너와 나 (neo wa na)
"he and she"	그 (informal) (geu)	그와 (geu wa)	그녀 (geunyeo)	그와 그녀 (geu wa geu-nyeo)
"Dad and Mom"	아빠 (informal) (abba)	아빠와 (abba wa)	엄마 (eomma)	아빠와 엄마 (abba wa eomma)
"we and they"	우리 (wuri)	우리와 (wuri wa)	그들 (geudeul)	우리와 그들 (wuri wa geudeul)
"coffee and water"	커피 (keopi)	커피와 (keopi wa)	물 (mul)	커피와 물 (keopi wa mul)
"address and name"	주소 (juso)	주소와 (juso wa)	이름 (ireum)	주소와 이름 (juso wa ireum)
"baseball and swimming"	야구 (yagu)	야구와 (yagu wa)	수영 (suyeong)	야구와 수영 (yagu wa suyeong)
"apples and pears"	사과 (sagwa)	사과와 (sagwa wa)	배 (bae)	사과와 배 (sagwa wa bae)

II. "A and B" = A 과 (gwa) B
We use 과 (kwa) when the previous syllabic block ends in a consonant.

For Example:

"A and B" ("English")	A (Korean)	A + "and" (Korean)	B (Korean)	A 과 (kwa) B (Korean)
"they and we"	그들 (*geudeul)	그들과 (*geudeul gwa)	우리 (wuri)	그들과 우리 (geudeul gwa wuri)
"younger sibling and dad"	동생 (*dongsaeng)	동생과 (*dongsaeng gwa)	아빠 (abba)	동생과 아빠 (dongsaeng gwa abba)
"this and that"	이것 (*igeot)	이것과 (*igeot kkwa)	저것 (jeo-geot)	이것과 저것 (igeot kkwa jeogeot)
"water and juice"	물 (*mul)	물과 (*mul gwa)	쥬스 (jyuseu)	물과 쥬스 (mul gwa jyuseu)
"name and telephone number"	이름 (*ireum)	이름과 (*ireum gwa)	전화번호 (jeonhwabeonho)	이름과 전화번호 (ireum gwa jeonhwabeonho)
"exercise and study"	운동 (*wundong)	운동과 (*wundong gwa)	공부 (gongbu)	운동과 공부 (wundong gwa gongbu)
"swimming and basketball"	수영 (*suyeong)	수영과 (*suyeong gwa)	농구 (nonggu)	수영과 농구 (suyeong gwa nonggu)
"tangerines and apples"	귤 (*gyul)	귤과 (*gyul gwa)	사과 (sagwa)	귤과 사과 (gyul gwa sagwa)

Sample Sentences

1. 나와 동생은 수영을 좋아합니다.
   Nawa dongsaengeun suyeongeul joahamnida.
   "My younger brother and I like swimming."
2. 귤과 배가 있습니다.
   Gyulgwa baega isseumnida.
   "There are tangerines and pears."
3. 쥬스와 물을 좀 주세요.
   Jyuseuwa mureul jom juseyo.
   "Please give me some juice and water."
4. 그는 수영과 야구를 좋아합니다.
   Geuneun suyeonggwa yagureul joahamnida.
   "He likes swimming and baseball."

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 나는 수영과 농구를 좋아해. 너는?
   Naneun suyeonggwa nonggureul joahae. neoneun?
   "I like swimming and basketball. How about you?"

2. 나는 야구와 수영을 좋아해.
   Naneun yaguwa suyeongeul joahae.
   "I like baseball and swimming."

이거 어때?

igeo eottae?

"How about this one?"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

I. 시(si) "hour"
To express time in Korean, what you need to know is two words: 시 (si), meaning "hour," and 분 (bun), meaning "minutes."

Formation of time expression: Pure Korean number + 시 (si) and Chinese-character based Korean number + 분 (bun).

(This lesson only covers Pure Korean numbers, so here we'll focus only on how to say the Pure Korean number + 시 (si), meaning "hour." The eleventh lesson in this series will cover Chinese-character based Korean numbers.)

 "What time?" = 몇 시? (myeo ssi)

For Example:

1. 지금(은) 몇 시 입니까?
Jigeum(eun) myeot ssi imnikka?
"What time is it now?"

2. 한 시 입니다.
Han si imnida.
"It's one o'clock."

II. -요일(-yoil) "-day"
Let's learn about the seven days of the week in Korean.

"English"	Korean	Romanization	"on -day" ("English")	"-day" 에 (e) (Korean)
"Sunday"	일요일	ir*yoil*	"on Sunday"	일요일에
"Monday"	월요일	wor*yoil*	"on Monday"	월요일에
"Tuesday"	화요일	hwa*yoil*	"on Tuesday"	화요일에
"Wednesday"	수요일	su*yoil*	"on Wednesday"	수요일에
"Thursday"	목요일	mog*yoil*	"on Thursday"	목요일에
"Friday"	금요일	geum*yoil*	"on Friday"	금요일에
"Saturday"	토요일	to*yoil*	"on Saturday"	토요일에

For Example:

1. 금요일에 만나자.
   Geumyoire mannaja.
   "Let's meet on Friday."
2. 수요일에 만나자.
   Suyoire mannaja.
   "Let's meet on Wednesday."

Note: Do not worry about the verb change of "meet," which is 만나다 (mannada). You will learn about it later.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is 순수 한국어 숫자 ("Pure Korean Numbers").
한 시에..?
Han sie..?
"How about at one o'clock P.M.?"

순수 한국어 숫자 (Sunsu Hangugeo sujja) means "Pure Korean numbers." We use these numbers when counting. Let's take a look at forming expressions using time with the structure "Pure Korean Numbers + o'clock."

For Example:

Number	순 수 한국어 숫자 ("Pure Korean Numbers")	Number + "o'clock" (counting units)	Changes in Pure Korean Numbers (only in one through four)
1	하나 (hana)	"one o'clock"	한 시 (han si) (하나 (hana) becomes 한 (han))
2	둘 (dul)	"two o'clock"	두 시 (du si) (둘 dul becomes 두 (du))
3	셋 (set)	"three o'clock"	세 시 (se si) (셋 set becomes 세 (se)
4	넷 (net)	"four o'clock"	네 시 (ne si) (넷 (net) becomes 네 (ne))
5	다섯 (daseot)	"five o'clock"	다섯 시 (daseot ssi)
6	여섯 (yeoseot)	"six o'clock"	여섯 시 (yeoseot ssi)
7	일곱 (ilgob)	"seven o'clock"	일곱 시 (ilgob ssi)
8	여덟 (yeodeol)	"eight o'clock"	여덟 시 (yeodeol ssi)
9	아홉 (ahob)	"nine o'clock"	아홉 시 (ahob ssi)
10	열 (yeol)	"ten o'clock"	열 시 (yeol ssi)
11	열 하나 (yeol hana)	"eleven o'clock"	열한 시 (yeorhan si)
12	열 둘 (yeol ddul)	"twelve o'clock"	열두 시 (yeolddu si)

Note: For further information on Pure Korean numbers, please look for 순 수 한국어 숫자 ("Pure Korean numbers") in the Grammar Bank.

There are changes in the numbers from one to four when the format is Pure Korean number + Noun/Counting unit.

For Example:

1. 저는 오전 일곱 시에 일어납니다.
jeoneun ojeon ilgob ssie ireonabmnida.
"I get up at seven o'clock A.M."

2. 저는 오후 열 두 시에 점심을 먹습니다.
jeoneun ohu yeol ddu sie jeomsimeul meogsseumnida.
"I eat lunch at twelve o'clock P.M."

3. 저는 오후 열 시에 잡니다.
jeoneun ohu yeol ssie jamnida.
"I sleep at ten o'clock P.M."

Note: "A.M." is 오전 (ojeon) and "P.M." is 오후 (ohu) in Korean.

Do not worry about the following verbs: "to get up," "to eat," and "to sleep."

Four Important Counting Units We Use with Pure Korean Numbers

"English"	Korean
1. people	사 람/명/분 (saram/myeong/bun)
2. items, units, objects	개 (gae)
3. o'clock	시 (si)
4. hours	시간 (sigan)

Note: For more information on the counting units we use with Pure Korean numbers, please look for the title "Counting Units We Use with Pure Korean Numbers" in the Grammar Bank.

Remembering all the categories of counting units we use with Pure Korean numbers is quite difficult. Give yourself enough time to learn it!

For Example:

1. 저기에 네 사람이 있습니다.
Jeogie nesaram isseumnida.
"There are four people."

2. 저기에 두 개 있습니다
Jeogie du gae issseumnida.
"There are two units."

3. 저는 오전 여덟 시에 일어납니다.
Jeoneun ojeon yeodeol ssie ireonamnida.
"I get up at eight o'clock A.M."

4. 저는 매일 네 시간 한국어를 공부합니다.
jeoneun maeil ne sigan hangugeoleul gongbuhamnida.
"I study Korean for four hours every day."

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 몇 시에 갈까?
   Meot ssie galkka?
   "At what time would you like to go?" ("When you do want to go?")
2. 한 시에..?
   Han sie..?
   "How about at one o'clock P.M.?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

A Korean Destination to Add to Your List of Summer Travel Destinations

There is a very famous waterpark in Korea called "Caribbean Bay". It is 캐리비안 베이 in Korean and located next to an amusement park 에버랜드 (Everland, also one of the most famous amusement parks in Korea). Every summer, this place is packed with a number of Koreans. It is definitely a must-go spot if you visit Korea during the summer.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 와~ (wa~) "wow~"
와~ (w*a~)* meaning "wow~," is an expression of admiration in Korean.

For Example:

1. When you are eating excellent food at a restaurant, you would say
   와~, 정말 맛있다!
   Wa~, jeongmal masitta!
   "Wow~, (it's) so delicious!"

2. 난 / 넌 (nan/neon) "I"/"You"
난/넌 (nan/neon), meaning "I" or "you," are shortened forms of 나는 (naneun), meaning "I," and 너는 (neoneun), meaning "you." We usually use these words in a very casual conversation.

For Example:

These two sentences mean the same thing.

1. 나는 학생이야. (informal)
   Naneun hakssaengiya.
   "I am a student."
2. 난 학생이야. (very casual)
   Nan hakssaengiya.
   "I am a student."
3. 너는 누구야? (informal)
   Neonuen nuguya?
   "Who are you?"
4. 넌 누구야? (very casual)
   Neon nuguya?
   "Who are you?"

3. 정도 (jeongdo) "about"/"approximately"
English speakers often add "about" or "approximately" in sentences. This statement also applies to Korean. Be familiar with the word 정도 (jeongdo), meaning "about." You would often hear or say the word 정도 (jeongdo), meaning "about," in many Korean sentences.

For Example:

1. 1 (한 (han) "one") 시간 정도 걸려.
   Han sigan jeongdo geolryeo.
   "It takes about one hour."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is on -(으)로 (-(eu)ro), meaning "-by."
지하철로 1시간 정도 걸렸어.
Jihacheollo 1 sigan jeongdo geollyeosseo.
"It took about one hour by subway."

1. -(으)로 (-(eu)ro) "-by"

-로 (-ro) means "by" or "using", which we use to talk about tools, instruments, and methods that we use to do something. It is often used when talking about transportation.

Formation: noun + (으)로

For Example:

1. 자전거로 회사에 갑니다.
   Jajeongeoro hoesae gamnida.
   "I go to work by bicycle."
2. 나는 젓가락으로 밥을 먹습니다.
   Naneun jeokkarageuro babeul meogsseumnida.
   "I eat a meal with chopsticks."

2. 로/으로 (-ro/-euro)

When do we use 로 (-ro) and 으로 (-eu-ro)?

-로 (-ro)	-으로 (-euro)
Noun that Ends in a Vowel	Noun that Ends in a Consonant
1. 자전거로 *jajeongeoro "by bicycle"	1. 젓가락으로 *jeokkarageuro "with chopsticks"
2. 차로 *charo "by car"	2. 옷으로 *oseuro "by clothes"

For Example:

1. 버스로 얼마나 걸립니까? (Note: 걸리다 (geol-li-da) "to take")
   Beoseuro eolmana geollimnikka?
   "How long does it take by bus?"
2. 지하철로 1시간 정도 걸립니다.
   Jihacheollo hansigan jeongdo geollimnida.
   "It takes about one hour by subway."
3. 난 자전거로 집에 갑니다.
   Nan jajeongeoro jibe gamnida.
   "I go home by bicycle."

4. 젓가락으로 라면을 먹습니다.
   Jeokkarageuro lamyeoneul meoksseumnida.
   "I eat noodles with chopsticks.

★ Exception! If the consonant is ㄹ, with the sound of l, then, you have to use -로 (-ro) instead of -으로 (-euro).

Example:

1. 지하철로
*jihacheollo
"by subway"

2. 연필로
*yeonpillo
"by a pencil"

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 난 지하철로 왔어.
   Nan jihacheollo wasseo.
   "I came by subway."
2. 난 차로 왔어.
   Nan charo wasseo.
   "I came by car."
3. 지하철로 얼마나 걸렸어?
   Jihacheollo eolmana geollyeosseo?
   "How long did it take by subway?"
4. 지하철로 1시간 정도 걸렸어.
   Jihacheollo hansigan jeongdo geollyeosseo.
   "It took about one hour by subway."

   칠천 이백 십구
   chil-cheon i-baek sip-gu
   "seven thousand, two hundred nineteen"
3. 90,703
   (구 (gu) "9" + 만 (man) "10,000") + (칠 (chil) "7" + 백 (baek) "100") + (삼 (sam) "3") 구만 칠백 삼 gu-man chil-baek sam
   "nine thousand, seven hundred and three"

Four Important Counting Units We Use with Sino-Korean Numbers

"English"	Korean	Romanization
1. "Korean currency unit"	원	won
2. "Minutes"	분	bun
3. "Serial numbers"	번	beon
4. "Months of the year and days of the month"	월/일	wol/il

Note: For more information on the counting units we use with Chinese-character based Korean numbers, please look for Counting Units Used with Chinese-character based Korean Numbers in the Grammar Bank.

Remembering all the categories of counting units we use with Chinese-character based Korean numbers is quite difficult. Give yourself enough time to learn them!

For Example:

1. 이것은 35,000원입니다.
   Igeoseun sammanocheonwonimnida.
   "This is thirty-five thousand won."
2. 지금은 3시 45분 입니다.
   Jigeumeun sesi sasibobun imnida.
   "It's three-forty-five."

Note: Use Pure Korean Numbers for "hours," 시 (si), and Sino-Korean Numbers for "minutes," 분 (bun).

1. 이 물건의 번호는 468번입니다.
   I mulgeonui beonhoneun sabaekyussipalbeonimnida.
   "The serial number for this product is #468."
2. 오늘은 9월 6일입니다.
   Oneureun guwol yugilimnida.
   "Today is September sixth."

Examples From This Dialogue

---

1. 한 사람당 20,000원입니다.
   Han saramdang imanwonimnida.
   "It's twenty thousand won for one person."
2. 자유이용권은 30,000원입니다.
   jayuiyongkkwoneun sammanwonimnida.
   "The unlimited pass is thirty thousand won."
3. 예, 총 60,000원입니다.
   Ye, chong yungmanwonimnida.
   "Yes. The total cost is sixty thousand won."

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
여자	yeoja	woman, female, girl	noun
의자	uija	chair	noun
명	myeong	counter for people (non-honorific)	noun
비키니	bikini	bikini	noun
-(이)나	-ina	as many as, as much as
있다	itda	there is	verb
몇 개	meotgae	How many?	phrase

SAMPLE SENTENCES

여자가 커피를 마십니다. yeojaga keopireul masimnida. "A woman is drinking a cup of coffee."	미키씨는 여자입니다. mikissineun yeojaimnida. "Miki is a woman."
몸무게가 늘어서 의자를 부쉈습니다. mommugega neureoseo uijareul buswotseumnida. "I gained weight and broke a chair."	의자가 세 개 더 필요해요. uijaga se gae deo piryohaeyo. "We need three more chairs."
몇 명이세요? myeot myeong-iseyo? "How many of you are there?"	저기 비키니 입은 여자 봐! jeogi bikini ibeun yeoja bwa! "Look at that girl in the bikini!"
그녀는 신발을 다섯 개나 샀습니다. geunyeoneun sinbareul daseot gaena satsseumnida. "She bought as many as five pairs of shoes."	문제가 하나 있어요. munjega hana itsseoyo. "There is one problem."
공이 몇 개 있어요? gongi myeot gae isseoyo? "How many balls are there?"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. (이)나 (ina) "as much as," "as many as"
(이)나 (ina) is a word that expresses emphasis on much more than expected, meaning "as much as" or "as many as."
If the ending sound of the noun/counting unit is a consonant, use 이나 (ina).*
If the ending sound of the noun/counting unit is a vowel, use 나 (na).*

Formation: Pure Korean Numbers + Counting units + 이나 (i-na), meaning "as much as" or "as many as"

For Example:

1. 열 명이나 있어? (ending in consonant)
   Yeol myeongina isseo? (ending in consonant)
   "There are as many as ten people?"
2. 그는 밥을 다섯 번이나 먹습니다! (ending in consonant)
   Geuneun babeul daseot beonina meoksseumnida! (ending in consonant)
   "He eats as many as five meals!"
3. 의자가 10개나 있어! (ending in vowel)
   Uijaga yeolkkaena isseo! (ending in vowel)
   "There are as many as ten chairs!"

2. 몇 개 있어? (myeot kkae isseo?) "How many items (are there)?"
We use 몇 개 있어? (myeot kkae isseo?)* when asking for counting items. 몇 (myeot) means "how many." 개 (gae) means "items." 있어? (casual/informal) (isseo?) means "is there"/"are there?"
All together, it becomes 몇 개 있어? (myeot kkae isseo?) "How many items (are there)?"

For Example:

1. 의자가 몇 개 있어? (casual/informal)
   *Uijaga myeot kkae isseo?
   "How many chairs (items) are there?"
2. 물건이 몇 개 있어요? (formal)
   *Mulgeoni myeot kkae isseoyo?
   "How many goods (items) are there?"

Note: 있어요? (isseoyo?) meaning "are there?" is formal Korean.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is about "Counting units used with Pure-Korean Numbers" 순수 한국어 숫자와 함께 씌이는 단위 명사.
그럼, 총 열 세 사람이네!
Geureom, chong yeol se saramine!
"Then (there are) thirteen people in total!"

순수 한국어 숫자와 함께 씌이는 단위 명사 (sunsu hangugeo sutjjawa hamkke ssuineun danwi myeongsa) are the "counting units used with Pure Korean numbers."

Here are the counting units we use with Pure Korean numbers:

"English"	Korean	Romanization
1. "people"	사람/명/분	saram/myeong/bun
2. "items," "units," "objects"	개	gae
3. "o'clock"	시	si
4. "times"	번	beon
5. "hours"	시간	sigan
6. "animals"	마리	mari
7. "years of age"	살	sal

Note: Remembering all the categories is quite difficult. Try to remember the first seven that are listed: "people," "units," "times," "o'clock," "hours," "animals," and "years of age." For more details, please look for Counting Units used with Pure Korean Numbers throughout the Grammar Bank.

For Example:

1. 여기에 3사람이 있습니다.
   yeogie 3 sarami issseumnida.
   "There are three people here."
2. 사과가 몇 개 있어요?
   sagwaga myeoch gae isseoyo?
   "How many apples are there?"
3. 지금은 12시입니다.
   Jigeumeun yeol ddusiimnida.
   "Now, it's twelve o'clock."
4. 나는 4번이나 시도를 했습니다.
   Naneun ne beonina sidoreul haesseumnida.
   "I have tried as many as four times."

   Gaega yeorhan mari isseumnida.
   "There are eleven dogs."
7. 전 18살입니다.
   Jeon yeol yeodeol ssal imnida.
   "I am eighteen years old."

Note: When adding nouns behind the counters, follow this structure:
한 (han) + n, 두 (du) + n, 세 (se) + n, 네 (ne) + n...
열한 (yeol han) + n, 열두 (yeol du) + n, 열세 (yeol se) + n, 열네 (yeol ne) + n...

For Example:

1. 하나 (hana), 둘 (dul), 셋 (set), 넷 (net)...
   의자 (uija, meaning "chairs") 한 개 (han gae), 의자 두 개 (du gae), 의자 세 개 (se gae), 의자 네 개(ne gae)...

Examples From This Dialogue

---

1. 열두 명이나 있네!
   Yeol ddu myeongina inne!
   "As many as twelve girls wearing bikinis!"
2. 의자는 몇 개 있지?
   Uijaneun myeot kkae itjji?
   "How many chairs are there?"
3. 한 백 개 정도 있어.
   Han baek kkae jeongdo isseo.
   "There are approximately one hundred chairs."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Changing Trends in Korean Swimwear

In the past, younger females in Korea didn't wear bikinis at the swimming pool. However, nowadays, many younger females wear bikinis at public environment such as waterpark.

소주 한 병은 이천 원입니다. soju hanbyeong-eun icheon wonimnida. "A bottle of soju costs 2,000 won."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 배고파! (Baegopa!) "(I) am hungry!"
This is a common expression that means "I'm hungry!"

For Example:

1. 팀, 나 배고파!
   Tim, na baegopa!
   "Tim, I'm hungry!"
2. 엄마, 나 배고파!
   Eomma, na baegopa!
   "Mom, I'm hungry!"

2. 일 인분 (il in-bun) "one serving"
We often use this counting unit, 인분 (inbun) meaning* "one serving," in Korean restaurants when ordering portions of food, especially meat.

Formation: Sino-Korean Number + 인분 (inbun), meaning "one portion"

Let's break down the vocabulary.
일 인분 (il inbun) "one serving"

일 (il) (Chinese Character Based Korean Number) is "one" in English.
인분 (inbun) means "a serving" in English.
So all together, 일 인분 (il inbun)* in Korean means "one serving" in English.

For Example:

1. 삼 인분
   Sam inbun
   "three servings"
2. 일 인분에 얼마에요?
   Il inbune eolmaeyo?
   "How much is it for one serving?"

3. 병(byeong) "bottle"
We use this counting unit when counting bottles.

Formation: Pure Korean Number + 병 (byeong), meaning "bottle"

For Example:

1. 콜라 2병 주세요.
   Col-la du byeong juseyo.
   "Give me two bottles of cola, please."
2. 맥주 6병(에) 얼마에요?
   Maek-ju yeo-seot byeonge eol-ma-e-yo?
   "How much is it for six bottles of beer?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Counting Units We Use with Pure and Sino-Korean Numbers.
일 인분에 5,000원입니다. 한 병에 2,000원입니다.
Il in-bun-e o-cheon-won-imnida. Han byeong-e i-cheon-won imnida.
"It's five thousand won per (one) serving. It's two thousand won per (one) bottle."

In this lesson, we will review both sets of numbers: Pure Korean numbers and Sino Korean numbers, and the counters that we use with each.

Sino-Korean Numbers: 한자어 숫자 (Han-ja-eo Sut-ja) (Lesson 10)

The Sino-Korean number system is a number system that is derived from the Chinese number system.

Number	Korean	Romanization
0	공	gong
1	일	il
2	이	i
3	삼	sam
4	사	sa
5	오	o
6	육	yuk
7	칠	chil
8	팔	pal
9	구	gu
10	십	sip
11	십일	sibil
12	십이	sibi
13	십삼	sipssam
20	이십	i sip
30	삼십	sam sip
40	사십	sa sip
100	백	baek
1,000	천	cheon
10,000	만	man

For Example:

1. 35,690
   [삼 (sam) "3" + 만 (man) "10,000"] + [오 (o) "5" + 천 (cheon) "1,000"] + [육 (yuk) "6" + 백 (baek) "100"] + [구(gu) "9" + 십 (sip) "10"] 삼만 오천 육백 구십
   sam man o cheon yuk baek gu sip
   "thirty-five thousand, six hundred and ninety"

Counting Units We Use with Sino-Korean Numbers (Lesson 10)

These are counting units we use with Sino-Korean numbers.

Korean	Romanization	"English"
원	won	"Korean currency"
분	bun	"minute"
번	beon	"serial number"
월	wol	"months of the year"
일	il	"days of the month"
개월	gaewol	"month"
인분	inbun	"servings of food"
주	ju	"week"
년	nyeon	"year"
층	cheung	"floor"

For Example:

1. 5,000원 입니다.
   O-cheon won imnida.
   "(It's) five thousand won."
2. 지금은 2시 40분 입니다.
   Ji-geum-eun du-si sa-sip-bun imnida.
   "(It's) two-forty now."
3. 당신의 방은 56번 입니다.
   Dang-sin-ui bang-eun o-sip-yuk-beon imnida.
   "Your room number is fifty-six."
4. 고기 3인분 주세요.
   Go-gi sam in-bun juseyo.
   "Please give me three servings of meat."

Pure Korean Numbers: 순수 한국어 숫자 (Sunsu hangukeo sutja) (Lesson 8)

We use these numbers when counting.

Number	Korean	Romanization
1	하나 (한 + noun)	hana (han + noun)
2	둘 (두 + noun)	dul (du + noun)
3	셋 (세 + noun)	set (se + noun)
4	넷 (네 + noun)	net (ne + noun)
5	다섯	da-seot
6	여섯	yeo-seot
7	일곱	il-gob
8	여덟	yeo-deol
9	아홉	a-hop
10	열	yeol

For Example:

1. 콜라 3병
   Col-la se byeong
   "three bottles of Coke"

Counting Units We Use with Pure Korean Numbers (Lesson 11)

These are the counting units we use with Pure Korean numbers (native Korean numbers).

Korean	Romanization	"English"
사람/ 명/분	sa-ram/myeong/ bun	"people (person)"
개	gae	"items"/"units"/"objects"
시	si	"o'clock"
시간	si-gan	"hours"
번	beon	"times"
마리	mari	"animals"
살	sal	"years of age"
병	byeong	"bottles"

For Example:

1. 그는 매일 6시에 일어납니다.
   Geu-neun mae-il yeo-seot-si-e il-eo-nap-ni-da.
   "He gets up at six o'clock a.m. every day."
2. 맥주 5병 주세요.
   Maek-ju da-seot byeong juseyo.
   "Please give me five bottles of beer."
3. 저기 의자가 11개 있어.
   Jeo-gi ui-ja-ga yeol-han-gae it-seo.
   "There are eleven chairs over there."

Examples From This Dialogue

1. 일 인분에 5,000원 입니다.
   Il in-bun-e o-cheon-won-imnida.
   "(It's) five thousand won per (one) serving."
2. 한 병에 2,000원 입니다.
   Han byeong-e i-cheon-won-imnida.
   "(It's) two thousand won per (one) bottle."

The meaning is very similar to 참 (cham), which means "by the way (new thought or idea)."

For Example:

1. 근데, 넌 이름이 뭐야?
   Geunde, neon ireumi mwoya?
   "By the way, what's your name?"

2. 왜? (wae?) "Why?"
왜? (wae?) means "Why?"

Formation: 왜 (wae) "why" + verb (question form)

For Example:

1. 왜 가요?
   Wae gayo?
   "Why do you go?"
2. 왜 웃어요?
   Wae useoyo?
   "Why do you laugh?"

Note: For now, do not worry about the verbs above, 가요 (gayo), meaning "to go," and 웃어요 (useoyo), meaning ("to laugh"/"to smile").

3. 잘 가! (Jalga!) "Bye!"
This is a casual way of saying "Good-bye!"
잘 가요 (jalgayo) is the formal version of this phrase.

For Example:

1. 팀, 잘 가!
   Tim, jalga!
   "Bye, Tim!"
2. 학생, 잘 가요!
   Hakssaeng, jalgayo!
   "Bye, (student)!"

Note: Don't worry about the verb conjugation for now: we will eventually cover verbs later on in this series.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is A (place) 부터 B (place) 까지, Meaning "From A to B."
여기(에서)부터 서울까지는 얼마나 걸릴까?
Yeogiseobuteo seowulggajineun eolmana geollilkka?
"How long will it take to go to Seoul from here?"

Place A + (에서) 부터 (Place A + (eseo)buteo) "From (place)"

When attached to a noun or a particle, this phrase 에서부터 (eseo buteo) marks a spatial or temporal point of departure and means "from."
Note that 에서 (eseo) is optional, and so you can either say 부터 (buteo) OR 에서부터 (eseobuteo).

Formation: Noun + (에서) 부터 (eseo) buteo

For Example:

1. 여기(에서)부터
   yeogi(eseo)buteo
   "from here"
2. 집(에서)부터 jib(eseo)buteo
   "from home"
3. 미국(에서)부터
   migug(eseo)buteo
   "from America"

☆Note: There is a difference between 에서 (eseo), meaning "in," "at," or "from," and 부터 (buteo), meaning "from." We will learn more about 에서 (eseo), meaning "in," "at," or "from," in Lesson 17.

Place B + 까지 (Place B + kkaji) "to/up to/until/by Place B"

When attached to a noun, a particle, or an adverb, this particle indicates the limit of a spatial or a temporal area. It corresponds to "to," "up to," "until," or "by" in English.

Formation: Noun/Particle/Adverb + 까지 (-kka-ji)

For Example:

1. 서울까지
   Seoulkkaji
   "to Seoul"
2. 저기까지
   Jeogikkaji
   "to there"
3. 한국까지
   Hangukkaji
   "to Korea"

A (에서)부터 B 까지 (A (eseo)buteo B kkaji) "From A to B"

You can combine (eseo) buteo and kkaji in the same sentence to create the meaning of "from A to B."

Formation: A + (에서)부터((e-seo)-bu-teo) + B + 까지 (kka-ji)

For Example:

1. 여기(에서)부터 저기까지
   Yeogi(eseo)buteo jeogikkaji
   "from here to there"
2. 미국(에서)부터 한국까지
   Migug(eseo)buteo hangukkaji
   "from America to Korea"
3. 집(에서)부터 회사까지
   Jib(eseo)buteo hoesakkaji
   "from home to the company (office)"

Examples From This Dialogue

---

1. 여기(에서)부터 집까지 지하철로 1시간 걸린다고 했지?
Yeogi(eseo)buteo jipkkaji jihacheollo han sigan geollindago haetjji?
"You said it took one hour to go home by train from here?"
2. 여기(에서)부터 집까지 차로 40분?
Yeogi(eseo)buteo jipkkaji charo sasippun?
"It took you forty minutes by car to go home from here?"
3. 여기(에서)부터 서울까지는 얼마나 걸릴까?
Yeogi(eseo)buteo seowulkkajineun eolmana geollilkka?
"How long does it take to go from here to Seoul?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Learning about Transportation Modes in Korea

There are four main transportation modes in Korea: 지하철 (jihacheol), meaning "subway"; 버스 (beosseu), meaning "bus"; 택시 (taekssi), meaning "taxi"; and 자가용 (jagayong), meaning "private automobile."

If you plan to visit Korea, we at KoreanClass101.com recommend that you use 지하철 (jihacheol), meaning "subway," or 버스 (beosseu), meaning "bus," for the following reasons. First, it's cheaper, which means you can save money to spend on something else. Second, it's much safer. Please don't even think about driving a car in Seoul. Lastly, it's faster. There are so many cars on the street. Using the 지하철 (jihacheol), meaning "subway," will make it easy for you to go around Seoul or any big city in Korea.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

About Chu-Seok 추석
추석 is on August 15th by the lunar calendar.
We call it either 추석 chu-seok or 한가위 hangawui. 한, han, meaning is "to be big" and 가위, gawui, meaning is "to be middle"; therefore, 한가위 means a big day in the middle of August.
What do Korean people do on 추석/한가위?
1. Give special thanks to the moon and their ancestors.
2. Ask for a year of abundance from their ancestors.
3. Famliy gathering - all the families gather on this day and spend some quality time together.
4. Have fun playing a number of traditional games such as 씨름, ssi-reum, Korean traditional wrestling, 줄다리기, juldarigi, a tug-of-war, and many more.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1.-도 (-do) "too," "also," and "as well"
-도 (-do) expresses the meaning of "too," "also," or "as well" when attached to a noun or another particle.

Formation: [Noun/Particle] + 도 (do) "too," "also," or "as well"

For Example:

1. A: 이것은 의자입니다.
B: 저것도 의자입니까?
A: Igeoseun uijaimnida.
B: Jeogeotto uijaimnikka?
A: "This is a chair."
B: "Is that a chair as well?"

2. A: 이것은 책 입니다.
B: 저것도 책 입니까?
A: Igeoseun chaek imnida.
B: Jeogeotto chaek imnikka?
A: "This is a book."
B: "Is that a book too?"

2. 무엇입니까? (mueosimnikka?) "What is [noun]?"
When asking for the identity of [noun], we would say 무엇입니까? (mueosimnikka?), meaning "What is [noun]?"

For Example:

1. 이것은 무엇입니까?
Igeoseun mueotimnikka?
"What's this?"

2. 저것은 무엇입니까?
Jeogeoseun mueosimnikka?
"What's that?"

3. 얼마입니까? (eolmaimnikka?) "How much is the [noun]?"
When asking for the price of [noun], we would say 얼마입니까? (eol-ma-imnikka?), meaning "How much is the [noun]?"

For Example:

1. 이 옷은 얼마입니까?
I oseun eolmaimnikka?
"How much are these clothes?"

2. 저 신발은 얼마입니까?
Jeo sinbareun eolmaimnikka?
"How much are those shoes?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is How to Make the Predicate of a Sentence into an Interrogative Sentence:
입니 (imni) "am," "are," "is" + -까? (-kka?) "to question."
저것도 가방입니까?
Jeogeotdo gabangimnikka?
"Is that a bag, too?"

In this lesson, we will learn how to form a simple interrogative sentence.

Forming an Interrogative Sentence (Question)

First, let's review Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 2:

[Noun] + 입니다 (imnida) = "to be" [noun]
This pattern becomes the predicate of a sentence when followed by a noun.

Subject + [name/noun] + 입니다 (imnida) "to be"

For Example:

1. 그는 팀입니다.
   Geunuen timimnida.
   "He [subject] is ["be" verb] Tim [name]." = "He is Tim."
2. 이것은 가방입니다.
   Igeoseun gabangimnida.
   "This [subject] is ["be" verb] a bag [noun]." = "This is a bag."

Now let's learn how to change the predicate of a sentence into a formal interrogative sentence. It's very simple. Locate 까 (kka) in the position of 다 (da) at the end of a sentence.

Adding the ending 까 (kka) turns the predicate of a sentence into a formal interrogative sentence.

Formation : Subject + [name/noun] + 입니까? (imnikka?): "Am/Are/Is [Noun]...?"

For Example:

1. 그는 팀입니까?
   *Geuneun Timimnikka?
   "Is ["be" verb] he [subject] Tim [name]?" = "Is he Tim?"
2. 이것은 가방입니까?
   *Igeoseun gabangimnikka?
   "Is ["be" verb] this [subject] a bag [noun]?" = "Is this a bag?"
3. 저것은 학교입니까?
   *Jeogeoseun hakkyoimnikka?
   "Is ["be" verb] that [subject] a school [noun]?" = "Is that a school?"
4. 이것은 무엇입니까?
   *Igeoseun mueotimnikka?
   "What [interrogative pronoun] is ["be" verb] this [subject]?" = "What is this?"
5. 그것은 얼마입니까?
   *Guegeoteun eolmaimnikka?
   "How much [interrogative pronoun] is ["be" verb] the one [subject]?" = "How much is the one?"

Examples from This Dialogue

1. 저것도 가방입니까?
   Jeogeotto gabangimnikka?
   "Is that a bag too?"

2. 그럼, 이것은 무엇입니까?
   Geureum, igeoteun mueot imnikka?
   "Then, what's this?"

3. 얼마입니까?
   Eolmaimnikka?
   "How much is it?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is the Preposition of Time: 에 (e), Meaning "at" or "in" 아침에 커피를 마십니다. 밤 10시에 잡니다.
Achime keopireul masimnida. Bam yeolsie jamnida.
"I drink coffee in the morning." "I sleep at ten o'clock at night."

Preposition of Time - 에 (e) "at" or "in"

The preposition of time, -에 (-e), meaning "at" or "in," marks the time (or direction or location) when it is attached to a noun.
* Note: This lesson only focuses on marking the time.

Formation: Time Noun + 에 (e), meaning "at" or "in," which means "at" a certain time

For Example:

1. 아침 몇 시에 일어납니까?
Achim myeot ssie ireonamnikka?
"At what time in the morning do you get up?"

2. 저는 아침을 7시에 먹습니다.
Jeoneun achimeul ilgopssie meoksseumnida.
"I eat breakfast at seven o'clock in the morning."

3. 오후 1시에 점심을 먹습니다.
Ohu hansie jeomsimeul meokseumnida.*
"(I) eat lunch at one o'clock p.m."

4. 이번주 토요일에 캐리비안 베이에 갑니다.
Ibeonju toyoire kaeribian beie gamnida.
"I go to Caribbean Bay on (this) Saturday."
 Note: place noun + 에 (e) "to": destination of movement

5. 올해에 학교를 졸업합니다.
Olhaee hakkyoreul joreophamnida.
"I will graduate from school (in) this year."

6. 수요일에(는) 뭐해?
Suyoire(neun)mwohae?
"What would you do on Wednesday?"
 Note: You may add 는 (neun) "particle" after 에 (e) "to" when emphasizing the specific time

7. 다음주에 뭐해?
daeumjjue mwohae?
"What do you do (in) the next week?"

8. 오늘밤에 뭐해?
Oneulbbame mwohae?
"What do you do (at) tonight?"

* NOTE: Please DO NOT worry about the verbs above such as "to get up," "to eat," "to go," "to do," or "to graduate" for now.
You will learn about a lot of verbs in the new Beginner Series.

Supplement: Other Usages of 에 (e), Meaning "to," "on," and "per"

A. Place Noun + 에 (e) + moving verbs such as "to go," "to come," "to bring...": destination of movement

For Example:

1. 나는 한국에 갑니다.
   Naneun hanguge gamnida.
   "I go to Korea."

2. 저는 다음주에 미국에 갑니다.
   Jeoneun daeumjue miguge gamnida.
   "I will go to America next week."

B. Place Noun + 에 (e): "at," "in," or "on" (spatial location)

For Example:

1. 의자에 앉습니다.
   Uijae anseumnida.
   "Sit on the chair."
2. 제 가족이 타이에 있어요.
   Je gajogi taie isseoyo.
   "My family is in Thailand."

C. Counting Noun + 에 (e) "per" or "for" (Counting Noun)

For Example:

1. 불고기 일 인분에 얼마예요?
   Bulgogi ilinbue eolmaeyo?
   "How much is it per one serving of Bulgogi?"
2. 사과 한 개에 얼마예요?
   Sagwa hangaee eolmaeyo?
   "How much is it for an apple?"

 Note: -에 (e) and 에는 (e-neun) can replace each other. Add 는 (neun) when you want to emphasize the noun.

Examples From This Dialogue

---

1. 아침에 커피를 마십니다.
   Achime keopireul masimnida.
   "I drink coffee in the morning."
2. 오후에는 숙제를 합니다.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 어디에서? (eodieseo) "Where at?"
어디 (eodi) means "where," and 에서 (eseo) marks the location of an action.

For Example:

1. 어디에서 만날까?
   Eodieseo mannalkka?
   "Where (are we going) to meet?"
2. 어디에서 먹을까?
   Eo-di-e-seo meok-eul-kka?
   "Where (are we going) to eat?

2. 명동 (Myeongdong) and 밀리오레 (Milliore)
명동 (Myeongdong) is a large area that is located in Seoul. The area of 명동 (Myeongdong) is very famous for shopping in Korea.
밀리오레 (Milliore) is one of the famous shopping malls located in 명동 (Myeongdong).

For Example:

1. 명동에서 만나자.
   Myeongdongeseo mannaja.
   "Let's meet in Myeong-Dong."
2. 밀리오레에서 밥(을) 먹자.
   Millioreeseo bab(eul) meokjja.

"Let's have a meal at Migliore."

3. 쇼핑 (Ssyoping) "shopping"
The word 쇼핑 (Ssyoping) is from English and means "shopping."

For Example:

1. 쇼핑하자.
   Ssyoping haja.
   "Let's shop."
2. 쇼핑가자.
   Ssyoping gaja.
   "Let's go shopping."

 NOTE: Please do not worry about the verbs "to eat," "to meet," "to go," and "to shop" at this point. All you need to know is simply words themselves: 어디에서, meaning "where at"; 명동, meaning "Myung-Dong"; 밀리오레, meaning "Migliore"; and 쇼핑, meaning "shopping."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is 에서 (e-seo), meaning "at," "in," or "from."
오늘은 명동에서 만날까? 거기에서 보자.
Oneuleun myeongdongeseo mannalkka? Geogieseo boja.
"Shall we meet at Myung-Dong today? See you (at) there."

The particle 에서 (eseo) marks the location of an action, and it also marks a spatial or a temporal point of departure (see also Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 13 - A 에서부터 B 까지, meaning "from A to B").

에서 (eseo), meaning "at," "in," or "from"

Formation

[Place Noun + 에서 (eseo)]: "in" or "at (a place)"

For Example:

1. 어디(에)서 일합니까?
   Eodieseo ilhapnikka?
   "Where do you work (at)?"
2. 저는 공장에서 일합니다.
   Jeoneun gongjangeseo ilhamnida.
   "I work at the factory."

3. 나는 식당에서 밥을 먹습니다.
   Naneun sikddangeseo babeul meoksseumnida.
   "I have a meal at the restaurant."

4. 한국에서 보자.
   Hangugeseo boja.
   "Let's see each other in Korea."

5. 서울에서 만나자.
   Seouleseo mannaja.
   "Let's meet in Seoul."

6. 여기(에)서 밥 먹을까?
   Yeogieseo bab meokeulkka?
   "Shall we eat a meal (in) here?"

7. 아니, 저기(에)서 밥 먹자.
   Ani, jeogieseo bab meokjja.
   "No, let's have a meal (at) there."

 Please do not worry about the verbs "to do," "to work," "to eat," "to see," or "to meet" at this point. SIMPLY REMEMBER THIS: PLACE NOUN + 에서 (eseo), meaning "in" or "at," which marks the location of an action.

 Note: if the noun ends in a consonant sound, it's better to use 에서 only. However, if the noun ends in a vowel sound, you may use either 서 (seo) or 에서 (e-seo).

For Example:

1. 저기(에)서. 저기 (jeogi), which ends in a vowel sound. In this case, you may use either 에 (e) or 에서 (eseo).

Language Tip: Another Usage of 에서 (e-seo), Meaning "from (a place)"

The particle 에서 (eseo) also means "from," and we use it to mark a spatial or a temporal point of departure. (This tip is related to Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 13.)

For Example:

1. 어느 나라에서 왔습니까?
   Eoneu naraeseo wasseumnikka?
   "Where are you from?"

2. 서울에서 미국까지 몇 시간 걸립니까?
   Seoureseo migukkkaji myeot ssigan geollimnikka?
   "How many hours does it take [to go] from Seoul to America?"

Examples from This Dialogue

1. 오늘은 어디에서 만날까?
   Oneureun eodieseo mannalkka?
   "Where shall we meet today?"
2. 명동 '밀리오레'에서 만나자.
   Myeongdong 'Milliole' eseo mannaja.
   "Let's meet at the 'Migliore' in Myung-Dong."
3. 거기에서 보자.
   Geogieseo boja.
   "See you there."

거실이 너무 좁아요. geosiri neomu jobayo. "The living room is too small."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 무엇 (mueot) "what"
무엇 (mueot) is an interrogative pronoun meaning "what."
* Note: We can shorten 무엇 (mueot) to 뭐 (mwo) in very casual speech: 무엇 = 뭐 = "what."

For Example:

1. 무엇이 좋아? / 뭐가 좋아?
   Mueosi joa? / Mwoga joa?
   "What do you like?"
2. 이름이 무엇입니까? / 이름이 뭡니까?
   Ireumi mueosimnikka? / Ireumi mwomnikka?
   "What's your name?"

2. 좋아 (joa), meaning "like"/싫어 (sireo), meaning "hate/dislike" (very casual Korean)
Korean people often use these words: 좋아 (joa), meaning "like," and 싫어 (sireo), meaning "dislike."

For Example:

1. 난 이것이 좋아!
   Nan igeosi joa!
   "I like this!"
2. 난 저것이 싫어!
   Nan jeogeosi sireo!
   "I hate that!"

3. 떡볶이 (tteokbokki), meaning "sliced rice cake," and 순대 (sundae), meaning "intestine stuffed with noodles"
Korean people love to eat spicy foods, and one famous spicy food in Korea is 떡볶이 (tteokbokki), which is "sliced spicy rice cake." Many children, teenagers, and people in their early twenties and thirties especially love to eat 떡볶이 (tteokbokki).

떡볶이, 순대 (sundae), which is "intestine stuffed with noodles," is not that popular because it is made of intestines of pigs. However, many people of the older generation love to eat this 순대. People sometimes eat together to dip 순대 on 떡볶이 because of the spicy sauce that 순대 does not have.

For Example:

1. 떡볶이 일 인분 주세요...
   tteokbokki il inbun juseyo...
   "Please give me one serving of sliced rice cake..."
2. 순대 일 인분에 얼마지요?
   Sundae irinbune eolmajiyo?
   "How much is one serving of intestine stuffed with noodles?

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is How to Say You Like and Dislike Something.
무엇이 좋아? 왜 떡볶이 안 좋아해? 난 떡볶이 싫은데...
Mueosi joa? Wae tteokbokki an joahae? Nan tteokbokki sileunde...
"What would you like to have? Why wouldn't you like the sliced rice cake (tteokbokki)? Would you dislike the sliced rice cake (tteokbokki)...?"

Korean people very often use these words: 좋아 (joa), meaning "to like"; 안 좋아 (an joa), meaning "to NOT like"; and 싫어 (sireo), meaning "to dislike."

좋아 (joa), meaning "to like" (casual informal)

To add some degree of politeness, attach 요 (yo) at the end: 좋아 + 요 = 좋아요 (casual formal).

Formation

Noun (Object) + 좋아 (jo-a), meaning "to like (object)"

For Example:

1. 무엇이 좋아?
   Mueosi joa?
   "What would you like?"
2. 떡볶이가 좋아!
   Tteokbokkiga joa!
   "(I) like the sliced rice cake!"
3. 라면이 좋아!
   Ramyeoni joa!
   "(I) like noodles!"
4. 여기가 좋아요!
   Yeogiga joayo!

"(I) like this place!"

5. 데비가 좋아요!
   Debiga joayo!
   "(I) like Debbie!"

* Note: To switch the verb into the formal form, remove 아 (a) and attach 습니다 (seumnida) instead. Therefore, 좋아 (joa), meaning "to like" (casual informal), becomes 좋습니다 (josseumnida), meaning "to like" (formal). You don't need to remember this for now!

B. 안 좋아해 (an joahae) "to NOT like" (casual informal)

To add some degree of politeness, attach 요 (yo) at the end: 안 좋아해 + 요 =안 좋아해요 (casual formal).

Formation

Noun (object) + 안 좋아해 (an jo-a-hae) "to NOT like (object)"

For Example:

1. (난) 떡볶이 안 좋아해!
   (Nan) tteokbokki an joahae!
   "(I) do not like sliced rice cake!"
2. (나는) 커피 안 좋아해!
   (Naneun) keopi an joahae!
   "(I) do not like coffee!"
3. (난) 너(를) 안 좋아해!
   (Nan) neo(reul) an joahae!
   "(I) do not like you!"
4. 그녀는 그를 안 좋아해요! (casual formal)
   Geunyeoneun geureul an joahaeyo!
   "She does not like him!"
5. 우리는 팀을 안 좋아합니다. (formal)
   Wurineun timeul an joahamnida.
   "We do not like Tim."

C. 싫어해 (sireohae), meaning "to hate/dislike" (casual informal)

To add some degree of politeness, attach 요 (yo) at the end - 싫어해 + 요 = 싫어해요 (casual formal).

Formation

Noun (object) + 싫어해 (sil-eo-hae) "to hate/dislike (the object)"

For Example:

1. 난 영어(를) 싫어해!
   Nan yeongeoreul sireohae!
   "I hate English!"
2. 팀은 떡볶이를 싫어합니다.
   Timeun tteokbokkireul sireohamnida.
   "Tim dislikes the sliced rice cake."
3. 데비는 순대를 싫어합니다.
   Debineun sundaereul sireohamnida.
   "Debbie dislikes the intestine stuffed with noodles."
4. 난 공부를 싫어해요!
   Nan gongbureul sireohaeyo!
   "I hate studying!"

* Note: When you express your dislikes, usually you have to explain the reason.
For example, "I dislike this because...(it's too big), (it's ugly), so on..." You will learn about this expression "because (of)..." in the Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 24.

Examples from This Dialogue

---

1. 무엇이 좋아?
   Mueosi joa?
   "What would you like (to have)?"
2. 난 떡볶이와 순대가 좋아.
   Nan tteoknbokkiwa sundaega joaa.
   "I'd like to have a sliced rice cake (tteokbokki) and intestine stuffed with noodles (soondae)."
3. 왜 떡볶이 안 좋아해?
   Wae tteokbokki an joahae?
   "Why wouldn't you like the sliced rice cake (tteokbokki)?"
4. 난 떡볶이 싫은데... "
   Nan tteokbokki sireunde...
   "I would dislike the sliced rice cake (tteokbokki)..."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

How Adventurous Are You?

There are tons of various Korean foods to try in 명동, which is "Myungdong." Have you tried any? What was your favorite Korean food?
Korean people love to eat spicy foods, and one of them is 떡볶이 (tteokbokki), meaning "sliced rice cake." Have you ever tried it? Did you like that?
Do you know or have you ever heard about 순대 (sundae), which is "intestine stuffed with noodles?" Do you know what 순대 (sundae) is made of? It is made of pig intestines but you will be surprised once you eat. Would you like to try it?

사과만 주시겠어요? sagwaman jusigesseoyo? "Can you please only give me apples?"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 조금 더 (jogeum deo) "a little bit more"
조금 (jogeum) means "a little bit," and 더 (deo) means "more." Therefore, 조금 더 (jo-geum deo) means "a little bit more."

For Example:

1. 조금 더 주세요...
   Jogeum deo juseyo...
   "Please give me a little bit more..."
2. 조금 더 깎아주세요...
   Jogeum deo kkakajuseyo...
   "Please take off the price a little bit more..."

2. 비싸다 (bissada) "be expensive"
Its original form is 비싼 (bissan), which is an adjective that means "expensive." We often use it when we shop in Korea. Its opposite word is 싼 (ssan), an adjective that means "cheap." "to be cheap" is 싸다 (ssada).

Formation:

Subject + 비싸다 (bissada), meaning "be expensive"

For Example:

1. 이것은 (너무) 비싸다 / 비싸요...
   Igeoseun (neomu) bissada / bissayo...
   "This is (too) expensive."
2. 이 옷은 비싸요... 좀 깎아주세요...
   I oseun bissayo... jom kkakajuseyo...
   "This clothing is expensive...could you get me some discount?..."

3. 아줌마 (ajumma) "an auntie"
Korean people often call all the females who are "Mrs.," "Miss," and "ma'am" 아줌마 (a-jum-ma). Although its direct English translation is "an auntie," we can use 아줌마 for any female over forty years old who are possibly married.
* For males, Korean people call them 아저씨 (a-jeo-ssi), which means "Mr.," "uncle," and "sir."

For Example:

1. 아줌마, 이 옷 얼마에요?
   Ajumma, i ot eolmayeyo?
   "Ma'am, how much is this clothing?"
2. (식당에서) 아줌마, 물 좀 주세요...
   (Sikddangeseo) Ajumma, mul jom juseyo...
   (at the restaurant) "Ma'am, please give me some water..."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is to Learn How to Beat Down the Price of Korean Goods by Saying 좀 깎아주세요 (Jom Kkakajuseyo), Which Means "Beat Down The Price A Little."
너무 비싸다! 좀 깎아주세요...
Neomu bissade! Jogeumman kkakajuseyo...
"It's too expensive!" "Beat down the price a little more please..."

---

1. 깎아주세요... (kkakajuseyo), meaning "Please take off the price..."
깎아 (kkaka) means "to discount" or "to bargain," and it comes from the verb 깎다 (kkakda), meaning "to discount," and 주세요 (juseyo), meaning "please give me..."
Therefore, 깎아주세요 (kkakajuseyo) means "please take off the price..."

* The expression 깎아주세요 (kkakajuseyo), meaning "please take off the price," is a very useful expression in Korea, especially when you visit Korea to shop for many goods.

For Example:

1. 아줌마, 깎아주세요...
   Ajumma, kkakajuseyo...
   "Ma'am, come down a little more, please..."
2. 너무 비싸다. 깎아주세요...
   Neomu bissade. kkakajuseyo...
   "It's too expensive. Beat down the price, please..."

2. Add 조금만 (jogeumman) "a little"/"a bit"/"some"
*Note: A shortened form of 조금만 is 좀 (jom), which means "a little"/"a bit"/"some."

Formation

조금만 (jogeumman), which means "a little"/"a bit," + 깎아주세요 (kkakajuseyo), which means "take off the price..."
조금만 (좀) 깎아주세요... (jogeumman (jom) kkakajuseyo...) means "please take off the price a little..."

For Example:

1. 아줌마, 조금만 깎아주세요...
   Ajumma, jogeumman kkakajuseyo...
   "Ma'am, beat down the price a little bit..."
2. 너무 비싸요... 조금만 깎아주세요...
   Neomu bissayo... jogeumman kkakajuseyo...
   "It's too expensive...please take off the price a little bit..."

3. Add 더 (deo), which means "more"

Formation

조금만 (jogeumman)/좀 (jom), meaning "a little"/"a bit," + 더 (deo), meaning "more," + 깎아주세요 (kkakajuseyo), meaning "take off the price please..."

Therefore, 조금만/좀 더 깎아주세요... (Jogeumman/Jom deo kkakajuseyo...) means "Take off the price a little bit more..."

For Example:

1. 이 가방, 조금만 더 깎아주세요...
   I gabang, jogeumman deo kkakajuseyo...
   "This bag-take off the price a little bit more..."
2. 아줌마, 이 옷 조금만 더 깎아주세요...
   Ajumma, i ot jogeumman deo kkakajuseyo...
   "Ma'am, take off the price on this clothing a little bit more..."

Let's Practice! Very Practical and Useful Expressions When Shopping in Korea

---

1. A: 아줌마, 이 옷 ("goods") 얼마에요?
   Ajumma, i ot eolmayeyo?
   "Ma'am, how much is this clothing?"
   B: (그 옷은) 50,000원 입니다.
   (Geu oseun) omanwon imnida
   "(The price of the clothing is) fifty thousand won."
2. A: 너무 비싸요! 조금만 깎아주세요...
   Neomu bissayo! Jogeumman kkakajuseyo...
   "(It's) too expensive! Take off the price a little bit."
   B: 그럼 45,000원에 주세요...
   Geureom samanocheon won juseyo...
   "Then (I'm going to sell it) at the price of forty-five thousand won..."
   A: 조금만 더 깎아주세요...
   Jogeumman deo kkakajuseyo...
   "Please beat down the price a little bit more...."
   B: 좋아요! 40,000만 주세요...
   Joayo! saman wonman juseyo...
   "Okay! (Then) only at the price of forty thousand won, please..."

Examples from This Dialogue:

---

1. 너무 비싸다. 좀 깎아주세요...
   Neomu bissada. Jom kkakajuseyo...
   "It's too expensive. Please take off some of the price..."
2. 아줌마... 조금더 깎아주세요.
   Ajumma... jogeumdeo kkakajuseyo.
   "Auntie...please beat down the price a little bit more..."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Do You Have Negotiating Skills? Let's Put Them to Work!

In Korea, especially if you go to Myungdong to shop, it's worthwhile to bargain over goods. If you bargain with shopkeepers, they might reduce the price for you. You have NOTHING to lose but to try!

저는 아직 집에 있어요. jeoneun ajik jibe isseoyo. "I am still at home."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 노래방 (noraebang) "karaoke"
노래 (norae) means "songs" and 방 (bang) means "rooms"; therefore, 노래방 (noraebang) means "rooms for singing a song."
노래방 (noraebang) "Karaoke" is the Korean commercial singing establishment (where one can sing a song to musical accompaniment while reading the lyrics on a video monitor) 노래방 is a place for singing a song with friends and family.
These days, the culture of 노래방 is everywhere in Asia-Japan, Korea, China, and many other countries.

For Example:

1. 노래방에 가자.
   Noraebange gaja.
   "Let's go to the Karaoke."
2. 노래방은 어디에 있지요?
   Noraebangeun eodie itjjiyo?
   "Where is the Karaoke located?"

2. 곰 세 마리 (Gom se mari) "three bears"
곰 (gom) means "bears." 세 (se) means "three."
* Note: Pure Korean Numbers: 하나 (hana) "one," 둘 (dul) "two," 셋 (set) "three."
셋 (set) becomes 세 (se) when followed by counting units or nouns.
마리 (mari) means "counting units for animals."
Therefore, 곰 세 마리 (gom se mari) means "three bears."

For Example:

1. 곰 세 마리가 있습니다.
   Gom se mariga isseumnida.
   "There are three bears."
2. 곰 세 마리가 집에 있습니다.
   Gom se mariga jibe isseumnida.
   "There are three bears in the house."

3. Adjectives: 뚱뚱해 (ttungttunghae) "be plump/fat," 날씬해 (nalssinhae) "be slender/slim," 귀여워 (gwiyeowo) "be cute"
뚱뚱해 (ttungttunghae) "be plump/fat" comes from 뚱뚱하다 (ttungttunghada) "be plump/fat"

* Note: 하다 "original form" = 해(요) "contraction"
날씬해 (nalssinhae) "be slender/slim" comes from 날씬하다 (nalssinhada) "be slender/slim"
* Note: 하다 "original form" = 해(요) "contraction"
귀여워 (gwiyeowo) "be cute" comes from 귀엽다 (gwiyeoptta) "be cute"

Formation:

Subject + Adjectives

For Example:

1. 팀은 뚱뚱해.
   Timeun ttungttunghae.
   "Tim is plump,fat."
2. 데비는 날씬해.
   Debineun nalssinhae.
   "Debbie is slender."
3. 애기(아기)는 귀여워.
   Aegi (agi)neun gwiyeowo.
   "A baby is cute."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is to Learn about a Famous Fairy Tale about The Three Bears.
곰 세 마리가 한 집에 있어 - 아빠곰, 엄마곰, 애기곰.
Gom se mariga han jibe isseo - Abbagom, eommagom, aegigom.
"There are three bears in the house-papa bear, mama bear, and baby bear."

Let's learn and practice the most famous fairy tale of 곰 세 마리 (gom se mari) "The Three Bears."

1. 곰 세 마리가 한 집에 있어 -
2. 아빠곰, 엄마곰, 애기곰
3. 아빠곰은 뚱뚱해. 엄마곰은 날씬해.
4. 애기 곰은 너무 귀여워.
5. 히쭉히쭉 잘한다.

1. 곰 세 마리가 한 집에 있어 (gom se mariga han jibe isseo) "There are three bears in the house"

Subject: 곰 세 마리가 (gom se mariga) "Three bears"

* Note: We need to use the subject-marking particles (이/가) when the verb is 있다 (itta) "there is"/"there are" (Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 3 & AB S2 L6).

Location Particle: 한 집에 (han jibe) "in the (one) house"

* Note: 에 (e) "in"/"at" marks the location when attached to a noun (Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 17)

Verb: 있어 (isseo) "there are"/"there is"

* Note: Its original form is 있다 (itta) "there is"/"there are" (Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 6).

Therefore, we have 곰 세 마리가 한 집에 있어 (gom se mariga han jibe isseo) "There are three bears in the house."

2. 아빠곰, 엄마곰, 애기(아기)곰 (appagom, eommagom, aegi(agi) gom) "papa bear, mama bear, baby bear"

아빠 (abba) "papa" + 곰 (gom) "bear" = 아빠곰 (abbagom) "papa bear"
엄마 (eomma) "mama" + 곰 (gom) "bear" = 엄마곰 (eommagom) "mama bear"
애기/아기 (aegi/agi) "baby" + 골 (gom) "bear" = 애기곰/아기곰 (aegigom/agigom) "baby bear"
Therefore, we have 아빠곰, 엄마곰, 애기(아기)곰 (abbagom, eommagom, aegi(agi) gom) is "papa bear, mama bear, baby bear."

3. 아빠곰은 뚱뚱해. 엄마곰은 날씬해. (abbagomeun ddungddunghae. eommagomeun nalssinhae) "Papa bear is plump. Mama bear is slender."

Subject: 아빠곰은 (abbagomeun) "papa bear"
* Note: Use topic-marking particles (은/는) (AB S2 L3)

Verb: 뚱뚱해 (ttungttunghae) "be plump"
* Note: Don't worry about this for now.

Subject: 엄마곰은 (eommagomeun) "mama bear"
* Note: Use topic-marking particles (은/는) (AB S2 L3)

Verb: 날씬해 (nalssinhae) "be slender"
* Note: Don't worry about this for now.

Therefore, we have 아빠곰은 뚱뚱해. 엄마곰은 날씬해. (abbagomeun ddungddunghae. eommagomeun nalssinhae) "Papa bear is plump. Mama bear is slender."

4. 애기 곰은 너무 귀여워. (Aegi gomeun neomu gwiyeowo.) "Baby bear is so cute."

Subject: 애기 (aegi) "baby" + 곰은 (gomeun) "bear" = 애기곰은 (aegigomeun) "baby bear"
* Note: Use topic-marking particles (은/는) (AB S2 L3)

Adverb: 너무 (neomu) "very"/"so"

Verb: 귀여워 (gwiyeowo) "be cute"
* Note: Don't worry about this for now.

Therefore, we have 애기곰은 너무 귀여워. (Aegi gomeun neomu gwiyeowo.) "Baby bear is so cute."

5. 히쭉히쭉 잘한다. (hijjuk hijjuk jalhanda.) "grinningly grinningly doing well."

Adverb: 히쭉히쭉 (hijjuk hijjuk) "grinningly grinningly"
*Note: We often don't use this word.

Verb: 잘한다 (jalhanda) "do good"/"do well"
* Note: Don't worry about this for now.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 아프다 (apeuda) "to feel pain"/"to be sick"
It is a common expression in Korean to say Noun + 아프다 (a-peu-da), meaning "feeling pain."

Formation: (place of pain) + (이/가) + 아프다 (apeuda) "to feel pain," "to hurt" (Lesson focus in Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 23).

For Example:

1. 머리(가) 아파(아프다).
   Meori(ga) apa (apeuda).
   "My head hurts."
2. 코(가) 아파(아프다).
   Ko(ga) apa (apeuda).
   "My nose hurts."
3. 입(이) 아파(아프다).
   Ib(i) apa (apeuda).
   "My mouth hurts."
   *Note: Both 아파 (apa) and 아퍼 (apeo) come from 아프다 (apeuda), meaning "to feel pain."
   아파 (apa) and 아퍼 (apeo) are the casual versions of 아프다 (apeuda), which is a standard form. In formal speech, it would be 아파요 (apayo).

2. 목 (mok) "throat"/"neck"
Literally, 목 (mok) means "neck" in English. However, 목 (mok) also indicates "throat," especially when mentioning "a bad/sore throat."

For Example:

1. 목(이) 아파(아프다).
   Mog(i) apa (apeuda).
   "I have a sore throat."
2. 목이 쑤셔...
   Mogi ssushyeo...
   "My neck hurts."

3. 마시다 (masida) "to drink"
In this dialogue, all the verbs-마시자 (masija) "let's drink," 마셔보자 (mashyeoboja) "let's drink together," and 마실까? (masilkka) "shall (we) drink?"/"will drink?"-come from 마시다 (masida), meaning "to drink." Please simply remember "to drink" is 마시다 (masida) in Korean for now.

For Example:

1. 그는 물을 마신다.
   Geuneun mureul masinda.
   "He drinks water."
2. 그녀는 주스를 마십니다.
   Geunyeoneun juseureul masimnida.
   "She drinks juice."
3. 커피를 마시자.
   Keopireul masija.
   "Let's drink coffee."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is about the Usage of 도 (do), Meaning "Too," "Also," and "As Well."
나도 좀 목이 좀 아퍼...
Nado jom mogi apeo...
"I also have a sore throat..."

We have learned the usage of 도 (do) "too," "also," "as well" in the previous lessons Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lessons 7 and 15.
In this lesson, we are going to take a look at the usage of 도 (do) in further detail.

Meaning of 도 (do) (Review)

This particle 도 (Do) expresses the meaning of "too," "also," or "as well" when we attach it to a noun or another particle.

Formation: Noun/Particle + 도 (do)

Usage of 도 (do) in three different places

Let's take a look at the different ways we can use 도 (do) in a sentence.

1. As the Subject

Subject + 가 (ga)/이 (i) becomes Subject + 도 (do)

For Example:

1. 데비가 일합니다.
   Debiga ilhamnida.
   "Debbie works."
2. 팀도 일합니다.
   Timdo ilhamnida.
   "Tim also works."
3. 나는 머리가 아픕니다.
   Naneun meoriga apeumnida
   "I have a headache."
4. 나는 코도 아픕니다.
   Naneun kodo apeumnida.
   "My nose hurts too."

2. As the Object

Object + 을 (eul)/를 (reul) becomes Object + 도 (do)

For Example:

1. 데비가 물을 마십니다.
   Debiga mureul masimnida.
   "Debbie drinks (some) water."
2. 데비가 커피도 마십니다.
   Debiga keopido masimnida.
   "Debbie drinks coffee as well."
3. 나는 사과를 좋아합니다.
   Nanuen sagwareul joahamnida.
   "I like apples."
4. 나는 배도 좋아합니다.
   Naneun baedo joahamnida.
   "I like pears too."
5. 나는 귤도 좋아합니다.
   Naneun gyuldo joahamnida.
   "I also like tangerines."

3. In Place of Other Particles

Particles + 도 (do)

For Example:

1. 팀은 집에서 공부합니다.
   Timeun jibeseo gongbuhamnida.
   "Tim studies at home."
2. 팀은 도서실에서도 공부합니다.
   Timeun doseosileseodo gongbuhamnida.
   "Tim studies at the library as well."
3. 옷은 거기에 있습니다.
   Oseun geogie isseumnida.
   "There are some clothes there."
   옷은 여기에도 있습니다.
   Oseun yeogiedo isseumnida.
   "There are some clothes here as well."

Examples from This Dialogue

1. 나도 좀 목이 좀 아퍼...
   Nado mogi jom apeo...
   "I also have a sore throat..."
2. 우리 주스도 좀 마셔보자...
   Wuri juseudo jom mashyeoboja...
   "Let's drink some juice as well..."
3. 여기도 좋을거 같아...
   Yeogido joeulkkeo gatta...
   "(I think) It's fine here too!"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Body Part Vocabulary

1. 머리 (meori) "the head"
머리 (meori) literally means "the head," and Koreans often use 머리 (meori) when talking about a headache.

For Example:

1. 머리에서(부터) 발끝까지
   Meorieseo(buteo) balkkeutkkaji
   "from head to toe"
2. 머리가 아파요 (아파).
   Meoriga apayo (appa).
   "My head hurts." = "I have a headache."

2. 배 (bae) "stomach"

배 (bae) literally means "belly or stomach," and Koreans often use 배 (bae) when talking about a stomachache (stomach trouble).

For Example:

1. 배가 고파요.
   Baega gopayo.
   "(My stomach) feels hungry."
2. 배가 아파요 (아파) - (literal meaning).
   Baega appayo (appa).
   "(I) have a stomachache (stomach trouble)."
3. *(NOTE) 배가 아파 (아파요) - (metaphor).
   Baega appa (appayo).
   "(I) feel intense jealousy (toward someone/something)."

3. 팔 (pal) "arm"
팔 (pal) literally means "arm."

For Example:

1. 팔이 아파 (아파요).
   Pari appa (appayo).
   "My arm hurts."
2. 팔(이) 괜찮아?
   Par(i) gwaenchana?
   "Is your arm all right?"

4. 다리 (dari) "leg"

다리 (dari) literally means "leg."

For Example:

1. 다리가 아파 (아파요).
   Dariga appa (appayo).
   "My leg hurts."

2. 다리(는) 괜찮아?
   Dari(neun) gwaenchana?
   "Is your leg all right?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is 괜찮아? (gwaenchana), Meaning "Are you all right?"
좀 괜찮아? 배는 괜찮아?
Jom gwaenchana? Baeneun gwaenchana?
"Are you all right? How about your stomach?"

In this lesson, you will learn how to ask about someone's physical condition.

괜찮아? (gwaenchana) "Are you all right?"

괜찮아? (gwaenchana), which means "Are you all right?" is a very common expression we use to ask whether or not someone is feeling okay.

You can add 좀 (jom), which means "some," "a little," or "a few," right before 괜찮아 (gwaenchana) to make it sound more natural.

For Example:

1. 좀 괜찮아?
   jom gwaenchana?
   "Are you all right?"

The expression 괜찮아? "Are you all right?" is very similar to 어때? (eottae), which means "How is?"/"How about?" As you will see below, you can use these phrases in conjunction to ask about someone's condition. You can review these phrases in Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 5.

Formation

Specific Body Part (noun) + particles (은/는) + (좀 jom) + 괜찮아? (gwaenchana): "Is your (noun) all right/okay?"

For Example:

1. 머리는 (좀) 괜찮아?
   Meorineun (jom) gwaenchana?

"Is your head okay?"

2. 팔은 좀 어때? 팔은 괜찮아?
   Pareun jom eottae? Pareun gwaenchana?
   "How is your arm? Is it all right?"

3. 배는 좀 어때? 배는 좀 괜찮아?
   Baeneun jom eottae? Baeneun jom gwaenchana?
   "How is your stomachache? Is it okay?"

4. 다리는 어때? 다리는 좀 괜찮아?
   Darineun eottae? Darineun jom gwaenchana?
   "How is your leg? Is it all right?"

Examples from This Dialogue

---

1. 나 수진이야. 좀 괜찮아?
   Na sujiniya. jom gwaenchana?
   "This is Sujin. Are you all right?"

2. 머리는 어때?
   Meorineun eottae?
   "How about a headache?"

3. 배는 괜찮아?
   Baeneun gwaenchana?
   "How about your stomach?"

4. 나 괜찮아...
   Na gwaenchana...
   "I am all right..."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

배가 아프다(baega apeuda) can be easily heard and used as a metaphor in colloquial sense. When somebody see something one doesn't have or something good happens to the other that one does not particularly like, this is used very common.
The reason "stomach" is used to create such metaphor is because when the person is in sensitive mood or nervous, one cannot eat well. That is why 배(bae, stomach) is used more than 팔(pal, arms) or 다리(dari, leg).

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

★ 1. 특히 (teukhi) "especially"
In Korean, we use the word 특히 (teukhi), meaning "especially," when emphasizing something, someplace, or someone.

For Example:

1. 난 특히 한국어가 좋아!
   Nan teukhi hangugeoga joa!
   "I especially like Korea!"
2. 난 특히 팀이 싫어!
   Nan teukhi timi sireo!
   "I especially hate Tim!"
   * For more on 좋아 ("to like") and 싫어 ("to hate"), please listen to Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 18.
3. 난 특히 머리가 아파!
   Nan teukhi meoriga apa!
   "I have an especially severe headache!"

★ 2. 감기 (gamgi) "a cold"/"flu"; 감기에 걸리다 (gamgie geollida) "catching a cold"
Around the time when the seasons change, it is very common to 감기에 걸리는 것 (gamgie geollineun geot) "catch a cold."

For Example:

1. 나 감기에 걸렸어!
   Na gamgie geolryeosseo!
   "I just got a cold!"

2. 언제 감기에 걸렸어?
   Eonje gamgie geollyeosseo?
   "When did you catch a cold?"

3. 이번 감기는 정말 독해 (지독해)!
   Ibeon gamgineun jeongmal dokhe (jidokhae)!
   "(I think) I got a very severe cold this time."

★ 3. 주사 (jusa) "a shot"/"injection"; 주사를 맞다 (jusareul matta) "to get a shot"
It is common to get a shot when you catch a cold or flu. A "shot" is 주사 (jusa), and "to get a shot" is 주사를 맞다 (jusareul matta).

For Example:

1. 많은 사람들은 주사를 싫어합니다.
   Maneun saramdeureun jusareul sireohamnida.
   "Many people hate shots."

2. 주사 맞아서 괜찮아.
   Jusa majaseo gwaenchana.
   "Because I had an injection, I feel all right."

*Note: For more on 괜찮아 (gwaenchana) "Are you okay?" please listen to Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 22.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Talking about Pain.
특히 목이 아파요...
Teukhi mogi apayo...
"My throat especially hurts (feel a pain from the throat)..."

Talking about Pain

In this lesson, you will learn how to express "I feel a pain from (the body part)": (the body part) + 이(i)/가 (ga) 아파요 (apayo).

* Note: If you are not sure or don't know about the subject-marking particles (이/가), please listen to Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 3.

Formation

Parts of body + subject-marking particles (이/가) + 아프다 (apeuda): standard speech

Parts of body + subject-marking particles (이/가) + 아파 (apa)/아퍼 (apeo): casual informal speech

Parts of body + subject-marking particles (이/가) + 아파요 (apayo)/아퍼요 (apeoyo): casual formal speech

Sample Sentences

Let's make sentences using vocabulary from Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 22 (vocabulary for body parts).

1. Doctor: 어디가 아파요?
   Eodiga apayo?
   "Where do you feel pain?"

   "Where does it hurt when you catch a cold?"
7. B: 감기에 걸리면 목이 아파요.
   Gamgie geollimyeon mogi apayo.
   "(Your) throat hurts when you catch a cold."

Examples from This Dialogue:

1. 어디가 아프세요?
   Eodiga apeuseyo?
   "Where do you feel pain?"
2. 온몸이 쑤시고 특히 목이 아파요.
   Onmomi ssusigo teukhi mogi apayo.
   "I have sharp pains all over my body. My throat especially hurts."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Hospital Manners and Procedures in Korea

Korean people have a lot of respect for doctors and other authority figures, such as pharmacists, university instructors, teachers, and accountants. This is a part of Korean culture. If for any reason you have to visit a hospital in Korea, please be sure to show your respect for your doctor.
It is very common in Korea to have an shot in the arm or hip when you catch a cold.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 주세요 (juseyo) "please give me"
Noun + 주세요... (juseyo) "please give me the [noun]" is a very useful expression we use to politely request something.
☆ Note: For more on 주세요 (juseyo) "please give me the [noun]," please take a look at Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 1.

For Example:

1. 약 주세요.
   Yak juseyo.
   "Please give me medicine."
2. 이것 주세요.
   Igeot juseyo.
   "Please give me this."
3. 저것 주세요.
   Jeogeot juseyo.
   "Please give me that."

2. 무슨 일이야!? (museun iriya!?) "What's the matter?"
We use this expression when meeting someone unexpectedly (or in an unexpected place).

For Example:

1. 여기(는) 무슨 일이야!?
   Yeogi(neun) museun iriya?
   "What brings you here?"
2. 팀, 여기에 무슨 일이야!?
   Tim, yeogie museun iriya?
   "Tim, what's the matter?" ("What brings you here, Tim?")

3. 미안해 (mianhae) "(I'm) sorry"
미안해 (mianhae) means "I'm sorry," which is an informal expression of apology in Korean.
☆ Note: Its standard form is 미안하다 (mianhada), meaning "to feel sorry."

For Example:

1. 늦어서 미안해.
   Neujeoseo mianhae.
   "(I'm) sorry for being late."
2. 소리 질러서 미안해.
   Sori jilleoseo mianhae.
   "Sorry for shouting (at you)."
3. 약속을 어겨서 미안해.
   Yakssogeul eogyeoseo mianhae.
   "Sorry for breaking my word."

☆ Note: 늦어서 (neujeoseo) comes from 늦다 (neutta), meaning "to be late." 소리 질러서 (sori jilleoseo) comes from 소리 지르다 (sori jireuda), meaning "to shout."
약속을 어겨서 (yaksogeul eogyeoseo) comes from 약속을 어기다 (yaksogeul eogida), meaning "to break one's word or promise."

☆ Note: 미안해 (mianhae) "I am sorry" is an informal expression of apology. We use미안해요 (mianhaeyo) in formal speech and 미안합니다 (mianhamnida) in extremely formal speech.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Saying "Because of [blank]..."
나 때문에 너도 감기에 걸렸구나...
Na ttaemune neodo gamgie geollyeokkuna...
"Because of me, you also got a cold..."

Talking about the Reason or Cause for an Action or State

In this lesson, you will learn how to say "because" and "because of" in Korean. We use the phrase 때문에 (ttaemune), meaning "because" or "because of" when we are expressing the reason or cause for an action or state.

☆ Note: In this lesson, we are only learning [NOUN] + 때문에 (ttaemune) "because of the [NOUN]." In future lessons, we will learn more about the expression [VERB STEM] + 기 (gi) "a noun maker" + 때문에 (ttaemune) "because of."

Formation

[Noun(s)] + 때문에

For Example:

1. 나 때문에... (너가 감기에 걸렸구나!...)
   Na ttaemune... (neoga gamgie geollyeokkuna!...)
   "Because of me...(you got a cold!...) = "You got a cold from me."

2. 너 때문에, 난 한국어를 좋아해!
   Neo ttaemune, nan hangugeoreul joahae!
   "Because of you, I like Korean!"

3. 감기 때문에, 난 약국에 왔어.
   Gamgittaemune, nan yaguge wasseo.
   "Because of a cold (= because I have a cold), I came to the pharmacy."

4. 날씨 때문에 난 집에 있어!
   Nalssi ttaemune, nan jibe isseo.
   "Because of the (poor) weather, I am (staying) at home."

5. 너 땜에, 내가 밥을 못 먹어!
   Neo ttaeme, naega babeul mot meogeo!
   "Because of you, I can't eat!"

6. 감기 땜에, 회사에 못 갑니다.
   Gamgittaeme, hwoesae motgamnida.
   "Because of a cold (= because I have a cold), I can't go to the office.
   * Note: 때문에 (ttaemun-e) = 땜에 (ttaeme) "because of..."

Example from This Dialogue:

---

1. 나 때문에, 너도 감기에 걸렸구나... 미안해...
   Na ttaemune, neodo gamgie geollyeotkkuna... mianhae...
   "Because of me, you also got a cold... I am sorry..."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 금방 (Geumbang) "in a moment," "soon"

For Example:

1. 금방 올거지?
   Geumbang olkkeoji?
   "Will you come back soon?"
2. 나 금방 올께!
   Na geumbang olkke!
   "I will be back soon!"

2. 또 (tto) "again"

For Example:

1. 또 올거지? / 또 올거야?
   tto olkkeoji? / tto olkkeoya?
   "Will you come again?"
2. 또 먹어!
   tto meogeo!
   "You're eating again!"
3. 또 한국어 공부하자!
   tto hangugeo gongbuhaja!
   "Let's study Korean again!"

3. 잘가, 안녕 (jal-ga an-nyeong) "good-bye"

For Example:

1. (farewell) 잘가 안녕, 팀~~
   (farewell) Jalga annyeong, Tim~~
   (farewell) "Goodbye, Tim~~"
2. (farewell) 잘 지내, 안녕~~
   (farewell) Jal jinae, annyeong~~
   (farewell) "Take care, bye~~"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is Expressions We Commonly Use When Saying "Good-bye."
잘 지내고 있어, 수진.
Jal jinaego isseo, sujin.
"Take good care of yourself, Sujin."

Let's learn and practice the most common expressions that we use when saying "good-bye" between Korean friends.

Basically, we use one of the three expressions below.

★ Note: There are some verbs and sentence endings that we haven't studied yet. Don't worry about them for now, as we are only focusing on the expressions themselves!

1-A. 그동안 즐거웠어! (Geudongan jeulgeowoesseo!) "I was very happy during my stay."

Subject: 나는 (naneun); We usually omit the subject, "I."

Time phrase: 그동안 (geudongan) = "during my stay"

Verb: 즐거웠어! (jeulgeowosseo) = "I've been happy!"

So (나는) 그동안 즐거웠어 ((naneun) geudongan jeulgeowoesseo) means "I was very happy during my stay."

1-B. 그동안 고마웠어! (Geudongan gomawoesseo!) "Thank you for everything during my stay!"

Subject: 나는 (naneun); We usually omit the subject, "I."

Time phrase: 그동안 (geudongan) = "during my stay"

Verb: 고마웠어! (gomawoesseo) = "thank you!"

So (나는) 그동안 고마웠어! ((naneun) geudongan gomawosseo) means "During my stay, thank you!"

2-A. 잘 지내 (Jal jinae) "Please take care of yourself."

Subject: 너 (neo)/당신 (dangsin); We almost always omit the object, "you."

Adverb: 잘 (jal) "well"

Verb: 지내 (jinae) "to live"/"to get along"

So (너 / 당신) 잘 지내 (jal jinae) literally means "(you) live well," which we translate as "please take care of yourself."

2-B. 잘 지내고 있어 (jal jinaego isseo) "Please take care of yourself."

Subject: 너 (neo)/당신 (dangsin); We usually omit the object, "you."

Adverb: 잘 (jal) = "well"

Verb #1: 지내 (jinae) = "to live"/"to get along"

Conjunction: 고 (go) = "and"; We use the conjunction to merge two or more verbs into one (intermediate level grammar).

Verb #2: 있어 (isseo) = "to be"

So 잘 지내고 있어 (jal jinaego isseo) literally means "(you) live and be well," which we translate as "please take care of yourself."

3. 잘가 안녕~~ (jalga annyeong~~) "Good-bye~~"

잘가 literally means 잘 (jal) "good" and 가 (ga) means "to go"; therefore, 잘가 (jal-ga) means "good-bye."

There are two types of 안녕 (annyeong):

1. 안녕 (annyeong), which we use to say "hello"
2. 안녕~~ (annyeong), which we use to say "good-bye"

☆ Note that the intonation of 안녕～ "good-bye" differs very much from the intonation of 안녕 "hello."

For Example:

1. (greeting) 안녕, 나 팀이야!
   (greeting) Annyeong, na Timiya!
   (greeting) "Hello, I am Tim!"
   (greeting) 안녕, 난 데비야!
   (greeting) Annyeong, nan Debiya!
   (greeting) "Hello, I am Debbie!"
2. (farewell) 잘 지내, 데비. 그럼 안녕~~
   (farewell) Jal jinae, Debi. Geureom annyeong~~
   (farewell) "Please take care, Debbie."; "Well, bye then~~"
3. (farewell) 그래, 잘가 안녕 팀~~
   (farewell) Geurae, jalga annyeong Tim~~
   (farewell) "Well, good-bye, Tim~~"

Examples from This Dialogue

1. 그동안 즐거웠어, 팀.
   Geudongan jeulgeowosseo, Tim.
   "I was very happy during my stay, Tim."
2. 그동안 고마웠어 수진.
   Geudongan gomawoesseo Sujin.
   "Thank you, Sujin."

3. 그럼 안녕...
   Geureom annyeong...
   "Well (then), bye..."
4. 안녕 팀...
   Annyeong Tim...
   "Bye, Tim..."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

It's Hard to Say Good-bye in Korean

Many Koreans are not good at saying "good-bye" to friends and family; it is very common for them to cry in this kind of situation.
There are three common phrases that Koreans often say when saying "good-bye":

1. 그동안 즐거웠어!
   Geudongan jeulgeowoesseo!
   "I was very happy during my stay."
2. 또 보자!
   tto boja!
   "See you again!"
3. 그럼, 잘 지내~~ Geureom, jal jinae~~
   "Then, take good care of yourself~~"

Let's learn about the usage and pronunciation of 그동안 즐거웠어! and 잘 지내~~ / 잘 지내고 있어~~ throughout this lesson!

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - The Honorific Suffix - 씨

In Korean 씨 (ssi) is the honorific suffix. Just as the title suggests, it gestures respect to the name it is suffixed to. Its usage is a bit different than the English counterparts: Mister, Misses, Miss.

Here are a few properties of the honorific suffix 씨 (ssi).

1. It can be used to respect anybody. It is unisex and can be used regardless of age (although children tend not to be honored).

2. It is used more frequently than the English titles, Mister, Misses, and Miss. If two people are not on casual terms, they will typically suffix 씨 (ssi) to the other person's name. This can even apply if two people have been acquaintances or even friends for a long time.

3. It is only used when referring to someone else. One cannot suffix 씨 (ssi) to their own name.

4. When it is suffixed to a name, it must be suffixed to a person's given name. As Korean names typically have family names in front with given names following that, the honorific suffix must always be attached to the person's given name, as the given name is always at the end. If the honorific suffix is attached to only the person's family name, the honorific suffix becomes demeaning and disrespectful.

♣ More Examples ♣

A typical Korean name is:

이수한 (Lee, Suhan) - Full name.
이 (Lee) - Family name.
수한 (Suhan) - Given name.

Attached with the honorific suffix.

이수한 씨 (LeeSuhan ssi) - respectful.
이 씨 (Lee ssi) - disrespectful.
수한 씨 (Suhan ssi) - respectful.

☞ remember ☜

Attaching 씨 (ssi) with a full name is a bit more respectful than attaching it only to the given name.

이수한 씨 (LeeSuhan ssi) is a bit more respectful than 수한 씨 (Suhan ssi).

Grammar Point #2 - Rising Intonation

Many Korean statements can be turned into questions simply with a rising intonation. This is especially true with the standard politeness level. In this conversation both parties simply said the other person's name with a rising intonation. Because of this rising intonation we can assume correctly that the speakers were asking a question.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(1)갈시아: ... 김수한 씨? (1)Galsia: ...KimSuHan ssi? (1)Garcia: ...Ms. SuHan Kim?

Because of the rising intonation, Garcia is asking the other person if she is Kim SuHan. If there was no rising intonation, it would simply be a statement, and Juan Garcia would be addressing Kim SuHan.

Grammar Point #3 - Hello - 안녕하세요

The phrase 안녕하세요 (annyeonghaseyo) can be used in almost any situation where the English greeting "Hello" can be used. It is typically used when meeting someone for the first time. It's also used when meeting someone for the first time throughout the day. This is a polite way of greeting someone.

☞ remember ☜

Here are a few examples in which 안녕하세요 (annyeonghaseyo) is appropriate to use.

Meeting someone for the first time.
Seeing co-workers in the morning.
Meeting an acquaintance for lunch.
Greeting family members at a family gathering.
Greeting the public.

It is the polite greeting in Korean.

Grammar Point #4 - Nice to Meet You - 처음 뵙겠습니다

In this conversation, after both parties had said 안녕하세요 (annyeonghaseyo, hello), both said 처음 뵙겠습니다 (cheoeum boepgetseumnida). This last phrase literally means, "I'm meeting you for the first time," but this phrase is used just like the English "Nice to meet you." 처음 뵙겠습니다 (cheoeum boepgetseumnida) is a set phrase and should be used only when actually meeting someone for the first time.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

When meeting someone for the first time, a bow is usually expected. This bow should be similar to a lowering of the head. In certain situations, a handshake is also expected (dominantly in business settings). However, a handshake always supplements a bow. Bowing shows respect, and humility to the other party. These two virtues are very important in Korean society.

저는 이성호입니다.	jeo-neun iseongho-imnida.	I'm Sungho Lee.
반갑습니다.	bangapseumnida.	Pleasure to meet you, Pleasure to see you.	expression
반갑다	bangapda	To be glad to see. To be a pleasure to see.	verb

SAMPLE SENTENCES

처음 뵙겠습니다. 만나서 반갑습니다. cheoeum boepgetseumnida. mannaseo bangapsseumnida. "How do you do? Nice to meet you."	만나서 반갑습니다 mannaseo bangapsseumnida. "It's a pleasure to meet you."

GRAMMAR

Giving introductions in Korean, just like in English, can be done in a number of ways. This conversation is focused on introducing one's name. This conversation also introduces a new set phrase when meeting someone.

Grammar Point #1 - Introducing One's Name - 저는 이성호입니다

To introduce your name to somebody, you can use the phrase "저는 (name)입니다." (jeo-neun 'name'-imnida.).

▷ Construction

The first part of the phrase is 저는 (jeo-neun). This is the pronoun 저 (jeo, I) followed by the topic marking particle 는 (neun). After that, a name is inserted. Immediately following the name is 입니다 (imnida), which means "am". Literally the phrase is "I (name) am". This is translated as "I am (name)."A full name, or a given name can be inserted. However a Korean family name cannot be inserted. This is because Korean family names are not very plentiful. Giving a Korean family name would cause confusion among other Koreans. However, giving a non-Korean name would most likely be acceptable in many situations.

♣ More Examples ♣

저는 박입니다. - (jeo-neun bak-imnida.) - I am Park.
If someone were to call this person by their last name, this would cause confusion among all the Koreans with the last name Park (9% of the population).

저는 스미스입니다. - (jeo-neun seumiseu-imnida.) - I am Smith.
This would not cause any confusion among Koreans.

Grammar Point #2 - It's a Pleasure to Meet You - 반갑습니다

This phrase literally means "pleasure to see" or "happy to see." So this phrase can be used to express gladness when meeting someone.
This phrase can be used when meeting someone for the first time. It is another set phrase used when making someone's acquaintance for the first time.As the meaning of this phrase means "pleasure to see" or "happy to see," this phrase is also used in situations other than first encounters.
It is commonly heard among friends who have not seen each other for some time. In a situation where friends have not seen each other for some time, English speakers use the expression "It's good to see you." This would be a close translation for 반갑습니다 (bangapseumnida), when used in the same context.

♣ More Examples ♣

Below are a few forms of the phrase 반갑습니다 (bangapseumnida):

반갑다 (bangapda) - Dictionary form.
반가워요 (bangawoyo) - Standard Politeness Level.
반가워 (bangawo) - Intimate Politeness Level.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean names are generally romanized according to personal preference. There is no one system that Koreans use to romanize their names. There are however, popular spellings, which many people follow in order to show users that they are part of the same clan (Korean names show ancestry). For consistency purposes, KoreanClass101.com romanizes names in the transcript romanization according to the revised romanization system, but romanizes the names according to the most popular spellings in the translation areas.

감사합니다 - 아니에요. "Thank you. - Not at all."

GRAMMAR

As Korean is a language that has a strong emphasis on politeness levels, there can be several different ways one can say something. As this is the case, this conversation focuses on the usage of three different ways to say "Thank you."

Grammar Point #1 - Thank You - 감사합니다

감사합니다 (gamsahamnida) is a polite way to say "Thank you". This "Thank you" should be used towards strangers, acquaintances, people of higher social ranking, elderly family members, teachers, and people who are generally of higher social ranking (Confucian hierarchy). In general, this is the most polite form of the phrase "Thank you". If ever in a formal situation, this would be the "Thank you" to use (i.e. with an important person, future in-laws, an employer, an interview). 감사합니다 (gamsahamnida) is actually the verb 감사하다 (gamsahada) - to be thankful - conjugated into the formal politeness level.

Grammar Point #2 - Thank you - 고맙습니다

고맙습니다 (gomapseumnida) is another polite way to say "Thank you". This phrase is a bit less formal than the former 감사합니다 (gamsahamnida). The difference between the two "Thank you" phrases is minor. 고맙습니다 (gomapseumnida) is a bit more friendly, and a bit more casual. But this can be used in most situations where 감사합니다 (gamsahamnida) can be used. This phrase can be used in formal situations as well, but formal situations would usually call for the highest level of politeness (using 감사합니다 - gamsahamnida). 고맙습니다 (gomapseumnida) is actually the verb 고맙다 (gomapda) - to be thankful - conjugated in the formal politeness level.

Grammar Point #3 - Thanks - 고마워

고마워 (gomawo) is the casual form of the phrase "Thank you." This can easily be translated as "Thanks" in English. This phrase should only be used with close friends and people of intimate relationships. 고마워 (gomawo) can be used with close friends, close family members, classmates, people of the same, or younger age, and in many other cases where the intimate politeness level can be used. This is actually the verb 고맙다 (gomapda) - to be thankful - conjugated into the intimate politeness level. The frequency of which these three phrases are heard is almost equal. Whenever in doubt as to which "Thank you" to use, use the most polite form - 감사합니다 (gamsahamnida).

Grammar Point #4 - It's Nothing - 아니에요

Korean culture typically deflects praise. Saying "you're welcome" can convey to listener that speaker is acknowledging their good deed. So to deflect "Thank you," Koreans typically say 아니에요 (anieyo), which can be translated into "not at all". Literally 아니에요 (anieyo) means "it's not". 아니에요 (anieyo) is the verb 아니다 (anida) conjugated into the standard politeness level. The following are the formal, and intimate politeness levels of 아니다 (anida) - the verb "to not be."

♣ More Examples ♣

아닙니다 - animnida - Formal politeness level
아니야 - aniya - Intimate politeness level

These two can also be used to reply as "You're welcome/Not at all/No problem."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

To add extra emphasis to your gratitude you can add a short, quick bow along with 감사합니다 (gamsahamnida) and 고맙습니다 (gomapseumnida). With 고마워 (gomawo), the most casual of the "Thank You" phrases, a bow would most likely be unnecessary. Bows are reserved for people who you wish to respect and honor, and thus, any situation where the intimate politeness level of Thank You is used, a respectful bow would be unfitting.

4. galsia : ne. annyeonghi gyeseyo.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English
안녕히 계세요	annyeonghi gyeseyo	Goodbye (stay peacefully)
안녕히 가세요	annyeonghi gaseyo	Goodbye (go peacefully)
저도요	jeodoyo	Me too.

SAMPLE SENTENCES

안녕히 계세요 주원 씨. annyeonghi gyeseyo juwon ssi. "Goodbye Joowon."	반가웠어요. 안녕히 가세요. bangawosseoyo. annyeonghi gaseyo. "It was good seeing you. Goodbye."

'만나서 반갑습니다.'

mannaseo bangapsseumnida.

"Glad to meet you."

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Goodbye - 안녕히 가세요

안녕히 가세요 (annyeonghi gaseyo) means "goodbye" and it is used in situations when someone is leaving. Literally the phrase means "go peacefully." As this phrase contains the word "go" (가다 - gada), this would only be suitable to use when someone is actually leaving. This can be leaving at an airport (as was the case in this conversation), going home, going to another location. Anytime someone is simply going, this is the phrase used to say "goodbye." If both people are going, this would also be the phrase to use. 안녕히 가세요 (annyeonghi gaseyo) is in the standard politeness level (below are more examples of different politeness levels).

Grammar Point #2 - Goodbye - 안녕히 계세요

안녕히 계세요 (annyeonghi gyeseyo) means "goodbye" and is used in situations when the speaker is the one leaving. Literally the phrase means "stay peacefully." As this phrase contains the word "stay" (계시다 - gyesida), this would only be appropriate to use when the listener is literally staying. In this conversation, Garcia used this phrase towards Kim Su Han because Garcia was the one leaving, and Kim Su Han was the one staying. 안녕히 계세요 (annyeonghi gyeseyo) is in the standard politeness level (below are more examples of different politeness levels).

Politeness Level	Go Peacefully	Stay Peacefully
Formal	안녕히 가십시오	안녕히 계십시오
Standard	안녕히 가세요	안녕히 계세요
Intimate	안녕	안녕

For the intimate politeness level, 안녕 (annyeong) is used for both "stay peacefully" and "go peacefully." 안녕 (annyeong) is also used for saying "hello" as well. This word is in the intimate politeness level and is used among people on close terms.

Grammar Point #3 - Me, too - 저도요

저도요 (jeodoyo) is used just like it's English counterpart "Me too," or "Me as well." Whenever a statement is made, and the same statement holds true for the speaker, the speaker can say 저도요 (jeodoyo) to express that it holds true for him/her. 저도요 (jeodoyo) is in the standard politeness level. In the intimate politeness level it is 나도 (nado).

"Hello, can I speak to Anna?"	"Hello. Who's speaking?"

소진씨. 오랜만이에요.

sojinssi, oraenmanieyo.

"Sojin, long time no see."

GRAMMAR

In this lesson, the speakers are talking over the phone.

Vocabulary Focus #1 - Saying Hello (over the phone) - 여보세요?

In Korean there is a different greeting when answering the phone. When someone is making or receiving a phone call, 여보세요 (yeoboseyo) is used. This is neither rude, nor polite. It is a neutral way of answering a phone call. 여보세요 (yeoboseyo) is said when someone first picks up the phone, and then 여보세요 is typically used to respond to that.

▷ In This Dialog

---

(1)경호: 여보세요? (2)소진: 여보세요? (1)Gyeongho: yeoboseyo? (2)Sojin: yeoboseyo? (1)Gyeongho: Hello? (2)Sojin: Hello?

Notice in this conversation, both the caller and person called pick the up the phone and both say 여보세요 (yeoboseyo).

♣ More Examples ♣

존: 여보세요? - (yeoboseyo?) Hello?
지원: 여보세요? - (yeoboseyo?) Hello?
존: 안녕하세요. 저는 존입니다. - (annyeonghaseyo. jeo-neun jon-imnida.) Hello. I'm Jon.

Vocabulary Focus #2 - It's Been a Long Time - 오랜만이에요

오랜만이에요 (oraenman-ieyo) is a set phrase, which translates as "It's been a long time." This phrase is commonly used between people that have known each other for a while, but have not seen each other for some time. However, this phrase is not limited to friendship, or relationships. This phrase can also be used for situations whenever it's been a long time for something. Just like its English counterpart, "It's been a long time," the phrase 오랜만이에요 (oraenman-ieyo) can be used for things such as playing a sport, eating a specific dish, talking on the phone, sleeping at someone's house, playing an instrument, going to a specific location, etc. Below are different politeness levels for this phrase.

Formal Politeness Level: 오랜만입니다 (oraenman-imnida)
Standard Politeness Level: 오랜만이에요 (oraenman-ieyo)
Intimate Politeness Level: 오랜만이야 (oraenman-iya)
Dictionary Form: 오랜만이다 (oraenman-ida)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Just as it is in different cultures, Korea has different phone etiquettes. One thing that is noticeable is the many ways Koreans hang up the phone. Some people do not say "bye," and simply say 응 (eung) or 네 (ne), which can mean "ok", "yes" or "I understand" when hanging up the phone. Some Koreans say "I am hanging up now (끊을게 - kkeuneulge)" before they hang up the phone. The way people hang up differs from person to person.

어머니도 건강하시죠? eomeonido geonganghasijyo? Your mother is healthy, too, right?

GRAMMAR

This lesson contains some elements used when talking to friends who have not spoken in quite some time.

Grammar Point #1 - Have You Been Good? - 잘 있었어요?

When talking to friends or family that haven't been spoken to for an extended period of time, the phrase 잘 있었어요? (jal isseosseoyo?) is used to ask if one has been good for that time. This phrase is in the standard politeness level (other politeness levels are listed below), and can be used with people that are not so close to you, or with someone you are on a professional relationship with. It is used just like the English phrase "How have you been?" or "Have you been good?"

Formal Politeness Level: 잘 지내셨습니까? (jal jinaesyeosseumnikka?) - literally (Have you passed the time well?)
Standard Politeness Level: 잘 있었어요? (jal isseosseoyo?)
Intimate Politeness Level: 잘 있었어? (jal isseosseo?)

♣ More Examples ♣

In the standard or intimate politeness level, one is able to answer with the same words, just with a different intonation. To make a statement, simply make the intonation dropping. When 잘 있었어요? (jal isseosseoyo?) has a rising intonation, it is a question. When 잘 있었어요 (jal isseosseoyo) has a dropping intonation, it is a statement.

잘 있었어요? (jal isseosseoyo?) Question - rising intonation
잘 있었어요. (jal isseosseoyo.) Statement - dropping intonation

Grammar Point #2 - How About...? - 는요?

When asking questions, one can ask about another person or thing outside of the conversation (a noun) by saying the noun and then attaching -은/는요? (-eun/neunyo?). The question asked prior is applied to this new question "How about...?" This is used much like the English "How about...?"

-은요? (-eunyo?) is applied to nouns that end in consonants.
-는요? (-neunyo?) is applied to nouns that end in vowels.

▷ Construction

[noun] + -은/는요? (-eun/neunyo?) - "How about [noun]?"
버스는요? (beoseu-neunyo?) - "How about the bus?"
사장님은요? (sajangnim-eunyo?) - "How about the boss?"

☞ remember ☜

-은/는 (-eun/neun) is the topic marking particle. And -요 (-yo) is used as a politeness particle.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Family plays a big part in Korean culture; therefore, when asking about a person, it is quite polite to ask about that person's family as well. Of course the speaker must have met, or know about the listeners family to some degree, but asking about a person's family shows a great deal of care and interest.

GRAMMAR

This lesson focuses on a few key phrases in Korean, and the useful descriptive verb, 많이 (mani).

Grammar Point #1 - I'm Hungry, I'm Full - 배고프다, 배부르다

배고프다 (baegopeuda) is a descriptive verb that means "to be hungry" or literally "to have a hungry stomach." This phrase can be broken down a little further. The first word is 배 (bae), which means "stomach". 고프다 (gopeuda) means "to be hungry." Literally the phrase means "stomach, is hungry". This is a set phrase and can be used just like the English "(I'm) hungry".

(2)용준: 저는 배불러요. (2)Yongjun: jeoneun baebulleoyo. (2)Yongjun: I’m very full.

This conversation uses the standard politeness level for both phrases "I'm hungry," and "I'm full."

Below is a list of different politeness levels for the phrase "I'm hungry"
배고픕니다 (baegopeumnida) - Formal Politeness Level
배고파요 (baegopayo) - Standard Politeness Level (used in the conversation)
배고파 (baegopa) - Intimate Politeness Level

배부르다 (baebureuda) is a descriptive verb that means "to be full" or literally "to have a full stomach." This phrase can be broken down a little further. The first word is 배 (bae), which means "stomach." 부르다 (bureuda) means "to be full," or "to be filled." This verb gives off the notion that one's stomach is physically full. Literally the phrase means "stomach, is full." This is a set phrase and can be used just like the English "(I'm) full."

Below is a list of different politeness levels for this phrase "I'm full"

배불러 (baebulleo) - Intimate Politeness Level

Grammar Point #2 - To Be Many - 많다

많다 (manta) is a descriptive verb, which expresses "to be many." In the context of this conversation, it was used in its adverbial form 많이 (mani). When it is in its adverbial form it can be translated as "very" or "a lot." And this is placed before the word it is modifying.

배고프다 (baegopeuda) - to be hungry.
많이 배고프다 (mani baegopeuda) - to be very hungry.
배부르다 (baebureuda) - to be full.
많이 배부르다 (mani baebureuda) - to be very full.

This word, when it is used as a descriptive verb, can describe whatever comes before it (typically a noun), to be many.

♣ More Examples ♣

사람 (saram) - people
사람 많아요 (saram manayo) - (There are) many people

☞ remember ☜

Below is a list of a few different conjugations for this word:

많다 - infinitive (dictionary form)
많습니다 (manseumnida) - Formal Politeness Level
많아요 (manayo) - Standard Politeness Level
많아 (mana) - Intimate Politeness Level
많이 (mani) - Adverb (used in the conversation)

왜 한국에 왔어요? "Why did you come to Korea?"	드디어 성공했다. deudieo seong-gonghaetda. "Finally, I've succeeded."

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces one of the most basic building blocks for conversation. The verb 좋아해요 (joahaeyo), which means "like" is used quite frequently in conversation. Also, we introduce a useful adverb, 진짜 (jinjja), "really."

Grammar Point #1 - Like - 좋아해요

The most basic and rudimentary way to express interest of something is to use the verb 좋아해요 (joahaeyo), the verb "like." This is used just like the English verb "to like." The most basic construction with this verb is as follows.

▷ Construction

(Object)을/를 좋아해요. (Object)eul/reul joahaeyo. (Object) like.

Korean uses the object marking particle 을/를 (eul/reul) to mark the object of the sentence. 을 (eul) and 를 (reul) are the object marking particles, and both function in exactly the same manner. The difference between the two is that 을 (eul) is used with words ending in consonants, and 를 (reul) is used with words ending on vowels.

Example: 저는 피자를 좋아해요. (jeo-neun pija-reul joahaeyo). I like pizza. Literally:
I(topic marking particle) pizza(object marking particle) like (standard politeness level).
(topic of sentence) + (object that is liked) + (좋아해요).

♣ More Examples ♣

게임을 좋아해요. geim-eul joahaeyo. I like games.
노래를 좋아해요. norae-reul joahaeyo. I like singing.

The object marking particle can be dropped in speech. Although this can cause confusion on occasion, the majority of the time, it can be inferred from context what the object is (this is also true for other particles in Korean). Parts of speech can be dropped in conversation (i.e. topic marking particle, subject marking particle), as long as they can be inferred from context.

Below is a list of 좋아하다 (joahada) in different politeness levels.

☞ remember ☜

좋아합니다 (joahamnida) - Formal Politeness Level
좋아해요 (joahaeyo) - Standard Politeness Level
좋아해 (joahae) - Intimate Politeness Level

Grammar Point #2 - Really - 진짜

Just like the English word "really," the Korean version 진짜 (jinjja) is used very much in the same manner. It can be really used as a question, an exclamatory statement, and as an adverb. Below are a few examples of 진짜 (jinjja) used in these different contexts.

♣ More Examples ♣

Question:
A 씨: 저는 한국어 선생님입니다. (jeo-neun hangukeo seonsaengnim-imnida) I'm a Korean teacher.
B 씨: 진짜? (jinjja?) Really?

A 씨: 나 백만원 땄어! (na baekman-won ttasseo!) - I won ₩1,000,000!
B 씨: 설마! (seolma!) - No way!
A 씨: 진짜! (jinjja!) - Really!

A 씨: 저는 신라면을 진짜 좋아해요 (jeo-neun sinramyun-eul jinjja joahaeyo) - I really like Shin ramyun.

In the context of this conversation, 진짜 (jinjja) was used as an adverb and is used to modify the verb 좋아해요 (joahaeyo) - like.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(1)요나스: 드디어! 한국이다! 진짜 좋아해요. (1)Yonaseu: deudieo! hanguk-ida! jinjja joahaeyo. (1)Jonas: Finally! Korea! I'm so happy!

☞ remember ☜

The pronunciation of 진짜 (jinjja) can be troublesome for some people. The first syllable starts with ㅈ (j), and is pronounced like the English "j" in the word "jean." The next syllable is ㅉ (jj). There is no real similar pronunciation in English. This sound is tenser than a single ㅈ (j). Please refer to the Premium Learning Center for sound clips.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

진짜 (jinjja) can be seen as a bit feminine. This is because this word is used much more frequently by females than males. Males use this word as well, and it doesn't give off the notion that the person is not masculine, but if used frequently, it can give off the impression that one is on the feminine side.

SAMPLE SENTENCES

진짜 아니에요 "Really, no."	저는 럭비를 싫어해요. jeoneun leokbireul sireohaeyo. "I dislike rugby."

GRAMMAR

This lesson focuses on another essential conversational building block. In this lesson, we will be going over 싫어해요 (sirheohaeyo), the verb "to dislike."

Vocabulary Focus #1 - Dislike: 싫어해요

The most basic and rudimentary way to express dislike of someone or something is to use 싫어해요 (sirheohaeyo), the verb "dislike." This is used just like the English "don't like" or "dislike." The most basic construction with this verb is as follows.

▷ Construction

(Object)을/를 싫어해요. (Object)eul/reul silheohaeyo. (Object) dislike.

Note: The object marking particle is 을 (eul) or 를 (reul). It marks the object of the sentence. 을 (eul) is used for objects that end in consonants. 를 (reul) is used for obejcts that end in vowels.

Example:

저는 스시를 싫어해요. (jeo-neun seusi-reul sirheohaeyo). I don't like sushi.

Literally:
I (topic marking particle) sushi (object marking particle) dislike (standard politeness level).
*(topic of sentence)* + *(object that is disliked)* + (싫어하다)

For the verb 싫어해요 (silheohaeyo), the object marking particle, 을 (eul) and 를 (reul) is used to mark the thing or person that is disliked.

♣ More Examples ♣

저는 컴퓨터를 싫어해요. (jeo-neun keompyuteo-reul sirheohaeyo) I don't like computers.
제 선생님이 저를 싫어해요. (je seonsaengnim-i jeo-reul sirheohaeyo) My teacher doesn't like me.

The object marking particle can be dropped in speech. Although this can cause confusion on occasion, the majority of the time, it can be inferred from context what the object is (this is also true for other particles in Korean). Parts of speech can be dropped in conversation (i.e. topic marking particle, subject marking particle), as long as they can be inferred from context.

2. yonaseu : kimchi-neun masisseo.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
왜	wae	why	adverb
맛있다	masitda	to be delicious	verb
맛없다	mateoptda	to not be delicious

SAMPLE SENTENCES

그는 왜 오늘 기분이 안 좋습니까? Geuneun wae oneul gibuni an josseumnikka? Why is he in a bad mood today?	왜 안 됩니까? Wae an doemnikka? Why not?
왜 가는지 말해 줘. Wae ganeunji malhae jwo. Tell me why you are going.	왜 늦으십니까? Wae neujeusimnikka? Why will you be late?
왜 나야? Wae naya? Why me?	왜 아직도 저한테 존댓말 쓰세요? wae ajiktto jeohante jondaenmal sseuseyo? "Why are you still using polite language to me?"
왜 한국어를 공부하세요? wae hangugeoreul gongbuhaseyo? "Why are you studying Korean?"	와... 맛있겠다! wa... masikketta! "Wow...looks delicious!"
이 찌개는 맛있어요. i jjigaeneun masisseoyo. "This stew is delicious."	이 집 라면은 맛없어요. "The ramyeon at this shop is not delicious."

GRAMMAR

This conversation goes over the question word 왜 (wae), and also provides two very useful conversational phrases, 맛있다 (masitda) and 맛없다 (mateopda).

Grammar Point #1 - Why - 왜

Question words in Korean are used fairly similar as they are used in English. They are typically used at the beginning of the sentence and have the same function as their English counterparts.

♣ More Examples ♣

왜 한국어를 공부해요?
wae hangugeo-reul gongbuhaeyo?
Why Korean study? (literally)
Why do you study Korean?

왜 안 먹었어?
wae an meogeosseo?
Why not ate? (literally)
Why didn't you eat?

♣ More Examples ♣

However, word order in Korean is flexible, and question words are not limited to the front of sentences.

한국어를 왜 공부해요?
hangugeo-reul wae gongbuhaeyo?
Korean why study? (Literally)
Why do you study Korean?

Other than using 왜 (wae) in a question, 왜 (wae) is used in situations when responding to someone's calling (this property is not displayed in this conversation). In English, a common response to someone's calling would be "what"? But in Korean "why" is heard much more often. To infer a little more, saying 왜 (wae) is asking "Why (are you calling)?"

♣ More Examples ♣

성민: 줄리야! (julliya!) seongmin: Hey Julie! 줄리: 왜? (wae?) Julie: Why? (literally)

☞ remember ☜

Answering with 왜 (wae) to someone's calling is mostly between friends and it is not very polite when you say 왜요? (waeyo?) even with the politeness particle 요 (yo) at the end (i.e. when your teacher calls you). The most common way to answer politely is 네? (ne?) or 예? (ye?), which is translated as "yes?".

Grammar Point #2 - It's Delicious - 맛있다

맛있다 (masitda) is a phrase that means "delicious." This can be used towards drinks, food, candy, and anything else edible. This phrase can be broken down into two different words. 맛 (mat) means "taste," and 있다 (itda) means "to exist." Literally this phrase means "taste, exists."

However, because it can be broken down into two different words, technically it should have a subject marking particle (it is typically used in harmony with 있다, itda and 없다, eopta). The phrase should be 맛이 있다 (mas-i itda). But because 이 (i) and 있 (it) are right next to each other and share the same vowel, 이 (i), they merge into one syllable 있 (it). The resulting phrase is 맛있다 (masitda).

☞ remember ☜

Here are a few different conjugations for 맛있다 (masitda).

맛있습니다 (masisseumnida) - Formal Politeness Level 맛있어요 (masisseoyo) - Standard Politeness Level 맛있어 (masisseo) - Intimate Politeness Level

---

Grammar Point #3 - It's Not Delicious - 맛없다

맛없다 (mateopda) is a phrase that means "not delicious." This can be used towards drinks, food, candy, and anything else edible. This phrase can be broken down into two different words. 맛 (mat) means "taste," and 없다 (eoptda) means "to not exist." Literally this phrase means "taste, not exist."

ㅅ (s) in 맛없다 (mateopda) is pronounced as (t) and not (s) because of the invisible subject marking particle. In 맛없다 (mateopda), ㅅ (s) from 맛 (mat) is pronounced as 맡(mat) because the subject marking particle, 이 (i), is absent. Because it isn't present, 맛 (mat) is pronounced as if it were on it's own, which results in ㅅ (s) being pronounced as (t).

☞ remember ☜

Here are a few different conjugations for 맛없다 (mateopda)

맛없습니다 (mateopseumnida) Formal Politeness Level
맛없어요 (mateopseoyo) Standard Politeness Level
맛없어 (maeteopseo) Intimate Politeness Level

5. hangyeol eomma : ani. eopseo.
6. yujin : ne. gamsahamnida.
7. hangyeol eomma : eung. annyeong.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
있어요	isseoyo	to exist, is, have	expression
아니	ani	No. (intimate)	expression
안녕	annyeong	Hi, Hello.	expression
없어	eopseo	I don't have.../do you not have... (casual language)

SAMPLE SENTENCES

지금 학교에 있어요? Jigeum hakgyoe isseoyo? "Are you at school now?"	아니, 나 아니야. ani, na aniya. "No, it's not me."
선우야! 안녕! Seon-u-ya! Annyeong! "Seonu! Hello!"	재미 없어! jaemi eopseo! "It's not fun." ("There is no fun.")

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces two extremely critical phrases in Korean, 있어요 (isseoyo) and 없어 (eopseo), the verbs "exist" and "not exist." Also, two very common and useful conversational phrases were used in this conversation, 아니 (ani) and 안녕 (annyeong).

Grammar Point #1 - Stating the Existence or Possession of Something - 있어요

The sentence structure used to express the existence of something is as follows:

▷ Construction

“Noun1 있어요.”
"Noun1 isseoyo."
“Noun 1 exists.”
This is translated as "Noun1 is (in regards to existence)."

♣ More Examples ♣

“돈이 있어요.”
“don-i isseoyo”
“Money exists.”
This is translated as "Money exists (for me)" or "I have money."

▷ In This Dialog

In this conversation 유진 (yujin) asks if 한결 (hangyeol) is there. The question she asks is:

한결 있어요?
hangyeol isseoyo?
Is Hangyeol there? (Literally: Hangyeol, is?)
From this sentence we have to infer from context that she is asking if hangyeol is "there."

☞ remember ☜

Here are a few conjugations of 있다 (itda):

있다 (itda) - infinitive 있습니다 (isseumnida) - Formal Politeness Level 있어요 (isseoyo) - Standard Politeness Level 있어 (isseo) - Intimate Politeness Level

The standard politeness level was used in this conversation because 유진 (yujin) was talking to her friend's mother, to whom she should use polite language.

Grammar Point #2 - Stating the Absence or Non-presence of Something - 없어

The verb 없다 (eopta) expresses the non-existence of something. The sentence structure used to express the non-existence of something is as follows:

▷ Construction

“Noun 1 없습니다.” "Noun1 eopseoyo."
“Noun 1 doesn't exists.”
This is translated as "Noun1 is not (in regards to existence)."

▷ In This Dialog
---
(5)한결 엄마: 아니. 없어. (5)hangyeol eomma: ani. eopseo. (5)Hangyeol's Mom: No. He's not.

In this conversation, 한결의 엄마 (hangyeol's mother) says: "없어" (eopseo). This is literally, "not exist" or "not is." Here there is no subject for the sentence, and there is no location adverb as well. It is simply the verb 없다 (eopta). In this context we can easily infer both of these because of the question presented to her [한결 있어요? (hangyeol isseoyo?) Is Hangyeol there?].

☞ remember ☜

Here are a few conjugations of 없다 (eopta):

없다 (eopta) - Infinitive 없습니다 (eopsseumnida) - Formal Politeness Level 없어요 (eopseoyo) - Standard Politeness Level 없어 (eopseo) - Intimate Politeness Level

The intimate politeness level, 없어 (eopseo), was used in this conversation because the speaker, Hangyeol's mother, does not have to show respect to 유진 (yujin).

Grammar Point #3 - Saying No - 아니

아니 (ani) is simply used to say "no." It is most commonly used to answer questions.

♣ More Examples ♣

학교 갔어?
hakgyo gasseo?
Did you go to school?

아니 ani
No.

☞ remember ☜

In this conversation it was used in the Intimate Politeness Level (아니 - ani). The following are different politeness levels for same word.

아닙니다 (animnida) - Formal Politeness Level 아니오 (anio) - Standard Politeness Level 아니 (ani) - Intimate Politeness Level

---

Grammar Point #4 - Hey/See you - 안녕

안녕 (annyeong) is an extremely commonly phrase that has two different meanings. It is a casual way to either greet someone, or part with someone. It can be translated as both "hey" and "see you." Since this is a casual way to part with someone, it should be used with people you are on intimate terms with.

Polite Versions:
안녕하세요 (annyeonghaseyo) is used to greet somebody, "hello."
안녕히가세요/안녕히계세요 (annyeonghigaseyo/annyeonghigyeseyo) is used to say goodbye.
Note: All of these have 안녕 (annyeong) in front.

Here are a few social relationships with which 안녕 (annyeong) is acceptable to be used:

1. School friends
2. Close co-workers
3. Family members
4. Boyfriend/Girlfriend

☞ remember ☜

All of these relationships are with people who are in one's inner-circle. Therefore, relationships which the intimate politeness level is acceptable.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

It is common to call a friend's mother 어머니 (eomeoni), which means mother. Friends in one's inner-circle can consider their friends parents their own parents. Parents often provide for their children's friends by giving them money to hang out, letting them sleep at their homes, giving them food, among other things as if they were they were the persons actual parents. If one is very close to another friend's family, they often go to family events together as well. But even if two friends are not so close, it is quite polite to call a friend's parents 어머니 (eomeoni) and 아버지 (abeoji), which means "father."

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
이거	igeo	this	noun
이름	ireum	name	noun
이다	ida	to be	verb
뭐	mwo	what	adjective

SAMPLE SENTENCES

이거 주세요. igeo juseyo. "Please give me this one."	이름이 뭐예요? ireumi mweoyeyo? "What's your name?"

네 역할은 뭐야?
Ne yeokhareun mwoya?
"What's your role?"

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces a phrase that can be used to learn Korean from the people around you. The phrase is 뭐예요? (mwo-yeoyo?).

Grammar Point #1 - What is it? - 뭐예요?

뭐예요? (mwo-yeyo?) literally means "what, is." 뭐 (mwo) means "what" and 예요 (yeyo) means "is." If the speaker doesn't mention something specific, it should be something the listener can usually guess from context what the speaker is referring to.

♣ More Examples ♣

To be more specific, one can add a noun in front.

이름 뭐예요?
ireum mwo-yeyo?
(Literally: name, what, is)
What is your name?
(the subject marking particle is typically used, but can be dropped)

이거 뭐예요?
igeo mwo-yeoyo?
(Literally: this, what, is)
What is this?

The following are some conjugations of the phrase:
뭡니까? (mwomnikka?) - Formal Politeness Level
뭐예요? (mwo-yeyo?) - Standard Politeness Level
뭐야? (mwo-ya?) - Intimate Politeness Level

Grammar Point #2 - This - 이거

The word "this" in Korean is 이거 (igeo). When written, it is written as 이것 (igeot). The pronunciation of this can hinder someone's speech because of the sudden stop with the last syllable, ㅅ (sh,t). 이거 (igeo) flows much easier than 이것 (igeot), and therefore 이거 (igeo) is used more often for spoken Korean.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(3)형사: 이거 뭐예요? ... 이거 뭐예요?!
(3)hyeongsa: igeo mwo-yeyo? ... igeo mwo-yeyo?!
(3)Detective: What is this? ... What is this?

Note: The detective is saying 이거 (igeo) in this dialog, but in a more formal situation he would use 이것 (igeot).

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
가방	gabang	bag	noun
칼	kal	knife, cutter, sword
그거	geugeo	that [spoken - (close to the listener)]
제	je	my (humble-form)	noun
예요/이에요	yeyo ieyo	to be (standard politeness level)

SAMPLE SENTENCES

가방 어떻게 찾았어요? Gabang eotteoke chajasseoyo? “How did you find the bag?”	나는 이 쓸데없는 가방에 900달러나 썼어. 다시 환불하고 싶어. naneun i sseuldeeomneun gabange gubaekdalleona sseoseo. dasi hwanbulhago sipeo. "I paid 900 dollars for this silly bag. I want my money back."
내 가방은 너무 무거워. nae gabangeun neomu mugeowo. "My bag is too heavy."	새 가방을 샀어요. sae gabangeul sasseoyo. "I bought a new bag."
칼로 잘라 주세요. kal-lo jalla juseyo. "Please cut it with a knife."	그거 뭐야? geugeo mueoya? "What is it?"
제 이름은 민수입니다. je ireumeun minsuimnida. "My name is Minsu."	제가 모르는 사람입니다. jega moreuneun saramimnida. "It's somebody I don't know."
제 친구예요. je chinguyeyo. This is my friend.

GRAMMAR

In this conversation, we go over the usage of the demonstrative pronouns 이거 (igeo) and 그거 (geugeo), the usage of the copula ~이다(ida) in a different politeness level, and the possessive pronoun 제 (je).

Grammar Point #1 - Demonstrative Pronouns - 이거/그거

The words for "this," and "that" are used as pronouns, in place of inanimate objects. However, they are used a bit differently than their English counterparts.

이거 (igeo), refers to items that are close to the speaker. This pronoun functions as a noun, and is used to refer to inanimate objects in close proximity to the listener. This word is translated as "this."

그거 (geugeo) is a pronoun, which is translated as "that." It functions just as a noun. It is used to refer to objects that are far from the speaker, yet close to the listener.

♣ More Examples ♣

Situation: Woman A is standing next to a bag. Woman B is standing farther away from the bag.
Woman B: 그거는 뭐예요? (geugeo-neun mwo-yeyo?) - What is that?
Woman A: 이거는 가방이에요. (igeo-neun gabang-ieyo) - This is a bag.

Here Woman B uses 그거 (geugeo) because Woman A is standing in close proximity to the bag.

☞ remember ☜

When both parties are further from an item, the word 저거 (jeogeo) is used. It is a pronoun used for inanimate objects far from both the speaker and the listener. This is translated as "that" or "that over there."

♣ More Examples ♣

Situation: Man A and Man B are looking at an object across the street.
Man A: 저거는 뭐예요? (jeogeo-neun mwo-yeyo?) - What is that over there?
Man B: 저거는 자전거예요. (jeogeo-neun jajeongeo-yeyo?) - That is a bicycle.

Grammar Point #2 - Copula in the Standard Politeness Level - 예요/이에요

The infinitive copula is 이다 (ida). As verbs can be conjugated according to politeness levels, 이다 (ida) in the formal politeness level as 입니다 (imnida). In the standard politeness level it is conjugated either as 예요 (yeyo) or 이에요 (ieyo). The standard politeness level is used most commonly in everyday speech. The formal politeness level is used when one feels the need to show the utmost respect.

There is no difference between 예요 (yeyo) and 이에요 (ieyo), the copula in the standard politeness level. The usage and meaning of the two are exactly the same; however to make pronunciation easier, 예요 (yeyo) is used with nouns that end in vowels, and 이에요 (ieyo) is used with nouns that end in consonants.

♣ More Examples ♣

가방 (gabang) - bag
This word ends in a consonant (ㅇ, ng). Therefore, 이에요 (ieyo) is used.
가방이에요 (gabang-ieyo) - Literally: "bag, is" - (It) is a bag.

류지 (ryuji) - Ryuji
This name ends in a vowel (ㅣ, i). Therefore, 예요 (yeyo) is used.
류지예요 (ryuji-yeyo) - Literally: "ryuji, is" - (I) am ryuji.

Note: Korean verbs do not inflect first, second or third person.

Grammar Point #3 - Possessive Pronoun - 제

The first-person pronoun 저 (jeo) is a humbling way to refer to oneself. When used in conjunction with the possessive particle 의 (ui), the result is 저의 (jeo-ui). This is used as a first-person possessive pronoun; the English equivalent is "my." 저의 (jeo-ui) is often shortened, and simply stated as 제 (je). Both carry the same meaning, and it is simply used to make speech shorter in Korean. The abbreviated version 제 (je) was used in this conversation.

♣ More Examples ♣

제 가방 (je gabang) - My bag.
= 저의 가방 (jeo-ui gabang) - My bag.

제 친구 (je chingu) - My friend.
= 저의 친구 (jeo-ui chingu) - My friend.

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces a few different ways to say "I'm Sorry," each with their own different nuance. Also we go over an indispensable word in Korean - 괜찮아 (gwenchanha).

Vocabulary Focus #1 - I'm Sorry - 죄송합니다

In Korean, there are a number of different ways to express "I'm Sorry."

The most polite way to apologize is to say 죄송합니다 (joesonghamnida). Generally, when one is sorry, it is usually fitting to be as polite as possible. This can be used in any situation where the English term "I'm Sorry" can be used. The word in its infinitive form is 죄송하다 (joesonghada) - to be sorry. 죄송합니다 (joesonghamnida) is conjugated into the formal politeness level - the most polite form. Here it is conjugated into the standard politeness level, and intimate politeness level.

죄송해요 (joesonghaeyo) - Standard politeness level
죄송해 (joesonghae) - Intimate politeness level

☞ remember ☜

It is not common to see this word conjugated into these 2 politeness levels (standard, intimate) because, once again, when one apologizes, they generally try to be as polite as possible. This is used with people who deserve respect, and especially when someone wishes to apologize respectfully. And as is the case with many sentences in Korean, the subjects/topics of the sentence can be dropped. By simply using the phrase 죄송합니다 (joesonghamnida), without including a subject or topic, it can be inferred from context that the speaker is sorry.

Vocabulary Focus #2 - I'm Sorry - 미안해

Because the former phrase 죄송합니다 (joesonghamnida) is used for polite situations and is not used commonly for people that do not require respect from the listener, there is another phrase used to apologize for closer relationships. 미안해 (mianhae) is the same as 죄송합니다 (joesonghamnida), except that it isn't as respectful. 미안해 (mianhae) is in the intimate politeness level, and can be used among people who are very close in relationship.

Here are some different forms of the word:

▷ Construction

미안하다 (mianhada) - infinitive
미안해요 (mianhaeyo) - standard politeness level
미안합니다 (mianhamnida) - formal politeness level

☞ remember ☜

Note that the standard and formal politeness levels are not commonly heard. This is because when one apologizes, they tend to be as polite as possible. 죄송합니다 (joesonghamnida) conveys more respect than this phrase. And as the standard and formal politeness levels do convey respect, 죄송합니다 (joesonghamnida) also conveys respect. So 죄송합니다 (joesonghamnida) is used to convey the utmost respect.

Vocabulary Focus #3 - I Did Wrong - 잘못했습니다

This phrase can be broken down into two different words. The first word is 잘못 (jalmot), which means "mistake," "error," or "wrongdoing," and 했습니다 (haesseumnida), which is the past tense of the verb 하다 (hada), "to do." Literally, the phrase 잘못했습니다 (jalmothaesseumnida) means, "mistake, did"; "wrongdoing, did"; or "error, did." And as this is true, the nuance of this phrase is to admit to a wrong doing. When one has made a mistake, or done wrong, and wishes to acknowledge their mistake, this phrase is used for that purpose. This can typically be seen when a mother scolds her child for doing something wrong or for not behaving well.

잘못 (jalmot) is a noun which comes from the compound 잘 (well) + 못 (cannot).
잘못했어 (jalmothaesseo) means "I couldn't do it well." Here 잘 (jal) and 못 (mot) are two separate words: "well" and "cannot."
잘못했어요 (jalmothaesseoyo) means "I'm sorry," "It was my bad" because 잘못 (jalmot) in this instance, is a noun.
잘못했습니다 (jalmothaesseumnida) is conjugated into the formal politeness level.

Here are a few conjugations:

잘못했어요 (jalmothaesseoyo) - standard politeness level
잘못했어 (jalmothaesseo) - intimate politeness level

☞ remember ☜

Unlike 죄송합니다 (joesonghamnida), this phrase is commonly heard in these two other politeness levels. This is because even when apologizing to a friend, and speaking in the intimate politeness level, it is still common to acknowledge fault, and admit a mistake.

Vocabulary Focus #4 - Ok, It's Alright - 괜찮아

This is one of the most rudimentary phrases in Korean. This phrase means "it's ok" or "it's alright." It is generally used in the same contexts as the English version "ok" or "alright."

괜찮아 (gwenchanha) is in the intimate politeness level. Here are a few different forms of the word:

괜찮다 (gwenchanta) - infinitive
괜찮습니다 (gwenchanhseumnida) - formal politeness level
괜찮아요 (gwenchanhayo) - standard politeness level

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Even if children use casual language with their parents (intimate politeness level) on a regular basis, they may raise their speech levels when they are apologizing in order to show as much respect as possible. When one raises their speech levels, it shows the listener that the speaker wants to convey a true and candid apology.

GRAMMAR

In this lesson, we covered the Native-Korean numbers. Korean has two number systems, which are used for different situations. In the context of this conversation, because things were being counted sequentially, the Native-Korean numbers were used.

Grammar Point #1 - Native-Korean Numbers - 하나, 둘, 셋

Native-Korean numbers are numbers that are, as the name suggests, natively Korean. Generally, these numbers are used when counting sequentially. These numbers can be used in the following contexts: reciting one's age, ordering food at a restaurant, seating people.

The numbers 1 to 10 are as follows.
1 - 하나 (hana) 2 - 둘 (dul) 3 - 셋 (set) 4 - 넷 (net) 5 - 다섯 (daseot) 6 - 여섯 (yeoseot) 7 - 일곱 (ilgop) 8 - 여덟 (yeodeolp) 9 - 아홉 (ahop) 10 - 열 (yeol)

▷ Construction

Counting numbers 1 to 19 require the numbers 1 to 10.
To form the number 11 simply take the number 10 (열, yeol) and then say the number 1 (하나, hana) immediately afterwards. Numbers 12 - 19 follow the same pattern.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
10 + 1 = 11 열 + 하나 = 열하나 yeol + hana = yeolhana

10 + 4 = 14 열 + 넷 = 열넷 yeol + net = yeolnet

10 + 8 = 18 열 + 여덟 = 열여덟 yeol + yeodeolp = yeolyeodeolp

The numbers 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70, 80, 90 have their own words.
스물, 서른, 마흔, 쉰, 예순, 일흔, 여든, 아흔 seumul, seoreun, maheun, swin, yesun, ilheun, yeodeun, aheun

Forming numbers higher than 20 follows the same pattern as forming the numbers 11 through 19. To form the number 25, simply take the word for 20 (스물, seumul) and then say the number 5 (다섯, daseot) immediately after that.
25 - 스물다섯 - seumul daseot

The remaining numbers follow the same pattern.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
20 + 9 = 29 스물 + 아홉 = 스물아홉 seumul + ahop = seumulahop

30 + 2 = 32 서른 + 둘 = 서른둘 seoreun + dul = seoreundul

☞ remember ☜

If there is something attached to the end of number 1 to 4, the numbers change slightly. (This property will be shown in the next lesson.)
The following are the changes that occur:

하나 (hana) -> 한 (han)
둘 (dul) -> 두 (du)
셋 (set) -> 세 (se)
넷 (net) -> 네 (ne)

♣ More Examples ♣

If we add the word for hour, 시 (si) to numbers 1 to 4, these numbers change. This displays the same properties stated above.
1 하나 (hana) + 시 (hour) = 한 시 (han si)
2 둘 (dul) + 시 (hour) = 두 시 (du si)
3 셋 (set) + 시 (hour) = 세 시 (se si)
4 넷 (net) + 시 (hour) = 네 시 (ne si)

Sentences:

1.열두 시에 도착합니다.
yeoldu si-e dochakhamnida.
(I) am arriving at 12 o'clock.

2.열다섯 명입니다.
yeodaseot myeong-imnida.
We have 15 people.

3. 제 딸은 세 살입니다.
je ttal-eun se sal-imnida.
My daughter is 3 years old.

Quicktip: Generally speaking, when numbers get high (40 to 50), Korean speakers tend to use the Chinesecharacter-based numbers. This is because Native-Korean numbers are used generally for counting things sequentially, and there aren't many chances to count to such high numbers.

SAMPLE SENTENCES

아들이 몇 살이에요? adeureun myeot sarieyo? "How old is your son?"	저는 열두 살입니다. jeoneun yeoldu sarimnida. "I am twelve years old."
저는 스물일곱 살입니다. Jeoneun seumurilgop sarimnida. "I am twenty seven years old."	아들이 몇 살이에요? adeureun myeot sarieyo? "How old is your son?"

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces the most basic way to ask someone their age. As this is quite an important aspect of Korean culture, it will prove to be an invaluable question to remember. Also, we go over the numbers in order to tell someone your age.

Grammar Point #1 - How Old Are You? - 몇 살이에요?

The question 몇 살이에요? (myeot sal-ieyo?), is the most basic and common way to ask someone their age. This question is in the standard politeness level. It is neither overly polite, nor impolite. It is a generally polite question.

♣ More Examples ♣

The following are a few different ways to ask someone their age, and the different nuances.

1. 몇 살이세요?
(myeot sal-iseyo)
A bit more polite than the first phrase, 몇 살이에요? (myeot sal-ieyo).
Standard Politeness Level, with honorific infix 시 (si)

2. 몇 살입니까?
(myeot sal-imnikka)
Very polite and very formal. Used in formal situations.
Formal Politeness Level.

3. 나이가 어떻게 되세요?
(nai-ga eotteoke doeseyo?)
Literally: age, how, be.
This question asks how many years one has. - Polite

4. 연세가 어떻게 되세요?
(yeonse-ga eotteoke doeseyo?)
Same as [question #3], however, this is an extremely respectful question, usually reserved for those who deserve the most respect and for those who are advanced in years - extremely polite question.

Grammar Point #2 - Counting (Part II)

The Native Korean numbers have distinct words for numbers in the tens' place.

10 is 열 (yeol) 20 is 스물 (seumul) 30 is 서른 (seoreun) 40 is 마흔 (maheun)

To construct the numbers in between these numbers, simply say the number in the tens' place, (i.e. 10, 20, 30), and then the number in the ones' place.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
21 = 20 + 1 = 스물 + 하나 = 스물하나
25 = 20 + 5 = 스물 + 다섯 = 스물다섯
37 = 30 + 7 = 서른 + 일곱 = 서른일곱
42 = 40 +2 = 마흔 + 둘 = 마흔둘

For numbers past 40, Korean speakers typically switch from the native-Korean numbers to the Sino-Korean numbers. The Sino-Korean numbers will be introduced in the next lesson.

Reciting Age

When reciting age, the counter, 살 (sal) is attached to the end of a number. This counter means "years of age." And when a counter is attached to the end of these numbers (the Native Korean numbers), numbers 1 through 4 change slightly in pronunciation.

하나 (hana)
하나 (hana) changes to 한 (han) when something is attached to the number.

둘 (dul)
둘 (dul) changes to 두 (du) when something is attached to the number.

셋 (set)
셋 (set) change to 세 (se) when something is attached to the number.

넷 (net)
넷 (net) changes to 네 (ne) when something is attached to the number.

♣ More Examples ♣

-한 살 (han sal) - 1 year of age.

-두 살 (du sal) - 2 years of age.

-세 살 (se sal) - 3 years of age

This rule also applies to numbers that end in the numbers 1 through 4 (i.e. 11, 12, 13, 14, 21, 22, 23, 24, 31, etc.) and all counters, not just the counter for age 살 (sal).

-열한 살 (yeolhan sal) - 11 years of age.

-열두 명 (yeoldu myeong) - 12 people.

-스물세 살 (seumulse sal) - 23 years of age.

-서른네 장 (seoreunne jang) - 34 sheets of paper.

To recite age, one can say: 저는 (#) 살입니다. (jeo-neun # sal-imnida.)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Koreans have an unique age system, which was introduced in [Korean Culture Class #4 - Age]; however, Koreans also use the standard international age system too. The international age is often used for official purposes, and the word 만 (man) comes right before the 'international' age. Therefore when the age of a sports player is shown on TV next to his or her name, it's the international age. From this, the word '방송용 나이' (bangsongyong nai) comes into play, which means 'the age for TV broadcasting.' Many Korean people say "I mean your real age, not your 방송용 나이' (bangsongyong nai)" as a joke.

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces the method in which one can construct dates. To do this, the Chinese character-based Korean numbers must be used.

Grammar Point #1 - Chinese character-based Numbers - 일, 이, 삼, 사

Korean has two sets of numbers. The Chinese character-based Korean number system is a number system which is derived from Chinese. These numbers are typically used for reciting phone numbers, time (minutes), months, years, counting money, and a number of other things. With the numbers one through ten, one can count till 99. But in the context of this lesson, only the numbers one through ten will be necessary to construct dates.

일 (il) - 1
이 (i) - 2
삼 (sam) - 3
사 (sa) - 4
오 (o) - 5
육 (yuk) - 6
칠 (chil) - 7
팔 (pal) - 8
구 (gu) - 9
십 (sip) - 10 십일 (sibil) - 11 십이 (sibi) - 12

▷ Construction

The number 11 is formed by saying the number 10 and then saying the number 1.
10 - 십 (sip)
1 - 일 (il)
10 + 1 = 11
sip + il = sip-il

The number 12 is formed by saying the number 10 and then saying the number 2.
10 - 십 (sip)
2 - 이 (i)
10 + 2 = 12
sip + i = sip-i

The number 20 is formed by saying the number 2 and then saying the number 10.
2 - 이 (i)
10 - 십 (sip)
2 x 10 = 20
i x sip = i-sip

The number 24 is formed by saying the number 2, then 10, then 4.
2 - 이 (i)
10 - 십 (sip)
4 - 사 (sa)
2 x 10 + 4 = 24
i x sip + sa = i-sip-sa

The number 31 is formed by saying the number 3, then 10, then 1.
3 - 삼 (sam)
10 - 십 (sip)
1 - 일 (il)
3 x 10 + 1 = 31
sam x sip + il = sam-sip-il

Months - Months of the year are constructed by using the number of the month (January - 1, February - 2, March - 3), using the Sino-Korean numbers. After the number, it is immediately followed by 월 (wol, month).

1월 (ilwol) - January
2월 (iwol) - February
3월 (samwol) - March
4월 (sawol) - April
5월 (owol) May
6월 (yuwol) - June
7월 (chilwol) - July
8월 (palwol) - August
9월 (guwol) - September
10월 (siwol) - October
11월 (sibilwol) - November
12월 (sibiwol) - December

Note: The months June and October have different pronunciations as what their respective numbers 6, 육 (yuk), and 10, 십 (sip), may suggest. 6월 should be pronounced as 유월 (yuwol) not 육월 (yukwol). 10월 should be pronounced as 시월 (si-wol) not 십월 (sip-wol).

Dates - Dates of the year are constructed in the same exact manner as months are. Using the Sino-Korean number for the date, the number is then immediately following with the word 일 (il, day).

1일 (ilil) - 1st
3일 (samil) - 3rd
7일 (chilil) - 7th
14일 (sibsail) - 14th
29일 (isibguil) - 29th
31일 (samsibilil) - 31st

♣ More Examples ♣

Here are a few example dates in Korean:

January 1st - 1월 1일 (ilwol ilil)
September 23rd - 9월 23일 (guwol isipsamil)
October 19th - 10월 19일 (siwol sipguil)
April 30th - 4월 30일 (sawol samsipil)
December 24th - 12월 24일 (sibiwol isipsail)

☞ remember ☜

The three things that one needs to say any date in Korean: the Chinese character-based Korean numbers (1-31), and the words 월 (wol, month) and 일 (il, day).

Phrase #1 - What's Today's Date? - 며칠이에요?

The phrase 며칠이에요? (myeochil-ieyo?) is used to ask the date. It is spelled 며칠이에요? (myeo-chil-ieyo?) but is commonly misspelled as 몇일이에요? (myeoch-il-ieyo?)

♣ More Examples ♣

오늘 며칠이에요? (oneul myeochil-ieyo?) - What date is it today?
내일 며칠이에요? (naeil myeochil-ieyo?) - What date it it tomorrow?
결혼식이 며칠이에요? (gyeolhonsik-i myeochil-ieyo?) - What date is the wedding?

Phrase #2 - When is Your Birthday? - 생일이 언제예요?

The phrase 생일이 언제예요? (saengil-i eonje-yeoyo?) is used to ask someone when their birthday is. As the subject of the sentence is not included, it is usually inferred from context. If one wanted to be more specific, the name of the person could simply be added onto the front of the phrase.

♣ More Examples ♣

류지 생일이 언제예요? (ryuji saengil-i eonje-yeyo?) - 'When is Ryuji's birthday?' or 'When is your birthday Ryuji?'
마유미 생일이 언제예요? (mayumi saengil-i eonje-yeyo?) - 'When is Mayumi's birthday?' or 'When is your birthday Mayumi?'

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
분	bun	minute	noun
시	si	hour	noun
님	nim	sir, ma'am (honorific suffix)

SAMPLE SENTENCES

1 분만요. il bunmannyo. "Give me a minute, please."	1분 후에 됩니다 il bun huae dwaebnida. "It will be done in one minute."
1시에 오세요. han sie oseyo. "Please come at one o'clock."	형사님... 저는 배고파요. "Detective... I'm hungry."

GRAMMAR

This lesson's grammar point focuses on telling time. When discussing the hour, the Native-Korean system is used while the Chinese character-based Korean system is used to tell the minutes.

Grammar Point #1 - Chinese character-based Korean Numbers

---

1 하나 (한) - hana (han)
2 둘 (두) - dul (du)
3 셋 (세) - set (se)
4 넷 (네) - net (ne)
5 다섯 - daseot
6 여섯 - yeoseot
7 일곱 - ilgob
8 여덟 - yeodeol
9 아홉 - ahob
10 열 - yeol
11 열하나 (열한) - yeolhana (yeolhan)
12 열둘 (열두) - yeoldul (yeoldu)

To state an hour, simply state the hour with a Native-Korean number and add the counter 시 (si).

Korean	Romanization	English
한 시	han si	1 o’clock
두 시	du si	2 o’clock
세 시	se si	3 o’clock
네 시	ne si	4 o’clock
다섯 시	daseot si	5 o’clock
여섯 시	yeoseot si	6 o’clock
일곱 시	ilgob si	7 o’clock
여덟 시	yeodeol si	8 o’clock
아홉 시	ahob si	9 o’clock
열 시	yeol si	10 o’clock
열한 시	yeolhan si	11 o’clock
열두 시	yeoldu si	12 o’clock

Note: Numbers one through four change slightly in pronunciation when a counter, such as 시 (si - hour), follows. Please refer to the following chart.

Typical Pronunciation	Pronunciation Change	Number with 시 (si)
하나 (hana)	한 (han)	한 시 (han si)
둘 (dul)	두 (du)	두 시 (du si)
셋(set)	세(se)	세 시 (se si)
넷(net)	네(ne)	네 시 (ne si)

To express minutes, state the minute using a Sino-Korean number and add the counter 분 (bun), which means minute.

Korean	Romanization	English
오 분	o bun	5 minutes
십 분	sip bun	10 minutes
십오 분	sibo bun	15 minutes
이십 분	isip bun	20 minutes
이십오 분	isibo bun	25 minutes
삼십 분	samsip bun	30 minutes
삼십오 분	samsibo bun	35 minutes
사십 분	sasip bun	40 minutes
사십오 분	sasibo bun	45 minutes
오십 분	osip bun	50 minutes
오십오 분	osibo bun	55 minutes

For 1:15, the construction is 한 시 십오 분 (han si sibo bun), literally "1 o'clock, 15 minutes." Please see the following examples.

♣ More Examples ♣

1:00 - 한 시 (han si)
8:00 - 여덟 시 (yeodeolp si)
3:10 - 세 시 십 분 (se si sip bun) - note the pronunciation change for 3
7:15 - 일곱 시 십오 분 (ilgop si sipo bun)
5:30 - 다섯 시 삼십 분 (daseot si samsip bun)
9:45 - 아홉 시 사십오 분 (ahop si sasipo bun)
12:57 - 열두 시 오십칠 분 (yeoldu si osipchil bun)

▷ In This Dialog
---
(2)형사: 지금은... 열두 시 오 분.
(2)Hyeongsa: jigeum-eun... yeoldu-si o-bun
(2)Detective: It's... 12:05 now.

(4)형사: 열두 시 십 분.
(4)Hyeongsa: yeoldu-si sip-bun
(4)Detective: 12:10.

(6)형사: 열두 시 십삼 분!
(6)Hyeongsa: yeoldu-si sipsam-bun!
(6)Detective: 12:13!

☞ remember ☜

The Native Korean numbers are used for the hour, the sino-Korean numbers are used for the minutes.

Grammar Point #2 - How About...? -는요?

When asking questions, one can bring about a new topic of conversation by using [noun] + [-은/는요?] (-eun/neunyo?). The question asked prior is applied to this new -은/는요 (-eun/neunyo) question, and is translated as "How about...?" When using this as a question, this implies that the speaker expects the listener to know what the question is.

▷ Construction

-은요? (-eunyo?) is applied to nouns that end in consonants.
-는요? (-neunyo?) is applied to nouns that end in vowels.

[noun] + -은/는요? (-eun/neunyo?) - "How about [noun]?"
버스는요? (beoseu-neunyo?) - "How about the bus?"
사장님은요? (sajangnim-eunyo?) - "How about the boss?"

-은/는 (-eun/neun) is the topic marking particle. And -요 (-yo) is used as a politeness particle.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(5)류지: 지금은요?
(5)Ryuji: jigeum-eunyo?
(5)Ryuji: How about now?

Phrase #1 - What Time Is It? - 몇 시예요?

몇 시예요? (myeot si-yeyo?) is the phrase used to ask for the time. This can be broken down as: 몇 (myeot) - how many, 시 (si) - hour, 예요 (yeyo) - is (standard politeness level). This is translated as "What time is it?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Politeness Levels:
1.몇 시입니까? (myeot si-imnikka?) - Formal Politeness Level
2.몇 시예요? (myeot si-yeyo?) - Standard Politeness Level
3.몇 시야? (myeot si-ya?) - Intimate Politeness Level

일요일마다 집을 청소해요. iryoilmada jibeul cheongsohaeyo. "I clean my house every Sunday."	저도 알아요. jeo-do arayo. "I know that, too."
이번 목요일은 내 인생에서 가장 중요한 날이 될 것이다. ibeon mogyoireun nae insaengeseo gajang jungyohan nari doel geosida. "This Thursday will be the most important day of my life."	목요일에 뭐 해요? mogyoire mwo haeyo? "What are you doing this Thursday?"

GRAMMAR

This lesson covers how to say the days of the week, and the use of -요 (-yo), the politeness particle.

Grammar Point #1 - The Days of the Week - -요일

All the names for the days of the week end in -요일 (-yoil) which is attached to 월 (wol - Monday), 화 (hwa - Tuesday), 수 (su - Wednesday), 목 (mok - Thursday), 금 (geum - Friday), 토 (to - Saturday) and 일 (il - Sunday).

The following is a list of the days from Sunday to Saturday.

일요일 (ilyoil) - Sunday
월요일 (wolyoil) - Monday
화요일 (hwayoil) - Tuesday
수요일 (suyoil) - Wednesday
목요일 (mokyoil) - Thursday
금요일 (geumyoil) - Friday
토요일 (toyoil) - Saturday

♣ More Examples ♣

Often, in colloquial situations, when two or more days are referred to at the same time, 요일 (yoil) is dropped and only the first syllable of the day is said.

1. 월수금 (wolsugeum) = Monday, Wednesday and Friday
2. 월목금 (wolmokgeum) = Monday, Thursday and Friday
3. 월-금 (wol-geum) = Monday through Friday

Grammar Point #2 - Politeness Particle -요

-요 (-yo) is sometimes used as a politeness particle. Generally speaking, if -요 (-yo) is left out, it becomes the intimate politeness level (sometimes known as the casual politeness level). You can add -요 (-yo) onto many things, including nouns, verbs conjugated into the intimate politeness level, a number of grammatical structures, as well as many other parts of speech.

When -요 (-yo) is added, as its title suggests, it makes the word or sentence polite. This is in the standard politeness level.

This is used to show to the listeners that you respect them. Typically this politeness particle is used in everyday speech, without active knowledge of it. Also, sometimes with active effort to be polite, it is added on at the end.

▷ Construction

-요 (-yo) is added onto the end of nouns, intimate level verb conjugations and other grammatical structures. It attaches onto words that end in vowels.

-이요 (-iyo) is used in the same manner and is used to attach onto words that end in consonants.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(2)류지: 일요일이요. (2)Ryuji: iryoil-iyo. (2)Ryuji: Sunday. In this sentence -이요 (-iyo) is attached to the end of the word 일요일 (iryoil), a noun that ends in a consonant.

♣ More Examples ♣

밥 먹어. (bap meokeo) - I'm eating.
밥 먹어요. (bap meokeoyo) - I'm eating. (standard-polite)

졸려. (jollyeo) - I'm sleepy.
졸려요. (jollyeoyo) - I'm sleepy. (standard-polite)

☞ remember ☜

Note: In Korean, many sentences can either be a statement or a question depending on the change of intonation toward the ending. If the last part of the sentence is elevated, the sentence becomes a question.

밥 먹어요. (bap meogeoyo.) - I'm eating.
밥 먹어요? (bap meogeoyo?) - Are you eating?

졸려요. (jollyeoyo) - I'm sleepy.
졸려요? (jollyeoyo?) - Are you sleepy?

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Stating the Existence or Possession of Something- 있다

The sentence structure used to express the existence and also the possession of something is as follows:

“Noun1 있어요.”
"Noun1 isseoyo."
“Noun 1 exists.”
This is translated as "Noun1 is (in terms of existence)."

♣ More Examples ♣

“돈이 있어요.”
“don-i isseoyo.”
“Money exists.”
This is translated as "Money exists (for me)" or "I have money."

▷ In This Dialog
---
(1)형사: 음... 생일 선물이 있어. (eum... saengil seonmul-i isseo.) I have a birthday present.
(7)형사: ...너 돈 있어? (...neo don isseo?) Do you have money?

☞ remember ☜

Here are a few conjugations of 있다 (itda):

있습니다 (isseumnida) - Formal Present Tense
있어요 (isseoyo) - Standard Present Tense
있어 (isseo) - Intimate Present Tense

Grammar Point #2 - What is it? - 뭐예요?

뭐예요? (mwo-yeyo?) literally means "what, is." 뭐 (mwo) means "what" and 예요 (yeyo) means "is." When used simply as 뭐예요? (mwo-yeyo?) the listener is expected to guess from context what the speaker is referring to.

▷ Construction

To be more specific, one can add a noun in front.

이름 뭐예요?
ireum mwo-yeyo?
(Literally: name, what, is)
What is your name?
(the subject marking particle is typically used, but can be dropped)

이거 뭐예요?
igeo mwo-yeoyo?
(Literally: this, what, is)
What is this?

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Chinese Character-Based Korean Numbers

Korean has two sets of numbers. The Sino-Korean number system is a number system which is derived from Chinese. These numbers are typically used for reciting phone numbers, time (minutes), months, years, counting money, and a number of other things. With the numbers one through ten, one can count till 99.

일 (il) - 1
이 (i) - 2
삼 (sam) - 3
사 (sa) - 4
오 (o) - 5
육 (yuk) - 6
칠 (chil) - 7
팔 (pal) - 8
구 (gu) - 9
십 (sip) - 10
백 (baek) - 100
천 (cheon) - 1,000
만 (man) - 10,000
억 (eok) - 100,000,000

With the numbers one through ten, one can count till 99.

▷ Construction

The number 11 is formed by saying the number 10 and then saying the number 1.
10 - 십 (sip)
1 - 일 (il)
10 + 1 = 11
sip + il = sip-il

The number 12 is formed by saying the number 10 and then saying the number 2.
10 - 십 (sip)
2 - 이 (i)
10 + 2 = 12
sip + i = sip-i

The number 20 is formed by saying the number 2 and then saying the number 10.
2 - 이 (i)
10 - 십 (sip)
2 x 10 = 20
i x sip = i-sip

The number 24 is formed by saying the number 2, then 10, then 4.
2 - 이 (i)
10 - 십 (sip)
4 - 사 (sa)
2 x 10 + 4 = 24
i x sip + sa = i-sip-sa

For 100, the word 백 (baek) is used.

The number 200 is formed by saying the number 2, then 100.
2 - 이 (i)
100 - 백 (baek)
2 x 100 = 200
i x baek = i-baek

The number 349 is formed by saying the number 3, then 100, then 4, then 10, then 9.
3- 삼 (sam)
100 - 백 (baek)
4 - 사 (sa)
10 - 십 (sip)
9 - 구 (gu)
(3x100) + (4x10) + 9 = 349
(sam x baek) + (sa x sip) + gu = sam-baek-sa-sip-gu

For 1000, the word 천 (cheon) is used.

The number 3257 is formed by saying the number 3, then 1000, then 2, then 100, then 5, then 10, then 7.
3 - 삼 (sam)
1000 - 천 (cheon)
2 - 이 (i)
100 - 백 (baek)
5 - 오 (o)
10 - 십 (sip)
7 - 칠 (chil)
(3x1000) + (2x100) + (5x10) + 7 = 3257
(sam x cheon) + (i x baek) + (o x sip) + chil = sam-cheon-i-baek-o-sip-chil

The number 43,120 is formed by saying the number 4, then 10,000 then 3, then 1,000, then 100, then 2, then 10.
4 - 사 (sa)
10,000 - 만 (man)
3 - 삼 (sam)
1,000 - 천 (cheon)
100 - 백 (baek)
2 - 이 (i)
10 - 십 (sip)
(4x10,000) + (3x1000) + 100 + (2x10) = 43,120.
(sa x man) + (sam x cheon) + (baek) + (i x sip) = sa-man-sam-cheon-baek-i-sip

CULTURAL INSIGHT

1,000won (1,000원) is approximately $1 American. The denomination of bills for Won are as follows: 10,000원 (만원 - manwon), 5,000원 (오천원 - ocheonwon), 1000원 (천원 - cheonwon). Coins come in denominations of 500원 (오백원 - obaekwon), 100원 (백원 - baekwon), 10원 (십원 - sipwon). There are also 100,000원 (십만원 -simmanwon) checks issued by banks. Although they are checks, they are accepted almost everywhere as cash.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Titles - 아저씨, 아줌마, 학생

In Korea many people do not refer to each other by names but rather by titles. This applies to siblings, cousins, friends, professors, and even strangers. Strangers have titles according to the age they seem. And this can create some difficulties because of the fact that age must be guessed.

아저씨 (ajeossi) - This title is used for older men approximately in their 30's and above, usually married. There is no exact age when one is regarded as 아저씨 (ajeossi), but it generally means that the person is not considered young any more. This phrase is neither considered rude, nor impolite yet could depending on how to call.

아줌마 (ajumma) - This title is used for older women approximately in their mid 30's and above, married. Again, there is no exact age when one is regarded as 아줌마 (ajumma), but it is used when the person is not considered young anymore. Because of this, it can also be taken as an insult by women who wants to consider themselves as young. This phrase is neither considered rude, nor impolite, but is something that women do not desire to be called.

학생 (haksaeng) - This word means 'student.' This word is used for young people who are (or seem to be) in high school or college. This is a general term for young people, both male and female of this age, and it is not considered rude, nor impolite.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

It is prudent to use caution when calling a woman 아줌마 (ajumma). Most Korean women fear the day the will be regarded as 아줌마 (ajumma). The title implies that they are no longer young and sometimes it refers to someone who is cheeky or discourteous by metaphor who is married with kids.

GRAMMAR

Phrase Focus #1 - Please Give Me - 주세요

The phrase 주세요 (juseyo) comes from the verb 주다 (juda) - to give, and is conjugated in the standard politeness level. It's used when asking someone for something or when requesting something from someone, and is used quite frequently in business establishments, especially in restaurants. It is polite and can be used towards strangers.

To utilize this phrase, have the desired object (typically a noun) in front of the phrase 주세요 (juseyo) - please give me.

▷ Construction

Noun + 주세요
Noun + juseyo
Please give me (noun)

1.물 주세요. (mul juseyo.) - Please give me water.
2.밥 주세요. (bap juseyo.) - Please give me food.
3.칼 주세요. (kal juseyo.) - Please give me a knife.

♣ More Examples ♣

▷ 돈 주세요. (don juseyo.) - Please give me money.
▷ 한 시간 주세요. (han sigan juseyo.) - Please give me one hour.
▷ 먹을 거 주세요. (meogeul geo juseyo.) - Please give me something to eat.

☞ remember ☜

This can be used in Korea when in a restaurant and ordering items. It can also be used generally in business establishments throughout Korea.

Vocabulary Focus #2 - Speech Softener - 좀

좀 (jom) is an abbreviated form of the word 조금 (jogeum). These both literally mean "a little" or "a bit." However, 좀 (jom) is often used as a speech softener when asking someone to do something. Indirectness is often paralleled with politeness, and 좀 (jom) is often used in conjunction with the sentence ending -주다 (-juda), which is used for requests (see Phrase Focus #1).

▷ In This Dialog
---
(2)류지: 아줌마… 물 좀 주세요… (2)ryuji: ajumma... mul jom juseyo... (2)Ryuji: Oh ma'am... Please give me some water...

(4)류지: 네… 아줌마… 밥 좀 주세요… (4)ryuji: ne... ajumma... bap jom juseyo... (4)Ryuji: Yes... Ma'am... Please give me some food.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 물 좀 주세요.
Mul jom juseyo.
Please give me water.

--> In this context, 좀 (jom) doesn't literally mean "a little," but is used as a speech softener to be more polite. (see line 2 of dialog)

2. 저 좀 도와 주세요.
Jeo jom dowa juseyo.
Please help me.

--> 좀 (jom) softens the speech and makes a request politer than just saying 저 도와 주세요 (jeo dowa juseyo) which can sound very direct, and not as polite.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

It would not be strange for a Korean to take a stranger into one's house and accommodate them as if they were part of one's family. Almost always, money or compensation is not expected. Strangers try to help those in need, for nothing in return. This is can be categorized under the umbrella term 정 (jeong), which can be generally translated as a combination of "attachment, love, affection, sympathy, compassion, etc."

GRAMMAR

This conversation focuses on locational words and phrases used in situations to ask for and receive directions.

Vocabulary Focus #1 - Location Words - 앞, 뒤, 오른쪽, 왼쪽, 옆

앞, 뒤, 오른쪽, 왼쪽, 옆 (ap, dwi, oreunjjok, oenjjok, yeop) are all words used in situations when giving and receiving directions. These are typically used with the locational particle 에 (e), and the verb of existence 있다 (itda). The location particle is suffixed to the location word, and the verb 있다 (itda) typically follows.

▷ Construction

Directional word + locational particle + Verb of existence

(Directional word)에 있어요.
(Directional word)-e isseoyo.
It's (directional word)

♣ More Examples ♣

1.앞에 있어요. (ap-e isseoyo.)
(It)'s in front.

2.뒤에 있어요. (dwi-e isseoyo.)
(It)'s behind.

3.오른쪽에 있어요. (oreunjjok-e isseoyo.)
(It)'s to the right.

4.왼쪽에 있어요. (oenjjok-e isseoyo.)
(It)'s to the left.

5.옆에 있어요. (yeop-e isseoyo.)
(It)'s to the side./(It)'s next to (it).

☞ remember ☜

For all these, the intimate politeness level would use the verb of existence in this form: 있어 (isseo).

Phrase Focus #1 - Where is it? - 어디예요?

어디예요? (eodi-yeyo?) is a phrase used to ask where something is. The literal translation of this phrase is 어디 (eodi) - where, 예요(yeyo) - is. This phrase can be translated as "Where is (it)?"

어디예요?
Eodi-yeyo?
Where is (it)?

▷ Construction

To be more specific, a specific noun can be placed in front of the entire phrase.

(편의점이) 어디예요?
(Pyeonuijeom-i) eodi-yeyo?
Where is (the convenience store)?

☞ remember ☜

Note: When placing a specific noun in front of the phrase, that noun typically takes the subject marking particle 이/가 (i/ga). But that particle is often dropped in speech. If it is dropped, the phrase is equally intelligible.

Grammar Point #1 - Location Particle - 에

Stationary Action: The particle -에 (-e) can be used to indicate that a stationary action is taking place at a certain location. Inactive verbs are used to show these stationary actions [i.e. 있다 (itda) - to exist, 없다 (eoptda) - to not exist, 살다 (salda) - to live, 많다 (manta) - to be many]. Depending on the verb used, -에 (-e) can be translated as "in" or "at."

Static Location: The particle -에 (-e) is attached to a noun and then followed by an inactive verb. In the case of this conversation, the verb of existence, 있다 (itda) is attached directly to the location word..

GRAMMAR

Vocabulary Focus #1 - It Can't Be - 안 돼

This phrase comes from the verb 되다 (doeda) 'to become.' When it is negated using the negative adverb 안 (an), it is used in dire situations, or in times of despair. 안 돼 (an dwae) is literally translated as "it cannot become," but is used as "it cannot be," "it shouldn't be" when referring to a situation.

▷ Construction

The following is the phrase in different politeness levels:

안 되다. (an doeda.) - dictionary form 안 됩니다. (an doemnida.) - Formal politeness level 안 돼요. (an dwae yo.) - Standard politeness level 안 돼. (an dwae.) - Intimate politeness level.

These all mean "No, you can't." "I can't." "It's impossible." "It can't be."

▷ In This Dialog

---

(8)형사: 안 돼! 안 돼!
(8)Hyeongsa: an dwae! an dwae!
(8)Detective: No! No!

-> Here the detective uses the phrase because he is afraid of Ryuji and his knife.

Vocabulary Focus #2 - Because of... - 때문에

때문에 (ttaemune) is a grammatical structure which provides reason for something. It is attached to nouns. It can be used in situations where a question is asked.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(2)형사: 어??? 아니... 너 웬일이야?
(3)류지: 돈 때문에… 내 돈 주세요.
(2)Hyeongsa: Eo? Ani..neo weniriya?
(3)Ryuji: don ttaemune...
(2)Detective: Huh? Wait... Why are you here?
(3)Ryuji: Because of my money.

-> Here Ryuji uses the grammatical structure 때문에 (ttaemune) to provide a reason for why he came.

♣ More Examples ♣

A: 왜 바빠요? - (wae bappayo?) - Why are you busy?
B: 학교 때문에. - (hakgyo ttaemune.) - Because of school.

Vocabulary Focus #3 - Wait - 잠깐, 아니

Both 잠깐 (jamkkan) and 아니 (ani) mean "wait;" however, they still hold two different meanings.

잠깐 (jamkkan) literally means "a moment," "a bit of time" and is used when asking someone to wait for them. It is also heard as 잠깐만 (jamkkanman), which possess the same exact meaning.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(6)형사: 아! 잠깐! 알았어, 알았어.
(6)Hyeongsa: a! jamkkan! arasseo, arasseo.
(6)Detective: Oh, wait! Alright, alright.

->Here the detective uses 잠깐 (jamkkan) to ask Ryuji for some time.

▷ Construction

The following is the phrase in different politeness levels:
잠깐만요 (jamkkanmanyo) - standard politeness level
잠깐(만) - jamkkan(man) - intimate politeness level

☞ remember ☜

아니 (ani) literally means "no," but is used when someone is surprised or caught off-guard, and wants to gather their thoughts.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(2)형사: 어??? 아니... 너 웬일이야?
(2)Hyeongsa: Eo? Ani..neo weniriya?
(2)Detective: Huh? Wait... Why are you here?

->In this situation, the detective uses 아니 (ani) to ask for time and gather his thoughts.

Vocabulary Focus #4 - I Got it - 알았어

알았어 (arasseo) comes from the verb 알다 (alda) - to know. It is in the past tense, and is literally translated as "knew," or "understood." It is used quite frequently to express agreement to something, acknowledgment of a request, and concession to a person's will, among many other situations. In these contexts, this phrase can be translated as "got it," "understood," "ok," "alright," etc.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(6)형사: 아! 잠깐! 알았어, 알았어.
(6)Hyeongsa: a! jamkkan! arasseo, arasseo.
(6)Detective: Oh, wait! Alright, alright.

->알았어 (arasseo) is used here because the detective is conceding to Ryuji's request to give him money.

저는 부모님과 같이 살고 있습니다. Jeoneun bumonimgwa gachi salgo itseumnida. "I'm living with my parents."

GRAMMAR

Surprise Them!
짜잔!
"Tada!"

짜잔 (jjajan) is a very common exclamation we use when showing something, usually between friends. We use it to surprise the other party with something unexpected. We can also use it when presenting something that may surprise the other party. We can use 짠 (jjan) or 짜자자잔 (jjajajan) to mean the same thing.

In Today's Dialogue

짜잔!! 피자!
(jjajan!! pija!)
"Tada! Pizza!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"	Explanation
짜잔! 햄버거 먹자!	jjajan! hambeogeo meokja!	"Tada! Let's eat hamburgers!"	showing a takeout box of hamburgers to friends
짜잔! 이거 봐!	jjajan! igeo bwa!	Tada! Look at this!	showing a new wrist watch or something unexpected to a friend
짜잔! 나 프로포즈 받았다!	jjajan! na peuropojeu badatda!	Tada! I got proposed to!	showing a ring on the fourth finger

Show Surprise or Excitement 우와!!
"Wow! "

We use 우와 (uwa) to show surprise or excitement.

In Today's Dialogue

우와!! 진짜? 나도 피자 좋아해!
(uwa!! jinjja? na-do pija johahae!)
"Wow!! Really? I like pizza too!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
우와! 진짜 프로포즈 받았어?	uwa! jinjja peuropojeu badasseo?	"Wow, you really got proposed?"
우와! 멋있어!	uwa! meosisseo!	"Wow, you look cool!"
우와! 싸다!	uwa! ssada!	"Wow, it's cheap!"

Also, Too - 도

나도 피자 좋아해!
"I like pizza, too."

We use the particle -도 (-do) to express that a statement that has already been expressed holds true for another noun. If a statement is issued, and that statement holds true for another person or thing, we use the particle -도 (-do). We attach this particle directly to the noun it is modifying. This correlates to the English words "too" and "also."

In Today's Dialogue

나도 피자 좋아해!
(na-do pija johahae!)
"I like pizza, too!"

Notice: The particle -도 (-do) is attached to the noun 나 (na) because the speaker believes the other person likes pizza. And because that holds true for the speaker, the particle is attached to 나 (na), or "I" in English.

너도?
(neo-do?)
"You, too?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	"English"
나도!	"Me, too!"
한국어도!	"Korean, too!"
한국어도 공부해요.	"I also study Korean."
이것? 이것도? 저것도?	"This? This one, too? That one, too?"

Confirm What They Say
진짜? 정말?
"Really?"

진짜 (jinjja) means "really," and we can always replace it with 정말 (jeongmal). While both genders use진짜 (jinjja) and 정말 (jeongmal) very frequently, 진짜 (jinjja) is often considered more feminine. Both words have exactly the same meaning, "really." We can generally translate both of these directly into English.

In Today's Dialogue

우와!! 진짜? 나도 피자 좋아해!
(uwa!! jinjja? na-do pija johahae!)
"Wow! Really? I like pizza, too!"

정말?
(jeongmal?)
"Really?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	"English"
진짜 맛있어요!	"It's really delicious!"
진짜 추워요!	"It's really cold!"
진짜 비싸요!	"It's really expensive!"

담배 언제 끊었어? dambae eonje kkeuneosseo? "When did you quit smoking?"

GRAMMAR

Asking When Something Will Happen
언제 (eonje)
"When?"

언제 (eonje) has the same meaning as the English word "when." We use it in Korean just as frequently as in English.

In Today's Dialogue

언제? (eonje?)
"When?"

언제 (eonje) can stand alone to make a question, but it can also combine with other words to form a more detailed question. Look at the examples below.

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
언제 공부 해?	eonje gongbu hae?	"When do you study?"
언제 일어나?	eonje ireona?	"When do you get up?"
언제 와?	eonje wa?	"When do you come?"
언제 가?	eonje ga?	"When do you go?"

So/Therefore 그러니까 (geureonikka)
"That's what I'm saying."

그러니까 (geureonikka) literally means "so" or "therefore," but in colloquial situations, we use 그러니까 (geureonikka) more often to mean "that's what I'm saying" or "I told you."

In Today's Dialogue

그러니까, 언제? (geureonikka, eonje?)
"That's what I'm saying. When?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
그러니까, 공부 해.	geureonikka, gongbu hae.	"That's what I'm saying. Do some studying!"
그러니까, 괜찮아.	geureonikka, gwenchanha.	"I'm telling you, it's okay."
그러니까, 일어나.	geureonikka, ireona.	"So get up!" / "That's why you should get up."
그러니까, 가자.	geureonikka, gaja.	"For that reason, let's go." / "That's why we should go."

GRAMMAR

The Korean Verb있어요 (isseoyo) "I have" 시간 없어요!
"I don't have time!"

있어요 means "to have" or "to exist," and it's the standard politeness level of the verb 있다.

In Today's Dialogue

시간 있어요? "Do you have time?"
남자친구 있어요? "Do you have a boyfriend?"
있어요! "I have (a boyfriend)."
여동생 있어요? "Do you have a sister?"

♣ More Examples ♣

있어요. "I have it."
있어요? "Do you have it?"
뭐 있어요? "What do you have?" / "What is there?"

없어요 means "to not have" or "to not exist" and it's the standard politeness level of the verb 없다. We can make 있어요 or 없어요 into a question simply by raising the intonation at the end.

In Today's Dialogue

시간 없어요! "I don't have time!"

♣ More Examples ♣

- 없어요. "I don't have it."
- 없어요? "Don't you have it?"
- 아직도 없어요? "You still don't have it?"

GRAMMAR

Two Very Important Korean Expressions
(-은/는) 어때요? and -만
"How about..." and "Only"

Let's have a look at two very important Korean phrases that will help you make suggestions and limit the characteristics you are talking about.

Making Suggestions: (-은/는) 어때요 (-eun/neun eottaeyo?) 케이크는 어때요?
"How about some cake?"

We use 어때요? (eottaeyo?) to express suggestion or proposal, and it is usually preceded by the subject that is being suggested or proposed.

Construction

Subject + -은/는 + 어때요?
Subject + -eun/neun + eottaeyo?

Note: The distinction between 은 and 는 as the subject marking particle is solely based on the easiness of pronunciation. When the word for the subject ends in a consonant, we attach -은, and when the word ends in a vowel, -는 is attached.

♣ Examples: ♣

1. 사과 (sagwa) "apple" ends in a vowel, so it becomes:
   A. 사과는 어때요? (sagwa-neun eottaeyo?) "How about some apples?"
2. 떡 (tteok) "rice cake" ends in a consonant, so it becomes:
   A. 떡은 어때요? (tteok-eun eottaeyo?) "How about some rice cake?"

In Today's Dialogue

Both 케이크 (keikeu) and 샌드위치 (saendeuwichi) end in a vowel, so they are both followed by -는:

A: 네. 있어요. 케이크는 어때요?
A: ne. isseoyo. keikeu-neun eottaeyo?
A: "Yes, we do. How about some cake?"

A: 샌드위치는 어때요?
A: saendeuwichi-neun eottaeyo?
A: "How about some sandwiches?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
감자는 어때요?	gamja-neun eottaeyo?	"How about some potatoes?"
라면은 어때요?	ramyeon-eun eottaeyo?	"How about some noodles?"
일요일은 어때요?	iryoil-eun eottaeyo?	"How about Sunday?"

☞ Remember ☜
We often drop the topic marking particle (은/는) in colloquial situations. When dropped, these carry the same meaning.

Korean	Romanized	"English"
감자 어때요?	gamja eottaeyo?	"How about some potatoes?"
라면 어때요?	ramyeon eottaeyo?	"How about some noodles?"
일요일 어때요?	iryoil eottaeyo?	"How about Sunday?"

Limit the Characteristics: 만 (man) 녹차만 주세요!!!!
"Green tea only, please!!!!"

The particle -만 (-man) limits the characteristics that are being mentioned to only the subject/object that it is affixed to. While in English, "only" and "just" are separate words, in Korean we attach this function to the noun as a particle.

In Today's Dialogue

B: 녹차만 주세요.
B: nokcha-man juseyo.
B: "Please, just give me green tea."

Construction: Subject/Object + -만 (-man)

Expression Close Up

어서오세요 (eoseooseyo) "Welcome"

어서오세요 (eoseooseyo) is a common way of welcoming customers in most shops and restaurants in Korea. When the customer is leaving, a common phrase is 안녕히 가세요 (annyeonghi gaseyo).

녹차 (nokcha) "Green Tea"

Here are some of the different types of teas that are popular in Korea:

1. 홍차 (hongcha) "black tea"
2. 유자차 (yujacha) "citron tea"
3. 매실차 (maesilcha) "plum tea"

만 (-man) "only"

While Koreans use -만 (-man) to mean "only," -도 (do) is used to express "also." For example:

1. 녹차만 주세요 (nokcha-man juseyo) "Please, give me green tea only."
2. 녹차도 주세요 (nokcha-do juseyo) "Please, give me green tea also."

DIALOGUE - KOREAN

MAIN

1. 철민 : 나 담배 끊었어!
2. 경미 : 에이... 진짜?
3. 철민 : 진짜!!
4. 경미 : 언제부터?
5. 철민 : 어제부터.

ENGLISH

1. Cheolmin : I quit smoking!
2. Gyeongmi : Come on...really?
3. Cheolmin : Really!
4. Gyeongmi : Since when?
5. Cheolmin : Since yesterday.

ROMANIZATION

1. cheolmin : na dambae kkeuneosseo!
2. gyeongmi : ei... jinjja?
3. cheolmin : jinjja!
4. gyeongmi : eonjebuteo?
5. cheolmin : eojebuteo.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
--어제	eoje	yesterday
--담배	dambae	cigarette
에이	ei	Come on.
--부터	buteo	since, from
--언제	eonje	when
끊었어	kkeuneosseo	I quit. I stopped.
진짜	jinjja	really, for real, seriously	adverb

SAMPLE SENTENCES

어제부터 담배 끊었어. "I quit smoking since yesterday."	담배 끊었어? "Did you quit smoking?"
에이... 진짜? "Come on... Are you serious?"	오늘부터 일 해요. "I work from today."
언제부터 일 해? "Since when do you work?"	담배 언제 끊었어? dambae eonje kkeuneosseo? "When did you quit smoking?"

진짜 담배 끊었어!

jinjja dambae kkeuneosseo!

"I really quit smoking!"

GRAMMAR

Tell Them You Quit! 끊었어 "Quit" 나 담배 끊었어!
"I quit smoking!"

We use the word 끊었어 (kkeunheosseo) to express that one has quit something. Typically, Koreans tend to express that one has quit a 'noun' rather than a verb.

In This Dialogue

철민: 나 담배 끊었어!
cheolmin: na dambae kkeuneosseo!
Cheolmin: "I quit smoking!"

Note: This sentence is literally "I, cigarette, quit." We use the noun "cigarette" to express that the speaker has quit smoking.

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"	Explanation
술 끊었어	sul kkeunheosseo	"I quit drinking (alcohol)."	Literally: Alcohol quit
여자 끊었어	yeoja kkeunheosseo	"I quit girls."	We use this phrase to express that a speaker has given up on women.

Express Disbelief! 에이 "Come on"

에이... 진짜?
"Come on...really?"

We use this sound 에이(ei), a back channel, to express disbelief or questioning of a statement or a person. We use it as a response. The deeper and longer the sound, the greater the questioning. We can translate it as "come on, give me a break."

In This Dialogue

경미: 에이... 진짜?
gyeongmi: ei... jinjja?
Gyeongmi: Come on...really?

♣ More Examples ♣

ㄱ: 나 숙제 했어. (na sukje haesseo.)
ㄴ: 에이... 거짓말! (ei... geojitmal.)
ㄱ: "I did the homework."
ㄴ: "Come on...that's a lie."

ㄱ: 시험 합격했어! (siheom habgyeokhaesseo!)
ㄴ: 에이... 정말? (ei... jeongmal?)
ㄱ: "I passed the test!"
ㄴ: "Come on...really?"

Note: 정말 (jeongmal) means "really," just as 진짜 (jinjja) does (the word used in this conversation).

Discussing When it all Starts: 부터 "Since"

언제부터?
"Since when?"

부터 (buteo) is a particle which marks a location or time that one has started a certain action. In this lesson, we used it to mark time words, just like the English meaning "since."

Construction

Time Word + 부터 (buteo)
Since (time word)

In This Dialogue

경미: 언제부터? (eonje-buteo?) "Since when?"
철민: 어제부터. (eoje-buteo.) "Since yesterday."

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
오늘	oneul	"today"
오늘부터	oneul-buteo	"since today"
내일	naeil	"tomorrow"
내일부터	naeil-buteo	"since tomorrow (starting tomorrow)"
어제	eoje	"yesterday"
어제부터	eoje-buteo	"since yesterday"

GRAMMAR

Korean Verb 찍자 "to take"
사진 찍자!
"Let's take a picture!"

The verb in today's example 찍다 (jjikda) means "to take," but we use it specifically for photos. Its literal meaning is "to stamp." We cannot use it as the English word "to take" and its other multiple meanings. However, we can use 찍다 (jjikda) for situations in which one films a movie, or 영화 (yeonghwa) in Korean. We used the verb in a proposative statement (see following section): 찍자 (jjikja).

Whatever one "stamps" (a movie, a picture), it comes in front of the verb 찍다.

♣ Examples: ♣
사진 찍자. (sajin jjikja.) "Let's take a picture." (literally: picture, stamp)
영화 찍자. (yeonghwa jjikja.) "Let's film a movie." (literally: movie, stamp)

Proposative Statements: ...자
사진 찍자!
"Let's take a picture!"

For most action verbs, a proposative statement can be made by adding 자 (ja) to the end of verb stems. We can translate it most simply as "let's...(verb)."

In This Dialogue

민아: 사진 찍자!
mina: sajin jjikja!
Mina: "Let's take a picture!"

경진: 사진? 응! 찍자! 여기?
gyeongjin: sajin? eung! jjikja! yeogi?
Gyeongjin: "A picture? Okay! Let's take it. Here?"

Note: In the second example, the proposative is simply stated and the word 사진 (sajin, or "picture") is not included. However, we can easily infer from context that the speaker wants to take a picture, and we can leave it out of the sentence.

♣ More Examples: ♣

영화 보자.	yeonghwa boja	"Let's watch a movie."
하자.	haja	"let's do"
요리하자.	yorihaja	"Let's cook."

Korean Number System
하나... 둘... 셋!
"One...two...three!"

하나 (hana), 둘 (dul), and 셋 (set) are the numbers 1, 2, and 3 in Korean. Korean has two number systems. We call this number system the Native Korean numbers and it is what we use when counting, as was the case in this conversation. Just like people in many other cultures, the person in this conversation counts to three before taking a picture.

In This Dialogue

민아: 응! 하나... 둘... 셋!
mina: eung. hana....dul...set!
Mina: "Yeah. One...two...three!"

콜라 마실래요? kolla masillaeyo? "Would you like some Coke?"

GRAMMAR

Korean Conjunction (이)랑 "And"
이거랑, 이거랑, 이거...
"This, and this, and this..."

We use (이)랑 [-(i)rang] to link nouns in coordination in a sentence. It can be translated as "with" or "and," both of which must be implied from context. (이)랑 [-(i)rang] links the nouns in a consecutive order. We can use (이)랑 [-(i)rang] with as many nouns as desired. However, we must link it to each noun in coordination, with the exception of the final noun.

Construction

랑 (-rang) attaches to nouns that end in vowels. 이랑 (-irang) attaches to nouns that end in consonants.

In This Dialogue

이거 + 랑 (igeo + rang) = this and 수진: 이거랑, 이거랑, 이거 ... 얼마예요?
sujin: igeo-rang, igeo-rang, igeo... eolma-yeyo?
Sujin: "This, and this, and this...how much?

포테이토 피자 + 랑 (poteito pija + rang) = potato pizza and 콜라 + 랑 (kolla + rang) = cola and 점원: 포테이토 피자랑, 콜라랑, 샐러드... 3만5천원입니다.
jeomwon: poteito pija-rang, colla-rang, saelleodeu... sam man o cheonwon-imnida.
Clerk: "Potato pizza, and coke, and salad...35,000 won."

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
책이랑 공책	chaek-irang gongchaek	"books and notebooks"
콜라랑 주스	kolla-rang juseu	"cola and juice"
엄마랑 아빠	eomma-rang appa	"mom and dad"
너랑 나	neo-rang na	"you and I"
이거랑 이거 주세요.	igeo-rang igeo juseyo	"Please give me this and this."

☞ Remember ☜

We also use 와 (wa) and 과 (gwa) to link nouns, and they mean the same thing as 랑/이랑 (-rang/-irang). But -와/과 (-wa/-gwa) is more formal and we usually use it in written Korean. While we often hear -랑/이랑 (-rang/irang) in an everyday conversation in Korean, we use -와/과 (-wa/gwa) more often in the news than -랑/이랑 (-rang/irang) because -와/과 (-wa/gwa) is more formal. Usually, -와/과 (-wa/gwa) is too formal for colloquial situations.

Note:
-와 (-wa) attaches to nouns that end in vowels.
-과 (-gwa) attaches to nouns that end in consonants.

♣ More Examples ♣

랑/이랑 = 와/과	-rang/-irang = -wa/-gwa	"English"
책이랑 공책 = 책과 공책	chaek-irang gongchaek = chaek-gwa gongchaek	"books and notebooks"
콜라랑 주스 = 콜라와 주스	kolla-rang juseu = kolla-wa juseu	"cola and juice"
엄마랑 아빠 = 엄마와 아빠	eomma-rang appa = eomma-wa appa	"mom and dad"
너랑 나 = 너와 나	neo-rang na = neo-wa na	"you and I"
이거랑 이거 주세요 = *이것과 이것 주세요.	*igeo-rang igeo juseyo = igeot-gwa igeot juseyo.	"Please give me this and this."

Note: Since 과/와 (gwa/wa) is more formal, 이거 (igeo) changes to its non-colloquial, standard form 이것 (igeot).

Talk About Prices
얼마예요?
"How Much Is It?"

얼마예요 (eolmayeyo) is composed of two parts: 얼마 (eolma) and 예요 (yeyo). -예요 (-yeyo) is the standard politeness level form of the verb 이다 (ida, or "to be"), but we almost always use it in this form/politeness level when it's used in a store.

Construction

The specific item or service that you want to ask for the price of is proceeded by 얼마예요 (eolmayeyo).

♣ Example: ♣

[Item A] + 얼마예요?
[Item A] + eolmayeyo?
"How much is [Item A]?"

In This Dialogue

수진: 이거랑, 이거랑, 이거 ... 얼마예요?
sujin: igeo-rang, igeo-rang, igeo... eolma-yeyo?
Sujin: "This, and this, and this...how much?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
사과 얼마예요?	sagwa eolmayeyo?	How much is an apple?
아메리카노 얼마예요?	americano eolmayeyo?	How much is an americano?

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
수영장	suyeongjang	swimming pool	noun
싫어	sireo	I don't want to.
야	ya	hey, you
가자	gaja	Let's go. (intimate)	expression

SAMPLE SENTENCES

수영장에서 수영하려고 해요. Suyeongjangeseo suyeongharyeogo haeyo. "I intend to swim at the swimming pool."	제가 수영장을 청소할 것입니다. jega suyeongjangeul cheongsohal geonnimnida. "I will clean the swimming pool."
수영장에 가면, 물에 들어가기 전에 준비 운동을 꼭 하세요. suyeongjange gamyeon, mure deureogagi jeone junbi undongeul kkok haseyo. "When you go to a swimming pool, make sure you warm up before you go into the water."	싫어. 안 가. sireo. an ga. "I don't want to go. I'm not going."
야 오랜만이다! ya orenmanida "Hey, long time no see."	집에 가자. Jibe gaja. "Let's go home."

GRAMMAR

Persuade Them: 자 "Let's..."
수영장 가자!
"Let's go to the swimming pool!"

We use this sentence ending to express invitation, persuasion, or solicitation of an action. -자 (-ja) is in the intimate politeness form, so we only use it with people we are on intimate terms with. This grammatical structure can be translated as "let's (verb)."

Construction

Whenever we conjugate a verb or sentence ending to -자 (-ja), it shows it is translated as "let's (verb)."

In This Dialogue

정수: 수영장 가자!
jeongsu: suyeongjang gaja!
Jeongsu: "Let's go to the swimming pool!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
밥 먹자.	bap meokja	"Let's eat."
영화 보러 가자.	yeonghwa boreo gaja.	"Let's go watch a movie."

그렇게 하자.	geureoke haja	"Let's do it like that."
집에 가자.	jib-e gaja	"Let's go home."
잊어버리자.	ijeobeorija.	"Let's forget about it."

☞ Remember ☜

-자 (-ja) is intimate language. We use it frequently in everyday conversation but one must be careful in deciding whom they use it with. It is very casual language and you should only use it with family and close friends.

Tell Them You Mean What You Said! 고 "Come on, I said..."
수영장 가자고!!
"Come on! Let's go to the swimming pool!"

We often use -고 (-go) to show emphasis on a previous statement that has been made.

In This Dialogue

정수: 수영장 가자고!!
jeongsu: suyeongjang gajago!!
Jeongsu: "Come on...let's go to the swimming pool!!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
밥 먹자!! (응.) 밥 먹자고!!	bap meokja!! (eung.) bap meokjago!!	"Let's eat!! (Okay.) I said let's eat!"
지금 빨리 가자고!!	jigeum ppalli gajago!!	"Hurry! I said let's go NOW!"

☞ Remember ☜

This is also very casual, and even adding the polite suffix -요 (-yo) at the end of the sentence can sound very demanding. One should use caution in deciding whom they use this phrase with.

최대한 빨리 갈게요. choedaehan ppalli galgeyo. "I'll be there as soon as I can."	빨리 일어나! ppalli ireona! "Get up quickly!"

GRAMMAR

Do You Need it Done Quickly? 빨리 "Hurry Up" 야, 빨리 가자.
"Hey, hurry up!"

We often use 빨리 (ppalli) as an adverb to encourage someone to do something "quickly." In addition to using it as an adverb, we can use it by itself without a verb to encourage someone to do something quickly. When we use it by itself, we often repeat it for added emphasis.

Although this adverb does not have any politeness levels and we can use it with all levels of speech, you can add 요 at the end of this word to be more polite when you're using this word alone as in 빨리요 (ppalliyo).

Construction

As with any adverb we use, we use this one before verbs.
빨리 + Verb (or Verbal phrase)

♣ Examples ♣

1. 가다 (gada) "to go"
가 (ga) "go" : imperative (intimate politeness level)
빨리 + 가 (ppalli + ga)
빨리 가 (ppalli ga) "go quickly, hurry up and go"

2. 먹다 (meokda) " to eat"
먹어 (meogeo) "eat" : imperative (intimate politeness level)
빨리 + 먹어 (ppalli + meogeo)
빨리 먹어 (ppalli meogeo) "eat quickly, hurry up and eat"

In This Dialogue

진규: 야, 빨리 가자.
jingyu: ya, ppalli gaja.
Jingyu: "Hey, hurry up! Let's go!"

진규: 빨리! 빨리!
jingyu: ppalli! ppalli!
Jingyu: "Quickly! Quickly!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
빨리 먹고 가자.	ppalli meok-go gaja.	"Let's eat quickly and go."
숙제 빨리 해!	sukje ppalli hae!	"Do your homework quickly!"

빨리 줘.	ppalli jwo.	"Give it to me quickly."
빨리 일어나!	ppalli ireona!	"Wake up quickly!"

Proposals
가자!
"Let's Go!"

가자 (gaja) is the verb 가다 (gada), or "to go," in its propositive form (+자, +ja), and is translated as "let's go." We can use it on its own to make a proposition to someone.

Because this verb is "to go," often we use the directional particle -에 (-e) to mark the direction in which to head. However, we often drop it in conversation and simply infer it from context. This is the case in this conversation. Often, we do not drop the particle when attaching it to single syllable words. The verbal phrase, 가자 (gaja), is in the intimate politeness level and we should only use it with those whom we are on intimate, and close terms.

Construction

We can use 가자 (gaja), or "let's go," on its own to present a proposition. Because it is a verb, it comes at the end of sentences after subjects and adverbs.

After a subject
우리 가자. (uri gaja) "Let's go."

After an adverb
빨리 가자. (ppalli gaja) "Let's go quickly."

When we use it with the directional particle -에 (-e), we attach the particle to the place that is being reached, and the phrase 가자 (gaja) comes afterwards. However, we often drop this particle with words (not often dropped with single syllable words).

♣ Examples ♣

1. 학교에 가자. (hakgyo-e gaja). "Let's go to school."
(We often drop the directional particle in colloquial situations.)
학교 가자. (hakgyo gaja)

2. 집에 가자. (jip-e gaja) "Let's go home."
(We often drop the directional particle with this word because it is a single syllable word.)

In This Dialogue

진규: 야, 빨리 가자.
jingyu: ya, ppalli gaja.
Jingyu: "Hey, hurry up! Let's go!"

Colors in Korean 빨간 "Red" 안 돼! 빨간 불!
"No! Red Light!"

빨간 (ppalgan) means "red" and we use it to modify nouns. This word cannot stand on its own, and requires a noun immediately afterwards for it to modify.

Construction

빨간 + 명사 (ppalgan + noun) red + noun

♣ Examples ♣

1.집 (jip) "home" : noun
빨간 + 집
빨간 집 (ppalgan jip) "red house"

2.컴퓨터 (keompyuteo) "computer" : noun
빨간 + 컴퓨터
빨간 컴퓨터 (ppalgan keompyuteo) "red computer"

In This Dialogue

유진: 안 돼! 빨간 불!
yujin: an dwae! ppalgan bul!
Yujin: "No! Red light!"

♣ More Examples ♣
We use the following colors in the same manner described above (to modify a noun).

Korean	Romanized	"English"
빨간	ppalgan	"red"
노란	noran	"yellow"
파란	paran	"blue"
하얀	hayan	"white"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Crosswalks

When turning onto a street, the law in Korea requires drivers to wait for pedestrians in a crosswalk. This is true even for pedestrians on the other side of the street walking toward the driver's side. This can require the driver to wait quite a long time for the pedestrian to clear the crosswalk. Because of this, the crosswalks in Korea are the safest place to cross the street in Korea.

참치 김밥 주세요. chamchi gimbab juseyo. "Please give me tuna Kimbap."

GRAMMAR

Making Requests
김치찌개 주세요.
"Kimchi jjigae, please."

We use the phrase, 주세요 (juseyo), to request something from someone. We translate it as "please give me." While we can use it in many different circumstances, we most often use it in business establishments, for instance, when ordering food at a restaurant, buying movie tickets, or asking for something behind a counter. This phrase is polite and we can use it with strangers, superiors, and for people with whom we are on polite speaking terms.

Construction

Asking for objects:
(명사) + (주세요)
(noun) + (juseyo) = "please give me (noun)"

♣ Example ♣

주스 (juseu) "juice" (noun)
주스 + 주세요
주스 주세요 (juseu juseyo) = "Please give me juice."

A number (and counter) can also follow the noun to specify the quantity of things desired:

♣ Example ♣

(noun) + (number) + (juseyo)
주스 + 두 잔 + 주세요
주스 두 잔 주세요 (juseu du jan juseyo) = "Please, give me two glasses of juice."

In This Dialogue

저거 세 개 주세요.	jeogeo se gae juseyo.	"Please, give me three of those."
시원한 물 주세요.	siwonhan mul juseyo.	"Please, give me some cold water."

Get Their Attention!
저기요!
"Excuse me!"

저기요 (jeogiyo) is a phrase we use to get someone's attention, and we translate it as "excuse me." We use it for situations where the speaker does not know the other person well and they are not on familiar terms. Thus, we often use it in restaurant situations when calling the staff where the speaker typically does not know the staff personally (however, it is not exclusively used in restaurant situations).

In This Dialogue

In the context of this dialogue, the speaker is calling the staff.

손님: 저기요! 김치찌개 주세요.
sonnim: jeogiyo! gimchijjigae juseyo.
Customer: Excuse me! Kimchi jjigae, please.

손님: 저기요! 저기요!
sonnim: jeogiyo! jeogiyo!
Customer: Excuse me! Excuse me!!

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"	Explanation
저기요. 지금 몇 시예요?	jeogiyeo. jigeum myeot si-yeyo?	"Excuse me. What time is it?"	When stopping a stranger on the street to ask for the time.
저기요. 이마트 어디예요?	jeogiyeo. emateu eodi-yeyo?	"Excuse me. Where is e-mart?"	When stopping a stranger on the street to ask for directions.
저기요. 계산서 주세요.	jeogiyo. gyesanseo juseyo.	"Excuse me. Check please."	When asking a waiter for the check.

☞ Remember ☜

Although 저기요 (jeogiyo) is translated as "excuse me," we don't use it when excusing oneself (i.e. going to the bathroom, bumping into someone). We simply use it to gain the attention of someone.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Calling for a Waiter in Korean Restaurants

Depending on the restaurant, it is not typically considered rude to call out in a loud voice when in a restaurant. With the exception of first tier restaurants, most people call for waiters even when there are not any close by.

SAMPLE SENTENCES

카레 주세요. "Please give me curry."	나 배고파. na baegopa "I'm hungry."
아저씨... 조심해요. "Mister, be careful."	아! 뜨거워! "Oh! It's hot!"
응, 비가 좀 왔어. eung, biga jom wasseo. "Yes. It did rain a bit."	나 여기 있어. Na yeogi isseo. "I'm over here."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying, "Be Careful, It's Hot" in Korean 아! 뜨거워!
"Oh! It's hot!"

뜨거워 (tteugeowo) comes from the verb 뜨겁다 (tteugeopda) meaning "to be hot." We use this descriptive verb to describe things that are hot to the touch. As we use it to describe things that are hot, generally, it refers to inanimate objects (i.e., food, water, tea, a match). Therefore, we can generally translate 뜨거워 (tteugeowo) as "it is hot."

We cannot use it to refer to the weather or the air temperature of a certain place (i.e., an office, room, etc.). For those situations, we use the verb 덥다 (deopda).

In This Dialogue

---

1. 아들: 아! 뜨거워!
   adeul: a! tteugeowo!
   Son: "Oh! It's hot!"

More Examples

Korean	Romanized	"English"
김치찌개가 너무 뜨거워요.	gimchijjigaega neomu tteugeowoyo.	This gimchijjigae is too hot.
접시가 뜨거워요.	jeopsi-ga tteugeowoyo.	This plate is hot.
이거 왜 뜨거워요?	igeo wae tteugeowoyo?	Why is this hot?
이마가 뜨거워요.	ima-ga tteugeowoyo.	Your forehead is hot!
컵이 아주 뜨거워요.	keop-i aju tteugeowoyo.	The cup is very hot.

조심해
“Be Careful”

조심해 (josimhae) comes from the verb 조심하다 (josimhada) meaning, "to be careful, to be prudent." When we use it as an imperative (as was the case in this dialogue), we are telling someone to be careful. Literally translated, it is "be careful," "watch out," or "use caution."

We can use it as an adverb by doing one of two things:

1. Adding -서 (seo) at the end
2. Replacing 해 (hae) with 히 (hi)

We could then use those two phrases as adverbs ("doing something in a careful, cautious manner").

In This Dialogue

1. 엄마: 조심해!
   eomma: josimhae!
   Mom: "Be careful!"

More Examples

Korean	Romanized	"English"
조심해서 운전해.	josimhaeseo unjeonhae.	"Drive safely."
조심히 들어가.	josimhi deureoga.	"Go back home safely."
뜨거우니까 조심해.	tteugeounikka josimhae.	"It's hot, so be careful."
무거우니까 조심해.	mugeounikka josimhae.	"It's heavy, so be careful."
개 조심해.	gae josimhae.	"Watch out for dogs."

여기
“Here”

여기 (yeogi) means "here." We can use it as we would use it in English, when handing someone something. And just as the English "here," it also refers to a location in very close proximity to the speaker.

In This Dialogue

1. 엄마: 응... 여기... 카레...
   eomma: eung... yeogi... kare...
   Mom: "Okay...here...Curry..."

More Examples

Korean	Romanized	"English"
여기 계산서 주세요.	yeogi gyesanseo juseoyo.	"Check (receipt) here, please."
여기, 네 선물.	yeogi ne seonmul.	"Here, your present."
여기서 멀어요?	yeogi-seo meoreoyo?	"Is it far from here?"
저는 여기 살아요.	jeo-neun yeogi sarayo?	”I live here."
여기 저기.	yeogi jeogi.	"Here and there."

아니, 나 아니야. ani, na aniya. "No, it's not me."	응, 비가 좀 왔어. eung, biga jom wasseo. "Yes. It did rain a bit."
지금 노래 듣고 있어요. jigeum norae deutkko isseoyo. "I'm listening to a song now."	저도 알아요. jeo-do arayo. "I know that, too."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing "I (Don't) Know" (Something) 이 노래 알아?
"Do you know this song?"

알아 (ara) comes from the verb 알다 (alda) meaning "to know." It is casual language and we can use it with close friends, family members, and people on close terms. We can use it on its own as a statement expressing "I know (something)," with (something) coming before the word 알아 (ara). Or we can use it to ask if one "knows (something)," with (something) coming before the word 알아 (ara).

To be a bit more polite, one can add the politeness particle -요 (-yo) to the end of 알아 (ara). Then we can use this with strangers and with people whom we should respect.

In This Dialogue

1. 딸: 이 노래 알아?
   Ttal: i norae ara?
   Daughter: "Do you know another song?"
2. 아빠: 응! 이 노래 알아!
   Appa: eung! i norae ara!
   Dad: "Yeah! I know this song!"

알아, 몰라?	ara molla?	"Do you know it or not?"
나도 알아!	nado ara!	"I know, too!"

몰라 "I Don't Know"

몰라 (molla) comes from the verb 모르다 (moreuda) meaning "to not know." It is casual language, and we can use it with close friends, family members, and people on close terms. We can use it on its own as a statement expressing "I don't know (something)," with (something) coming before the word 몰라 (molla). Or we can use it to ask if one "doesn't know (something)," with (something) coming before the word 몰라 (molla).

To be a bit more polite, one can add the politeness particle -요 (-yo) to the end of 몰라 (molla). Then, we can use this with strangers and with people whom we should respect.

In This Dialogue

1. 아빠: 아니, 몰라.
   appa: ani, molla.
   Dad: "No, I don't know it."
2. 아빠: 몰라.

그 사람 나빠! "He's mean!"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying Something "Hurts" or is "Bad" in Korean 나 머리 나빠.
"I am stupid."

나빠 (nappa) comes from the verb 나쁘다 (nappeuda) meaning, "to be bad." It is in casual language, so we can use it with close friends, family members, and between people on close terms. 나빠 comes after the noun that we describe as bad. When the noun refers to a person, it often means that the person is "mean."

In This Dialogue

---

1. 제인: 나... 머리 나빠.
   jein: na... meori nappa.
   Jane: "I...am stupid."

♣ Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
오늘 날씨 나빠.	oneul nalssi nappa.	"Today, the weather's bad."
저 눈 나빠요.	jeo nun nappayo.	"I have bad eyesight."
우리 오빠 나빠요.	uri oppa nappayo.	"My older brother is mean."
그게 뭐가 나빠요?	geuge mwo-ga nappayo?	"What's wrong with that?"
기분 나빠!	gibun nappa!	"I'm upset!"

☞ Remember ☜

I. In colloquial situations, we often drop the subject markers 은/는 and the topic markers 이/가, as was the case in this lesson's dialogue.

II. Adding -요 (yo) to the end of the verb makes the sentence more polite.

- 아파
"It Hurts"

아파 (apa) comes from the verb 아프다 (apeuda) meaning, "to be painful, to hurt." This is in casual language, so we can use it with close friends, family members, and between people on close terms. 아빠 (appa) comes after the noun that refers to a part of the body that is aching or a person who is sick.

In This Dialogue

1. 제인: 아니... 나 머리 아파.
   jein: ani... na meori apa.
   Jane: "No...I have a headache."

♣ More Examples ♣

맥주보다 소주가 싸요. Maekju boda sojuga ssayo. "Soju is cheaper than beer."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying, "I Want to Drink/Eat" in Korean - 마시고 싶어 콜라 마시고 싶어.
"I want to drink cola."

마시고 싶어 (masigo sipeo) is a combination of two verbs, 마시다 (to drink) and 싶다 (to want), and it's very handy to remember this as a set phrase. You can add whatever you want to drink (the object) right in front of this phrase. Depending on the intonation of the entire sentence, it could be either a statement (plain) or a question (rising).

In Today's Dialogue

1. 지은: 콜라 마시고 싶어.
   jieun: kolla masigo sipeo.
   Jieun: "I want to drink cola."
2. 동희: 콜라 마시고 싶어? 나 소주 마시고 싶어!
   donghui: kolla masigo sipeo? na soju masigo sipeo!
   Donghui: "You want to drink cola? I want to drink soju!"

☞ Remember ☜

Adding -요 (-yo) at the end of the sentence can make the sentence more polite.

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
술 마시고 싶어!	sul masigo sipeo!	"I want to drink alcohol."
물 마시고 싶어!	mul masigo sipeo!	"I want to drink water."
맥주 마시고 싶어요.	maekju masigo sipeoyo.	"I want to drink beer."
더 마시고 싶어요.	deo masigo sipeoyo.	"I want to drink more."
많이 마시고 싶어요.	mani masigo sipeoyo.	"I want to drink a lot."

- 먹고 싶어
"I Want to Eat"

Just as with 마시고 싶어 (masigo sipeo), 먹고 싶어 (meokgo sipeo) is a combination of two verbs, 먹다 ("to eat") and 싶다 ("to want"). It's very handy to remember this as a set phrase. You can add whatever you want to eat (the object) right in front of this phrase. Depending on the intonation of the entire sentence, it could be either a statement (plain) or a question (rising).

In Today's Dialogue

1. 지은: 햄버거 먹고 싶어.
   jieun: haembeogeo meokgo sipeo.
   Jieun: "I want to eat a hamburger."
2. 동희: 햄버거 먹고 싶어? 나 삼겹살 먹고 싶어!
   donghui: haembeogo meokgo sipeo? na samgyeopsal meokgo sipeo!
   Donghui: "You want to eat a hamburger? I want to eat samgyeopsal!"

☞ Remember ☜

Adding -요 (-yo) at the end of the sentence can make the sentence more polite.

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
밥 먹고 싶어.	bap meokgo sipeo.	"I want to eat rice."
아이스크림 먹고 싶어.	aiseukeurim meokgo sipeo.	"I want to eat ice cream."
더 먹고 싶어요.	deo meokgo sipeoyo.	"I want to eat more."
뭐 먹고 싶어요?	mwo meokgo sipeoyo?	"What do you want to eat?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Samgyeopsal

삼겹살 (samgyeopsal) is a variety of Korean barbecue. People often eaten it at 회식 (hoesik), which is "company dinners." Lettuce leaves, perilla leaves, and a variety of other foods often accompany it. Typically, it is grilled on the table (either for the customers or by the customers) the customers sit at. Soju often accompanies 삼겹살 (samgyeopsal). People eat this food during special occasions.

SAMPLE SENTENCES

우와! 진짜 예뻐! uwa! jinjja yeppeo! "Wow. It's really pretty!"	너희 이리 와. "You come here."
한국이 더 비싸요. hangugi deo bissaeyo. "Korea is more expensive."	아니, 나 아니야. ani, na aniya. "No, it's not me."
주희랑 수희는 쌍둥이이에요. juhuirang suhuineun ssangdung-iiyeyo. "Juhui and Suhui are twins."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Comparisons, "Pretty," and the Plural "You" 내가 더 예뻐.
"I'm prettier."

더 (deo) is the equivalent of the English word "more" and we use it to express comparison and contrast. Unlike in English where we modified some words with the word "more" and some words change their endings such as with -er or -ier, in Korean you can just put 더 (deo) in front of an adjective or an adverb.

In This Dialogue

---

1. 수연: 내가 더 예뻐.
   nae-ga deo yeppeo.
   Suyeon: "I'm prettier."
2. 미연: 아니. 내가 더 예뻐!
   ani. nae-ga deo yeppeo.
   Miyeon: "No. I'm prettier."
3. 수연: 아니. 내가 더 예뻐!! 내가! 내가!
   ani. nae-ga deo yeppeo. nae-ga nae-ga.
   Suyeon: "No. I'm prettier! I am! I am!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
딸기가 더 맛있어요.	ttalgi-ga deo masisseoyo.	"Strawberry is more delicious."

내가 더 똑똑해.	nae-ga deo ttokttokhae.	"I am smarter."
내 차가 더 빨라.	nae cha-ga deo ppalla.	"My car is faster."
니가 더 이상해.	ni-ga deo isanghae.	"You're weirder."

- 예뻐
"Pretty"

예뻐 (yeppeo) comes from the descriptive verb 예쁘다 (yeppeuda) meaning, "to be pretty." 예뻐 (yeppeo) is in the intimate politeness level. You can add -요 (-yo) to the end of this verb to make it more polite.

In This Dialogue

---

1. 수연: 내가 더 예뻐.
   nae-ga deo yeppeo.
   Suyeon: "I'm prettier."
2. 미연: 아니. 내가 더 예뻐!
   ani. nae-ga deo yeppeo.
   Miyeon: "No, I'm prettier."
3. 수연: 아니. 내가 더 예뻐!! 내가! 내가!
   ani. nae-ga deo yeppeo. nae-ga nae-ga.
   Suyeon: "No, I'm prettier! I am! I am!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
난 이 세상에서 제일 예뻐.	nan i sesang-eseo jeil yeppeo.	"I am the prettiest in this world."
이효리 너무 예뻐.	ihyori neomu yeppeo.	"Ihyori is really pretty."
우리 언니 너무 예뻐.	uri eonni neomu yeppeo.	"My sister is really pretty."
방이 너무 예뻐요!	bang-i neomu yeppeoyo!	"The room is really pretty!"
누가 더 예뻐?	nuga deo yeppeo?	"Who's prettier?"

- 너희(들)
"You" (plural)

너희 (neohui) means "you" (plural) and is considered casual language. We often attach the plural suffix 들 (deul) to it. Note that it's not 너들 (neodeul) but 너희 (neohui) or 너희들 (neohuideul). The words 너네 (neone) and 너네들 (neonedeul) are interchangeable with 너희 (neohui) and 너희들 (neohuideul), but 너네 (neone) and 너네들 (neonedeul) are considered more conversational.

In This Dialogue

1. 아빠: 수연아, 미연아! 너희 쌍둥이야!!
   suyeon-a, miyeon-a! neohi ssangdungi-ya!
   Father: "Suyeon, Miyeon! You're twins!!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
너희들 어디 가?	neohui-deul eodiga?	"Where are you going?"
너희 방학이야?	neohui banghak-iya?	"Are you on summer vacation?"
너희도 올래?	neohui-do ollae?	"Do you want to come, too?"
너네 여기서 뭐 해?	neone yeogiseo mwo hae?	"What are you doing here?"
너네들 너무 시끄러워.	neonedeul neomu sikkeureowo.	"You are too noisy."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Names

In many Korean families, siblings will share a common syllable, or a common trait in their names (this is not exclusive to twins). Korean names typically have three syllables, with the family name being one syllable and the given name being two syllables. Given names will often share one syllable (with the same Chinese character behind that syllable). This is common with siblings of the same gender, but can also apply to siblings of different genders.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Describing Something as Excessive in Korean: "Too" - 너무 선생님, 너무 빨라요!
"Teacher, it's too fast!!"

너무 (neomu) is an adverb we use to describe something as excessive. When this is the case, we translate it as "too" or "overly." At times, we use it as an intensifier. When that is the case, we translate it as "very," "extremely," or "so."

In This Dialogue

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Teachers' Names

Korean students call their teachers, "Teacher" (선생님 - seonsaengnim) instead of by their names. In Korean society, we generally refer to people who have a title by that title. The teacher's names are not included when we speak with them. We simply refer to all teachers as "teacher" in Korea.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Asking "Why" and Saying "No reason" in Korean:
성은... 왜 울어?
"Seongeun...why are you crying?"

왜 (wae) is a question word that we use to ask someone for an explanation. It is equivalent to the word "why" in English. 왜 (wae) is not limited to questions. We can also use it in sentences to provide clarification.

In This Dialogue

1. 경수: 성은... 왜 울어?
   seongeun... wae ureo?
   Gyeongsu: "Seongeun...why are you crying?"
2. 경수: 성은... 왜 웃어?

왜 또?	wae tto?	"What again now?"

그냥
"Just...no reason"

그냥 (geunyang) is a word that we often translate as "just" in English. We use it to convey, "as it is," or "no specific reason."

In This Dialogue

1. 성은: 그냥...
   geunyang...
   Seongeun: "No reason..."
2. 경수: 그냥?

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "a lot," and "read," and Asking "what kind of" in Korean 네 많이 읽어요.
"I read a lot"

많이 (mani) is an adverb and we use it to describe actions that are done "many" times or "a lot." We also use it as an intensifier for descriptions to say that the subject is "very" (description). As with any adverb, we place this in front of verbs.

Construction

많이 (mani) + Verb

Korean	Romanization	"English"
많이 읽어요.	mani ilgeoyo.	"Read a lot."
많이 자요.	mani jayo.	"Sleep a lot."
많이 있어요.	mani isseoyo.	"There are a lot."
많이 바빠요.	mani bappayo.	"Very busy." (literally, "many busy")

In This Dialogue

1. 진호: 네. 많이 읽어요.
   ne. mani ilgeoyo.
   Jinho: "Yes, I read a lot."
2. 진호: 만화책 많이 읽어요.
   manhwachaek mani ilgeoyo.

Jinho: "I read comic books."

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanization	"English"
저는 밥을 많이 먹어요.	jeo-neun bap-eul mani meogeoyo.	"I eat a lot."
저는 여행을 많이 해요.	jeo-neun yeohaeng-eul mani haeyo.	"I travel a lot."
우리 아빠는 일을 많이 해요.	uri appa-neun il-eul mani haeyo.	"My dad works a lot."
비가 많이 와요.	bi-ga mani wayo.	"It's raining heavily."
많이 주세요.	mani juseyo.	"Please give me a lot."

읽어요
"Read"

읽어요 (ilgeoyo) means "read" and comes from the verb 읽다 (ilkda). 읽어요 (ilgeoyo) is conjugated in the standard politeness level and we can use it in polite situations. 읽어 (ilgeo) is the word in the intimate politeness level and we can use it in casual conversation with closer friends.

To ask if someone reads, we can use the word 읽어요? (ilgeoyo) by itself with a rising intonation. Literally, it means, "read?" but is understood as "do you read?" With a dropping intonation, we can use it as a statement. The subject of the sentence is understood.

In This Dialogue

Korean	Romanization	"English"
영미: 책 읽어요?	chaek ilgeoyo?	Yeongmi: "Do you read books?"
진호: 네. 많이 읽어요.	ne. mani ilgeoyo.	Jinho: "Yes, I read a lot."
영미: 우와... 무슨 책 읽어요?	uwa... museun chaek ilgeoyo?	Yeongmi: "What kinds of books do you read?"
진호: 만화책 많이 읽어요.	manhwachaek mani ilgeoyo.	Jinho: "I read comic books."

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanization	"English"
패션 잡지 많이 읽어요.	japji mani ilgeoyo.	"I read a lot of fashion magazines."
아침마다 신문을 읽어요.	achim-mada sinmun-eul ilgeoyo.	"I read the newspaper every morning."
친구한테서 온 편지를 읽어요.	chingu-hanteseo on pyeonji-reul ilgeoyo	"I read the letter that came from my friend."
저는 책을 안 읽어요.	jeo-neun chaeg-eul an ilgeoyo.	"I don't read books."

무슨
"What Kind of..."

무슨 (museun) is a question word we use to specify and inquire about details. We translate it as "what kind of?" Typically, a noun follows it. The noun that follows the question word 무슨 (museun) is what the speaker wishes to specify.

In This Dialogue

1. 영미: 우와... 무슨 책 읽어요?
   uwa... museun chaek-eul ilgeoyo?
   Yeongmi: "What kinds of books do you read?"

♣ More Examples ♣

물 주세요.	사과 말고 딸기가 좋아요.
mul juseyo.	sagwa malgo ttalgi-ga joayo
"Please give me water."	"I like strawberry not apple."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "Not That One, But This One," and Color Names 노란색 말고, 빨간색 주세요.
"Not yellow; give me red."

말고 (malgo) is an expression that you can use to negate one thing and emphasize the other, telling another person that what you meant is different from what the other person is saying or making it clear which one to choose over the other(s). We use 말고 almost as an independent word but it actually comes from the verb 말다 (malda) meaning "to stop doing something" or "to give up doing something," which we use in sentences patterns such as "Let's not go," or "Let's not do it."

Construction

You can use 말고 with both nouns and verbs.

I. Noun + 말고
A 말고 B = "Not A but B"

For example:

1. 이거 말고 저거
   "Not this one but that one."
2. 너 말고 나
   "Not you but me."
3. 오늘 말고 내일
   "Not today but tomorrow."

II. Verb Stem + -지 + 말고

For example:

1. 놀지 말고 공부해.
   "Don't play but study."
   놀다 ("to play") + 공부하다 ("to study")
2. 여기 오지 말고, 저기로 가.
   "Don't come here but go over there."
   - 여기 ("here") + 오다 ("to come") + 저기 ("there") + 가다 ("to go")

In This Dialogue

1. 민지: 노란색 말고, 빨간색 주세요.
   minji: noransaek malgo, ppalgansaek juseyo.
   Minji: "Not yellow, give me red."
2. 민지: 아, 파란색 말고, 빨간색!!
   minji: a, paransaek malgo, ppalgansaek!!
   Minji: "Ah...not blue, red!"

Remember

When we use 말고 along with nouns, you can replace 말고 with -이/가 아니라 (-i/ga anira) or -이/가 아니고(-i/ga anigo), which come from the verb 아니다 ("to not be").

More Examples

Korean	Romanization	"English"
오늘 말고 내일 오세요.	oneul malgo naeil oseyo.	"Please come tomorrow, not today."
야구 말고 농구 하자.	yagu malgo nonggu haja.	"Let's play basketball, not baseball."
아이스크림 말고, 맥주 주세요.	aiseukeurim malgo maekju juseyo.	"Please give me beer, not ice cream."
춤추지 말고, 노래 불러.	chumchuji malgo, norae bulleo.	"Don't dance, but sing."
일 얘기 말고 다른 얘기 하자.	il yaegi malgo dareun yaegi haja.	"Let's not talk about work, but let's talk about something different."

색깔
Colors in Korean

There are two ways to say most of the colors in Korean.

The first way is to use the names for the colors without using the word 색깔 (saek kkal) or 색 (saek), both of which mean "color" in Korean.

The second way is to use the adjective forms of the color names and add 색깔 or 색 at the end of them.

The two ways of saying the color names are equally common, but remember that you need to use the adjective form of the color name to modify another noun.

Color Names in Korean

Korean	Romanization	"English"	Adjective	Adjective + 색(깔)	Descriptive Verb
빨강	ppalgang	"red"	빨간	빨간 색(깔)	빨갛다
파랑	parang	"blue"	파란	파란 색(깔)	파랗다
노랑	norang	"yellow"	노란	노란 색(깔)	노랗다
검정	geomjeong	"black"	검은	검은 색(깔)	검다
하양	hayang	"white"	하얀	하얀 색(깔)	하얗다
초록	chorok	"green"	초록색	초록색(깔)	초록색이다
보라	bora	"purple"	보라색	보라색(깔)	보라색이다
갈색	galsaek	"brown"	갈색	갈색	갈색이다
회색	hoesaek	"gray"	회색	회색	회색이다

 Note: 초록, 보라, 갈색, and 회색 don't have a separate "adjective" form.

운전 할 줄 아세요? unjeon hal jul aseyo? "Do you know how to drive?"	요리 다 했을 것 같아요. yeori da haesseul geot gattayo. “I assume that you finished cooking.”
우리 엄마 요리가 최고야. uri eomma yori-ga choigo-ya. "My mom's cooking is the best."	나 한국어 할 수 있어. na hangugeo hal su isseo "I can speak Korean."

너는 진정한 프로야. neoneun jinjeonghan peuroya. "You're a true professional."	너를 싫어한다. neoreul sireohanda. "I dislike you."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "I Can Do (something)," and "of course" 민수 씨... 요리 할 수 있어요?
"Can you cook?"

할 수 있어 (hal su isseo) is the intimate politeness form of 할 수 있다 (hal su itta). To be more polite, you can add -요 (yo) at the end and say 할 수 있어요 when you are talking to someone older than you or to someone whom you need to show respect. We can break 할 수 있다 down into three parts: 할 + 수 + 있다. It literally means, "do" + "possibility" + "there is," but we translate it as "can do" or "be able to do" so it is best to know it as a set phrase. The opposite of 할 수 있다 is 할 수 없다 (hal su eopda), with only the last verb changing from 있다 to 없다, which literally means, "there isn't" or "do not exist."

Construction

You put the noun for the action that you can do in front of 할 수 있다, and it becomes "can do + (verb)."

In This Dialogue

---

1. 영희: 요리 할 수 있어?
   yeonghi: yori hal su isseo?
   Yeonghi: "Can you cook?"
2. 영희: 운전... 할 수 있어?
   *yeonghi: unjeon... hal s*u isseo?
   Yeonghi: "Can you...drive?"
3. 영희: 영어 할 수 있어?
   *yeonghi: yeongeo hal su iss*eo?
   Yeonghi: "Can you speak English?"

More Examples

Korean	Romanization	"English"
뭐 할 수 있어요?	mwo hal su isseoyo?	"What can you do?"
이 게임 할 수 있어요?	i geim hal su isseoyo?	"Can you play this game?"
오늘 데이트 할 수 있어?	oneul deiteu hal su isseo?	"Can we go on a date today?"
준비 할 수 있어요?	junbi hal su isseoyo?	"Can you prepare?"
언제 할 수 있어요?	eonje hal su isseoyo?	"When can you do it?"

☞ Remember ☜

할 수 없어(요) is often interchangeable with 못 해(요).

당연하지!
"Of course!"

당연하지 (dangyeonhaji) comes from the verb 당연하다 (dangyeonhada) meaning "to be a matter of fact," and is in its intimate politeness level and the emphatic form. To make it sound more polite, you can add -요 (yo) at the end to make it 당연하지요 (dangyeonhajiyo). But we often shorten this to 당연하죠 in colloquial situations. You can say 당연하지 whenever you want to say "Of course! That's a matter of course!"

☞ Remember ☜

Similar expressions (in the intimate politeness level) are:

1. 물론이지!
   mullon-iji!
   "Of course! Sure!"
2. 당연한 거 아냐?
   dangyeonghan geo anya?
   "Isn't that a matter of course?"
3. 그렇고 말고!
   geureoko malgo!
   "That's for sure!"

에어컨 켤까요? e-eokeon kyeolkkayo? "Do you want me to turn on the air conditioner?"	오늘 추워. "It's cold today."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Temperature: "It's Hot" 더워 or "It's Cold" 추워 아... 더워! 더워!
"Ah...it's hot! It's hot!"

더워 (deowo) means, "to be hot" as in temperature or weather. 더워 is in the intimate politeness level and comes from the verb 덥다 (deopda), which means "to be hot." You can add -요 (yo) and say 더워요 to be more polite. This is different from 뜨거워 (tteugeowo), which also means to be "hot to the touch." So, for example, you can say 더워 about the weather and 뜨거워 about a hot bowl of rice.

You can say 더워 as is to mean that "it's hot" or that "you're feeling hot," but you can also add words to say what it is that's hot or what place it is that's hot.

For example:

1. 날씨가 더워.
   nalssi-ga deowo.
   "The weather is hot."
2. 여기 너무 더워!
   yeogi neomu deowo!
   "It's too hot here."

In This Dialogue

---

1. 경민: 아... 더워! 더워! 아이스크림!
   gyeongmin: a... deowo! deowo! aiseukeurim!
   Gyeongmin: "Ah...it's hot! It's hot! Ice cream!"

안 더워. 괜찮아.	an deowo. gwaenchana.	"I'm not hot. It's all right."
제 방은 더워요.	je bang-eun deowoyo.	"My room is hot."
지금은 너무 더워요.	jigeum-eun neomu deowoyo.	"Now it's too hot."

아... 추워...
“I'm cold...”

추워 (chuwo) means, "to be cold" as in temperature or weather. 추워 is in the intimate politeness level and comes from the verb 춥다 (chupda), which means "to be cold." You can add -요 (yo) and say 추워요 to be more polite. This is different from 차가워 (chagaowo), which also means to be "cold to the touch." So, for example, you can say 추워 about the weather or a heavily air conditioned room and 차가워 about a cold piece of ice or a cold river after you have just jumped into it.

You can say 추워 as is to mean that "it's cold" or that "you're feeling cold," but you can also add words to say what it is that's cold or what place it is that's cold.

For example:

1. 오늘 추워요.
   oneul chuwoyo.
   "It's cold today."
2. 방이 추워요.
   bang-i chuwoyo.
   "The room is cold."

"What? That's a lie!"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is "This" / "What's This" and "Honey" / "Darling" 엄마... 이거 뭐야?
"Mom, what's this?"

이거 (igeo) is an indicative pronoun that means "this" in English. The original form of this word is 이것 (igeot), which is a combination of 이 (i), meaning "this," and 것 (geot), meaning "thing." 이것 becomes 이거 to make the pronunciation smoother and easier. The same is the case with the word that means "that," 저거 (jeogeo), which comes from 저것 (jeogeot).

In This Dialogue

---

1. 아들: 이거 뭐야?
   adeul:igeo mwo-ya?
   Son: "What's this?"
2. 엄마: 이거?
   eomma: igeo?
   Mom: "This?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
이거 얼마예요?	igeo eolma-yeyo?	"How much is this?"
이거 주세요.	igeo juseyo.	"Please give me this one."
이거 수박이에요.	igeo subak-ieyo.	"This is a watermelon."
이거 맛있어요!	igeo masisseoyo.	"This is delicious!"

뭐야?
"What's this?"

뭐야 (mwoya) is a direct way of asking what something is or showing surprise after hearing some news, and it's in the intimate politeness level. You can change the -야 to -예요 (yeyo) to make it sound a little more polite (뭐예요?), but when you use it to show surprise, it's better to say 네 (ne?) ?

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 저거 뭐야?
   jeogeo mwo-ya?
   "What's that?"
2. 오늘의 메뉴는 뭐야?
   oneul-ui menyu-neun mwo-ya?
   "What's today's menu?"

여보
"Honey, Darling"

여보 (yeobo) is a word used between married couples to call each other.

In This Dialogue

---

1. 엄마: 어? 여보!
   eomma: eo? yeobo!
   Mom: "Huh? Honey!"

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 여보 뭐 해?
   yeobo mwo hae?
   "Honey, what are you doing?"
2. 여보 일어나!
   yeobo ireona!
   "Honey, get up!"

3. 여보 이리 와 봐.
   yeobo iri wa bwa.
   "Come over here, honey."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

What Do Korean Married Couples Call Each Other?

Many married couples in Korea call each other 여보 (yeobo). At the same time, when they have kids, many people start using their children's name and add 아빠 (appa), meaning "father," or 엄마 (eomma), meaning "mother," at the end to call each other. There's no set rule for this, but the general tendency is to start calling each other 자기 or 자기야, then 여보, and finally, ㅇㅇ 엄마 or ㅇㅇ 아빠.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "I Have It" / "I Don't Have It" - 있어 / 없어 있어요!
"I have one."

있어 (isseo) is the present tense in the intimate politeness level of the verb 있다 (itta) which means "to be." It can mean both "there is/are" and "to have." You add a noun in front of this verb to mean that you have something or that there is or exists something. We usually need a subject marker after the noun, but we often drop it, too. You can add -요 at the end of this verb to make it more polite, and the sentence can be made into a question simply by saying it in a rising intonation toward the end.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The Language of the Korean Workplace

Coworkers in a workplace usually use polite language to each other, but some bosses talk to their subordinates in casual language. However, in big companies where only direct bosses talk to the employees on a daily basis, higher-ranking executives rarely get to talk to the employees or get to know them really well. Therefore, even when a section chief talks to an employee in casual language, the president of the entire company might still use polite language to the same person.

선우야! 안녕! Seon-u-ya! Annyeong! "Seonu! Hello!"	갈비는 조금 비싸요. Galbi-neun jogeum bissayo. "Galbi is a bit expensive."
나 여기 있어. Na yeogi isseo. "I'm over here."	간단한 요리를 만들었어요. gandanhan yorireul mandeureosseoyo. "I made a simple dish."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "I Am Good/Poor At It" in Korean 너 요리 잘 해?
"Are you good at cooking?"

잘 해 (jal hae) is composed of two parts: - 잘 ("well") and 해 ("do"). 해 is in the intimate politeness level, so you can add -요 at the end to sound more polite. 잘 해 is literally translated as "do well" and it can also mean "to be good at" something. You can add a noun or a noun form of a verb in front of 잘 해, with or without the object marking particle 을/를.

Construction

[Noun] + 잘 해
[Noun] + -을/를 + 잘 해

In This Dialogue

---

1. 윤아: 너 요리 잘 해?
   yuna: neo yori jal hae?
   Yuna: "Are you good at cooking?"
2. 윤아: 나? 잘 해!
   yuna: na? jal hae!
   Yuna: "Me? I am good!"

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 저 수영 잘 해요.
   jeo suyeong jal haeyo.
   "I'm a good swimmer."
2. 컴퓨터 잘 해?
   keompyuteo jal hae?
   "Are you good with computers?"
3. 민수는 공부 잘 해요?
   minsu-neun gongbu jal haeyo?
   "Is Minsu doing well with his studies?" / "Is Minsu a good student?"

못 해
"I Am Poor At It"

못 해 (mot hae) can have two meanings: "I'm not good at it" and "I can't do it." Even when they want to say "I'm poor at it" or "I'm not good at it," Koreans tend to add the word 잘 in front of 못 and say 잘 못 해, which means "I'm not so good at it." This often means that the speaker can't even do it at all, but it's the more common way of saying it because it's less direct. You can add a noun or a noun form of a verb in front of 못 해, with or without the object marking particle 을/를.

Construction

[Noun] + 못 해
[Noun] + -을/를 + 못 해

In This Dialogue

---

1. 정수: 나? 요리 못 해!
   jeongsu: na? yori mot hae!
   Jeongsu: "Me? I am not good at cooking!"

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 저 운동 못 해요.
   jeo undong mot haeyo.
   "I'm not good at sports."
2. 저는 노래 못 해요.
   jeo-neun norae mot haeyo.
   "I'm not good at singing." / "I can't sing."
3. 저 이거 못 해요.
   jeo igeo mot haeyo.
   "I can't do this."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

"Say ah" in Korean!

If you are cooking and you want to give your loved one a piece of the food you have made, be it to see if the spicing is appropriate or to get compliment, you say, "아... 해" (casual), or "아... 하세요" (standard). It literally means, "Say ah" or "Do ah."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Comparative Meaning, "Than" - 보다 앗! 아빠보다 엄마가 좋아?
"Arrgh...you like mommy more than daddy?"

보다 (boda) works like the English word "than" and we use it in comparison sentences. But whereas the English word "than" comes before the word that is being the target of comparison, the Korean word 보다 comes right after the word without any spacing. When you want to compare verbs, you need to make the verb into its noun form before combining it with 보다.

Construction

[Noun] + 보다

나 (na) - "I"
나보다 - "than I", "than me"

[Noun Form of The Verb] + 보다

생각하다 (saenggakhada) - "to think"
생각한 것보다 - "than I thought"
생각하는 것보다 - "than thinking"

In This Dialogue

1. 아빠: 아빠보다 엄마가 좋아?
   appa: appa-boda eomma-ga joa?
   Father: "You like mommy more than daddy?"
2. 아들: 아빠보다 엄마가 좋아!
   adeul: appa-boda eomma-ga joa!
   Son: "I like mommy more than daddy!"
3. 아들: 아빠보다 엄마가 단순해.
   adeul: appa-boda eomma-ga dansunhae.
   Son: "Mommy is simpler than daddy."

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanization	"English"
너보다 내가 똑똑해. [똑똑하다]	neo-boda nae-ga ttokttokhae	"I'm smarter than you."
이것보다 싼 거 있어요? [싸다] [있다]	igeot-boda ssan geo isseoyo?	"Do you have anything cheaper than this?"
라면보다 밥이 맛있어요. [맛있다]	ramyeon-boda bab-i masisseoyo.	"Rice is more delicious than noodles."
버스보다 택시가 편해요. [편하다]	beoseu-boda taeksi-ga pyeonhaeyo.	"Taxis are more convenient than buses."
오늘보다 내일이 좋아요. [좋다]	oneul-boda naeil-i joayo.	"Tomorrow is better than today."

☞ Remember ☜

We often add 더 (deo) before the descriptive verb or adverb to emphasize the meaning.

For example:

너보다 내가 예뻐 = 너보다 내가 더 예뻐.

GRAMMAR

"What Are You Doing?" 뭐 해?

뭐 해 (mwo hae) is an expression to ask, "what are you doing?" 뭐 (mwo) means "what" and 해 (hae) is the verb for "to do." Look up (하다) in the dictionary. You can make this more polite by saying, "뭐 해요?" (mwo haeyo). In addition, if you know the noun that indicates what you're doing now, you can use that word in place of 뭐 (mwo).

Examples:

1. If you know the word for "studying," which is 공부 (gongbu):
   A. 뭐 해? (Mwo hae?) "What are you doing?" (intimate)
   B. 공부 해. (Gongbu hae.) "I'm studying." (intimate)
2. If you know the word for "cooking," which is 요리 (yori):
   A. 뭐 해요? (Mwo haeyo?) "What are you doing?"
   B. 요리 해요. (Yori haeyo.) "I'm cooking."

♣ More Examples ♣

Here are some of the most common answers to the question, 뭐 해 (mwo hae), using the verb 해 (hae).

1. 일 해. (Il hae.) -"I'm working." (intimate)
2. 공부 해. (Gongbu hae.) "I'm studying." (intimate)
3. 청소 해. (Cheongso hae.) "I'm cleaning." (intimate)
4. 컴퓨터 해요. (Keompyuteo haeyo.) "I'm using my computer."
5. 전화 해요. (Jeonhwa haeyo.) "I'm on the phone."

"Now" 지금

지금 (jigeum) means "now," and in Korean, the word 지금 (jigeum) usually comes before the verb.

Example:

(지금 뭐 해?) "What are you doing now?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Here are some of the more common expressions using 지금:

1. 지금 어디예요? (Jigeum eodi-yeyo?) "Where are you now?"
2. 지금 몇 시예요? (Jigeum myeot si-yeyo?) "What time is it now?"
3. 지금 있어요? (Jigeum isseoyo?) "Do you have it now?"
4. 지금 없어요. (Jigeum eopseoyo.) "I don't have it now."
5. 지금 바빠요. (Jigeum bappayo.) "I'm busy at the moment."

In This Dialogue:

Expressions from the dialogue using 뭐 해 (mwo hae) and 지금 (jigeum):

1. 지금 뭐 해? (Jigeum mwo hae?) "What are you doing now?"
2. 요리 해. (Yori hae.) "I'm cooking."
3. 지금 청소 해. (Jigeum cheongso hae.) "I'm cleaning now."
4. 빨래 해. (Ppallae hae.) "I'm doing the laundry."

GRAMMAR

"Again" 또

또 (tto) is the word that means "again," and just like in English, this word can give off various nuances depending on the tone of speech by the speaker.

Examples:

1. If you say it plainly, it just means "again" or "once again." For example:
   A. 또 보자! (Tto boja!) "See you again!" (intimate)
2. If you say it with a rising tone, you can express sarcasm or surprise, like in this lesson's dialogue.
   A. 아이스크림 먹자. (Aiseukeurim meokja.) "Let's eat ice cream." (intimate)
   B. 또??? (Tto???) "Again???" (intimate)

♣ More Examples ♣

4. 좀 어려워요. (Jom eoryeowoyo.) "It's a bit difficult."

"It's easy" 쉬워

쉬워 (swiwo) is the verb that means "to be easy" in the present tense. Look up 쉽다 (swipda) in the dictionary. You can make it more polite by saying 쉬워요 (swiwoyo), and you can put the subject of the sentence, "A," before the verb to mean that "A is easy."

Note: The usage of the subject/topic markers, 은/는/이/가 is the same as 어려워 (eoryeowo).

In This Dialogue:

1. 존: 영어? 쉬워!
   Jon: Yeongeo? Swiwo!
   John: English? It's easy!
2. 재은: 한국어 쉬워.
   Jaeeun: Hangugeo swiwo.
   Jaeeun: No, Korean is easy.
3. 재은: 한국어 정말 쉬워.
   Jaeeun: Hangugeo jeongmal swiwo.
   Jaeeun: Korean is really easy.

♣ More Examples ♣

Here are some common expressions using 쉬워 (swiwo):

1. Jinjja swiwoyo. (진짜 쉬워요.) "It's really easy."
2. Saenggak-boda swiwoyo. (생각보다 쉬워요.) "It's easier than I thought."
3. Neomu swiwoyo. (너무 쉬워요.) "It's too easy" (for me).

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Asking "How Is It?" (어때요?) in Korean 이거는 어때요?
"How about this one?"

어때요? (eottaeyo) is a question that means "how is it" or "what is it like?" You can also use this expression to ask "how about + something" or "how about + doing something?"

Different from in English, 어때요 (eottaeyo) comes at the last part of the sentence.

For Example:

맥주 (maekju, or "beer") + 는 + 어때요?
= Beer + topic marker + how about?
= "How about some beer?"

We often drop the subject/topic markers (은/는/이/가) after the noun in casual conversations.

For Example:

맥주는 어때요? becomes 맥주 어때요?

In This Dialogue

---

1. 점원: 이거는 어때요?
   jeomwon: igeo-neun eottaeyo?
   Clerk: "How about this one?"
2. 점원: 이거는 어때요?
   jeomwon: igeo-neun eottaeyo?

Clerk: "How about this one?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Common expressions using 어때요? (eottaeyo):

Korean	Romanization	"English"
오늘 어때요?	Oneul eottaeyo?	"How about today?"
나 어때?	Na eottae?	"How about me?" / "How do I look today?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "I Want to Do (something) in Korean 음... 외식 하고 싶어.
"Hmm...I want to eat out!"

하고 싶어 (hago sipeo) means "I want to do + something" and you can add a noun for any kind of activity before this phrase. You can make this phrase more polite by saying 하고 싶어요 (hago sipeoyo).

Check out the Dictionary in the Learning Center to search for the words you want to say with this phrase and listen to the pronunciation of the words as well.

In This Dialogue

In this lesson's dialogue, 세호 asked 지은 what she wants to do by using the word 뭐 (mwo), which means "what" or sometimes "something."

1. 세호: 생일 축하해! 뭐 하고 싶어?
   seho: saengil chukahae! mwo hago sipeo?
   Seho: "Happy birthday! What do you want to do?"
2. 지은: 음... 외식 하고 싶어.
   jieun: eum... oesik hago sipeo.
   Jieun: "Hmm...I want to eat out!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Common expressions using 하고 싶어 (hago sipeo):

Korean	Romanized	"English"
안 하고 싶어. (intimate)	An hago sipeo.	"I don't want to do it."
얘기 하고 싶어. (intimate)	Yaegi hago sipeo.	"I want to talk."
연애 하고 싶어. (intimate)	Yeonae hago sipeo.	"I want to date someone."
공부 하고 싶어. (intimate)	Gongbu hago sipeo.	"I want to study."
이렇게 하고 싶어요.	Ireoke hago sipeoyo.	"I want to do it this way."

먹고 싶어
"I Want to Eat"

먹고 싶어 (meokgo sipeo) means "I want to eat + something" and you can add a noun for any kind of food before this phrase. You can make this phrase more polite by saying 먹고 싶어요 (meokgo sipeoyo). Note that while in English, you can say "I ate" or "I want to eat" on its own to deliver sufficient meaning, in Korean you must always add a noun that indicates a type of food. Normally, in order to make a good equivalent for simple phrases such as "I ate" or "I want to eat," you add 밥 (bap), which means rice.

For example:

1. Did you eat?
   literally: 먹었어? (meogeosseo?)
   ▷ More naturally = 밥 먹었어? (bap meogeosseo?)

In This Dialogue

1. 세호: 외식? 좋아! 뭐 먹고 싶어?
   seho: oesik? joa! mwo meokgo sipeo?
   Seho: "Eat out? Okay! What do you want to eat?"
2. 지은: 음... 갈비! 갈비 먹고 싶어!
   jieun: eum... galbi! galbi meokgo sipeo!
   Jieun: "Well...galbi? I want to eat galbi!"
3. 세호: 갈비? (돈을 세는 소리) 라면 먹고 싶어?
   seho: galbi? ramyeon meokgo sipeo?
   Seho: "Galbi? (counting money) Do you want to eat ramyeon?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Common expressions using 먹고 싶어 (meokgo sipeo)

Korean	Romanized	"English"
배 고파요. 밥 먹고 싶어요.	Bae gopayo. Bap meokgo sipeoyo.	"I'm hungry. I want to eat."
추워요. 따뜻한 거 먹고 싶어요.	Chuwoyo. Ttatteutan geo meokgeo sipeoyo.	"I'm cold. I want to eat something warm."
뭐 먹고 싶어요?	Mwo meokgo sipeoyo?	"What do you want to eat?"
배 안 고파요. 안 먹고 싶어요.	Bae an gopayo. An meokgo sipeoyo.	"I'm not hungry. I don't want to eat."
더 먹고 싶어? (intimate)	Deo meokgo sipeo?	"Do you want to eat some more?"

이거 뭐예요?	내일도 올게.
igeo mwo-yeyo?	naeil-do olge.
"What is this?"	"I'll come again tomorrow."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "It's Expensive" or "It's Cheap" in Korean 너무 비싸요.
"It's too expensive."

비싸요 (bissayo) is an expression that means "it's expensive." You can add a noun that you consider expensive before this verb. Look up 비싸다 (bissada) in the dictionary.

For example:

1. 가방 (gabang) "bag" + 비싸요.
   가방 비싸요.
   gabang bissayo
   "The bag is expensive."

In This Dialogue

---

1. 윤희: 너무 비싸요.
   yunhui: neomu bissayo.
   Yunhui: "It's too expensive."
2. 윤희: 너무 비싸요. 이거는 얼마예요?
   yunhui: neomu bissayo. igeo-neun eolma-yeyo?
   Yunhui: "It's too expensive. How much is this one?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Common expressions using 비싸요

Korean	Romanized	"English"
조금 비싸요.	Jogeum bissayo.	"It's a little bit expensive."
아니에요. 안 비싸요.	Anieyo. An bissayo.	"No, it's not expensive."
이게 더 비싸요.	Ige deo bissayo.	"This one is more expensive."
서울은 집값이 비싸요.	Seoul-eun jipgaps-i bissayo.	"In Seoul, houses are expensive."

- 싸요
"It's Cheap"

싸요 (ssayo) is an expression that means "it's cheap." You can add a noun that you consider inexpensive before this verb. Look up 싸다 (ssada) in the dictionary.

In This Dialogue

---

1. 점원: 이거는 싸요. 이만원이예요.
   jeomwon: igeo-neun ssayo. imanwon-ieyo.
   Clerk: "This one is cheap. It's 20,000 won."
2. 윤희: 와. 정말 싸요... 음... 다시 올게요.
   yunhui: wa. jeongmal ssayo... eum... dasi olgeyo.
   Yunhui: "Wow. It's very cheap. Well, I'll come again."

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 진짜 싸요. 이거 사세요.
   Jinjja ssayo. Igeo saseyo.
   "It's really cheap. Buy this one."
2. 여기 싸고 맛있어요.
   Yeogi ssago masisseoyo.
   "This place is cheap and delicious."
3. 별로 안 싸요.
   Byeollo an ssayo.
   "It's not so cheap."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

다시 올게요. 또 올게요.
"I will come again."

When you're leaving a shop after browsing for a while, there's a variety of ways to say "goodbye."

For example:

1. 안녕히 계세요
   annyeonghi gyeseyo
   "Goodbye."

2. 많이 파세요 mani paseyo literally, "Sell a lot."
3. 감사합니다
   gamsahamnida
   "Thank you."

And another way of saying good bye to a shop clerk is 다시 올게요 or 또 올게요.

다시 올게요 (dasi olgeyo) and 또 올게요 (tto olgeyo) both literally mean "I will come again." However, you hear this most often when people are not going to buy anything from the shop and are just going to leave. So even when you hear someone say, 또 올게요 in a shop, it doesn't mean he or she will really come back to buy something later.

당근 맛없어. danggeun mateopsseo. "Carrots are not delicious."	목 말라. 물 줘. mok malla. mul jwo. "I'm thirsty. Give me some water."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying, "Shall I Give You?" and "Give Me" in Korean 커피 줄까?
"Shall I give you some coffee?"

줄까 (julkka) is a way to ask someone if he/she wants you to give him/her something. 줄까 is in the intimate politeness level, so make sure that you only use this expression with your close friends. If you want to be more polite, you can say 드릴까요? (deurilkkayo?). This can be literally translated as "Shall I give you + (something)," but a more natural equivalent can be "Do you want + (something)?" The object that you're referring to comes before 줄까? Look up 주다 (juda) in the dictionary.

In This Dialogue

---

1. 수경: 커피 줄까?
   sugyeong: keopi julkka?
   Sugyeong: "Shall I give you some coffee?"
2. 수경: 아니... 녹차 없어. 콜라 줄까?
   sugyeong: ani... nokcha eopseo. kolla julkka?
   Sugyeong: "No...I don't have green tea. Shall I give you some cola?"

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 뭐 줄까?
   Mwo julkka?
   "What shall I give you?" / "What do you want?"
2. 더 줄까?
   Deo julkka?

"Do you want some more?"

3. 커피 줄까, 녹차 줄까?
   Keopi julkka, nokcha julkka?
   "Do you want coffee or tea?"

4. 이거 줄까?
   Igeo julkka?
   "Do you want to have this?"

줘
"Give Me"

줘 (jwo) is a way to ask someone to give you something, and the verb is in its intimate politeness level. Look up 주다 (juda) in the dictionary. You can make it more polite by saying 주세요 (juseyo), which you can use in shops and restaurant.

In This Dialogue

---

1. 현주: 응. 콜라 줘.
   hyeonju: eung. kolla jwo.
   Hyeonju: "Yeah, give me some cola."

2. 현주: 에잇! 아무거나 줘!
   hyeonju: eit! amugeona jwo!
   Hyeonju: "What...just give me anything!"

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 나도 줘.
   Na-do jwo.
   "Give me that, too."

2. 돈 줘.
   Don jwo.
   "Give me money."

3. 빨리 줘.
   Ppalli jwo.
   "Give it to me quick."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

아무거나
On the menus?

When you go to Korea and go to a pub, you can often see the name 아무거나 (amugeona, "whatever, anything") among many titles of dishes or liquors in the menu. 아무거나 is used as a title for a side dish in many bars because a lot of people say 아무거나 when they're not sure what to order. So over time, 아무거나 has come to mean the biggest side dish special with a lot of different small side dishes in it.

SAMPLE SENTENCES

저는 커피를 별로 좋아하지 않아요. jeo-neun keopi-reul byeollo joahaji anayo. "I don't particularly like coffee."	이거 정말 맛있어요. igeo jeongmal masisseoyo. "This is really delicious."
가방이 너무 무거워요. gabangi neomu mugeowoyo. "The bag is too heavy."	거실이 너무 좁아요. geosiri neomu jobayo. "The living room is too small."
진짜 배고파요. jinjja baegopayo "I'm really hungry."	나 여기 있어. Na yeogi isseo. "I'm over here."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing "It's Spicy" 매워요 in Korean 윽.... 아.... 진짜 매워요.
"Ah...it's really spicy."

매워요 (maewoyo) means "it's spicy." As you know, the Korean cuisine includes a lot of spicy dishes, therefore, naturally 매워요 (maewoyo) is a very commonly used phrase when eating something spicy. You can put 안 (an) before 매워요 to mean "it's NOT spicy." Look up the word 맵다 (maepda) in the dictionary.

In This Dialogue

In this lesson's dialogue, 사토코 (satoko) is a Japanese girl who is more accustomed to less spicy foods and finds the food very spicy.

Korean	Romanization	"English"
사토코: 음... 매워요?	satoko: eum... maewoyo?	Satoko: "Hmm...is it spicy?"
사토코: 윽.... 아.... 진짜 매워요.	satoko: euk... a... jinjja maewoyo.	Satoko: "Ah...It's really spicy."
사토코: 안 매워요?	satoko: an maewoyo?	Satoko: "It's not spicy?"
사토코: 아... 너무 매워요...	satoko: a... neomu maewoyo...	Satoko: "Ah...it's too spicy."

♣ More Examples ♣

Common expressions using 매워요 (maewoyo):

Korean	Romanization	"English"
너무 매워요.	Neomu maewoyo.	"It's too spicy."
이 김치 안 매워요.	I gimchi an maewoyo.	"This kimchi is not spicy."
이 고추 안 매워요?	I gochu an maewoyo?	"Is this pepper not spicy?"
양파가 너무 매워요.	Yangpa-ga neomu maewoyo.	"The onion is too spicy."
마늘이 매워. (intimate)	Maneul-i maewo.	"The garlic is spicy."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

안 매워요? 매운 음식 잘 먹어요?
"I don't think the food is spicy. Can you eat spicy food?"

Even though Korean people all know that other countries and cultures also have spicy dishes, they always tend to think that some typically spicy Korean dishes are too spicy for people from other countries. One of the most common questions that you will get when you go to Korea is, "Can you eat spicy food?" The question will go like, "매운 음식 잘 먹어요?" (maeun eumsik jal meogeoyo?), which literally means "Do you eat spicy food well?"

If you're fond of spicy food, you can answer the question with 네, 매운 음식 좋아해요 (ne, maeun eumsik joahaeyo), meaning "Yes, I like spicy food." If you want to tell people that you don't think the food is spicy, you can say 안 매워요 (an maewoyo).

여보 뭐 해? yeobo mwo hae? "Honey, what are you doing?"	그래도 사랑해요. geuraedo saranghaeyo. "Still, I love you."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying, "Get Out" and "Come in" in Korean 빨리 나가!
"Get out of here quick!"

나가 (naga) is the verb that means "to go out" or "to get out" in its present tense and the intimate politeness level. Look up 나가다 (nagada) in the dictionary. You can make it sound a little more polite by saying 나가요 (nagayo). We can use 나가 (naga) as an imperative sentence, but also as a plain sentence if you add other words.

Example:

Imperative:

1. 나가.
   naga.
   "Get out."

Plain:

1. 나 지금 나가.
   na jigeum naga.
   "I'm going out now."

Note: 나 means, "I." 지금 means, "now."

In This Dialogue

In this lesson's dialogue, the angry wife is yelling at the scared husband.

1. 무서운 아내: (유리 깨지는 소리) 나가! 빨리 나가! museoun anae: naga! ppalli naga!
   Scary wife: (glass breaks) "Get out of here! Get out of here quick!"
2. 무서운 아내: 나가!
   museoun anae: naga!
   Scary wife: "Get out!!"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanization	"English"
내 방에서 나가.	Nae bang-eseo naga.	"Get out of my room."
밖으로 나가요.	Bakk-euro nagayo.	"Please go outside."
언제 나가?	Eonje naga?	"When are you going out?"
오늘 밖에 나가?	Oneul bakk-e naga?	"Are you going outside today?"

빨리 들어와!!!!
Come in quick!!

들어와 (deureowa) means "come in." You can say this as an imperative phrase as well as a plain sentence. 들어와요 (deureowayo) and 들어오세요 (deureooseyo) are more polite versions of this phrase. Look up 들어오다 (deureooda) in the dictionary.

Note: In English you can say "come in" even when you are outside and going into a place. However in Korean, 들어와 is only for a person who is inside to say to someone who's outside.

In This Dialogue

---

1. 무서운 아내: (한숨) 그래... 알았어. 들어와.
   museoun anae: geurae... arasseo. deureowa.
   Scary wife: (sigh) "Okay...I got it. Come in."
2. 무서운 아내: 빨리 들어와!!!!
   museoun anae: ppalli deureowa!!!
   Scary wife: "Come in quick!!"

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 들어오세요.
   Deureooseyo.
   "Please come in."
2. 들어와. 내 방이야. (intimate)
   Deureowa. Nae bang-iya.
   "Come on in. It's my room."
3. 잠깐 들어와. (intimate)
   Jamkkan deureowa.
   "Why don't you come inside for a second?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Saying, "Wait" 기다려 하나야, 조금만 기다려.
"Hana, wait just a little bit."

기다려 (gidaryeo) is...the verb that means "to wait" in its present tense and the intimate politeness level. Look up 기다리다 (gidarida) in the dictionary. You can add -요 (yo) at the end to make it more polite. We can use 기다려 (gidaryeo) as a plain sentence as well as an imperative.

In This Dialogue

Expressions using 기다려 (gidaryeo) in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 승현: 하나야, 조금만 기다려.
   seunghyeon: hanaya, jogeumman gidaryeo.
   Seunghyeon: "Hana, wait just a little bit."
2. 승현: 기다려! 조금만!

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "It's Salty"(짜) and "It Tastes Flat" (싱거워) 우엑... 너무 짜!
"Yuck...it's too salty!"

짜 (jja) means "It's salty." It's in the intimate politeness level. You can add -요 at the end to be more polite. Look up 짜다 (jjada) in the dictionary.

In This Dialogue

Expressions using 짜 in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 정선: 너무 짜! 이거 못 먹어!
   jeongseon: neomu jja! igeo mot meogeo!
   Jeongseon: "It's too salty! I can't eat this!"
2. 진아: 짜?
   jina: jja?
   Jina: "Salty?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanization	"English"
많이 짜요?	Mani jjayo?	"Is it too salty?"
안 짜? (intimate)	An jja?	"Isn't it salty?"
어떤 한국 음식은 짜요.	Hanguk eumsik-eun jjayo.	"Some Korean food is salty."
이제 안 짜요?	Ije an jjayo?	"Is it not salty now?"

아... 싱거워!
"Ah...it tastes flat."

싱거워 (singgeowo) means, "It tastes flat." It's in the intimate politeness level. You can add -요 at the end to be more polite. Look up 싱겁다 (singgeopda) in the dictionary. Since many Korean dishes contain a lot of salt, we can also translate 싱거워 (singgeowo) as, "It needs more salt."

In This Dialogue

Expressions using 싱거워 in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 정선: 싱거워!
   jeongseon: singgeowo!
   Jeongseon: "It tastes flat."
2. 진아: 진짜? 싱거워? 소금 있어?
   jina: jinjja? singgeowo? sogeum isseo?
   Jina: "Really? It's flat? Do you have salt?"

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanization	"English"
국이 너무 싱거워요.	Guk-i neomu singgeowoyo.	"The soup tastes too flat."
아직도 싱거워요.	Ajikdo singgeowoyo.	"It still tastes flat." / "It still needs more salt."
많이 싱거워? (intimate)	Mani singgeowo?	"Does it need a lot more salt?"
안 싱거워? (intimate)	An singgeowo?	"Doesn't it taste flat?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Dishes

Since Korean dishes often contain a lot more salt than dishes of other countries, this word will be very useful when you want to say a certain food is too salty for you. Even Korean people consider a dish that is either too salty or too flat to be of bad taste. Therefore, knowing how to say "It's salty" and "It's flat" is important.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying, "So-so" / "Not Particularly" - 별로 다 별로예요.
"They are all so-so."

별로 (byeollo) means, "so-so" or "not particularly" and we can use it in a variety of contexts. If you only use it on its own, 별로 (byeollo) means "so-so." If you use it in negative sentences, it means "not so" or "not very."

For Example:

1. A: 이거 맛있어?
   igeo masisseo?
   "Is this delicious?"
2. B: 별로.
   byeollo
   "So-so."
3. A: 이거 비싸?
   *igeo b*issa?
   "Is this expensive?"
4. B: 별로 안 비싸.
   byeollo an bissa
   "It's not very expensive."

In This Dialogue

Expressions using별로 (byeollo) in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 아내: 별로예요.
   anae: byeollo-yeyo.
   Wife: "So-so."
2. 아내: 다 별로예요.

지금 어디 있어? jigeum eodi isseo? "Where are you now?"	저도 몰라요. jeo-do mollayo. "I don't know either."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "On Top of" (위에) and "Below" (밑에) 소파 위에 있어?
"Is it on the sofa?"

위에 (wi-e) means "on top of, over," or "above." This is a combination of two words: 위 (wi), meaning "up" or "above," and 에 (e), which means "at, to," or "in." Therefore together, 위 + 에 (wi-e) has the meaning of "on top of (something)." The word that 위에 (wi-e) modifies comes before 위에 (wi-e). When we use 위에 (wi-e) on its own, it means "up there."

For Example:
Noun + 위에 = "on top of/over/above" + Noun

1. 자동차 (jadongcha) "car"
   +
   위에 (wi-e) "on top of"
   Becomes -
   자동차 위에 jadongcha wi-e
   "on top of the car" / "on the car"

In This Dialogue

Expressions using 위에 (wi-e) in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 남편: 소파 위에 있어?
   nampyeon: sopa wi-e isseo?
   Husband: "Is it on the sofa?"
2. 남편: 아!... 있어... 텔레비전 위에 있어.
   nampyeon: a!... isseo... tellebijeon wi-e isseo.
   Husband: "Oh...! I found it. It's on the TV."

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
책상 위에 있어.	Chaeksang wi-e isseo.	"It's on the table."
책상 위에 놔.	Chaeksang wi-e nwa.	"Please put it on the table."
책상 위에 없어.	Chaeksang wi-e eopseo.	"It's not on the table."
위에 있어요.	Wi-e isseoyo.	"It's up there."
거기 위에 봐.	Geogi wi-e bwa.	"Check up there."

소파 밑에 있어?
"Is it under the sofa?"

밑에 (mit-e) means "below, under," or "beneath." 밑에 (mit-e) is a combination of two words, 밑 (mit) and 에 (e). 밑 (mit) is a noun that means, "under, below," or "beneath." 에 (e) means, "at, to," or "in." So together, 밑에 (mit-e) means, "under (something)." The word that 밑에 (mit-e) modifies comes before 밑에 (mit-e). When we use 밑에 (mit-e) on its own, it means "under there."

For Example:
Noun + 밑에 = "under/below/beneath" + Noun

1. 의자 (uija) "chair"
   +
   밑에 (mit-e) "under"
   Becomes -
   의자 밑에 uija mit-e
   "under the chair"

In This Dialogue

Expressions using 밑에 (mit-e) in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 남편: 소파 밑에 있어?
   nampyeon: sopa mit-e isseo?
   Husband: "Is it under the sofa?"
2. 아내: 몰라요. 책상 밑에 없어요?
   anae: mollayo. chaeksang mit-e eopsseoyo?

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying the Days of The Week in Korean 화요일에 가.
"I'm going this Tuesday."

We express the days of the week in Korean by adding the word 요일 (yoil) to the end of the letter that represents each day. The names are based on the Chinese characters that represent different things in nature.

Name	Chinese Character	Meaning	Days
일	日 (il)	Sun	일요일 (iryoil)
월	月 (wol)	Moon	월요일 (woryoil)
화	火 (hwa)	Fire	화요일 (hwayoil)
수	水 (su)	Water	수요일 (suyoil)
목	木 (mok)	Tree	목요일 (mogyoil)
금	金 (geum)	Steel	금요일 (geumyoil)
토	土 (to)	Earth	토요일 (toyoil)

Sometimes, when referring to several days of the week, we only use the first letters.

For Example:

1. 월화수 (wolhwasu)
   "Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday"
2. 월수금 (wolsugeum)
   "Monday, Wednesday, Friday"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is "More" - 더
음... 약 더 먹어.
"Hmm...take more medicine."

더 (deo) means "more" and we use it in the same way as the English word "more" in a sentence. We can use it as a noun, an adjective, or an adverb, and it comes before the word that it modifies.

Example:

1. 비싸요.
   bissayo.
   "It's expensive."
   더 (deo) + 비싸요 (bissayo)
   "It's + more + expensive."

In This Dialogue

Expressions using 더 (deo) in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 미아: 아... 더 아파.
   mia: a... deo apa.
   Mia: "Oh...it's getting worse."
2. 지은: 더? 음... 약 더 먹어.
   jieun: deo? eum... yak deo meogeo.
   Jieun: "Worse? Hmm...take more medicine."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is "First, Before Someone/Something" 먼저 아 무서워. 먼저 해.
"Oh, I'm scared. You go first."

먼저 (meonjeo) means, "first" or "before" someone or something. We can use 먼저 (meonjeo) to indicate the order of certain actions or to start a speech or conversation. When we use it to start a speech, it's understood as "before anything" or "first of all."

Example:

1. 먼저 (meonjeo) + 가 (ga) = "first" + "you go"
   "You go first." ("I'll go after you.")
2. 먼저, 와 주셔서 감사합니다
   meonjeo, wa jusyeoseo gamsahamnida
   "First of all, thank you for coming."

우와! 진짜 예뻐! uwa! jinjja yeppeo! "Wow. It's really pretty!"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "Buy it" 사 혜진아 이거 사.
"Hey, Hyejin, buy this."

사 (sa) means, "I buy" or "buy it" in the intimate politeness level, and you can say 사요 (sayo) to be more polite. Look up the word 사다 (sada) in the dictionary. In a sentence, you can put the word for what you are buying in front of this verb. With a rising tone at the end, you can use it as a question, and when the sentence ends in a plain tone, it can be a plain sentence or an imperative, telling someone else to buy something.

For Example:

1. 책 (chaek) "book" + 사 (sa) "buy" =
   책 사? (chaek sa?) "Are you buying a book?"
2. 밥 (bap) "meal" + 사 (sa) "buy" =
   밥 사! (bap sa!) "Buy me food!"

In This Dialogue

Expressions using사다 (sada) in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 언니: 혜진아 이거 사.
   eonni: hyejin-a igeo sa.
   Older sister: "Hey, Hyejin, buy this."
2. 혜진: 언니가 사!!!
   hyejin: eonni-ga sa!!!.
   Hyejin: "You buy them!!!"

mwo-yo? baek-man-won-iyo?

"What? A million won?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "telephone, phone call" 전화번호 좀...
"Your phone number..."

전화 (jeonhwa) means "a telephone," and we can use it as a verb when 하다 (hada), which means "to do," comes at the end. We can combine 전화 (jeonhwa) with various words to form different words that we use very commonly in Korean.

For Example:

1. 전화하다
   jeonhwa + hada
   "to call"
2. 전화 번호
   jeonhwa + beonho
   "phone number"
3. 휴대 전화
   hyudae + jeonhwa
   "portable telephone"

In This Dialogue

Expressions using 전화하다 (jeonhwahada) in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 예쁜 여자: 여기요. 전화해요.
   yeppeun yeoja: yeogiyo. jeonhwahaeyo.
   Pretty girl: "Hey, here it is. Call me."
2. 소심한 남자: 정말요? 전화해요?

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Asking, "What do you do?" to Discuss Professions 미선 씨, 어머니는 뭐 하세요?
"Miseoun, what does your mother do?"

뭐 하세요? (mwo haseyo?) literally means "what are you doing?" or "what do you do?" 뭐 (mwo) means "what" and 하세요 (haseyo) is a way of saying that someone does something. But you can use this expression to ask about someone's profession, especially when you are starting to get to know more about a new person or his/her family. You can put a person's name or title before this expression to show to whom you're referring.

For Example:

1. 아버지 (abeoji) "father"
   +
   뭐 하세요? (mwo haseyo?) "What does he do?"
   = "What does your father do?"
2. 언니 (eonni) "older sister for a female"
   +
   뭐 하세요? (mwo haseyo?) "What does she do?"
   = "What does your older sister do?"

In This Dialogue

Expressions using 뭐 하세요? (mwo haseyo?) in this lesson's dialogue:

1. 남희: 미선 씨, 어머니는 뭐 하세요?
   namhui: miseon ssi, eomeoni-neun mwo haseyo?
   Namhui: "Miseon, what does your mother do?"
2. 남희: 아... 아버지는 뭐 하세요?
   namhui: a... abeoji-neun mwo haseyo?
   Namhui: "Oh...what does your father do?"

More Vocabulary:

Here is some more Korean vocabulary to help you discuss members of your family and their professions!

"Members of the Family"	Korean	Romanized

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

제 (je) "my"

제 (je) is the simplified form of the two words 저 (jeo) meaning "I" and 의 (ui), the possessive particle meaning something like "of." The word 저의 (jeo-ui) literally means "of I" or "mine."

In daily conversation, Korean people say 제 (je) instead of 저의 (jeo-ui) to mean "mine." Please note that you can use this word only in formal situations, as 저 (jeo) is the humble pronoun.

If you're saying "my" in casual conversation, you can say 내 (nae), the simplified version of the word 나 (na) meaning "I" and 의 (ui), the possessive particle.

Using the same pattern, 네 (ne) is the simplified way to say 너의 (neo-ui, meaning "your"), and 걔 (gyae) is the way to say 그 애의 (geu ae-ui meaning "his").

For example:

1. 제 이름은 김우진입니다. 제 고향은 서울입니다.
   je ireumeun gim-ujin imnida. je gohyangeun seoul-imnida.
   "My name is Kim, Ujin. My hometown is Seoul."

이름 (ireum) "name"

You can use this word to mean "name" in general. It can be used to mean "title" too, as in 책의 이름 (chaegui ireum) meaning "the title of a book" or 영화 이름 (yeonghwa ireum) meaning "movie title."

You can use the word 이름 (ireum) in both formal and informal situations.

For extra formal situations where you need to show more respect, like business meetings or asking your teacher's name, it's better to use a different word, 성함 (seongham). For example, you can say 그 분의 성함은... (geu bunui seonghameun...) to mean "his name is..." when you're respectfully addressing someone in a higher position. In legal documents, you can also find the word 성명 (seong-myeong) which means "name." Both 성함 (seongham) and 성명 (seongmyeong) can be used only for addressing someone's name.

When you're answering a question about your name, it sounds more natural if you don't use the word 이름 (ireum) in your answer. For example, you can simply say 저는 김운수입니다. (j*eoneun gim-un-su-imnida.*) which means "I'm Kim Unsu" instead of 제 이름은 김운수입니다 (je ireumeun gim-un-su-imnida.) which means "My name is Kim Unsu."

For Example:

1. 이 책의 이름은 '어린왕자'입니다.
   ichaegui irumeun 'eo-rinwang-ja imnida.
   "The name of this book is Little Prince."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is the Topic Marking Particles 은 (eun) and 는 (neun) 안녕하세요. 제 이름은 김영희입니다. 만나서 반가워요.
Annyeonghaseyo. Je ireumeun gimyeonghui-imnida. Mannaseo bangaweoyo.
"Hello. I'm Kim Yeonghui. It's nice to meet you."

은 (eun) and 는 (neun) are called topic marking particles and are placed after a noun to make it the topic under discussion. Using the topic particle is one way to designate a noun as the subject of a particular sentence.

Here are three main functions of these topic marking particles.

Function 1: To Bring Attention To or Give a Reminder About the Topic

---

When there isn't a specific topic being talked about in a conversation, the topic marking particle can be used to bring attention to what the speaker wants to talk about. When nothing is being said by either party in a conversation, and a speaker wishes to bring up a topic to talk about, the topic marking particle can be used to introduce a new topic to a conversation.

Function 2: To Clarify the Topic

If a topic has already been introduced into the conversation, it is old information. If it is old information, it is no longer necessary to mention the topic again (topics and subjects may be dropped in sentences). But if the speaker wishes to clarify what is being spoken about, the topic marking particle is used to clarify the topic of the sentence.

Note that you need to use a SUBJECT marking particle when you introduce a topic or a noun for the first time. This will be examined in more detail in lesson 2.

Function 3: To Contrast Two Items

The topic marking particle may be used to contrast items.

For example:

1. 저는 한국 사람입니다
   jeo-neun hanguk saramimnida
   "I'm Korean."
2. 저는 일본 사람입니다
   jeo-neun ilbon saramimnida
   "I'm Japanese."

Sentence 1 uses the topic marking particle because it is bringing a new topic of conversation to attention. Sentence 2 uses the topic marking particle to make the contrast that the person is not Korean, but rather Japanese.

Should you use 은 (eun) or 는 (neun)?

You can use 는 (neun) when the previous syllabic block ends in a vowel.

For Example:

저는 한국사람 입니다. (Jeo-neun han-guk-sa-ram imnida.) "I am Korean."

Noun	Ends in a Vowel	Topic Marking Particle (TMP)	Complement	"Be" Verb	"English"
저 (jeo) "I"	Vowel	는 (neun) "TMP"	한국사람 (han-guk-sa-ram) "Korean"	입니다 (imnida) "to be"	"I am Korean"

For example:

1. 저는
   *jeoneun
   "I am"
   저 (*jeo) ends in an -o sound, which is a vowel. Therefore, it becomes 저는 (jeoneun)
2. 비행기는
   *bihaengineun
   "a plane is"
   비행기 (bihaengi) ends in an -i sound, which is a vowel. Therefore, it becomes 비행기는 (bihaengineun)
3. 커피는
   *keopineun
   "coffee is"
   커피 (keopi) ends in an -i sound, which is a vowel. Therefore, it becomes 커피는 (keopineun)

You can use 은 (eun) when the previous syllabic block ends in a consonant.

For Example:

이름은 데비 입니다. (Ireumeun debi imnida.) "(My) name is Debbie."

Noun	Ends in a Consonant	Topic Marking Particle (TMP)	Complement	"Be" Verb	"English"
이름 (*ireum) "name"	Consonant	은 (eun) "TMP"	데비 (Debbie) "English name"	입니다 (imnida) "to be"	"(My) name is Debbie."

For example:

1. 물은
   *mureun
   "water is"
   물 (*mul) ends in an -l sound, which is a consonant; therefore, it becomes 물은 (mureun)
2. 밥은
   *babeun
   "rice is"
   밥 (bab) ends in a -b sound, which is a consonant; therefore, it becomes 밥은 (babeun)
3. 사랑은
   *sarangeun
   "love is"
   사랑 (sa-rang) ends in a -g sound, which is a consonant; therefore, it becomes 사랑은 (sarangeun)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

When you meet someone for the first time, the conversation will get off to a great start if you can find something you have in common. For example, you can ask the other person if they have been to your home country, then start talking about your country and that person's trip. You can also try to ask more private question such as whether the person has kids, and if they do, how old their kids are. Then you could start talking about life with kids. Even if it's your first time meeting that person, don't worry about asking a few questions so that you can find topic you can both talk about. You will get to know them more quickly, and the conversations you have from then on will go more smoothly.
Useful expression to know:

1. 미국에 간 적 있으세요?
   miguge gan jeok isseuseyo?
   "Have you ever been to the U.S?"

You can replace 미국 with your country name or place name to ask if someone has been to a specific place.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

얼굴이 잘 생기다. (eolguri jal saeng-gida) "(someone is) good-looking."

This literally means "The face is looking good." 얼굴 (eol-gul) is the word meaning "face", 이 (i) is the subject-marking particle that we're going to learn in the lesson focus, 잘 (jal) is the adjective meaning "very well". 생기다 (saeng-gida) is the verb meaning "to become," "to look."

You can use this phrase when a man is a good looking, and it's mostly used for men. In a daily conversation, you use the verb 생기다 (saeng-gi-da) in the past tense as in 생겼다 (saeng-gyeotta), because the face or 얼굴 (eol-gul) was technically 'made' in the past when he was born, not just now.

They should be used as a set, so you cannot replace 얼굴 (eol-gul) with other body parts. But you can omit 얼굴이 (eolguri) and just say 잘 생기다 (jal saeng-gida) to mean someone is good looking.

You cannot use it for women. For them, you can say 얼굴이 예쁘다 (eolguri yeppeuda) literally meaning "literally the face is pretty" or just 예쁘다 (yeppeuda) meaning "pretty." You can use the noun 미남 (minam) as in 그 사람은 미남이다 (geu sarameun minamida.) to mean "He's handsome" too.

For example:

1. 그 배우는 잘 생겼다. 결혼하고 싶다.
   geu baeu-neun jal saenggyeotta. gyeol-hon-hago siptta.
   "The actor is good looking. I want to marry him."

그렇군요 (geureokunyo.) "I see," "I understand."

그렇다 (geureotta) is a verb that you can use to mean "That's right" and -군요 (-gunyo) is the sentence-ending particle that works like "doesn't it?" or "isn't it?" So it literally means "That's right, isn't that." You can use this to say "I see." or "I understand" in English. After you hear an explanation from someone explanation, you can use this expression to help the other person continue the conversation.

In very formal situations, such as a meeting with the CEO of a big company, this expression will be not formal enough. In those cases, you can say 네 (ne). It's pronounced the same way as 네 (ne) or "yes" in Korean, but make sure you hold it longer than usual. In that way, its meaning becomes "I see."

You can also say 아.. (a..) as a filler word. It works the same as 그렇군요 (geureokkunyo.) meaning "I see" but won't bother the other person too much.

Make sure you don't say anything when the other person is speaking, especially when they are older than you, or in a higher position. If you say 그렇군요 (geureokkunyo) too much, it can interrupt the speaker.

For example:

1. 그렇군요. 재미있는 이야기입니다.
   geureokkunyo. jaemi-inneun iyagi-imnida.
   "I see. It's an interesting story."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is the Subject Marking Particles and the Differences Between Topic and Subject Marking Particles.
친구가 한국사람이에요?
Chingu-ga hanguksaramieyo?
"Is he Korean?"

-이/가 (i/ga) is a subject-marking particle. You can use one of these particles to mark a noun as a subject.

We attach this particle to the end of a word to indicate that it's the subject of the sentence. Sometimes we must use 이/가 (i/ga) with certain verbs as they are part of a set. These are 아니다 (anida, "not"), 있다 (itda, "to exist."), and 없다 (eopta, "not to exist.")

Formation

[Noun] + Subject-marking particles 이/가 (i/ga)

Function 1: To mark the subject of the sentence

Generally speaking, the subject marking particle -이/가 (i/ga) is the standard particle used to mark the subject of the sentence.

For example:

1. 여기가 제 집입니다.
   yeogiga je jibimnida.
   "Here is my house."

In this sentence, we used the subject-marking particle 가 (ga) next to the noun 여기 (yeogi) meaning "here" to mark the noun 여기 (yeogi) as the subject of this sentence.

When you want to talk about your house as a topic, you can put 제 집 (je jip) meaning "my house" in front of the sentence, and use the topic-marking particle 은 (eun) instead. For example:

1. 제 집은 여기입니다.
   Je jibeun yeogi-imnida.
   "My house is here."

Function 2: To introduce a subject for the first time

The subject marking particle is used when a subject is introduced for the first time.

For example, when you meet someone for the first time and want to ask his or her name for the first time, you can use the subject-marking particle.

For example:

1. 이름이 무엇입니까?
   ireumi mueossimnikka?
   "What's your name?" (literally, "Your name is what?")

Then the other person will answer using the topic-marking particle 은 (eun) as follows:

1. 제 이름은 마이클입니다.
   je ireumeun mai-keul-imnida.
   "My name is Michael."

The other person will use the topic-marking particle 은 (eun) because you've already started talking about the subject.

Function 3: To talk about exists with the verbs 아니다 (annida) "not", 있다 (itda) "to exist," 없다 (eopta) "not to exist."

There are certain verbs that are used with the subject marking particles as part of a set.

Here are some of the more commonly used verbs that use -이/가 (i/ga) as a set:

● 아니다 / 있다 / 없다
anida / itda / eopta

Generally speaking, whenever the verbs 아니다 (anida), 있다 (itda) and없다 (eoptda) are used in a sentence, the subject marking particle is used as well to mark what exists and what doesn't exist.

For example:

1. 학생이 아닙니다.
   haksaeng-i animnida.
   "(I) am not a student."
2. 선미 씨가 있습니다.
   seonmi ssi-ga isseumnida.
   "Seon Mi is (here)."
3. 선생님이 없습니다.
   seonsaengnim-i eopseumnida.
   "The teacher is not (here)."

The translation for the example sentence above may sound awkward. This is why the verb 있다 (itda) is used to express that someone has something, or that something exists for someone.

Here is the pattern:

Noun 1 + 는(은) + Noun 2 + 가(이) + 있습니다.

For example:

1. 저는 남자친구가 있습니다."
   jeo-neun namjachingu-ga isseumnida.
   "I have a boyfriend." (Literally: "A boyfriend exists for me.")

Further examples:

1. 윤설은 남자친구가 있습니다.
   yunseol-eun namjachingu-ga isseumnida
   "Yunseol has a boyfriend." (Literally: "A boyfriend exists for Yunseol.")
2. 저는 자동차가 있습니다.
   jeo-neun jadongcha-ga isseumnida.
   "I have a car." (Literally: "A car exists for me.")

The differences between topic marking particles and subject marking particles

---

You might be confused by the differences between the topic marking particles and the subject marking particles. Here are the ways to distinguish them.

1.

- If the topic or noun is going to be introduced for the first time: Use subject marking particles.
- If the topic or noun has already been introduced: Use topic marking particles.

2.

- If you're referring to a group of items or people, and you're going to talk about one of them: Use topic marking particles.
- If you only want to talk about one item but not as a part of group: Use subject-marking particles.

For example, when you're talking about three people and want to check whether they did homework or not, you can use topic-marking particles. For example, when someone asks who did the homework and only Michael did it, the conversation might go like this:

1. Q: 누가 숙제를 했습니까?
   nuga sukjereul hasseumnikka?
   "Who did the homework?" (a question about a group of people)
   A: 마이클은 숙제를 했습니다.
   maikeureun sukje-reul hasseumnida.
   "Michael did the homework." (but some of the other classmates did not)

If you want to explain it as a fact, not considering Michael as a part of a group, the conversation will be as follows:

1. Q: 마이클이 숙제를 했습니까?
   maikeuri sukjereul hasseumnikka?

"Did Michael do homework?"
A: 마이클이 숙제를 했습니다.
maikeuri sukjereul hasseumnida.
"Michael did a homework."

Should You Use 이 (i) or 가 (ga)?

The two subject marking particles 이 (i) and 가 (ga) both accomplish the same thing: indicate the subject of the sentence. But they change according to the word they attach to.

You can use 이 (i) when the word it is attaching to ends in a consonant, as in 일본사람이 아닙니다 (ilbonsaram-i animnida). The subject is 일본사람 (ilbonsaram), and it ends in ㅁ (-m), which is a consonant. Therefore, we use 이 (i) here.

For example:

1. 돈이 없어요.
   don-i eobseoyo
   "I don't have money."
   돈 + 이 (don + i)
2. 학생이 아닙니다.
   hakseng-i animnida
   "(I) am not a student." ("I" is inferred)
   학생 + i (hakseng + i)

You can use 가 (ga) when the word it's attaching to ends in a vowel, as in 가수가 아닙니다 (gasu-ga animnida). The subject is 가수 (gasu), and it ends in ㅜ (u), which is a vowel. Therefore, we use 가 (ga) here.

Sample Sentences

1. 의자가 아닙니다.
   uija-ga animnida
   "(It) is not a chair."
2. 저는 미국사람이 아닙니다.
   jeo-neun miguksaram-i animnida
   "I am not American."
3. 우리 아버지는 돈이 없습니다.
   uri abeoji-neun don-i eobseumnida
   "My father does not have money."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Why Do Korean Girls like Tall Guys?

Korean women tend to like taller guys. The average height of Korean men is around 172.5 centimeters or 5.6 feet, but a recent survey showed that Korean girls want to date someone around 180 cm or 5.9 feet, which is taller than average. This means that young Korean men are very interested in ways to make themselves taller when they are young. Drinking milk a lot has been one popular way. Some men also use hidden blocks in their shoes to make them look two or three centimeters (around one inch) taller. Korean women also use these blocks sometimes to make themselves closer to 160-165 cm, which is 5.2 to 5.4 feet.

Useful Expression to Know:

1. 키가 크다, 키가 작다.
   kiga keuda, kiga jakta.
   "tall, short." (literally these mean "The height is tall" and "The height is small." 키 (ki) is the word meaning "height.")

나도 몰라. nado molla. "I don't know either."	와... 맛있겠다! wa... masikketta! "Wow...looks delicious!"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

문법 (munbeop) "grammar"

문 (mun) means "letter" or "text" and 법 (beop) means "law." So it literally means "the law of text."

You'll hear this word a lot when you're learning Korean. Usually, people use the following words when describing the grammar.

1. 문법이 쉽다.
   Munbeobi siptta.
   "Grammar is easy."
2. 문법이 어렵다.
   Munbeobi eoryeopta.
   "Grammar is difficult."
3. 문법이 복잡하다.
   Munbeobi bokjaphada.
   "Grammar is complicated."
4. 문법이 간단하다.
   Munbeobi ganttanhada.
   "Grammar is simple."
5. 문법이 재미있다.
   Munbeobi jaemi-itta.
   "Grammar is interesting."

When you're studying Korean grammar, you'll also need to know the meaning of the following words.

1. 문장 (munjang) meaning "sentence"
2. 단어, 어휘 (daneo, eo-hwi) meaning "vocabulary"
3. 명사 (myeong-sa) meaning "noun"
4. 동사 (dong-sa) meaning "verb"
5. 조사 (josa) meaning "particle"

6. 어미 (eomi) meaning "sentence ending particle"
7. 부사 (busa) meaning "adverb"
8. 대명사 (dae-myeongsa) meaning "pronoun"

For example:

1. 한국어 문법이 어렵습니다.
   Hangugeo munbeobi eoryeopsseumnida.
   "Korean grammar is difficult."

와! (wa) "Wow. Oh."

This is an interjection that works like "wow" or "oh" in English. You can use the word 와 (wa) when you're surprised or want to emphasize that you're impressed by something. For example, you can say 와, when the other person you're speaking to says something surprising or interesting. You can also show your surprise using this word. When you write this word in a letter, make sure you put an exclamation mark. This word can be used in both informal and formal situation.

Make sure you don't put a "U" sound after 와 (wa). Also, using 오 (oh) doesn't sound natural in Korean and sometimes may even sound rude, so it's better to avoid saying it.

You can also say 정말 (jeongmal) or 정말이요 (jeongmariyo) meaning "Really?" as a way to say "Oh" or "interesting." Unlike its literal meaning, you will see Korean people using this word just to show that they're interested in your story even though they don't actually mean "Really?"

For example:

1. 와! 이 게임이 정말 재미있어요.
   Wa! i geimi jeongmal jaemiisseoyo.
   "Wow! This game is really interesting."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is the Object Marking Particles 을 (eul) and 를 (reul.) 지금 무슨 책을 읽고 있어?
Jigeum museun chaegeul ilkko isseo?
"What book are you reading now?"

We use the object-marking particles 을 (eul) and 를 (reul) to mark the object of a sentence when it's attached to a noun. Below are the main functions of these particles.

Function 1: To Mark Objects

These particles only have one function—marking objects.

We often drop particles, such as the object marking particle, in speech, and we simply infer them from the context. The object marking particle is a post position particle that marks the object of the sentence. If a verb requires an object, the post position or object marking particle attaches to the object of the sentence to mark it. -을/를 (eul/reul) mark the object of the sentence, which is the noun that the verb of the sentence is acting upon. This particle is typically used in conjunction with action verbs.

● We attach 을 (eul) to nouns that end in consonants.

● We attach 를 (reul) to nouns that end in vowels.

For example:

1. 나는 너를 잘 모릅니다. (Naneun neoreul jal moreumnida) "I don't know you well enough."
Here, 너 is the word meaning "you" acts as an object of this sentence. The word 너 end in vowels, so you can use the object-marking particle 를 (reul) to mark it as an object.

2. 그는 그들을 잘 압니다. (Geuneun geudeureul jal amnida) "I know them quite well."
In this sentence, you can use the object-marking particle 을 because the pronoun 그들 (gereul, meaning "they") ends in a consonant.

Here are more examples using object marking particles. Note which object marking particles are used in each case.

1. 동생은 컴퓨터를 합니다.
   Dongsaengeun keompyuteoreul hamnida.
   "My younger brother can use a computer. (literally, my younger brother does a computer.)"
2. 그들은 서울을 잘 모릅니다.
   Geudeureun seoureul jal moreumnida.
   "They don't know Seoul that much."
3. 우리는 오락을 합니다.
   Urineun orageul hamnida.
   "We play games."
4. 형은 당신을 잘 압니다.
   Hyongeun dangsineul jal amnida.
   "My older brother know you quite well."

Locating the Object when Particles are Omitted

Particles are often omitted in daily conversation. When that happens, try to remember that Korean is S+O+V sentence.

For example, if someone says..

우리 오락 합니다. (uri orak hamnida.)

...which literally means "We, Games, Play" the first word is the subject, and the second word must be the object. So this sentence means "We play games."

Even if two words are pronouns, for example:

나 너 사랑합니다. (na neo sarang-hamnida.)

...which literally means "I, You, Love," you can figure out that the second one is the object of this sentence, so it will mean "I love you" not "You love me"

Using the Object Marking Particles 을/를 When Talking About Likes

In Korean, there are two ways to say "to like" and "to dislike."

	Group 1: +하다 form	Group 2: +다 form
"to like"	을/를+ 좋아하다 eul/reul + joahada	이/가 or 은/는+ 좋다 i/ga or eun/neun + jota
"to dislike"	을/를+ 싫어하다 eul/reul + sireohada	이/가 or 은/는 + 싫다 i/ga or eun/neun + silta

Both groups mean "to like" and "to dislike," but you can only use object marking particles when you're using the verbs 좋아하다 and 싫어하다.

For the second group, you can only use the subject marking particles 이/가 or the topic marking particles 은/는.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Why do Korean people want to learn other languages?

It's common to find Korean people who speak one or more languages in addition to Korean. Even if they're not as fluent as you'd expect, you won't have a problem being understood if you use simple English. Korean companies set a high bar when they're hiring new employees, so it's essential to get a high score on English tests. Also, many college students and even employees try to learn one or two more languages such as Japanese or Chinese to be able to access more and better job opportunities. This is because most college graduates speak English at a minimum.

Useful expression to know:

1. 저는 영어와 중국어를 말할 수 있어요.
   Jeoneun yeong-eowa jungugeoreul malhal su isseoyo.
   "I speak English and Chinese."

Please note that Koreans use the phrase 할 수 있다 (halsu itta) meaning "to be able to" when they want to say how many languages they speak, even if some of them are their mother tongue.

우리 형은 군인입니다. uri hyeong-eun gunnin-imnida. "My older brother is a soldier."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

디엠지 "DMZ," demilitarized zone"

디엠지 (diemji) is the Korean way to pronounce the word DMZ. In Korean, you're supposed to read "z" as ㅈ (j), so make sure you don't make a "z" sound when reading the last letter of this word. The DMZ is the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea. It runs across the Korean peninsula. It's 4 kilometers (2.5 miles) wide, and barbed-wire fences are installed on both sides.

You can take a tour to the DMZ if you apply in advance. There, you'll be able to see North and South Korean soldiers facing each other at 판문점 (panmunjeom), the only point where you won't see a wire fence between the two Koreas. Korean people also call it 비무장지대 which literally means "demilitarized zone" in Korean or 38선 meaning "38th parallel line" because the zone is located around the 38th parallel.

For example:

1. 내일 디엠지 투어가 있습니다.
   Naeil diemji tueoga isseumnida.
   "I have a DMZ tour tomorrow."

내일 (naeil) "tomorrow"

내 (nae) is a word meaning "to come," and 일 (il) is a word meaning "day." It literally means "the day to come" or "tomorrow."

For "the day after tomorrow," say 내일 모레 (naeil mo-re) which literally means "the day after 내일." Here's the list of other words that you need to know when you're making plans:

1. 그저께 (geujeokke) meaning "the day before yesterday"
2. 어제 (eoje) meaning "yesterday"
3. 오늘 (oneul) meaning "today"
4. 내일 (naeil) meaning "tomorrow"
5. 내일모레 (naeil-mo-re) meaning "the day after tomorrow"

There is also the word 그그저께 (geugeujeokke) which means "the two days before yesterday."

For example:

1. 나는 내일 비행기를 탄다.
   Naneun nae-il bihaeng-gireul tanda.
   "I'll take a flight tomorrow."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of this Lesson Is Sentence Ending Particles
중요한 이야기가 있다. 잘 들어라.
Naega jungyohan iyagi-reul handa. Jal deureora.
"We have an important notice. Listen carefully."

Sentence ending particles are particles you can add at the end of the sentence to mark the politeness level. In this lesson, we're going to take a look at three sentence ending particles:

1. 다 / 이다 - Basic sentence ending particle.
2. ㅂ니다 / 습니다 - Sentence ending particles to turn a sentence into a formal politeness polite level.
3. 요 - Sentence ending particles to make the intimate politeness level.

1. Sentence Ending Particles 다/이다

The affirmative Korean sentence ending particle - the verb that expresses "to be" - is 다 (da) and 이다 (ida).

It can be placed after a noun, or a verb stem. Here are some examples of its formation:

Formation

Noun + 다/이다.

For example:

1. 나는 학생이다.
   Neneun haksaeng-ida.
   "I'm a student."
2. 나는 여자다.
   Naneun yeojada.
   "I'm a woman."

When the noun ends in a vowel, you need to use 다 (da). When it ends in a consonant, you can use 이다 (ida).

2. Sentence Ending Particle ㅂ니다/습니다 (b-nida, seumnida - the Polite Way to Say 다/이다, da/ida) ㅂ니다 (b-nida), and 습니다 (seum-nida) are the sentence ending particles that you can use with verbs. They will turn the verb into present tense, and to the formal politeness level.

Formation

For example, you can conjugate the verb 이다 (ida) meaning "to be" with the sentence ending particle ㅂ니다 to make it sound more polite. Make sure that you omit the 다 at the end of the original verb, and put ㅂ니다 as following.

이다 + ㅂ니다. -> 이(다) + ㅂ니다 -> 이 + ㅂ니다. -> 입니다.

To conjugate 이다 (ida) using this sentence ending, we take the dictionary form of the sentence ending particle 이다 (ida) and remove 다 (da) to get the verb stem 이 (i). From there we add ㅂ 니다 (mnida). 이 (i) + ㅂ 니다 (mnida) = 입니다 (imnida). For verb stems that end in vowels, we attach ㅂ 니다 (mnida), such as in the case of 이다 (ida), the sentence ending particle. For verb stems that end in consonants, we attach 습니다 (seumnida).

Note that when the verb stem ends in a consonant, you need to use 습니다 instead.

See the table below to learn how to conjugate verbs with the ㅂ니다 / 습니다 sentence ending particles.

-ㅂ니다 (verb stems ending with vowel)	-습니다 (verb stems ending with consonant)
가다: 가 + ㅂ니다 -> 갑니다	먹다: 먹 + 습니다 -> 먹습니다
gada: ga + mnida -> gamnida	meokda: meok + seumnida -> meokseumnida
이다: 이 + ㅂ니다 -> 입니다	읽다: 읽 + 습니다 -> 읽습니다
일하다: 일하 + ㅂ니다 -> 일합니다	있다: 있 + 습니다 -> 있습니다

For example:

1. 영수는 학교에 갑니다
   Yeongsu-neun hakgyo-e gamnida.
   "Yeongsu goes to school."
   가(다)+ ㅂ니다 -> 갑니다. (Note: 가다 gada is the verb meaning "to go.")
2. 영수는 일합니다
   Yeongsu-neun ilhamnida.
   "Yeongsu works."
   일하(다)+ ㅂ니다 -> 일합니다. (Note: 일하다 ilhada is the verb meaning "to do work.")
3. 영수는 먹습니다
   Yeongsu-neun meokseumnida.
   "Yonegsu eats."
   먹(다)+ 습니다 -> 먹습니다. (Note: 먹다 meokda is the verb meaning "to eat.")

3. Sentence Ending Particle 요

-요 (-yo) is a post-position politeness marker that is typically use in the standard politeness level. Although -요 and ㅂ니다/습니다 gives sentences a politeness level, -요 makes the sentence into the intimate politeness level, while -ㅂ니다/습니다 makes the sentence into the formal polite level.

It sounds softer and more casual than the sentence ending particle -다 (-da.) Therefore, people use it more often than other sentence ending particles in a daily conversation.

When you conjugate a verb with the sentence ending particle -요 (-yo), you'll need extra elements between the verb stem and this particle. You'll learn more about these in lesson 5.

For example:

1. 바쁘다 (bappeuda) meaning "to be busy"
   바빠 (bappa) meaning "busy" (intimate and casual - non-past)
   바빠요 (bappayo) meaning "busy" (standard polite - non-past)
2. 밝다 (balkda) meaning "to be bright"
   밝아 (balka) meaning "bright" (intimate and casual - non-past)
   밝아요 (balkayo) meaning "bright" (standard polite - non-past)

3. 시원하다 (siwonhada) meaning "to be refreshing"
   시원했어 (siwonhaesseo) meaning "was refreshing" (intimate and casual - past) 시원했어요 (siwonhaesseoyo) meaning "was refreshing" (standard polite - past)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Da or Kka Culture in the Workplace

In the dialogue, the sergeant told the soldier to use 다 (da) and not 요 (yo.) These are the sentence ending particles that we're going to cover in the lesson focus, so you'll learn more about them.
In Korea, there's a culture called 다 나 까. (da na kka). 나 (na) is a word meaning "or" so it literally means 다 (da) or 까 (kka.) If your company has a 다 나 까 (da na kka) culture, that means you'll need to end your sentences with the sentence ending particles 다 (da) or 까 (kka). You cannot use any other particles such as 요 (yo) in a company with this kind of culture. The military is one of the best examples of this culture that you can find. Using only the sentence ending particle 다 (da) or 까 (kka) makes Korean sentences sound more formal and respectful. Since people use the particle 요 (yo) in daily conversation, some companies who require employees to follow their rules strictly will usually have this kind of culture.
Useful expression to know:

1. 다 나 까" 만 사용해.
   Da na kka"man sayonghae.
   "Use the sentence ending particle da or kka only."

Jeoneun bumonimgwa gachi salgo itseumnida.	jidoeseo chajabolkkayo?
"I'm living with my parents."	"Shall we search on the map?"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

잘 먹다. (jal meoktta) "to like [specific food item] a lot"

This literally means "to eat something very well." 잘 (jal) means "well" and 먹다 (meoktta) means "to eat."

When you like a specific food a lot and want to say "I like something a lot so I eat it without any hesitation" you can use this phrase. You put the name of the specific food in front of this phrase, for example, 김치를 잘 먹다 (gimchireul jal meoktta) which means "I like Kimchi a lot" or literally "I eat Kimchi very well." You can also use this as a question, for example, 잘 먹어요? (jal meogeoyo?) meaning "Do you like [food] a lot?" or literally "Do you eat [food] well?" You can also use it to ask if someone likes a specific food. If you want to ask the other person if they can eat a specific food or not, you can omit 잘 meaning "well" and use the verb 먹어요? (meogeoyo?) to just mean "Do you eat?"

You can use this phrase in both formal and informal situations. But when you're respectfully asking someone if they like some kind of food, you need to use the verb 드시다 (deusida), which is the honorific verb meaning "eat." For example, you'd say 김치를 잘 드세요? (gimchireul jal deuseyo?) to ask if the other person likes Kimchi a lot.

For example:

1. 저는 한국 음식을 잘 먹습니다. 사장님은 한국 음식을 잘 드세요?
   Jeoneun hanguk eumsigeul jal meokseumnida. sajang-nim-eul hanguk eumsigeul jal deuseyo?
   "I like Korean foods a lot. Boss, do you like Korean foods a lot?"

레스토랑 (reseutorang) "restaurant"

This is imported from the French word "restaurant." Koreans write it following the French pronunciation where the last syllable is more like 랑 (rang) than 란트 (rant.)

There's another word, 식당 (sikdang), which means "a restaurant" as well. 레스토랑 (reseutorang) and 식당 (sikdang) are used by Koreans for different styles of restaurant. When it's a non-Korean style restaurant or a Korean restaurant that is a bit more expensive, people use the word 레스토랑. For example, you'll hear 이탈리안 레스토랑 (itallian reseutorang) meaning "Italian restaurant," which uses the word 레스토랑 (reseutorang), not 식당 (sikdang), although both words mean "a restaurant." When the price is average or lower than average, people use 식당 (sikdang) to refer to the restaurant. For example, you can say 한국식당 (hanguksikdang) to mean "Korean restaurant" when the price is between 5 and 10 US dollars, and you don't have to worry about the dress code.

If someone just says 레스토랑 (reseutorang) without any words before it like Italian, or Thai, that means it's a restaurant for western-style foods.

For example:

1. 오늘은 결혼기념일입니다. 저녁에 한국음식 레스토랑에 갈 겁니다.
   Oneuneun gyeoron-gimyeomil-imnida. jeonyeoge hanguk-eumsik reseutorang-e gal geomnida.
   "Today is our wedding anniversary. I'll go to a Korean restaurant this evening."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Words That Connect Verbs and the Sentence Ending Particles 요(yo) - 아 (a), 어 (eo), 여 (yeo) 오늘 날씨는 정말 좋아요.
Oneul nalssineun jeongmal joayo.
"The weather today is very good."

In the last lesson, you learned about the sentence ending particle 요 (yo). To conjugate a verb with the sentence ending particle 요 (yo), you need to add extra syllables between.

In this lesson, you're going to learn how to use the syllables 아/어/여 (-a/eo/yeo) to use the sentence ending particle 요.

Verb Conjugation - 아/어/여

아/어/여 (- a/eo/yeo) are the syllables that start the present tense conjugation for the simple present tense (at both intimate and standard politeness levels), the past tense (at both intimate and standard politeness levels) and also a few other grammatical constructions.

Construction #1: Verb Stem + -아

We use this ending with verbs that have either the vowel ㅗ (o), or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

For example:

Construction	Korean (Romanization)	"English"
보(다) + -아 bo(da) + -a	봐 (bwa)	"I see," "I watch"
사(다) + -아 sa(da) + -a	사 (sa)	"I buy"
잡(다) + -아 jab(da) + -a	잡아 (jaba)	"I catch," "I grab"

Construction #2: Verb Stem + -어

We use this ending with verbs that have any vowel other than the vowels ㅗ (o), or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

For example:

Construction	Korean (Romanization)	"English"
먹(다) + -어 meog(da) + eo	먹어 (meogeo)	"I eat."
싫(다) + -어 sil(ta) + -eo	싫어 (sireo)	"I hate."

Construction #3: Verb stem + -여

We use this ending with 하다 (hada) verbs.

For example:

Construction	Korean (Romanization)	"English"
공부하(다) + -여 gongbuha(da) + -yeo	공부해 (gongbuhae)	"I study."
일하(다) + -여 ilha(da) + -yeo	일해 (ilhae)	"I work."

Note that there are a number of different contractions and/or deletions for conjugations that have consecutive vowels. Please refer to the Verb Conjugation Chart for a full chart and explanation:

https://www.koreanclass101.com/learningcenter/reference/conjugation_list

For example:

1. Verb stem with ㅏ [ㅏ + ㅏ -> ㅏ]
   사다 (sada) - "to buy"
   사 + 아 - 사 - 사 (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense) - 사요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

2. Verb stem with ㅗ [ㅗ + ㅏ -> ㅘ]
   오다 (oda) - "to come"
   오 + 아 -> 와
   (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense)
   와요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

3. Verb stem with ㅓ [ㅓ + ㅓ -> ㅓ]
   서다 (seoda) - "to stand"
   서 + 어 -> 서
   서 (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense)
   서요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

4. Verb stem with ㅜ [ㅜ + ㅓ -> ㅝ]
   주다 (juda) - "to give"
   주 + 어 -> 줘
   줘 (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense)
   줘요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

5. Verb stem with ㅡ [ㅡ + ㅓ -> ㅓ]
   예쁘다 (yeppeuda) - "to be pretty"
   예쁘 + 어 -> 예뻐
   예뻐 (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense)
   예뻐요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

6. Verb stem with ㅣ [ㅣ + ㅓ -> ㅕ]
   마시다 (masida) - "to drink"
   마시 + 어 -> 마셔
   마셔 (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense)
   마셔요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

7. Verb with ㅐ [ㅐ + ㅓ -> ㅐ] 보내다 (bonaeda) - "to send"
   보내 + 어 -> 보내
   보내 (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense)
   보내요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

8. 하다 (hada) verb [하 + ㅕ -> 해]
   하다 (hada) - "to do"
   하 + 여 -> 해
   해 (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense)
   해요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

Tips on Searching Online for a Nice Restaurant in Korea

When you're looking for a good restaurant in Korea online, you can try typing the names of the kinds of food you want to eat. But you'll notice that many of the blog posts about restaurants will only say positive things. In Korea, blogging is becoming a business in itself, so you should check whether a restaurant owner sponsors the posts or not.

Still, blogs are the best place to find good restaurants in Korea, so people try to use additional keywords to separate the paid blogs from the unpaid ones. One of the most popular keywords is 오빠랑 (opparang) which means "with my boyfriend." Many of the people who run blogs are women, and they use this keyword a lot when they write about a good or bad restaurant they went to on a date. This keyword is not usually used when it's paid, because people don't go to restaurants on dates when they're being paid. If you're looking for a good restaurant, you can try using this keyword along with the name of the food.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

아직 (ajik) "yet," "still," "so far"

아직 (ajik) can be used to take the place of words such as "yet," "still," "far," and "until." It is very flexible and worth knowing! This word is used primarily to inquire or explain about a situation, person, or object that remains in an unchanged constant state.

아직 (ajik) must be used with the negative adjectives like 안 meaning "not" or 못 meaning "cannot." For example, if asking a friend if they have been to the store yet, one would never say, 가게에 아직 갔어? (gage-e ajik gaseo?) In this case, it would always be expressed as 가게에 아직 못 갔어? (gage-e ajik mot gaseo?). The word 못 (mot) is included to create a negative clause, which is grammatically correct.

For example:

1. 밖이 아직 어두우니까 한 시간 정도 후에 운동하러 가자.
   "Let's go workout in about an hour since it's still dark outside."

화장실 (hwajangsil) "restroom, lavatory"

This is a term used to describe a restroom, bathroom, lavatory, or public toilet.

화장실 (hwajangsil) can be used for both "a restroom in someone's house" and "a public restroom." To mean "a public restroom" in a park, you can add the word 공중 (gongjung) meaning "public" to say 공중화장실 (gongjung-hwajangsil) "public restroom."

The most useful phrase using this word is "화장실이 어디에 있어요?" (hwajangsil-i odie isŏyo) which literally means, "Where is the bathroom?" This phrase can be used to inquire about the whereabouts or location of a restroom while also implying the necessity to use it.

For example:

1. 저기요? 이 식당에 화장실이 어디에 있어요? 잠깐동안 써도 될까요?
   "Excuse me? Where is this restaurant's restroom? Could I use it for a brief moment?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson is the Particles 았, 었, 였 for Creating the Past Tense 연수 네 방 옆에 있는지 몰랐어.
yeonsu ne bang yeope inneunji mollaseo.
"I didn't know that it's next to your room."

The past tense particle is a verbal infix that we use to convey the past tense. It can be used in three cases:

1. We use 았 for verbs that have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
2. We use 었 for verbs that do not have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
3. We use 였 for 하다 (hada) verbs.

Formation

[Verb Stem] + [았/었/였] + [Conjugation (politeness level/mood/etc.]

For example:

1. 살다 ("to live")

살 - verb stem has the vowel ㅏ.

[Verb Stem] + [았] + 다

[살] + [았] + [다]

살았다 "to live" - Simple Past Tense

"(I) lived."

2. 먹다 ("to eat")
먹 - verb stem has the vowel ㅓ, which is not ㅏ or ㅗ.

[Verb Stem] + [었] + 다.

[먹] + [었] + 다.

먹었다. - Simple Past Tense

"(I) ate."

3. 공부하다 ("to study")
공부하 - verb stem ends with '하-' which is the verb-stem of the verb 하다 ("to do.")

[Verb Stem] + [였] + 다

[공부하] + [였] + 다

공부하였다 - Simple Past Tense

"(I) studied."

For example:

1. 저는 한국에서 십 년 동안 살았어요.
   jeo-neun hangugeseo simnyeon dongan sarasseoyo.
   "I lived in Korea for ten years."
   Verb: 살다 ("to live")
   살 + 았 + 어요 [Standard Politeness Level Conjugation - 아/어/여 + 요]
2. 누구였지?
   nuguyeotji?
   "Who was it?"
   Verb: 이다 ("to be")
   이 + 었 + 지 (Confirmation/Agreement Conjugation - 지)
3. 만두 만들었는데.
   mandu mandeureotneunde.
   "I made dumplings."
   Verb: 만들다 ("to make")
   만들 + 었 + 는데 [Introductory Non-Final Ending - (ㄴ/은/는)데]
4. 어제 수영하였어.
   eoje suyeong hayeosseo.
   "I swam yesterday."
   Verb: 수영하다 ("to swim")
   수영 + 하 + 였 + 어[Intimate Politeness Level - 아/어/여]

1. 어제 남자친구랑 영화를 봤어요.
   eoje namjachingu-rang yeonghwa-reul bwasseoyo.
   "I watched a movie with my boyfriend yesterday."
2. 책을 가방에 넣었어요.
   chaegeul gabang-e neoeosseoyo.
   "I put the book in the backpack."
3. 1년이 빨리 지나갔어요.
   Illyeoni ppalli jinagasseoyo.
   "One year went by fast."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Why do Korean People use the Word 우리 (uri) Meaning "our," or "we" Even if They Only Want to Mean "my"?

Korean people often use the term 우리 (uri), which literally means "we" or "our" when they actually want to mean "my." When referring to their family members, loved ones, or things that are very closely related to them as an individual, they use the pronoun 우리 (uri) even though the items are not shared with other people, such as a boyfriend, a husband, or a son.
For example, you'll hear 우리나라 (uri-nara) meaning "our country," 우리 어머니 (uri-eomeoni) meaning "our mother," 우리 아버지 (uri-abeoji.)
This is related to the old days when people shared most of their items with other people living in a town or in their family. Also, they were considered to be part of a group so it was more common to express ownership using 우리 meaning "we," and "ours" than 내 meaning "my" or "me" in Korean. So 우리나라, which literally means "our country" can be understood to mean that the speaker considered themselves to be a part of the Korean people as a whole, using 우리 "our."
The most common mistake people make is using 내 meaning "my," so make sure you try to use 우리 (uri) more when you actually want to say "my."

더이상 불닭을 못 먹어요.	나 여기 있어.
Deoisang buldageul mot meogeoyo.	Na yeogi isseo.
"I can't eat any more spicy chicken."	"I'm over here."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

맵다 (maepda) "hot," "spicy"

맵다 (maepda) is an adjective used to describe things [usually food items] that are spicy or hot. It can be conjugated as 매워 (maewo) for informal situations or 매워요 (maewoyo) with the sentence ending particle 요 (yo.)

You'll hear other words like 매콤하다 (maekomhada) which means "spicy but also sweet" when you're talking about flavors in Korean.

맵다 can also be used in the expression 눈이 매워 (noon-i maewo), which means your eyes are burning or stinging. In this expression, it literally means "my eyes are spicy." 맵다 is never used to describe weather or temperature in the same way "hot" would be used in English. Instead, you can use 덥다 to mean "hot." For example, you can say 방이 덥다 to mean "the room is hot."

For example:

1. 이 김치가 너무 매워서 땀이랑 열이 나요.
   "This kimchi is so spicy that it makes me hot and sweaty."

어때? (eottae) "how about," "how is"

어때 is an expression used to inquire about an individual's thoughts or feelings on a subject or idea. 어때 is used primarily to make suggestions and gauge an individual's interest. The formation will be as follows.

Noun + 는/은 (topic marking particle) + 어때? => "How is [noun]?"

[Sentence] + 것/게 + 어때 => "How is [sentence]"

You should be careful not to confuse 어때 with 어떻게 해 or 어떡해. While they may look similar, their usage and meanings can differ. 어떻게 해 and 어떡해 are the phrases mean "what should I do?"

For example:

1. 이 불닭은 어때?
   "How about this spicy chicken?"
2. 오늘 소풍이나 산책하는 게 어때?
   "How about having a picnic or going for a walk today?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Question Marking Particles 까 and 까요.
삼계탕을 먹을까요?
samgyetang-eul meogeulkkayo?
"Shall we eat the ginseng chicken soup?"

---

1. Making a simple interrogative sentence using the particle 까 (kka)

Forming an Interrogative Sentence or Question

First, let's review how you can make the predicate of a sentence.

[Noun] + 입니다 (imnida) = "to be" [noun]

This pattern becomes the predicate of a sentence when followed by a noun.

Subject + [name/noun] + 입니다 (imnida) "to be"

For Example:

1. 그는 팀입니다.
   Geunuen timimnida.
   "He [subject] is ["be" verb] Tim [name]." = "He is Tim."
2. 이것은 가방입니다.
   Igeoseun gabangimnida.
   "This [subject] is ["be" verb] a bag [noun]." = "This is a bag."

Now let's learn how to change the predicate of a sentence into a formal interrogative sentence. It's very simple. Locate 까 (kka) in the position of 다 (da) at the end of a sentence.

Adding the ending 까 (kka) turns the predicate of a sentence into a formal interrogative sentence.

Formation: Subject + [name/noun] + 입니까? (imnikka?): "Am/Are/Is [Noun]...?"

For example:

1. 그는 팀입니까?
   *Geuneun Timimnikka?
   "Is ["be" verb] he [subject] Tim [name]?" = "Is he Tim?"

2. 이것은 가방입니까?
   *Igeoseun gabangimnikka?
   "Is ["be" verb] this [subject] a bag [noun]?" = "Is this a bag?"

3. 저것은 학교입니까?
   *Jeogeoseun hakgyoimnikka?
   "Is ["be" verb] that [subject] a school [noun]?" = "Is that a school?"

4. 이것은 무엇입니까?
   Igeoseun mueosimnikka?
   "What [interrogative pronoun] is ["be" verb] this [subject]?" = "What is this?"

5. 그것은 얼마입니까?
   *Guegeoteun eolmaimnikka?
   "How much [interrogative pronoun] is ["be" verb] the one [subject]?" = "How much is the one?"

2. Making a simple volitional form using -을까 (eul-kka), ㄹ까 (l-kka).

The Volitional Form -ㄹ(을)까요?

We use the volitional form to express intention on the part of the speaker or to invite someone to do something. Specifically, we use it when asking someone if they would like to do something with the speaker, or with a group that includes the speaker. In English, we can translate it as, "shall we...?"

In addition to inviting someone to do something, we also use it to ask for a person's opinion, view, or appraisal of a certain fact. In this specific usage, we translate it as, "will it be (verb)?"

Formation

-ㄹ/을까요? - (-l/eulkkayo) - Standard Politeness Level

-ㄹ/을까? - (-l/eulkka) - Intimate Politeness Level

We use -ㄹ까요? (-lkkayo?) with verbs that end in vowels.

For example:

보다 (boda) "to see, to watch"

보 - verb stem

보 + ㄹ까요? (bo + lkkayo)

볼까요? (bolkkayo?) "Shall we watch?" (Standard Politeness Level)

볼까? (bolkka?) "Shall we watch?" (Intimate Politeness Level)

We use -을까요? (-eulkkayo?) with verbs that end in consonants.

For example:

재미있다 (jaemiitda) "to be fun, to be interesting"

재미있 (jaemiit) - verb stem

재미있 + -을까요 (jaemiit) + (-eulkkayo?)

재미있을까요? (jaemiisseulkkayo?) "Will it be fun?"/"What do you think?" (Standard Politeness Level)

재미있을까? (jaemiisseulkka?) "Will it be fun?"/"What do you think?" (Intimate Politeness Level)

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 삼계탕을 먹을까요?
   "Shall we eat the Ginseng chicken soup?"
2. 불닭은 어때? 불닭 먹어볼까?
   "How about the fire-chicken? Shall we try that?"
3. 불닭은 너무 매운데 우리가 먹을 수 있을까요?
   "The fire-chicken is really spicy, do you think we'll be able to eat it?"

Sample Sentences

1. 오늘은 비가 내릴까?
   Oneureun bi-ga naerilkka?
   "Will it rain today?"
2. 내일 같이 운동하러 갈까?
   Naeil gachi undonghareo galkka?
   "Would you like to go work out together tomorrow?"
3. 돈은 지금 줄까? 아니면 나중에 줄까?
   Don-eun jigeum julkka? Animyeon najunge julkka?
   "Want me to give you the money now? Or give it to you later?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean people eat specific traditional dishes on specific dates. For example, you can find a long line of people waiting to have 삼계탕 (samgyetang) meaning "ginseng chicken soup" on 복날 (boknal), the days that divide the summer season into three.
One of these traditional foods is 미역국 (miyeokguk), "a Korean soup comprised of sea mustard." This dish is traditionally eaten on birthdays because it is frequently consumed by mothers who have recently given birth.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

-면 될까요? (-myeon doelkkayo?) "do you mind if...," is it okay if..."

면 될까요 is a polite expression that is used to inquire about things that may or may not be appropriate for the situation.

면 될까요 is used primarily when you are uncertain about rules or an appropriate course of action. For example, when your friend enters your house, they might ask 신발 벗으면 될까요? (Sinbal beosseumyeon doelkkayo) which means "Is it okay if I take off my shoes."

You can add this expression to a verb stem like the 벗 (beot) of 벗다 (beotta) meaning "to take off." When it ends in a consonant, you need to put an extra word 으. If the verb-stem ends in a vowel, you don't need to add an extra word.

You can also use another phrase, 도 될까요? (do deolkkayo) as in 신발 벗어도 될까요? (sinbal beosseodo doelkkayo?) which means "Is it okay if I take off my shoes?"

For example:

1. 이 케이크를 사면 될까요?
   i keikeureul samyeon doelkkayo?
   "Is it okay if we buy this cake?"

-려고 하다 (-ryeogo hada) "intend to," "plan to"

-려고 하다 is phrase used together with verbs to convey one's future or past intentions. It's used to tell someone about plans or engagements that may have been made in the past.

For example, if you're planning to take a trip or 여행을 가다 (yeohang-eul gada) "to take a trip," you can put the phrase -려고 하다 after the verb-stem 가-.

For example:

1. 여행을 가려고 하다.
   yeohaeng-eul garyeogo hada.
   "I'm planning to take a trip."

The pattern is:

가 + 려고 하다.

(ga) + (ryeogo hada)

When a verb stem ends in a consonant, such as the 먹- (meok) of 먹다 (meokda) meaning "to eat," you need to add an extra word 으 (eu.)

For example:

1. 갈비를 먹으려고 하다.
   galbireul meogeuryego hada.
   "I'm planning to eat Galbi, Korean BBQ."

The pattern is:

먹 + 으 + 려고 하다.

(meok) + (eu) + (ryeogo hada)

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is How to Use Location Marking Particles.
그 미용실에 가려고 해요. 신촌역에서 어디로 가면 될까요?
Geu miyongsire garyeogo haeyo. Sinchonnyeogeseo eodiro gamyeon doelkkayo?
"I'm trying to get to the beauty parlor. From Sinchon station where should I go?"

Just as you use "at," "in," "on," "from," and "to" in English when you're talking about locations, you need a location marking particle in Korean when giving directions, or talking about where something is. Most commonly used location marking particles are as following.

- 에 (e) "at", "to", "on", "in"

- 에서 (eseo) "at", "in", "from"

- 부터 (buteo) "from"

- 까지 (kkaji) "to"

Location Marking Particle #1 에 - e -

The particle -에 (-e) can be translated into English as "at," "to," "on," or "in," depending on the context. The particle -에 (-e) can be used to indicate that a stationary action is taking place at a certain location. For example, you can use this particle with verbs like 있다 (itda) meaning "to exist", 없다 (eoptda) meaning "to not exist", 살다 (salda) meaning "to live" and 많다 (manta) meaning "to be many." Depending on the verb used, -에 (-e) can be translated as "in" or "at."

Please note:

Place + 에 + 있다/없다/살다/많다

Place + (e) + (itda/eopta/salda/manhta).

Place + "at"/"in" + "to exist"/"to not exist"/"to live"/"to be many."

For example:

1. 엄마: 진우는 어디에 있습니까?
   Eomma: Jinu-neun eodi-e isseumnikka?

Mother: "Where is Jinu?"
- In this sentence, the static location particle, -에 (-e) is suffixed to the interrogative 어디 (eodi) meaning "where." The verb 있다 (itta) meaning "to exist" is used in this sentence.

2. 엄마: ...여기에 없습니까?!
   Eomma: ...Yeogi-e eopseumnikka?!
   Mother: ..."He's not here?!"
   - The static location particle, -에 (-e) is suffixed to the demonstrative noun indicating a place 여기 (yeogi), which means "here."
3. 베이비시터: 아... 진우가 저기에 있습니다.
   Beibisiteo: A, jinu-ga jeogi-e isseumnida.
   Babysitter: "Oh, Jinu's over there!"
   The static location particle, -에 (-e) is suffixed to the demonstrative noun indicating a place 저기 (jeogi), "over there," in this sentence.
4. 저는 집에 있습니다.
   Jeoneun jibe isseumnida.
   "I am at home."
   - In this sentence, the particle -에 (-e) indicates the location where "I" exist; namely, home.
5. 지성은 영국에 삽니다.
   Jiseongeun yeongguge samnida.
   "Jiseong lives in England."
   - In this sentence the particle -에 (-e) indicates the location where 지성 (Jiseong) lives, namely in England.
6. 학교에 학생들이 많아요.
   Hakgyoe haksengdeuri manayo.
   "There are many students at school."
   - In this sentence the particle -에 (-e) indicates the location where 학생들 (haksengdeul, "students") are many, which is at school.

Note

Notice that 살다 (salda) meaning "to live," 있다 (itda) meaning "to exist," and 많다 (manhta) meaning "to be many," are all inactive verbs.

Location Marking Particle #2 에서 - eseo -

The particle 에서 (eseo) means something like "at," "in," or "from" and it marks the location of where an action is being performed, and it also marks a spatial or a temporal point of departure with the other location marking particle 부터 (buteo). This particle usually is used with a verb indicating a specific action, such as 먹다 (meokda) meaning "to eat" or 일하다 (ilhada) meaning "to work."

If the noun ends with a consonant sound such as 어디 (eodi) meaning "where," people use either 서 (seo) or 에서 (e-seo). It's same with the word 저기 (jeogi) meaning "there" too. 저기 (jeogi) ends in a vowel sound. In this case, you may use either 에 (e) or 에서 (eseo).

For example:

1. 어디(에)서 일합니까?
   Eodieseo ilhamnikka?
   "Where do you work (at)?"
2. 저는 공장에서 일합니다.
   Jeoneun gongjangeseo ilhamnida.
   "I work at the factory."
3. 나는 식당에서 밥을 먹습니다.
   Naneun sikddangeseo babeul meokseumnida.
   "I have a meal at the restaurant."
4. 한국에서 보자.
   Hangugeseo boja.
   "Let's see each other in Korea."
5. 서울에서 만나자.
   Seouleseo mannaja.
   "Let's meet in Seoul."
6. 여기(에)서 밥 먹을까?
   Yeogieseo bap meogeulkka?
   "Shall we eat a meal (in) here?"
7. 아니, 저기(에)서 밥 먹자.
   Ani, jeogieseo bap meokja.
   "No, let's have a meal (at) there."

 Please do not worry about the verbs "to do," "to work," "to eat," "to see," or "to meet" at this point. SIMPLY REMEMBER THIS: PLACE + 에서 (eseo), meaning "in" or "at," which marks the location of an action.

The particle 에서 (eseo) also means "from," and we use it to mark a spatial or a temporal point of departure. (This tip is related to Absolute Beginner, Season 2, Lesson 13.)

For example:

1. 어느 나라에서 왔습니까?
   Eoneu naraeseo wasseumnikka?
   "Where are you from?"
2. 서울에서 미국까지 몇 시간 걸립니까?
   Seoureseo migukkkaji myeot sigan geollimnikka?

"How many hours does it take [to go] from Seoul to America?"

Location Marking Particle #3 부터 - buteo - and 까지 - kkaji -

Place A + (에서) 부터 (Place A + ((eseo) buteo) "From (place)"

When attached to a noun or a particle, this phrase 에서부터 (eseo buteo) marks a spatial or temporal point of departure and means "from."

Note that 에서 (eseo) is optional, and so you can either say 부터 (buteo) OR 에서부터 (eseobuteo).

Formation: Noun + (에서) 부터 (eseo) buteo

For example:

1. 여기(에서)부터
   yeogi(eseo)buteo
   "from here"
2. 집(에서)부터
   jib(eseo)buteo
   "from home"
3. 미국(에서)부터
   migug(eseo)buteo
   "from America"

Please note: There is a difference between 에서 (eseo), meaning "in," "at," or "from," and 부터 (buteo), meaning "from." We will learn more about 에서 (eseo), meaning "in," "at," or "from," in Lesson 17.

Place B + 까지 (Place B + kkaji) "to/up to/until/by Place B

When attached to a noun, a particle, or an adverb, this particle indicates the limit of a spatial or a temporal area. It corresponds to "to," "up to," "until," or "by" in English.

Formation: Noun/Particle/Adverb + 까지 (-kka-ji)

For Example:

1. 서울까지
   Seoulkkaji
   "to Seoul"
2. 저기까지
   Jeogikkaji
   "to there"
3. 한국까지
   Hangukkaji

"to Korea"

A (에서)부터 B 까지 (A (eseo)buteo B kkaji) "From A to B"

You can combine (eseo) buteo and kkaji in the same sentence to create the meaning of "from A to B."

Formation: A + (에서)부터((e-seo)-bu-teo) + B + 까지 (kka-ji)

For Example:

1. 여기(에서)부터 저기까지
   Yeogi(eseo)buteo jeogikkaji
   "from here to there"
2. 미국(에서)부터 한국까지
   Migug(eseo)buteo hangukkaji
   "from America to Korea"
3. 집(에서)부터 회사까지
   Jib(eseo)buteo hoesakkaji
   "from home to the company (office)"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Where's the Best Place for a Haircut in South Korea?

The 홍대 (hongdae) area or other areas such as 신촌 (shinchon), which are usually near colleges, are known for their beauty parlors. A beauty parlor around these areas usually has four or five hairdressers including assistants, and the price range is around USD 10 to 20 for both women and men. The price will be vary depending on the popularity of the shop, so make sure to check the price before your visit.
If you're a man, and you just want to get your haircut within twenty minutes with a reasonable price under 8 USD, look for a 블루클럽 (beulreu keulreop) or "Blue Club" sign on the streets. It's a chain store, and you should be able to find one near your home easily.
Useful expression to know:

1. 파마를 하려고 해요.
   "I'm planning to have a perm."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

혹시 (hoksi) "by any chance, perhaps"

혹시 (hoksi) is a word that is always accompanied by a question. It has multiple, yet similar meanings, some of which are "by any chance," "perhaps," or "could it be."

You can make a question like 파티에 올 수 있어요? (ol su isseoyo?) meaning "Will you be able to come to the party?" and add this word at the beginning of the question to make it sound polite.

When you're not sure, but want to ask the other to confirm if that's true, you can use this word alone. For example, when you think the other is married but want to ask them to confirm that politely, you can simply say 혹시.. (hoksi..) In that case, it means something like "Are you..." as in 혹시 결혼했어요? (hoksi gyeolhon-hatseoyo?) meaning "Are you...married?"

For example:

1. 혹시 한국말을 하세요?
   hoksi hangungmareul haseyo?
   "Do you by any chance speak Korean?"

마음껏 (maeumkkeot) "your heart's content," "as much as one pleases," "as much as you can"

마음껏 is composed of the two words 마음 and 껏. 마음 (maeum) translated to English means "heart/mind." 껏 (kkeot) is translated to English as "as far," "as much as," "to the best," etc. So when the two words are combined the term "as much as your heart" is created.

마음껏 can be used with a variety of different verbs. For example, 마음껏 울다 (maeumkkeot ulda) which means "cry your heart out" and 마음껏 즐기다 (maeumkkeot jeulgida) which means "enjoy yourself to the fullest."

For example:

1. 오늘은 내가 음식을 살게요. 마음껏 먹어요.
   oneureun naega eumsigeul salgeyo. maeumkkeot meogeoyo.
   "I'm buying (meals) today. Eat as much as you would like."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is How to Use Time Marking Particles
우진: 수진아, 이번 주 금요일에 집들이가 있어. 혹시 올 수 있어?
Sujina, ibex ju geumyoire jipdeuriga isseo. Hoksi ol su issei?
"Hey Sujin, there's a housewarming party this week on Friday. Will you be able to come?"

Time Marking Particle #1 부터 - buteo -

As we use the same particle as the location marking particle, it means "from" when attached to a noun or a particle. This particle marks a specific day/time that an event starts. It corresponds to "from" in English.

A (time) 부터

A (time) buteo

"From A (time)"

Formation

[Time phrase / noun] + 부터 buteo "from"

For example:

1. 1월 1일부터
   Irwol iril buteo
   "from January 1st"
2. 10시부터
   Yeolsi buteo
   "from 10 o'clock"
3. 점심 시간은 12시부터입니다.
   Jeomsim siganeun yeolddusibuteoimnida.
   "Lunch time is from 12 o'clock."

Time Marking Particle #2 까지 - kkaji -

B (time) 까지

B (time) kkagi

"To/till/until B (time)"

When attached to a noun, particle, or adverb, this particle marks a specific day/time when an event ends.

Formation

[Time phrase / noun] + 까지 kka-ji "to/until"

For example:

1. 9월 23일까지
   Guwol isipsamilkkaji
   "Until September 23r"
2. 점심시간은 1시까지입니다.
   Jeomsimsiganeun hansikkajiimnida.
   "Lunch time is until 1 o'clock."

Note:

The particles 부터 buteo ("from") and 까지 kkaji ("to/until") can be used together to mark the start and end of an event.

A (time) 부터 B (time) 까지

A (time) bu-teo B (time) kka-ji

"from A to/till/until B"

Formation

[A] 부터 bu-teo + [B] 까지 kka-ji

For example:

1. 9월 21일부터 9월 23일까지
   guwol isibilibuteo guwol isipsamilkkaji
   "from September 21st till 23rd"
2. 점심시간은 오후 12시부터 오후 1시까지입니다.
   Jeomsimsiganeun ohu yeolddusibuteo ohu hansikkajiimnida.
   "Lunch time is from 12 p.m. to 1 p.m."

Time Marking Particle #3 에 - e -

The particle -에 (-e) can be translated into English as "at," "to," "on" or "in," depending on the context. It can be used to indicate time, direction, or a specific location where an action takes place.

Formation

Time Noun + 에 (e), meaning "at" or "in," which means "at" a certain time

For example:

1. 아침 몇 시에 일어납니까?
   Achim myeot sie ireonamnikka?
   "At what time in the morning do you get up?"
2. 저는 아침을 7시에 먹습니다.
   Jeoneun achimeul ilgopsie meoksseumnida.
   "I eat breakfast at seven o'clock in the morning."
3. 오후 1시에 점심을 먹습니다.
   Ohu *hansi*e jeomsim*eul meokseumnida.*
   "(I) eat lunch at one o'clock p.m."
4. 이번주 토요일에 캐리비안 베이에 갑니다.
   *Ibeonju toyoir*e kaeribian beie gamnida.
   "I go to Caribbean Bay on (this) Saturday."
   Note: place noun + 에 (e) "to": destination of movement

Review of the different usages of the particle 에.

A. Place Noun + 에 (e) + moving verbs such as "to go," "to come," "to bring...": destination of movement

For example:

1. 나는 한국에 갑니다.
   *Naneun hangug*e gamnida.
   "I go to Korea."

B. Place Noun + 에 (e): "at," "in," or "on" (spatial location)

For example:

1. 의자에 앉습니다.
   Uijae anseumnida.
   "Sit on the chair."

C. Counting Noun + 에 (e) "per" or "for" (Counting Noun)

For example:

1. 불고기 일 인분에 얼마예요?
   Bulgogi irinbnue eolmaeyo?
   "How much is it per one serving of Bulgogi?"

 Note: -에 (e) and 에는 (e-neun) can replace each other. Add 는 (neun) when you want to emphasize the noun.

Time Marking Particle #4 만 - man -

-만 (man) is a particle that usually means "only" in general. But you can use it as a time marking particle to indicate how much time has passed since a previous action happened or a state began until the present moment, when another action is happening or the state is changing. There isn't a direct translation for this particle that always works, but it is usually translated as "it has been + time" or "after/in + time." The form time + 만 is a noun, so -에 can be attached to it to modify an action.

Formation

Time + -만 + 이다

- 1년 (1 year) + 만 + 이다

- 1년만이에요 = "It's been one year."

Time + -만 + 에

- 3달 (three months) + 만 + 에

- 3달만에 한국에 왔어요. = "I came back to Korea three months after I left."

For examples:

1. 3일만에 집에 돌아왔다.
   Samilman-e jib-e doraowatda.
   "He came back home after three days (of not coming home)."
2. 한달만에 학교에 갔다.
   Handalman-e hakgyo-e gatda.
   "I went to school after one month (of not going there)."
3. 1년만에 만났다.
   Ilnyeonman-e mannatda.
   "We hadn't met for a year."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The Korean Housewarming Party or Jipdeuri

집들이 (jipdeuri) is a Korean traditional housewarming party that is held for newlywed couples or individuals that have recently moved into a new residence. Guests usually bring household items such as toilet paper and air freshener, while the host is responsible for providing food and refreshments. Unlike American housewarming parties which seem to be more focused on the aspect of partying and having a good time, housewarming parties in Korea are more practical and helpful, while also being entertaining at the same time. Having guest bring toilet paper, paper towels, soap, and so on to your home after moving in is very practical and helpful.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

맨 손 (maen son) "bare-handed," "empty-handed"

맨손 is composed of the words 맨 and 손. 맨 (maen) translates into English as "bare/bald", while 손 (son) simply means "hand." When combined, they create the phrase 맨손 meaning "bare hands." The word 맨 is also interchangeable with other nouns such as 발 ("feet") and 몸 ("body"). When combined with these nouns, we get the phrases 맨 발 (maen bal) meaning "bare feet" and 맨 몸 (maen mom) meaning "naked."

Idiomatically, this word can be used when someone has achieved something mainly through his/her efforts. For example, you can say 그 사람은 맨 손으로 큰 회사를 만들었다. (geu sarameun maen soneuro keun heosareul mandeureotda) which literally means "He has built up this big company with his bear hands."

For example:

1. 맨손으로 뜨거운 음식을 먹기가 힘들어요.
   maensoneuro tteugeoun eumsigeul meokgiga himdeureoyo.
   "It is difficult to eat hot food with your bare hands."

사투리 (saturi) "regional dialect"

사투리 is used to refer to any dialects outside of Korea's 표준어 (pyojuneo) or standard Korean language that is derived from Seoul speakers.

사투리 can be used to identify one of the many dialects in South Korea, from areas such as 충청도 (Chungcheong-do), 강원도 (Gangwon-do), 경상도 (Gyeongsang-do), and 부산 (Busan.) 경상도 사투리 (gyeongsang-do saturi) is known for its strong intonation and 충정도 사투리 (chungcheong saturi) is known for its slow speed.

제주도 (jejudo) or "The Island of Jeju" has the most unique dialect among those in South Korea. Since it's an island located away from Korean peninsula, it has developed its own words and expressions, such as 혼저옵서예 (honjeo-opseoye) meaning "welcome." In standard Korean, you can say 어서오세요 (eoseo-oseyo) to mean "welcome."

For example:

1. 사투리는 알아듣기 힘들어요.
   Saturineun aradeutgi himdeureoyo.
   "Understanding dialects is difficult."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is How to Use Possessive Particle and Directional Particles 제주도의 해녀들은 기계로 채취를 안 하고 손으로만 채취합니까?
Jejudoui haenyeodeureun gigyero chaechwireul an hago soneuroman chaechwihamnikka?
"The female divers of Jeju island take seafood not using machines, but only their hands?"

Possessive Particle 의 - ui -

The possessive particle is used to indicate possession, or relationship, and is similar to the English "of" or "'s." In the structure A 의 B, "B is of A," so "A's B."

Formation

Object1-의 Object2

Object1-ui Object2

"Object1's Object2" -> "Object2 is of Object1" or "Object1's Object2"

For example:

1. 마이크의 엄마는 선생님입니다.
   Maikeu-ui eomma-neun seonsaengnim-imnida.
   "Mike's mother is a teacher."

2. 제 (저의) 여자친구는 미국사람입니다.
Je (jeo-ui) yeojachingu-neun miguksaram-imnida.
"My girlfriend is American."

In reality, possessive pronouns are a contraction of pronouns and the possessive particle (의).

1. 제 = 저의 (jeo-ui) - 저 + 의: first person humble pronoun + possessive particle
We use - 제 (je) to humble oneself in the presence of someone we respect.

2. 내 = 나의 (na-ui) - 나 + 의: informal first person pronoun + possessive particle
We use - 내 (nae) in informal contexts where we feel that 제 (je) is too polite and inappropriate for the relationship we have with the listener. We use it in informal contexts, and when we don't feel the need to show the highest respect to the listener.

3. 니 = 너의 (neo-ui) - 너 + 의: informal second person pronoun + possessive particle
We use - 니 (ni) in informal contexts when we feel very comfortable with the listener, and the power relationship is at least equal. We commonly use it when we have the upper hand in the relationship.

4. 저희 = 저희 + 의 - 저희 (의): humbling first person plural noun + (possessive particle)
We actually drop the possessive particle for this possessive pronoun (as we do in many cases.) We use this possessive particle in formal situations, for example, when we don't know the listener well or when the listener holds much of the power in the relationship.

5. 우리 = 우리 + 의 - 우리 (의): intimate first person plural pronoun + (possessive particle)
Now that we know how to form the possessive in Korean, making possessive pronouns is very easy in Korean. Simply add 것 (geot) right after the possessive-marking adjective.

Noun/ Person	Korean/ Romanization	Possessive: + 의 (ui)	Possessive Pronoun: PA + 것 (geot)	"English"
"I"	저 (jeo) (formal) or 나 (na) (informal)	저의=제 (je) or 나의=내 (nae)	저의 것 (jeoui geot)= 제것 (jegeot) or 나의 것 (naeui geot)=내것 (naegeot)	"mine"
"you"	당신 (dangshin) (formal) or 너 (neo) (informal)	당신의 or 너의	당신의 것 (dangshinui geot) or 너의 것 (neoui geot) = 네 것 (ne geot)	"yours"
"he"	그 (geu)	그의	그의 것 (geui geot)	"his"
"she"	그녀 (geunyeo)	그녀의	그녀의 것 (geunyeoui geot)	"hers"
"we"	우리 (uri)	우리의	우리의 것 (uriui geot)	"ours"
"you"	당신들 (dangsindeul)	당신들의	당신들의 것 (dangsindeurui geot)	"yours"
"they"	그들 (geudeul)	그들의	그들의 것 (geudeurui geot)	"theirs"
"male"	남성 (namseong)	남성의	남성의 것 (namseongui geot)	"male's"
"female"	여성 (yeoseong)	여성의	여성의 것 (yeoseongui geot)	"female's"
"Tim"	팀 (tim)	팀의	팀의 것 (Timui geot)	"Tim's"

Directional Particles 로 - ro - and 으로 - euro -

-로 (-ro) and -으로 (euro) mean "by" or "using," which we use to talk about tools, instruments, and methods that we use to do something. It is often used when talking about ways of transportation.

When do we use 로 (-ro) and 으로 (-euro)?

1. use -로 (-ro) when the noun ends with a vowel.

    1. 자전거로
       *jajeongeoro

"by bicycle"

2. use -으로 (-euro) when the noun ends with a consonant.

1. 젓가락으로
   *jeotgarageuro
   "with chopsticks"

3. Exception! If the consonant is ㄹ, read as l, then, you have to use -로 (-ro) instead of -으로 (-euro).

For example:

1. 지하철로
   *jihacheollo
   "by a subway."

Note that the noun 지하철 ends with a consonant ㄹ so that's why you need to choose 로 (ro) not 으로 (euro).

For Example:

1. 버스로 얼마나 걸립니까? (Note: 걸리다 (geollida) "to take")
   Beoseuro eolmana geollimnikka?*
   "How long does it take by bus?"
2. 지하철로 1시간 정도 걸립니다.
   Jihacheolro hansigan jeongdo geollimnida.
   "It takes about one hour by subway."
3. 난 자전거로 집에 갑니다.
   Nan jajeongeoro jibe gamnida.
   "I go home by bicycle."
4. 젓가락으로 라면을 먹습니다.
   jeotgarakeuro ramyeoneul meokseupnida.*
   "I eat noodles with chopsticks."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The Female Divers of Jeju Island

The island of Jeju has a unique fishing culture where people dive into the ocean without equipment to assist them and collect seafood using only their bare hands. The female divers of Jeju Island or 해녀 (haenyeo) are particularly well known for this practice, along with their incredible stamina and ability to dive into the deep depths of the ocean without equipment. On average, they dive as deep as five or ten meters for around 40-60 seconds holding their breath.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

복통 boktong ("stomach ache")

The word 복 (bok) originates from the Chinese character meaning "stomach," and the word 통 (tong) is derived from the Chinese character meaning "pain" or "agony." 통 (tong) is often used in other words such as 치통 (chitong) meaning "toothache" in which 치 (chi) means "teeth" and 통 (tong) again refers to "pain" to create the term "toothache." The same structure is used for the word 두통 (dutong) in which the word 두 (du) refers to the head and is used in combination with 통 (tong) to create the word "headache."

복통 (boktong) is used to express discomfort or pain in the stomach, normally through the expression 복통으로 고생하다. (boktongeuro gosaenghada.) or 복통으로 부대끼다 (boktongeuro budaekkida) which means "to suffer from a stomach ache."

For example:

1. 혹시 복통 치료법을 알고 있어요?
   hoksi boktong chiryobeobeul algo iseoyo?
   "Do you by chance know any treatments for stomach aches?"

왠지 waenji ("somehow," "somewhat," "for some reason")

The adverb 왠지 waenji means "somehow," "somewhat," or "for some reason" and it can be placed anywhere within a sentence except for the end. Usually it works with a negative verb such as 하기 싫다 hagi silta "don't want to do something" as in 왠지 운동 하기 싫다 waenji undong haji silta meaning "I don't want to work out somehow." People sometimes use this adverb when they deny someone's idea or suggestion without a specific reason by simply saying 왠지 waenji.

For example:

1. 오늘은 왠지 김치를 먹기 싫어요.
   oneureun waenji gimchireul meokgi sireoyo.
   "For some reason I don't feel like eating Kimchi today."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is How to Use Linking Particles 배하고 머리가 몹시 아파요.
baehago meoriga mopsi apayo.
"My stomach and head hurt terribly."

Linking Particle #1. 와, 과 - wa, gwa -

We use -와/과 (-wa/gwa) to link nouns. It can be translated as "with," or "and," and we can judge which one it is from the context. -와/과 (-wa/gwa) links the nouns in consecutive order. We can use -와/과 (-wa/gwa) with as many nouns as desired. However, we must link it to each noun in coordination. This particle is interchangeable with -하고 (-hago) and -(이)랑 [-(i)rang], and we consider it formal. We do not use -와/과 (-wa/gwa) as often as -하고 (-hago) and -(이)랑 [-(i)rang] in spoken language, but we can find it often in the written Korean.

Formation

We use -와 (wa) when the noun ends in a vowel.

We use -과 (gwa) when the noun ends in a consonant.

For example:

Korean	Romanized	"English"
지연과, 승희와, 지훈은 다 닮았어요.	jiyeongwa, seunghuiwa, jihuneun da dalmasseoyo.	"Jiyeon, Seunghui, and Jihyun, all look alike."
수연이는 저와 같은 아파트에 살아요.	suyeonineun jeowa gateun apateue sarayo.	"Suyeon lives in the same apartment as I do."
영화와 현실은 달라요.	yeonghwawa hyeonsireun dallayo.	"Movies and reality are different."

Linking Particle #2. 고, - go -

The particle-고 (-go) is used to link two or more verbs, phrases, or sentences in one sentence. -고 is usually translated as "(verb), and (verb)."

Formation

Verb Stem + 고

(Verb Stem 1)고, (Verb Stem 2)고, (Verb 3)

1. 공부하다 (gongbuhada) - "to study"

verb stem = 공부하

2. 운동하다 (undonghada) - "to exercise" verb stem = 운동하

3. 집에 가다 (jip-e gada) - "to go home"

(공부하 + 고), + (운동하 + 고), + (집에 가다)

= 공부하고, 운동하고, 집에 가다. (gongbuhago, undonghago, jib-e gada)

"To study, exercise, and go home."

Clause 1 + 고, Clause 2 (Clause 3, Clause 4, etc.)

*in this construction 고 (go) is attached to the verb stem in the Clause

손 씻다 (son sssitda) - "to wash hands"

밥 먹다 (bap meokda) - "to eat food"

Becomes...

1. 손 씻고 밥 먹어.
   son ssitgo bap meokgeo.
   "Wash your hands and eat food."

Note:

There is an exception when using this grammatical pattern. When using this pattern with the verb "to go," 가다 as the initial verb, it cannot be constructed as it would typically be constructed. The phrase "to go and come" is 갔다 오다 (gatda oda). This cannot use the construction that is typically used.

(x) 학교에 가고 오다

(o) 학교에 갔다 오다 ("go to school and come")

For example:

1. 갔다 올게요!
   "I'll go and come back!" (the exceptional phrase)

2. 잘 갔다 와!
"Go and come back safely!" (the exceptional phrase)

3. 어서 갔다 와!
"Please go and come back!" (the exceptional phrase)

Linking Particle # 3. 나, 이나 - na, ina -

-(이)나 [-(i)na] is a particle and is attached to the end of nouns. For all the following constructions, -이나 [-ina] is used with nouns ending in consonants, and -나 [-na] is used with words ending in vowels.

< Noun + -(이)나 + Noun: "or" >

한국어 [hangugeo] + -나 + 영어 [yeong-eo] ---> 한국어나 영어 [hangeugeona yeong-eo]: "Korean or English"

책 [chaek] + -이나 + 연필 [yeonpil] ---> 책이나 연필 [chaegina yeonpil]: "a book or a pencil"

Korean	Romanized	"English"
책이나 잡지를 많이 읽어요.	chaegina japjjireul manni ilgeoyo.	"I read books or magazines a lot."
유럽이나 아프리카에 가고 싶어요.	yurobina apeurikae gago sipeoyo.	"I want to go to Europe or Africa."

Additional Usage of the Particle 나, 이나

Usage 1 Noun + -(이)나 : "wh-ever," "any-," "all," "every"

숙제 [sukje] + -나 + 해 [hae] ---> 숙제나 해! [Sukjena hae!]: "Do your homework, or something!"

Usage 2

몇 시간 [myeot sigan] + -이나 ---> 몇 시간이나 [myeot siganina] : "About how many hours"

Usage 3 phrase + -(이)나: "much more than expected"

3시간 [se sigan] + 이나 ---> 3시간이나 [sesiganina]: "3 hours which is much more than expected"

Linking Particle # 4. 도 - do -

The particle -도 (-do) is used to express that a statement already expressed holds true for another noun. If a statement is issued, and that statement holds true for another person or thing, the particle -도 (-do) is used. This particle is attached directly to the noun it is modifying. This correlates to the English words "too" and "also."

Formation

This is a very simple particle to use. It is simply suffixed at the end of the noun it is modifying.

Korean	Romanization	English translation
저는 학생입니다.	jeo-neun haksaeng-imnida	"I am a student."
저도 학생입니다.	jeo-do haksaeng-im-imnida	"I am also a student."
저는 공부도 잘합니다.	jeo-neun gongbu-do jalhamnida	"I study well, too. "

For example:

1. 저는 매운 음식도 좋아해요.
   jeoneun maeun eumsik-do johahaeyo
   "I also like spicy food."
2. 우리 누나는 영어도 할 수 있어.
   uri nuna-neun yeongeo-do hal su isseo
   "My sister can speak English, also."
3. 제 핸드폰은 사진도 찍을 수 있어요.
   je haendeupone-eun sajin-do jjikeul su isseoyo
   "My cellphones can also take pictures."
4. 저도 알아요.
   jeo-do arayo.
   "I know that, too."
5. 저는 운동도 잘 하고, 요리도 잘 해요.
   jeo-neun undong-do jal hago, yori-do jal haeyo.
   "I'm good at sports, and good at cooking, too."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 요즘에 두통이나 복통이 있는 사람들이 많이 있어요.
   yojeume dutongina boktong-i inneun saramdeuri mani itseoyo.
   "Recently many people have been suffering from head or stomachaches."
2. 그리고 왠지 눈도 아파요.
   geurigo waenji nundo apayo.
   "For some reason my eyes hurt as well."

Sample Sentences

1. 목요일이나 금요일에 저하고 영화를 보러 가실래요?
   mongnyoirina geumnyoire jeohago yeonghwareul boreo gasillaeyo?
   "Would you like to go see a movie with me on Thursday or Friday?"
2. 저 사과와 귤을 사면 바나나와 키위도 공짜로 주는 거예요?
   jeo sagwawa gyureul samyeon bananawa kiwido gongjjaro juneun geoyeyo?
   "If I purchase the apple and the mandarin, I get the banana and the kiwi for free?"
3. 저희 가족하고 친구들하고 등산하는 것이 좋아요.
   jeohui gajokago chingudeulhago deungsanhaneun geosi joayo.
   "Mountain hiking with my family and friends is nice."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Traditional Korean Medicine and Herbs (Korean ginseng)

Korean ginseng, also known as 인삼 (Insam), is a widely used herbal medicine/cooking ingredient in South Korea. The health benefits of ginseng are still being researched, but some researchers say that when eaten, it can prevent certain types of cancer. The Korean variant of this herb is unique in that it has a strong smell and is often used in traditional Korean dishes such as 삼계탕 (Samgyetang.)

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

저기요 jeogiyo ("excuse me")

저기요 (jeogiyo) literally translates as "there," but its meaning is always understood as "Excuse me."

저기요 (jeogiyo) is a phrase used to get an individual's attention. It is used often in restaurants to get a waiter's attention and can be interchanged with phrases such as..

- 이모 (meaning "aunt" used towards women older than oneself)

- 아저씨 (meaning "mister" used towards men older than oneself)

- 아주머니 (meaning "misses" used towards women older than oneself.)

The phrase can also be used to politely get someones attention in order to speak to them. 저기요 (jeogiyo) is never used to excuse oneself for a mistake or impoliteness. It is only used as a device to attract the attention of others.

For example:

1. 저기요. 저 창문을 좀 열어주시겠어요?
   jeogiyo. jeo changmuneul jom yeoreojusigeseoyo?
   "Excuse me. Could you please open that window?"

씩 ssik ("by (ones, twos, threes)")

씩 (ssik) is used primarily to identify the distribution of counters and numbers. You can use it with a counter such as 개 (gae) or 명 (myeong).

For example, you can say 두 개씩 (du gaessik) to mean "two by two" as in 포도를 두 개씩 먹어요. (podoreul dugaessik meogeoyo) which means "I eat grapes two by two." 개 (gae) is the counter for inanimate objects.

Also, you can say "주말에 한 시간씩 청소를 해요." (jumare han siganssik cheongsoreul haeyo.) to mean "I clean (a room) every week by one hour." to identify the hour as the item being counted.

For example:

1. 학생들은 한 명씩 나왔어요.
   haksaengdeureun han myeongssik nawaseoyo.
   "The students came out one by one."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Noun Modifying Particles 저기 있는 옷의 가격은 칠천 원이고 보라색 큰 옷은 오천 원입니다.
jeogi inneun osui gagyeogeun chilcheon wonigo borasaek keun oseun ocheon wonimnida.
"That one over there is seven thousand won and the big purple dress is five thousand won."

Descriptive verbs can become noun modifiers and describe the nouns directly. The verb acts as an adjective to modify a noun that must follow immediately.

We usually translate the descriptive verb as "to be [Adjective]" but we remove this from the literal translation.

For example:

작다 [jakda] - "to be small"

작은 [jageun] - "[a] small [noun]"

Formation

+ -은 / -ㄴ + Noun

I. -은 [eun] is attached to the end of clauses that end in consonants.

작다 [jakda]: "to be small"

작 (Verb stem ending in a consonant) + -은 ---> 작은[jak-eun]: "small"/adjective

작은 + Noun -> 작은 모자 [jak-eun moja]: "a small hat"

좋다 [jota]: "to be good"

좋 (Verb stem ending in a consonant) + -은 ---> 좋은 [jo-eun]: "good"/adjective

좋은 + Noun -> 좋은 사람 [jo-eun saram]: "a good person"

있다 [itta]: "to exist"

있 (Verb stem ending in a consonant) + - ---> 있는 [inneun]: "existing"/adjective

있는 + Noun -> 있는 옷 [inneun ot]: "an existing item of clothing"

II.-ㄴ [-n] is attached to the end of clauses that end in vowels.

크다 [keuda]: "to be big"

크 (Verb stem ending in a vowel) + -ㄴ ---> 큰 [keun]: "big"/adjective

큰 + Noun -> 큰 집[keun jip]: "a big house"

나쁘다 [nappeuda]: "to be bad"

나쁘 (Verb stem ending in a vowel) + -ㄴ ---> 나쁜 [nappeun]: "bad"/adjective

나쁜 + Noun -> 나쁜 사람 [nappeun saram]: "a bad person"

화려하다 [hwaryohada]: "to be fancy/magnificent"

화려하 (Verb stem ending in a vowel) + -ㄴ ---> 화려한 [hwaryohan]: "fancy/magnificent" / adjective

화려한 + Noun -> 화려한 옷 [hwaryohan ot]: "a fancy dress"

Note:

The level of politeness is indicated not by the noun modifier itself but by the verb that follows.

Another, more general way of nominalizing a verb is to use the grammatical construction -는 것 (-neun geot). We use this structure to nominalize action verbs and it indicates "the act of (verb)ing." It stresses the fact or manner of "(verb)ing." It can be translated as "(verb)ing."

Often times, 것 (geot) is changed to 거 (geo) to make pronunciation easier and for speech to flow more easily. We use 거 (geo) in spoken Korean. Although the subject marking particle -가 (ga) would naturally follow 거 (geo), we change 거 (geo) to 게 (ge), assuming that the other subject marking particle -이 (i) is following right behind it.

것이 = 거이 = 게

When we use 거 (geo) in conjunction with the object marking particle, -를 (reul), it becomes 거를 (geo-reul). But this is often contracted to 걸 (geol) in speech.

것을 = 거를 = 걸

Formation

가다 (gada) "to go"

가 - verb stem

가 + -는 것

가는 것 (ganeun geot) "going" (명사형 - noun)

학교 가는 것이 싫어! (hagyo ga-neun geos-i sireo!)

"I don't like going to school!"

For example:

Korean	Romanized	"English"
모자 쓰는 것을 좋아해.	moja sseuneun geoseul joahae.	"I like wearing hats."
친구 하는 것이 어때?	chingu haneun geosi eottae?	"What about being friends?"
일하는 것이 힘들어요.	ilhaneun geosi himdeureoyo.	"Working is tiring."
비 오면 영화를 보는 것이 습관이에요.	bi omyeon yeonghwareul boneun goesi seupgwanieyo.	"It is my habit to watch a movie if it rains."
엄마는 남자친구가 밤에 전화하는 것을 안 좋아하세요.	eommaneun namjachinguga bame jeonhwahaneun geoseul an joahaseyo.	"My mom hates my boyfriend calling me at night."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 그러면 저기 작은 초록색 옷은요?
   geureomyeon jeogi jageun choroksaek oseunnyo?
   "Then what about that small green dress?"
2. 저는 저 화려한 빨간 옷을 살게요. 미국에 있는 엄마에게 선물로 드릴 거예요.
   jeoneun jeo hwaryeohan ppalgan oseul salgeyo. miguge inneun eommaege seonmullo deuril geoyeyo.
   "I'll purchase the fancy red dress. I'm going to give it to my mother who's in the U.S."

Sample Sentences

1. 제가 제일 좋아하는 계절은 가을이에요.
   jega jeil joahaneun gyejeoreun gaeurieyo.
   "My most favorite season is autumn."
2. 저는 키가 큰 사람을 좋아해요.
   jeoneun kiga keun sarameul joahaeyo.
   "I like tall people."
3. 무서운 영화를 보기 싫어요.
   museoun yeonghwareul bogi sireoyo.
   "I don't like watching scary movies."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Is Haggling Common in South Korea?

In Korea, there are traditional markets known as 시장 (sijang) where various items like textiles and traditional Korean foods are sold. A common practice in these markets is to haggle with the shop owners to bring down the price on items. A common phrase used to haggle prices is 깍아주세요. (kkagajuseyo) meaning "(literally) Cut down the price, please." which is a request to lower the original price.
In my own personal experience, timing is very important when haggling. For instance, whenever I would ask for discounts in the afternoon or morning I was always denied or shooed away. However, when I waited until later in the evening when shops begin to pack up and close, my rate of success was much higher. Another good way is to avoid areas with a lot of foreigners.
Useful expression:

1. 깍아주세요 kkakkajuseyo
   "Cut the price, please."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

켜다 and 끄다 kyeoda, kkeuda ("to turn on" and "to turn off")

켜다 (kyeoda) is a verb which means to "to turn on" or "to light." While 끄다 (kkuda) is a verb which means to "to turn off" or " to put out."

These two verbs are antonyms and are used primarily when speaking about operating electrical devices, lighting candles, or starting and putting out a fire.

For example:

1. A: 불을 끄고 나왔어요?
   B: 아니요, 아직 켜져있어요.
   A: bureul kkeugo nawaseoyo?
   B: aniyo, ajing kyeojyeoinneundeyo.
   "A: Did you turn the light off when you left?"
   "B: No, it was still on."

누르다 nureuda ("to press")

누르다 (nureuda) is the verb meaning "to press," "to push," or "to apply pressure to something."

누르다 can be used to ask phrases like, 버튼을 눌러주세요. (beoteuneul nulleojuseyo) which means, "Please press the button."

The meaning of 누르다 can change depending on the context of a sentence. For example the sentence, 감정을 좀 눌러주세요. (gamjeongeul jom nulleojuseyo) means, "Please restrain your emotions." or literally "Please press down your emotions." The verb 누르다 is exactly the same, however the context of the sentence changed its meaning to "to restrain."

누르다 can also be used in the expression 농구 경쟁자들을 다 눌렀습니다. (nonggu gyeongjaengjadeureul da nulleotseumnida) which means "All of the basketball competition was defeated." In this phrase the meaning of 누르다 changes to mean "to make someone defeated."

For example:

1. 페이스북에서 '좋아요' 버튼을 눌러주세요!
   peiseubogeseo joayo' beoteuneul nulleojuseyo!
   "Click the 'like' button on Facebook, please."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Loanwords

There are thousands of words borrowed from the English language and phonetically translated in Korean. Some examples of these are 아이스크림 (aiseu-keurim) "ice cream," 카메라 (kamera) "camera," and 주스 (juseu) "juice." When making loanwords, Korean newspapers or media try to imitate its pronunciation while following the rules for creating loanwords. The rules include not to include double-consonants at the beginning of a loanword, or make the last syllable end with the vowel ㅡ(eu) when it ends with a consonant in English.
What's interesting about these loanwords is that in North Korea, where "Konglish" has not been widely accepted, pure Korean versions of these words exist. For example, instead of saying 아이스크림 (aiseu-keurim) to mean "ice cream" North Koreans would say, 얼음보숭이 (eoreumbosungi), which is the pure Korean word literally meaning "ice crumbs."

"Keep your promise!"	"He violated the rule."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

두고 오다 dugo oda ("to leave," "to mislay")

두고 오다 (dugo oda) is comprised of the verb 두다 duda, which means "to place" or "to set an object somewhere," and the verb 오다 oda, which means to come. The literal translation of 두고 오다 (dugo oda) is "to set/leave and go," and from this we get the verb "to leave."

두고 오다 (dugo oda) is used in situations where an object is placed or mistakenly left behind in an area separate from the speaker. For example, the sentence 집에 우산을 두고 왔어요 (jibe usaneul dugo waseoyo) means, "I left my umbrella at home."

두고 오다 (dugo oda) can be used to imply accidentally or willingly leaving an object behind.

For example:

1. 차안에 제 핸드폰을 두고 왔어요.
   chaane je haendeuponeul dugo waseoyo.
   "I left my phone inside of my car."

지키다 jikida ("to protect," "to abide by (the rules)")

The meaning of 지키다 (jikida) can change depending on the context of a sentence. In the phrase 약속을 지키다 (yaksogeul jikida), which means "to keep a promise," it takes on the meaning of "to keep." While in the phrase 규칙을 지키다 (gyuchigeul jikida), which means "to obey the rules," it is understood as "to obey."

지키다 (jikida) has numerous meanings. A few of which are "to protect," "to watch," "to keep," "to obey." The meaning can change depending on the context of a sentence.

For example:

1. 저는 약속을 잘 지키는 사람이에요.
   jeoneun yaksogeul jal jikineun saramieyo.
   "I am someone who is good at keeping promises."

"I told you earlier that you're not supposed to wear shoes in the house."

Particle #1: -(는)다고, -ㄴ다고,

When you talk to someone about something that you heard from someone else, you say, "I heard (that)..." as in "I heard that it was nice," or "I said (that)..." as in "I said that you cannot eat this food here." In Korean, we use the suffix -다고 (dago) or -ㄴ다고 (ndago) instead of the word "that."

When a verb placed at the end of the quoted sentence ends in a vowel, you can use -ㄴ 다고. When it ends in a consonant, you can use -다고.

1. 사 (다) + ㄴ다고 -> 산다고

sa (da) + n (dago) -> sandago

"to buy" + "(I heard) that..." -> "(I heard) that (you will) buy."

2. 먹었 (다) + 다고 -> 먹었다고

meogeok(da) + dago -> meokgeokdago

"ate" + "(I said) that..." -> "(I said) that (I) ate."

-(ㄴ)다고 + 하다 form

-(ㄴ)다고 하다 ((n)dago deureotda) is a grammatical structure that you use for talking about what you did or said before. The main verb is 하다 (hada) which means "to do" and can be used to mean both "to do" and "to say." When it's used with -(ㄴ)다고 ((n)dago) which is a verb ending that works like quotation marks, this verb means "to say" or "to inform" idiomatically. You can definitely use the verb 말하다 (malhada) which literally means "to say" too, but we usually use the verb 하다 (hada) in the past tense to mean "I did," or "I said" and together, -(ㄴ)다고 했다 ((n)dago haetta) means "I did that..." or "I said that."

For example:

Korean	Romanization	"English"
이사 간다고 했어.	isa gandago hasseo.	"I said that I would move."
도움이 필요하다고 했어요.	doum-i piryohadago hasseoyo.	"I said I need some help."
이 책이 좋다고 했어요.	i chaek-i jotago haesseoyo..	"I said that this book is good."

-(ㄴ)다고 + 듣다 form

Another common verb used with -(ㄴ)다고 is the verb 듣다 (deutda) which means "to listen" or "to hear." -(ㄴ)다고 들었다 ((n)dago deureotda) is a grammatical structure that you use for talking about what you heard before. We use the verb 듣다 (deutda) in the past tense to mean "I heard," and together, -(ㄴ)다고 들었다 ((n)dago deureotda) means "I heard that..."

For example:

Korean	Romanization	"English"
이사 간다고 들었어.	isa gandago deureosseo.	"I heard that you were moving."
도움이 필요하다고 들었어요.	doum-i piryohadago deureosseoyo.	"I heard you needed some help."
이 책이 좋다고 들었어요.	i chaek-i jotago deureosseoyo.	"I heard that this book is good."

-라고 + Verb form

Note: When quoting a phrase, we use -(ㄴ)다고 ((n)dago) for almost all verbs, but the verb 이다 (ida) which means "to be," and the verb 아니다 (anida) which means "not to be" take the form of -(이)라고 ((i)rago).

For example:

1. 이것은 사과가 아니라고 했어.
   igeoseun sagwaga anirago hasseo.
   "I said that it's not an apple."
2. 이 책은 네 것이라고 들었어.
   i chaegeun ne geosirado deureosseo.
   "I heard that this is your book."

Language Tip: another usage of (이)라는 to mean "to be called."

-(이)라는 (iraneun) comes from (이)라고 하는 which is equivalent to "called as" in English. It is used to indicate or refer to something or someone by the name. -라는 is used for a noun that ends in a vowel, and -이라는 is used for a noun that ends with a consonant.

Formation:

Noun ending in a vowel + 라는

- 제주도 (jejudo) - "Jeju Island"

제주도 + 라는

제주도라는 (jejudoraneun) = "(a place) called Jeju Island"

제주도라는 섬을 알아요? (jejudoraneun seomeul arayo?)

= "Do you know an island called Jejudo?"

Noun ending in a consonant + 이라는

- 떡국 (ttokkuk) - "rice cake soup"

떡국 + 이라는

떡국이라는 (tteokgugiraneun) - "(something) called Tteokguk"

떡국이라는 한국 음식을 먹었어요. (tteokgugiraneun hanguk eumsigeul meogeosseoyo.)

= "I ate a Korean dish called Tteokguk."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 내 운동화는 깨끗하다고 했잖아. 깨끗하면 괜찮지 않아?
   nae undonghwaneun kkaekkeutadago haetjana. kkaekkeutamyeon gwaenchanchi ana?
   "I told you my sneakers are clean. If they're clean isn't it okay?"
2. 난 분명히 아니라고 했어. 우리 집에서 지켜야 하는 규칙 중 하나야.
   nan bunmyeonghi anirago haeseo. uri jibeseo jikyeoya haneun gyuchik jung hanaya.
   "I told you no for sure. It is one of our house rules that you have to follow."

Sample Sentences

1. 강아지의 이름이 뭐라고 했어요?
   gangajiui ireumi mworago haeseoyo?
   "What did you say the dog's name was?"
2. 이 김치는 배추김치라고 해요.
   i gimchineun baechugimchirago haeyo.
   "We call this kimchi 'cabbage kimchi.'"
3. 뉴스에서 오늘 눈이 온다고 했어요.
   nyuseueseo oneul nuni ondago haeseoyo.

"They said it will snow today on the news."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The No Shoe Rule in Korea

In almost every home in South Korea, it is expected that people will remove their shoes before stepping inside. This is primarily because Koreans spend a large amount of time sitting and sleeping on the floor. This practice is centered around the usage of the 온돌 (ondol), which is an underfloor heating system. Heat from the 온돌 (ondol) radiates from the ground up, so sleeping and sitting on the floor during cold weather provides greater insulation.

Useful expression

1. 온돌 ondol
   "underfloor heating system"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

먹어보다 meogeoboda ("to try to eat")

먹어보다 (meogeoboda) is comprised of the verbs 먹다 (meokda), which means "to eat," and 보다 (boda), which normally means "to see" in general, but "to try" when it's used with the other verb. All together, 먹어보다 (meogeoboda) means "to try to eat," or in other words "to taste."

When you want to ask someone to try what you ordered or cooked, you can politely ask the other person to taste it by saying 먹어보세요 (meogeoboseyo) in formal situations. Or you can say 먹어봐 (meogeobwa) when asking your friends to taste something in informal situations.

For example:

1. 이 찌개를 먹어봐도 돼요?
   i jjigaereul meogeobwado dwaeyo?
   "May I try this stew?"

시키다 sikida ("to order")

시키다 (sikida) is the verb meaning "to order," "to force" or "to cause something."

시키다 (sikida) can take on various meanings depending on the context of a sentence. When it's used with food items, it means "to order the food." For example it can be used to say 저는 김치찌개를 시킬 거예요. (jeoneun gimchijjigaereul sikil geoyeoyo.) which means "I will order Kimchi stew." Here it takes on the meaning of "to order."

시키다 (sikida) can also be used in the expression 운동을 시키다 (undong-eul sikida), which means "to make someone exercise." In this example "시키다" takes on the meaning of "to force" or "to cause."

For example:

1. 피자를 시키고 싶어요
   pijareul sikigo sipeoyo
   "I want to order pizza."

나누다 nanuda ("to share," "to divide," "to split")

The verb 나누다 (nanuda) literally means "to split" so it can be used to mean "to share" too. For example, you can say 과자를 나눠 먹어. (gwajareul nanwoseo meogeo.) to mean "Share and enjoy the snacks.." where it take on the meaning of "to share."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Particles adding the meaning of 'only'; 만, 밖에.
나는 만 원밖에 없는데.."
naneun manwonbakke eomneunde..
"I've only got ten thousand won though..."

Particle #1: 만

만 (man) is a particle that expresses the meaning of "just" or "only." We can attach 만 (man) to all nouns and some particles. So if you want to describe something and add the meaning of "only" to the sentence, you add 만 (man) to a noun, whether it's the subject or object of the sentence. While in English "only" or "just" are separate words, in Korean we attach this function to the noun as a particle.

Formation

Noun + 만 (man)

영화 (yeonghwa) "movie"
영화 + 만 = 영화만 (yeonghwaman) "only movies"

1. 제 동생은 영화만 봐요.
   je dongsaeng-eun yeonghwaman bwayo.
   "My younger brother watches only movies."

Verb Stem + -기 (gi) + 만 (man) + 하다 (hada)

You can use this particle with a verb-stem. In that case, you can use the suffix -기 (gi) which makes a verb into a noun, between the verb-stem and the particle 만 (man)

놀다 (nolda) "to play"
놀기 (nolda) + 만 = 놀기만 (nolgiman)

1. 이 학생은 놀기만 해요.
   i hakssaengeun nolgiman haeyo.
   "This student only plays."

For example:

1. 5분만 주세요.
   obunman juseyo.
   "Please just give me five minutes."

2. 저는 일요일만 쉬어요.
   jeoneun ilyoilman swieoyo.
   "I only take Sundays off."
3. 우리 아이는 텔레비전 보기만 좋아해요.
   uei aineun telebijeon bogiman joahaeyo.
   "My kids like watching TV only."

Particle: #2: 밖에

밖에 (bakke) is a word that literally means "outside," and it can also mean "besides" or "other than." when it's used as a particle with a noun.

Most of the time, when it's not used to literally indicate "outside" as in "outside the house," we combine 밖에 (bakke) with negative statements and it means "only" or "nothing but." So it means "only" in conclusion, but it's unnatural to use it in a positive statement to express the meaning of "only."

When we change the negative part of the sentence to positive, the particle -만 (man) can replace 밖에 (bakke), but not always. When implying that the number or the amount being mentioned is small or below expectations, Korean people tend to use 밖에 (bakke) rather than -만 (man), although 만 (man) is closer to the literal translation of the English word "only."

Formation

Noun + 밖에

이것 (igeot) - "this"

이것 + 밖에 = 이것 밖에 (igeot bakke) "only this"

1. 이것밖에 없어요.
   igeotbakke eopseoyo.
   "I only have this one."/"This is all we have."

For example:

Korean	Romanization	"English"
저는 지금 1000원밖에 없어요.	jeoneun jigeum cheonwonbakke eopsseoyo.	"I only have 1,000 won now."
오늘은 저밖에 안 왔어요.	oneureun jeobakke an wasseoyo.	"Today, I'm the only one who came."
이것밖에 없어요?	igeotbakke eopsseoyo?	"Is this all there is?"
이렇게밖에 못 해요?	ireokebakke mot haeyo?	"Is this your best?"
제 눈에는 민경 씨밖에 안 보여요.	je nuneneun mingyeong ssibakke an boyeoyo.	"My eyes can only see you, Mingyeong."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 저도 만 원밖에 없어요. 어떡해요?
   jeodo manwonbakke eopseoyo. eotteokaeyo?
   "I only have ten thousand won too. What should we do?"
2. 그러면 하나만 시키자. 짜장면을 나눠 먹자.
   geureomyeon hanaman sikija. jjajangmyeoneul nanwo meokja.
   "Then let's order just one. Let's share a Jjajangmyun."

Sample Sentences

1. 저는 공부밖에 잘 하는 게 없어요.
   jeoneun gongbubakke jal haneun ge eopseoyo.
   "I'm not good at anything besides studying."
2. 대학생만 신청이 가능합니다.
   daehaksaengman sincheongi ganeunghamnida.
   "Only university students may apply."
3. 우리집에는 고양이밖에 없어요.
   urijibeneun goyangibakke eopseoyo.
   "We only have cats at our house."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean-style Chinese Foods

Similar to the way the United States has adopted its own form of Chinese cuisine, Korea has also created dishes derived from the cuisine of their neighbors to the west. The most frequently eaten of these dishes are 짜장면 (jjajangmyeon), 짬뽕 (jjamppong), and 탕수육 (tangsuyuk).

Almost every town has at least one Chinese restaurant, where you can go to eat, or get the food delivered free. If you have smartphone, you can download applications that let you choose a restaurant near your home and select the menu that you want to get delivered. Usually, you get the food within 20-30 minutes. You can pay for it on the application or pay it to the staff in cash.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

문자를 보내다 (munjareul bonaeda) "to text"

문자를 보내다 (munjareul bonaeda) " is composed of a noun 문자 munja which means "text message," and a verb 보내다 bonaeda which means "to send." All together, it literally means "to send a text."

This phrase is used primarily when referring to text messaging. The expression 나중에 문자를 보낼게 (najunge munjareul bonaelge), which means "I'll text you later," is very common.

These days, people use some other expressions such as 카톡하다 (katokada) which means "I'll send a message using Kakao-talk." Kakaotalk or 카카오톡 (kakao-tok) is the most popular mobile messaging app in Korea, so they use the expression 카톡하다 (katokada) when specifying that the messages will be sent over the application.

For example:

1. 집에 도착하면 문자를 보내줘요.
   jibe docaghamyeon munjaleul bonaejweoyo.
   "When you arrive home, please text me."

전화를 걸다 (jeonhwareul geolga) "to make a telephone call"

전화를 걸다 (jeonhwareul geolga) is composed of the noun 전화 (jeonhwa), which means "telephone," and the verb 걸다 (geolda) which means "to call by telephone." Some use the verb 하다 (hada) meaning "to do" instead of 걸다 (geolda), as in 전화를 하다 (jeonhwareul hada), to mean "to make a telephone call."

When you receive a call, you can say 전화를 받다 (jeonhwareul batta) using a verb 받다 (batta) meaning "to catch" or "to receive."

For example:

1. 사장님께 전화를 좀 걸어주세요
   sajangnimkke jeonhwaleul jom georeojuseyo.
   "Please make a call to the CEO."
2. 내일 전화를 걸어주세요.
   naeil jeonhwareul georeojuseyo.
   "Please call me tomorrow."

전화를 씹다 (jeonhwareul ssipda) "to ignore a phone call"

전화를 씹다 (jeonhwareul ssipda) is a colloquial expression which literally means "to chew up a telephone call." People use the verb 씹다 (ssipda) with they chew gum. Idiomatically, it also means "to ignore" or "to pay no attention" to the object.

When someone you're trying to call is not answering the phone on purpose, you can say 그 사람이 내 전화를 씹다. (geu sarami nae jeonhwareul ssipda), meaning "He ignored my phone call" or literally "He chewed up my phone call."

The verb 씹다 can be used with other phrases to communicate a similar meaning, such as 문자를 씹다 (munjareul ssipda) which means "to ignore a text message," or 말을 씹다 (mareul ssipda) which means "to ignore speech."

For example:

1. 내 전화를 왜 씹었어?
   nae jeonhwaleul wae ssibeosseo?
   "Why did you ignore my call?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Using the Particles 라도, meaning "at least," and -면, Meaning "even if."
문자라도 보낼 수 없었어?
munjarado bonael su eopseose?
"Couldn't you at least have sent me a text message?"

Particle #1: 라도 (rado) "at least"

-라도 (-rado) is a particle which can be translated as "at least," "even if," or "even if it's just." It's attached to the end of a noun. The noun that particle -라도 (-rado) is attached to is the minimum requirement. A verb is not necessary, but a complete sentence usually conveys a full complete idea, whereas having (noun) + 라도 would require some inference from the listener.

Formation

(명사) + (이)라도

(Noun) + (i)rado

1. -라도 (-rado)

-라도 (-rado) is used with nouns that end in vowels.

For example:

주스 (juseu) - "juice" + 라도 (rado)

주스라도 (juseu-rado) - "at least juice"

2. -이라도 (-irado)

-이라도 (-irado) is used with nouns that end in consonants.

물 (mul) - "water" 이라도 (irado)

물이라도 (murirado) - "at least water"

For example:

1. 전화번호라도 주세요.
   jeonhwabeonhorado juseyo.
   "Please give me at least your phone number."
2. 명함이라도 주세요.
   myeonghamirado juseyo.
   "Please give me at least your business card."
3. 이거라도 받으세요.
   igeorado badeuseyo.
   "Please at least take this."
4. 여기까지 왔는데... 영화라도 볼까?
   yeogikkaji watneunde... yeonghwarado bolkka?
   "We've come all the way up here... Do you want to at least see a movie?"
5. 그냥 연습이라도 해 보자.
   geunyang yeonseubirado hae boja.
   "Let's at least just practice."

Particle #2: 면 (myeon) and 으면 (eumyeon) "if"

(으)면 (-(eu)myeon) means "if." We usually use it only with the particle (으)면 (-(eu)myeon) to mean "if." Even without the word 만약에 (manyak-e), as long as the main verb is conjugated using the form -(으)면 (-(eu)myeon), the sentence keeps the same meaning. But we usually add 만약에 (manyak-e) at the beginning of the sentence to emphasize the meaning. Often, we just shorten 만약에 (manyak-e) to 만약 (manyak) as well. And when used as a question, we can translate 만약에 -(으)면 (manyak-e -(eu)myeon) as "What if...?"

Formation

만약에 + Verb Stem + -(으)면

Note: When a verb-stem ends in a consonant, you need to use 으면 (eumyeon). Otherwise, add the particle 면 (myeon).

1. 가다 (to go) + 면 (meyon) to mean "If you go."

만약에 + verb stems ending in a vowel + 면
만약에 + 가 (verb-stem of 가다) + 면
만약에 가면 "If (you) go."

2. 찾다 (to find) + 으면 (eumeyon) to mean "If you find it."

만약에 + verb stems ending in a vowel + 으면
만약에 + 찾 (verb-stem of 찾다) +으면
만약에 찾으면 "If (you) find (it)."

For example:

Korean	Romanized	"English"
만약에 내일 비가 오면 뭐 할 거야? OR 내일 비가 오면 뭐 할 거야?	mayage naeil biga omyeon mwo hal geoya? OR naeil biga omyeon mwo hal geoya?	"What will you do if it rains tomorrow?"
만약에 내가 집에 없으면 문자 보내. OR 내가 집에 없으면 문자 보내.	manage naega jibe eopseumyeon munja bonae. OR naega jibe eopseumyeon munja bonae.	"If I'm not at home, send me a text."

Example from the dialogue:

1. 그래도 약속 시간을 못 지키게 되면 연락이라도 해야지.
   "Still, if you can't keep your appointments you should at least contact me."
   geuraedo yaksok siganeul mot jikige deomyeon yeollagirado haeyaji.

Sample Sentences

1. 시간이 좀 늦었는데 차라도 한 잔 마시러 갈까요?
   sigani jom neujeonneunde charado han jan masireo galkkayo?
   "Would you like to at least go grab a cup of tea since it's late?"
2. 대회 신청하려면 어디로 가면 돼요?
   daehoe sincheongharyeomyeon eodiro gamyeon dwaeyo?
   "Where should I go if I intend to register for the convention?"
3. 지금이라도 시작하면 늦지 않아요.
   jigeumirado sijakamyeon neutji anayo.
   "It's not too late if you start now."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean 칼퇴근 (kaltoegeun) "leaving the office on time."

In Korea, the term 칼퇴근(kaltoegeun) is used to describe getting off work at a very precise and specific time, usually the time which is set in the contract. For example, you could use the expression, 그는 7시에 칼퇴근 한다 (geuneun ilgopsie kaltoegeuneun handa) which means "He gets off work at 7 sharp." The word 칼 (kal) that is placed in front of 퇴근 (toegeun) originally means "knife." However when combined with the verb 퇴근 (toegeun), which means "to leave work," it takes the meaning "sharp."
Koreans tend to work two or three extra hours after their work schedule is over, so people usually use this word when one of their coworkers leaves the office on time, while others are still working. In that case, they will say 저 사람은 언제나 칼퇴근을 해 (jeo sarameun eonjena kaltoegeuneun hae) menaing "He always leaves the office on time."
Useful expression

1. 칼퇴근 kaltoegeun
   "Leaving work at a precise time"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

안심하다 (ansimhada) "to relax, to feel relaxed"

안심하다 (ansimhada) is made of the Chinese character 안 (an) which means "calm" or "peace," and 심 (sim) which can mean "mind," "heart," or "feelings." All together 안심 (ansim) means "relaxation" and you can use this noun with a verb 하다 (hada) to mean "to relax" or "to feel relaxed."

안심하다 is used to express relief or comfort about a situation or circumstance. For example, you could use the expression 노래를 들으니까 안심되네요 (noraereul deureunikka ansimdoeneyo) which means "I feel relaxed after listening to the song."

For example:

1. 기말고사 다 끝나니까 안심되네요.
   gimalgosa da ggeutnanikka ansimdoeneyo.
   "I'm very relaxed now that finals have ended."

잘 됐네 (jal deonnae) "that went well"

잘 됐네 (jal deonnae) is an expression that means "that went well" or "that turned out great." 잘 (jal) is an adverb meaning "very well" and 되다 (deoda) is a verb meaning "to become" so 잘 됐네 (jal deonnae) literally means "It became well."

잘 됐네 (jal deonnae) can be a reaction after hearing good news or positive information. For example, a friend may say 오늘 드디어 운전면허증을 땄어! (oneul deudieo unjeonmyeonheojeungeul ddasseo) which means "I finally received my drivers licence today!." In response to this one could say 잘 됐네!(jal deonnae) to express a mutual feeling of excitement.

어머 (eomeo) "oh my, oh dear"

어머 (eomeo) is a colloquial expression used to express astonishment or disbelief about a situation. It's used in similar situations as "oh my god" in English. This phrase is used mostly by female speakers. If you're a man, you can say 이런 (ireon) to express astonishment.

For example:

1. 어머! 누가 우리집에 쳐들어왔어?
   eomeo! nuga urijibe cheodeureowasseo?
   "Oh my! Did someone come into our house?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Particles that Express Negative Feelings. 느니, 조차 or 는커녕.
엄마는 화를 내시는커녕 내가 다치지 않아서 안심하셨어.
eommaneun hwareul naesigineun keonyeong naega dachiji anaseo ansimhasyeoseo.
"Far from being upset, my mother was just relieved I wasn't hurt."

Particle #1 - -느니 (neuni) "Rather than..."

When you are talking about something that you do not particularly feel like doing, or something that you would rather not do because you think doing it isn't the best idea, you can use the particle, -느니 (-neuni) after a verb-stem. You add -느니 after what you don't want to do, and add the part saying what you would rather do after that.

Formation

Verb Stem + -느니

가다 (gada) = "to go"

가 + 느니 = 가느니 (ganeuni) = "rather than going.."

For example:

1. 지금 집에 가느니, 여기서 잘게요.
   jigeum jib-e ganeuni yeogiseo jalgeyo.
   "Rather than going home now, I will just sleep here."

2. 나중에 후회하느니, 지금 가 보고 싶어요.
   najung-e huhoe-haneuni, jigeum ga bogo sipeoyo.
   "Rather than regretting it later, I want to go see it now."

-느니 (neuni) is often used together with the verb ending -겠다 (getta), which expresses intention, but we can use other types of verb endings with it.

For example:

1. 이걸 사느니, 차라리 지금 갖고 있는 것을 쓰겠다.
   igeol saneuni, charari jigeum gatgo itneun geos-eul sseugetda.
   "Rather than buying this one, I want to use what I have now."
2. 혼자 영화 보러 가느니 그냥 집에서 영화 보겠다.
   honja yeonghwa boreo ganeuni geunyang jib-eseo yeonghwa bogetta.
   "If I have to go to the movies alone, I would rather just watch a movie at home."

Particle #2: 조차 (jocha) "even"

조차 (jocha) is the particle meaning "even."

If someone with excellent skills can't do some task related to his or her talents, you can use this phrase meaning "even he/she...not..."

Formation

Noun+ 조차

의사 (uisa) = "doctor"

의사 + 조차 = 의사조차 (*euisajocha) "*even a doctor.."

For example:

1. 전쟁터에서 장군조차 총알이 없다.
   Jeonjaengteoeseo janggunjocha chongari eopda.
   "Even the generals don't have bullets in the combat field."

This particle usually goes with the word ㄹ수가 (r-suga) or 할 수가 (hal suga) which means "to be able to." For example, when even a doctor cannot cure someone, you can say the following:

1. 의사조차 고칠 수가 없다.
   Uisajocha gochil suga eopda.
   "Even doctors cannot cure it."

In this sentence, we added ㄹ수가(r-suga) to the verb-stem 고치(gochi) because the verb-stem ends in a vowel. When a verb-stem ends in a consonant, you need to add 할 수가 (hal suga).

Particle: #3 - -은커녕, -는커녕 (-eunkeonyeong, -nunkeonyeong) "let alone," "not even that"

-은커녕, and -는커녕 (-eunkeonyeong, -nunkeonyeong) negate the noun or verb that it follows and leads to revealing another fact by comparing the noun or verb with another noun or verb that comes after. -는/은커녕 follows a noun, so a verb has to be in its noun form of -기(gi) and be followed by -는 커녕. This grammatical phrase is translated as "let alone"' or "not even that."

Formation

1. [Noun] + -는/은커녕 (-eunkeonyeong, -nunkeonyeong)

밥 + -은커녕 = 밥은커녕

bap + -eunkeonyeong = babeunkeonyeong

"rice" + "not even" = "not even rice"

Note - the noun 밥 (bap) ends in a consonant, so we used 은커녕 (-eunkeonyeong.)

일본어 + -는커녕 = 일본어는커녕

ilboneo + -neunkeonyeong = ilboneoneunkeonyeong

"Japanese" + "not even" = "not even Japanese language."

Note - the noun 일본어 (ilboneo) ends in a vowel, so we used 는커녕 (- neunkeonyeong.)

2. [Verb-stem] + -기는커녕 (-ginunkeonyeong)

놀다 + -기는커녕 = 놀기는커녕

nolda + -ginunkeonyeong = nolginunkeonyeong

"to play" + "not even" = "not even playing"

오다 + -기는커녕 = 오기는커녕

oda + -ginunkeonyeong = oginunkeonyeong

"to come" + "not even" =" not even coming"

For example:

1. 그는 소주는커녕 맥주도 못 마셔요.
   geu-neun soju-neunkeonyeong maekju-do mot masyeoyo.
   "He can't even drink beer, let alone soju."
2. 우리는 데이트는커녕 얼굴 보기도 힘들어요.
   uri-neun deiteu-neunkeonyeong eolgul bogi-do himdeureoyo.
   "We can't even see each other often, let alone date."
3. 요즘은 공부는커녕 신문도 못 읽어요.
   yojeum-eun gongbu-neunkeonyeong sinmun-do mot ilgeoyo.
   "I can't even read newspapers, let alone study."
4. 글을 고치기는커녕, 실수를 더 많이 했어요.
   geul-eul gochigineunkeonyeong, silsu-reul deo mani haesseoyo.
   "Far from correcting the writing, I made even more mistakes."
5. 칭찬은커녕 야단만 맞았어요.
   chingchan-eunkeonyeong yadan-man majasseoyo.
   "Rather than getting compliments, I only got scolded."

Note: -는 고사하고 (neun gosahago) can be used to replace -은/는커녕, but only when -은/는커녕 follows a noun.

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 아버지 얼굴을 보는 것조차 힘들었으니까.
   abeoji eolgureul boneun jeot jocha himdeureotsseunikka.
   "I couldn't even face him."

Sample Sentences

1. 남을 시키느니 차라리 내가 하는 게 더 나아요.
   nameul sikineuni charari naega haneun ge deo naayo.
   "It will be better to do it myself instead of having another person do it."
2. 밥을 먹기조차 힘들어요.
   babeul meokgijocha himdeureoyo.
   "It's difficult to even eat a meal."
3. 숙제를 내기는커녕 시작도 안했어요.
   sugjeleul naegineunkeonyeong sijakdo anhaesseoyo.
   "I'm far from turning in my homework, I haven't even started it yet."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Public Transport in Seoul

Seoul is home to one of the most efficient and reasonably priced transport systems in the world. Most cities in South Korea are connected via subway and train while an intricate intercity bus system is used for cities outside of the Seoul metropolitan area. Transfer between buses and subway is all free if you transfer to within 30 minutes, and you can transfer up to five times.
This makes moving around the country very comfortable and affordable. The only drawback to this system was its limited operation time. The subway only runs from five a.m. until midnight. In 2014, however, Seoul launched a night bus system. You need to pay extra to ride the bus but you can go anywhere in Seoul even at three a.m. Still, taxis are always available for a slightly more expensive fee, so you can use taxis if you want to get home quickly.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

직접 (jikjeop) "directly," "in person"

직접 (jikjeop) is composed of the Chinese character 직 (jik) which means "straight," and 접 (jeop) which means "to approach." These two characters combined give us "straight approach," so it's easy to see where the translation "directly" comes from. To mean "indirect" you can say 간접 (ganjeop).

직접 can be also mean "in person" or "directly to the person in charge." For example, you'll hear 직접 가서 물어보세요. (jikjeop gaseo mureoboseyo), which is a polite way of saying "go and inquire in person" if, for example, you asked a question to someone who's not in charge.

For example:

1. 직접 만나서 이것에 대해서 얘기합시다.
2. jikjeop mannaseo igeose daehaeseo yaegihapsida.
3. "Let's meet and discuss this in person."

돌아오시다 (doraosida) "to come back (honorific)," "to return (honorific)"

돌아오시다 (doraosida) is a honorific version of the verb 돌아오다 (doraoda) meaning "to come back." It has the horrific suffix 시 (si) next to the verb-stem which makes a verb into a honorific verb.

You can find this pattern with other verbs, such as 가시다 (gasida) which is based on the verb 가다 (gada) meaning "to go."

This phrase 돌아오시다 (doraosida) is used only towards individuals that are older than oneself, or towards individuals with whom one lacks an intimate relationship. At restaurant, shop owners or staff use it with customers. For example, the phrase "어서 들어오세요" means "to enter quickly" and can be used to quickly and politely usher individuals into a room or building.

Note that you can't say 돌아가시다 (doragasida) to mean "to turn back to where someone was." Although that's the literal meaning, we use it idiomatically to mean "to pass away" or "to die," so be careful!

For example:

1. 언제 돌아오실 거예요?
2. eonje dolaosil geoyeyo?
3. "When will you return?"

괜찮다 (gwaenchanta) "I'm okay" or "I'm fine." (to deny)

The expression 괜찮다 (gwaenchanta) is generally understood to mean "I'm okay" or "I'm fine," however, it can also be used to politely refuse an offer or a request.

For example, if someone says 김치를 먹을래요 (gimchireul meogeullaeyo?) which means "Would you like to have some kimchi?," you can politely refuse the offer by using the expression 아니요. 저는 괜찮아요 (aniyo. jeoneun gwaenchanayo), which means "No thank you. I'm okay."

For example:

1. 괜찮아요. 제가 알아서 할게요.
   gwaencanhayo. jega araseo halgeyo.
   "It's okay. I'll figure it out myself."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is the Confirmation Particles 지, 이죠, 잖아.
여보세요? 택배가 왔는데요, 김아란 씨 맞으시죠?
yeoboseyo? taekbaega wanneundeyo, gimaranssi majeusijyo?
"Hello? I have a package for you. Aran Kim, right?"

Particle #1 - 지, 지요. (iji, jiyo) "right?" (for confirming)

-지(요) [-ji(yo)] is a final sentence ending particle which changes the nuance of a sentence. It can be used in statements, questions, suggestions, or commands, and is often used to invite confirmation or to call for agreement. In some instances it is used to show insistence or reassurance. The differences in nuance can be found in different intonations. This construction can be translated in few different ways depending on the nuance the speaker wishes to express.

Here are the two main functions, which are ways of asking for confirmation:

1. When -지(요) [-ji(yo)] is used as a question tag, to ask for a confirmation or an agreement, it can be translated as "right?," "is it?," "are you?," or "is he?" (It can also be used as a rhetorical question).

2. When -지(요) [-ji(yo)] is used to with the intent to get a confirmation or an agreement, and is expressed as a statement, it can be translated as "I suppose," "I bet," "it seems to me," "you see," or "I'd say."

Because this is a final sentence ending, it can no longer be conjugated itself to change the level of politeness. It can be, however, adjusted with the polite particle 요 (yo) at the end. Often -지요 (-jiyo) is contracted to simply -죠 (-jyo). Tense and negation can be expressed before -지(요) [-ji(yo)] is added onto the end of the sentence.

Formation

Verb Stem + 지 (or 지요)

하다 (hada) - "to do" + 지 (지요)

하지? 하지요? (hiji? hajiyo)? = "don't you?" "(You do this), right?")

한국어 하지? (hangugeo haji?) "You speak Korean, right?" (informal situation)

한국어 하지요? (hangugeo hajiyo?) "You speak Korean, right?" (formal situation)

The answer will be something like "Of course I speak Korean." For informal situation only, the other can answer the question by using the same particle -지. as in 한국어 하지! (hangogeo haji!) meaning "Of course I speak Korean."

For example:

1. 맞지(요)?
   matji(yo)?
   "It's right, isn't it?"
2. 그렇지(요)?
   geureochi(yo)?
   "That's the way it is, right?"

For example:

1. 차주은 씨는 지각하셨죠?
   cha jueun ssi-neun jigakhasyeotjyo?
   "Miss Cha Jueun, you were late, right?"
2. 나 한국말 잘 하지?
   na hangukmal jalhaji?
   "I'm good at Korean, right?"

Particle #2: 잖아 (jana) "Isn't it?"

The final sentence-ending particle 잖아 (jana) is used when the speaker assumes or supposes that the listener knows and agrees with what speaker has just said.

This construction derives from the negative sentence ending -지 않아 (ji ana). Therefore, this grammatical construction -잖아 can often translated as "isn't it?" or "don't you?" (if these questions were rhetorical). It can also be translated as "as you know..."

In this form, it is in the intimate politeness level. The standard politeness level can be achieved by suffixing the politeness particle -요 (-yo) at the end of the construction.

Tense can be expressed by placing the past tense infix 았/었/였 (an, eot, yeot) before the verb stem and this construction. Negation can only be expressed by the adverb 안 (an), and not by the negative grammatical construction 지 않다 (ji antta) because this construction is a derivation of that grammatical construction.

Formation

Conjugation of verbs are the same for both descriptive and action verbs.

Verb Stem + -잖아

- 차갑다 (chagapda) - "to be cold" + 잖아 (jana)

- 차갑 + 잖아 = 차갑잖아(chagapjana) - "You know it's cold." or "It's cold, isn't it?"

For example:

1. 소리가 크잖아.
   sori-ga keujana.
   "You know the sound is loud." or "The sound is loud, isn't it?"
2. 그 티셔츠는 작잖아.
   geu tisyeocheu-neun jakjana.
   "You know, that t-shirt is small." or "That t-shirt is small, isn't it?"

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 택배를 문앞에 두고 가시면 되잖아요?
   taekbaereul munape dugo gasimyeon doejanayo?
   "You can just leave the package at the front door, right?"
2. 제가 내일 우체국에 직접 찾으러 가면 되죠?
   jega naeil ucheguge jikjeop chajeureo gamyeon doejyo?
   "I can just pick it up from the post office tomorrow, right?"

Sample Sentences

1. 젓가락을 이렇게 쓰는 게 맞지?
   jeotgarageul ireoke sseuneunge matji?
   "You use chopsticks like this, right?"
2. 여기는 사당역이죠?
   yeogineun sadangyeogijyo?
   "This is Sadang station, correct?"
3. 저는 이미 입장료를 냈잖아요?
   jeoneun imi ibjangryoreul naetjanayo?
   "I've already paid the entrance fee?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Apartment Complexes

Due to South Korea's comparatively small size and large population, South Koreans had to learn how to live vertically. In South Korea, apartments and most buildings are designed to take up vertical space. This results in large groups of tall apartment buildings being easily visible from multiple areas in the city. When you go around Seoul, you'll be able to see ten or twenty buildings with the same design are standing one by one. In Korean, this is called an 아파트 단지 (apateu danji) meaning "apartment complex." Usually they are located near a main street and good schools, making the price more expensive than regular houses. Inside the complex there will usually be at least one building which has shops, a supermarket, and restaurants for the residents so that they don't need to even step outside of their complex on the weekends.

오늘 아침을 빨리 먹어서 배고파요. oneul achim-eul ppalli meogeoseo baegopayo. "I had an early breakfast this morning, so I'm hungry."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

푹 (puk) "deeply," "completely," "soundly"

푹 (puk) is an adverb used to describe "a deep and thorough resting period." It's most commonly used with the phrases 자다 (jada) which means "to sleep" or "to fall asleep," and the verb 쉬다 (swida) which means "to rest." Note that you can use this adverb only when the verb is related to taking a rest.

For example:

1. 어젯밤에 잠이 푹 들었어요.
   eojetbame jami puk deureosseoyo.
   "Yesterday I fell into a deep sleep."
2. 이번 주말에 고향 집에 가서 푹 쉬어야 한다.
   ibeon jumare gohyang jibe gaseo puk swieoya handa.
   "This weekend, I should go to my parents' home and get a good rest."

-밖에 안 된다 (bakke an deonda) "not more than," "it's only.."

-밖에 안 된다 (bakke an deonda) consists of the word 밖에 (bikka) which means "only" and has a negative implication, and the word 안 되다 (an deoda) which means "to not be" or "not to reach a limit."

This phrase is commonly used when talking about price. When an amount is lower than ones' expectations, you can use this phrase. For example, when the price of a plane ticket is cheaper than what you expected, you can say 비행기표는 700불 밖에 안된다. (bihaeng-gi-pyoneun chilbaek bulgakke andeonda.) meaning "The plane ticket is only $700" and implies that you assumed it would be higher.

For example:

1. 날씨가 지금 10도밖에 안되네요.
   nalssiga jigeum sipdobakke andoeneyo.
   "It's only 50 degrees outside."

절 (jeol) "Buddhist temple"

The word 절 (jeol) is used to describe Buddhist temples.

It can be used when you are talking about Buddhist temples in general, but when it's the name of a temple, you'll see the word 사 (sa) at the end of the temple's name, such as 불국사 (bulguksa), the famous Buddhist temple in 경주 (Gyeongju).

Speaking of religion, you'll also hear a noun, 교회 (gyoheo) meaning "Christian church," or 성당 (seongdang) meaning "Catholic church."

For example:

1. 절에 자주 불공을 드리러 가요.
   jeore jaju bung-gong-eul deurireo gayo.
   "I often go to a temple to worship (to pray to the Buddha)."
2. 절에서는 장난치면 안된다.
   jeoreseoneun jangnanchimyeon andoenda.
   "You should not play around at a temple."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is the Checking Particles 는다고 and ㄴ다고.
산 위에 절이 있다고?
san wie jeori itdago?
"There's a temple at the top of the mountain?"

-ㄴ/는다고 (-n/neundago) is a sentence ending, which reiterates a person's statement which is derived from reported speech. It can be used to check, emphasize, reassert, or when used in the form of a question, to confirm a previous statement.

When used as a statement, this construction typically reiterates what the speaker has said (first-person perspective). In this instance it can be translated as "I said..." When used as a question, this construction typically reiterates what the listener has said (second-person perspective). In this instance, it can be translated as "you said..."

This construction is derived from reported speech. The original phrase is -(ㄴ/는)다고 말하다 (n/neun dago malgaha) which literally means "(someone) said that.." The full reported speech phrase must be used when reiterating a statement made by a person outside of the conversation (third person).

-ㄴ/는다고 (-n/neundago) can be made polite by adding the politeness particle -요(-yo) at the end.

Formation

---

1. Verb Stem + -ㄴ/는다고 (n-dago, neundago) + Action Verbs

A. -ㄴ다고 (ndago) is used for action verb stems ending in vowels.

For example, with an action verb 말하다 (malhada) meaning "to speak, to tell," you can say..

말하 + -ㄴ다고

말한다고 (malhandago) - "...said", "... telling"

In a sentence, it can be:

1. 너 지금 엄마한테 말한다고?
   neo jigeum ummahante malhandago?
   "You're telling mom now? or "Did you say you're telling mom now?

B. -는다고 (neundago) is used for action verb stems ending in consonants.

For example, with an action verb 입다 (ipda) meaning "to wear," you can say..

입 + 는다고

입는다고 (ipneundago) - "said... wearing"

In a sentence, it can be:

1. 너가 이걸 입는다고?
   neoga igeol ipneundago?
   "You're telling that you're going to wear this?" or "Did you say that you're going to wear this?"

2. Verb Stem + -다고 (dago) + Descriptive Verbs

-다고 (dago) is used for descriptive verb stems ending in both consonants and vowels.

For example, with a descriptive verb 무섭다 (museopda) meaning "to be scary," you can say:

무섭 + 다고

무섭다고 (museopdago) - "said... scary"

In a sentence, it can be:

1. 저 사람이 무섭다고?
   jeo saram-i museopdago?
   "You said that person's scary?"

For example:

1. 지금 일본이라고?
   jigeum ilbonirago?
   "You're in Japan now?"
2. 어제 저를 봤다고요?
   eoje jeo-reul bwatdagoyo?
   "Did you say you saw me yesterday?"

Note: In conversational Korean, there is often a pronunciation change with this construction. 다고 (dago) is often pronounced as 다구 (dagu).

Sample Sentences

1. 밖에 눈이 내리고 있다고요?
   bakke nuni naerigo itdagoyo?
   "You said it's snowing outside?"
2. 버스가 여기로 더 이상 안 온다고요?
   beoseuga yeogiro deo isang an ondagoyo?
   "You said the bus doesn't come here anymore?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Temples in Korea

Similar to its neighbors in East Asia, South Korea has a rich history surrounded by Buddhism. There are remnants of this Buddhist history left all over the country in the form of temples, also known as 절 (jeol) in Korean. Like many cultural attractions in South Korea, most temples are either free to enter or only charge a small amount for admission. In the fall, the temples provide breathtaking scenes when juxtaposed with fall foliage.
These temples aren't only for sightseeing, you can also try a temple-stay program at some temples in Korea. If you're out hiking, you'll also see people having lunch at a temple. Korean monks are not allowed to eat any meat, so all the meals that you will have at a temple are made with rice and vegetables. In Korean, this type of meal is called 사찰음식 (sachareumsik). 사찰 (sachal) is another word meaning "temple," and 음식 (eumsik) means "food."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

일단 (ildan) "first," "anyway"

The word 일단 (ildan) is composed of the Chinese characters 일 (il) which means "first," and 단 (dan) which means "short" or "brief." By combining these two we get the meaning "firstly," or sometimes, "urgently."

일단 (ildan) is used to suggest that an action should be carried out with urgency and take priority. When you have to solve one problem before others, you can say 일단 문제를 해결하도록 합시다 (ildan munjereul haegyeol-hadorok hapsida) using the word 일단 (ildan) This sentence means "First let's try and solve this problem."

For example:

1. 일단 사장님께 연락 드리도록 해요.
   "First, please contact the company president."

별로 (byeollo) "not particularly"

The word 별로 (byeollo) translates literally as "specially." However because of its constant pairing with negative predicates the word itself has a negative connotation.

별로 (byeollo) is used to convey feelings of dislike or a lack of enthusiasm. For example, if someone asks you if you want to go to a party and you don't want to go because you don't have any "special" interest in it, you can say 별로 안 가고싶어요. (byeollo an gagosipeoyo) which means "I don't particularly want to go." You can even use just the word "별로" and maintain the same meaning.

For example:

1. 배가 불러서 별로 더 먹고 싶지 않아요.
   baega bulleoseo byeollo deo meokko sipji anayo.
   "I don't particularly want to eat more because I feel full."

사주다 (sajuda) "to buy for someone"

The verb 사주다 (sajuda) is composed of the two verbs "사다" which means "to buy," and "주다" which means "to give." Combined they create a phrase which literally means "to buy and give." You can use this verb when you treat someone else or give something as a present.

사주다 (sajuda) can be used when purchasing something for someone, or when someone purchases an item for you.

The expression 과자를 사줄까(gwajareul sajulkka), which means "Shall I buy you a snack?," uses this phrase.

For example:

1. 부모님 위해서 집을 사줄 거예요.
   bumonim wihaeseo jibeul sajulgeoyeyo.
   "I'm going to buy my parents a house."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Particles for Making Suggestions 자 and 을래.
일단 밥을 먹자. 근데 배고프지 않니?
ildan babeul meokja. geunde baegopeuji anni?
"Let's eat first. Aren't you hungry anyways?"

Particle #1 - 자 (ja) "Let's"

We use this sentence ending particle 자 (ja) to express invitation, persuasion, or solicitation for an action. It's used to invite someone to perform an action together with the speaker(s). We only use -자 (-ja) with the intimate politeness level, so make sure you use it only with people with whom you are on intimate terms.

It's often translated as "let's [verb]."

Formation

To use this construction, simply take the stem of a verb and add 자 (ja) at the end of it.

For example:

Dictionary form: 먹다 (meokda) "to eat"

Verb stem: 먹 (meok)

Construction: 먹 (meok) + 자 (ja)

Result: 먹자 (meokja) - "let's eat"

For Example:

Verb	Romanization	Meaning	+자	Romanization	"English"
하다	hada	"to do"	하자	haja	"let's do (it)"
먹자	meokja	"to eat"	먹자	meokja	"let's eat"
보다	boda	"to see/watch"	보자	boja	"let's watch"
마시다	masida	"to drink"	마시자	masija	"let's drink"
가다	gada	"to go"	가자	gaja	"let's go"

For example:

1. 집에 가자.
   jibe gaja
   "Let's go home."
2. 맥주 마시자.
   maekju masija.
   "Let's drink beer."

Particle #2 - ㄹ래? / 을래? (l-rae, eullae) "Shall we..?" or "Will you..?"

When these are used in a statement, it conveys one's desired intention for the future, not one's actual intention. It can be translated as "to want to (verb)." We use this construction with action verbs.

Because of this original meaning, it has the nuance of "shall we..?" or "will you?" when it's used at the end of a question.

Note that this grammatical construction is in the intimate politeness level. The standard politeness level requires the politeness particle -요 as in ㄹ래요? and 을래요? (l-laeyo, eullaeyo).

Formation

Verb Stem + -ㄹ래? or 을래?

When a verb-stem ends in a consonant, you can use 을래? (eullae).

For example:

Dictionary form: 먹다 (meokda) "to eat"

Verb stem: 먹 (meok)

Construction: 먹 (meok) + 을래? (eullae)

Result: 먹을래? (meogeullae) - "Shall we eat?" or "Will you eat?"

When a verb-stem ends in a vowel, you can use 르래? (l-rae)

For example:

Dictionary form: 가다 (gada) "to go"

Verb stem: 가 (ga)

Construction: 가 (ga) + 르래? (l-rae)

Result: 갈래? (gallae) - "Shall we go?" or "Will you go?"

When these sentence-ending particles are used in a statement sentence, they can be used as following.

For example:

Korean	Romanized	"English"
한국으로 갈래요.	hangugeuro gallaeyo.	"I want to go to Korea."
나는 오늘 결혼 할래.	naneun oneul gyeoron hallae.	"I want to get married today."
사랑을 해 볼래요.	sarangeul hae bollaeyo.	"I want to fall in love."
여기서 기다릴래.	yeogiseo gidarillae.	"I want to wait here."
나 일 그만둘래.	na il geumandullae.	"I want to quit my job."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 그러면 떡볶이를 사줄래? 쇼핑하면서 먹을게.
   geureomyeon tteokbokkireul sajullae? syopinghamyeonseo meogeulge.
   "Then would you like to buy me some Tteokbokki? I'll eat that while we shop"
2. 그래 사줄게. 빨리 가자!
   geurae sajulge. ppalli gaja!
   "Sure, I'll buy some for you. Let's hurry!"

Sample Sentences

1. 내일 같이 운동하자.
   naeil gati undonghaja.
   "Let's exercise together tomorrow."
2. 나랑 결혼해줄래?
   narang gyeolhonhaejullae?
   "Would you like to marry me?"
3. 집에 가기 전에 노래 하나를 더 들어보자.
   jibe gagijeone norae hanareul deo deureoboja.
   "Let's listen to one more song before we go home."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The Dongdaemun Shopping Plaza

Areas such as 동대문 (Dongdaemun) in South Korea are famous for their wide selection of clothes and cheap prices. You can find multiple shopping centers which open overnight around the area. If you want to stay up all night but aren't interested in drinking, this area will be the best place to visit and spend a night. Make sure you negotiate as much as possible. The shop owners and staff don't put prices on the items, so they'll jack up the price if they notice you're a foreigner. Try to get 30 or 40% off of what they suggest.
Close to Dongdaemun is 명동 (Myengdong), which is another shopping center that is also a popular tourist attraction for tourists. Both of these places offer great opportunities for shopping. Most of the staff in this area speak at least one second language, usually English, Japanese, or Chinese, so you'll be able to enjoy your shopping even without using a single Korean expression, except for 깍아주세요 (kkakajuseyo) meaning "Please lower the price."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

예전 (yejeon) "long ago," "older days"

예전 (yejeon) is composed of the characters 예 (ye) which means "old," and 전 (jeon) which means "before." You can use it to mean "long ago" or "older days" You cannot use this word when talking about the near past, but the past of five years ago or more.

예전 (yejeon) is used to refer to past experiences or events that occurred in the past. You can use it with the particle 에는 (eneun) meaning "at" and say 예전에는 (yejeoneneun) in front of a sentence to add the meaning of "long ago." Usually, people use it when they talk about some changes between the past and the present.

For example, if you didn't eat vegetables in the past, but now you do, you can say 예전에는 야채를 안 먹었어요. (yejeoneneun yachaereul an meogeotsseoyo.) to mean "In the past I didn't eat vegetables." You can guess that that person eats vegetables now. If you want to say that you did something in the past, and you still do, you can say 예전에도 (yejeonedo) by adding the particle 도 (do) meaning "too," "also."

For example:

1. 예전에는 책을 많이 읽었어요.
   yejeoneneun chaegeul mani ilgeoseoyo.

"In the past I read many books. (but not anymore.)"

2. 예전에도 책을 많이 읽었어요.
   yejeonedo chaegeul mani ilgeoseoyo.
   "In the past, I read many books. (and I still do)"

꼭 (kkok) "surely," "certainly," "absolutely"

꼭 (kkok) is an adverb that normally occurs before an inflected expression. The meaning of 꼭 can change depending on its position in a sentence, or the adverbial expression that appears before it. You can put this word right in front of the object that you want to emphasize.

꼭 (kkok) can be used in the sentence, 내일 아침에 꼭 일찍 오세요. (naeil achime kkok iljjik oseyo.), which means "Please be sure to arrive early tomorrow morning," conveys the meaning of "surely." Here, we added the word 꼭 (kkok) in front of the adverb 일찍 (iljjik) meaning "early" to emphasize that the listener comes here early next time. If you put the word 꼭 (kkok) in front of a verb 오세요 (oseyo) meaning "to come," that would emphasize the action to mean "Please definitely come here tomorrow morning."

In the sentence 내년에 꼭 여행 하러 가자. (naenyeone kkok yeohaeng hareo gaja) which means "Next year let's definitely go on vacation," conveys the meaning of "definitely/absolutely."

For example:

1. 먹기전에 손을 꼭 씻어요.
   meokgijeone soneul kkok ssiseoyo.
   "Be sure to wash your hands before you eat."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Particles that are Useful with Two or More Items or People -마다, 씩. 끼리, 랑, 이랑 (mada, ssik, kkiri, rang, -irang) 하늘 씨, 요즘 운동하세요? 저는 이제 주말마다 운동하니까 기분이 아주 좋아요.
haneulssi, yojeum undonghaseyo? jeoneun ije jumalmada undonghanikka gibuni aju joayo.
"Haneul, do you work out nowadays? Now that I work out every weekend I feel great."

Particle 1: -마다

-마다 (-mada) is a particle that is attached to nouns, and is used to express "every (noun)" or "each (noun)." It can be used to refer to all of the possible choices as well as to express that something is different depending on the certain case, thing, or person.

Formation

(명사) + 마다

(Noun) + mada = "Each (noun)," "Every (noun)"

1.날 (nal) - day

날 + 마다

날마다 (nal-mada) - "every day," "each day"

2.밤 (bam) - "night"

밤 + 마다

밤마다 (bam-mada) - "every night," "each night"

3.사람 (saram) - "person"

사람 + 마다

사람마다 (saram-mada) - "each person"

For example:

1.날마다 (nalmada) -" everyday," "each day"

날마다 달라요.
nalmada dallayo.

"It's different each day."

2.해마다 (haemada) - every year, each year

해마다 해운대에 갑니다.
haemada haeundae-e gamnida.

"Each year I go to Haeundae."

3.집집마다 (jipjipmada) - "every home," "each home"

집집마다 불만이 있었어요.

jipjipmada bulmani itsseoyo.

"There was a complaint at each home."

(집, jip, which means home, is usually repeated in this phrase. See below.)

4.때마다 (ttaemada) - "Every time," "each time"

그 사람은 만날 때마다 늦어요.
geu sarameun mannal ttaemada nejeoyo.

"He is late every time we meet."

5.사람마다 (sarammada) - "each person, depending on each person"

사람마다 생각이 달라요.
sarammada saeng-gagi dallayo.

"Each person has a different way of thinking."

6.나라마다 (naramada) - "each country, depending on each country"

나라마다 음식이 달라요.
naramada eumsigi dallayo.

"Each country has different kinds of food."

7.회사마다 (heosamada) - "each company, depending on each company"

회사마다 업무 시간이 달라요.
heosamada eopmu sigani dallayo.

"Each company has different office hours."

Note

집집마다 (jipjipmada) - 집 (jip, "home"), is used twice when used in conjunction with the particle 마다 (mada, "each"/"every").

Particle 2: 씩

-씩 (-ssik) is a particle that expresses frequency, or allocated amounts or numbers. There is no single word with the same function as this one in English. We express it through words such as "every, each," or "a."

For example:

1. 하루 (haru) - "a day "
한 번 (han beon) - "once "

2. 하루에 한 번씩
*haru-e han beon-ssik
"once a day"

Here, we can omit 씩 (ssik) for the phrase to mean the same thing, but it makes the meaning of the phrases clearer by emphasizing the meaning of "each" or "per."

Formation

Number + (Counter) + -씩

1. 한 명 (han myeong) "one person"
한 명 + 씩 = 한 명씩 (han myeong-ssik)
한 번에 한 명씩
han beon-e han myeong-ssik
"one person at a time"

2. 한 번 (han beon) "one time"
한 번 + 씩 = 한 번씩 (han beon-ssik)

3. 일 년에 한 번씩
il nyeon-e han beon-ssik
"once every year"

Words Expressing Number or Amount + -씩

1. 조금 (jogeum) "a little, a bit"
조금 + -씩 = 조금씩
jogeumssik
"little by little"

2. 이만큼 (i-mankeum) "about this much"
이만큼 + -씩 = 이만큼씩
(i-mankeum-ssik)
"about this much each time"

Here are some additional examples:

Korean	Romanized	"English"
일주일에 한 번씩 영화를 봐요.	iljuil-e han beon-ssik yeonghwa-reul bwayo.	"I watch a movie once a week."
날마다 10km씩 걸어요.	nalmada sip-kiromiteo-ssik georeoyo.	"I walk ten kilometers every day."
한 사람한테 하나씩 주세요.	han saram-hante hana-ssik juseyo.	"Please give one of each to one person."
하루에 2시간씩 운동해요.	haru-e du sigan-ssik undonghaeyo.	"I exercise two hours each day."
일년에 책을 10권씩 읽어요.	ilnyeon-e chaek-eul yeolgwon-ssik ilgeoyo.	"I read ten books each year."

Particle 3: 끼리

끼리 (kkiri) is normally attached to nouns such as numbers, humans, or animals. It is used to emphasize unique or individual groups.

끼리 (kkiri) can be used to group together a wide range of nouns. For example, 같은 숫자끼리 (gateun sutjakkiri) which means "the same group of numbers." Here, we added the particle 끼리 (kkiri) to the noun 같은 숫자 (gateun sutja) meaning "the same numbers." When you want to say "among friends" or "in a group of friends," you can add the particle 끼리 (kkiri) to the noun 친구들 (chinjureul) meaning "friends" and say 친구들끼리 (chinjureul-kkiri) to mean "a group of friends."

For example:

1. 가족끼리 여행 갈 거야.
   gajokkiri yeohaeng-eul gal geoya.
   "I'm going to go on a trip with my family members only."
2. 같은 반 친구들끼리 앉았어.
   gateun ban chin-gudeulkkiri anjasseo.
   "We sat just with other students in the same class."
3. 친구들끼리만 아는 이야기야.
   chin-gudeulkkiriman aneun iyagiya.
   "It's a story that I only share with my friends."

Particle 4: 랑, 이랑

- (이)랑 [-(i)rang]

And, With

We use -(이)랑 [-(i)rang] to link nouns in a sentence, so we can translate it as "with," or "and," depending on the context. -(이)랑 links the nouns in consecutive order. We can use -(이)랑 with as many nouns as we want to, however, we must link it to each noun. When we use this particle with one noun, a non-present noun is assumed to be connected to the linked noun. In this case, we still translate it as "with" or "and." This particle is interchangeable with -하고 (-hago), and it's conversational Korean.

Formation

-랑 (rang) attaches to nouns that end in vowels.

-이랑 (irang) attaches to nouns that end in consonants.

More Examples

1. 선생님이랑 밥 먹었어요.
   seonsaengnimirang bap meogeosseoyo.
   "I ate with the teacher."
2. 밥이랑, 찌개랑, 갈비랑, 김치 먹었어요.
   babirang, jjigaerang, galbirang, gimchi meogeosseoyo.
   "I ate rice, stew, galbi, and kimchi."
3. 엄마랑, 아빠랑, 할아버지랑, 누나랑 다 같이 여행했어요.
   eommarang, apparang, harabeojirang, nunarang, da gachi yeohaenghaesseoyo.
   "We all went on a trip with my mom, dad, grandfather, and my sister."
   Please note: -(이)랑 is suffixed to all the nouns in the sequence.

Examples from the Dialogue:

1. 요즘은 운동을 안 하는데 예전에는 매일마다 꼭 운동했어요.
   yojeumeun undongeul an haneunde yejeoneneun maeilmada kkonk undonghaeseoyo.
   "Nowadays I don't work out, but I used to every single day."
2. 원래 여동생이랑 같이 운동했는데 여동생은 자기 학교에 다니는 친구들끼리랑 운동하기 시작했어요.
   wollae yeodongsaengirang gachi undonghaenneunde yeodongsaengeun jagi hakgyoe danineun chingudeulkkirirang undonghagi sijakaeseoyo.
   "I used to work out with my younger sister but she started working out with her group of school friends."

Sample Sentences

1. 건물에 한 명씩 들어가시면 됩니다.
   geonmure han myeongssik deureo gasimyeon doemnida.
   "You should enter the building one by one."
2. 친구들끼리 영화를 보러 가기로 했어요.
   chingudeulkkiri yeonghwareul boreo gagiro haeseoyo.
   "I decided to go see a movie with my group of friends."
3. 더운 날에 수박이랑 냉면을 먹으면 맛있어요.
   deoun nale subagirang naengmyeoneul meogeumyeon manniseoyo.
   "If you eat watermelon and cold noodles on a hot day they taste delicious."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Exercise in South Korea

An interesting characteristic about parks and public areas of recreation in South Korea is that a large majority of them contain areas specifically designated for exercise. In these areas there are permanent exercise machines that are free for anyone to use. Many of these exercise areas can be found along the Han River or 한강 (hangang), which is also a popular place to exercise. Hiking or in Korean 등산 (deungsan) is another form of exercise that is popular among older aged individuals. It is very common to see hiking clubs and groups gathered together on weekends.

그는 누구보다도 책 내용을 잘 안다. geuneun nugubodado chaek naeyongeul jal anda. "He knows the contents of the book better than anyone else."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

어차피 (eochapi) "anyway," "at any rate"

어차피 (eochapi) can be used mostly at the beginning of a sentence, as in 어차피 돌아올 거니까 핸드폰을 두고 가요." (eochapi doraol geonikka haendeuponeul dugogayo), which means "Since we'll come back anyway just leave your phone and go."

For example:

1. 어차피 저 옷을 버릴 거니까 가져가도 돼요.
   eochapi jeo oseul beori lgeonikka gajyeogado dwaeyo.
   "Since I'm going to throw those clothes away anyway, you can take it."

누구보다도 (nugubodado) "than anyone else"

누구보다도 (nugubodado) is composed of the noun 누구 (nugu) which means "who," "anyone," and the phrase 보다도 (bodado) which means "even more than." 누구 (nugu) is interchangeable with other nouns.

누구보다도 (nugubodado) can be used to emphasize a comparison between two things, you and others or others and I, to mean "only you can do" or "only I can do."

For example, it can be used in the sentence 당신은 누구보다도 나를 잘 알거예요. (dangsineun nugubodado nareul jal albeoeyo.) which means "You know me better than anyone else."

For example:

1. 저는 누구보다도 수영을 못 해서 달리기를 많이 해요.
   jeoneun nugubodado suyeongeul mot haeseo dalligireul mani haeyo.
   "I can't swim better than anybody so I run a lot."

열심히 (yeolsimi) "hard"

열심히 (yeolsimi) is an adverb composed of the character 열 (yeol) which is derived from the Chinese character meaning "heat" or "hot" and 심 (sim) which is derived from the Chinese character meaning "heart." These make up the meaning of "hard," "passionately" with the noun 열심 (yeolsim) which literally means "with the heat from the heart."

열심히 (yeolsimi) is used as an adverb before a verb to convey enthusiasm. The most commonly used expressions with the adverb are 열심히 공부하다 (yeolsimi gongbuhada) meaning "to study hard" or 열심히 일하다 (yeolsimi ilhada) meaning "to work hard."

For example:

1. 성공하기 위해서 열심히 일해야 하지요.
   seonggonghagi wihaeseo yeolsimhi ilhaeya hajiyo.
   "We have to work hard in order to be successful."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Particles that are useful for comparison 중에서, 만큼, 보다 (jungeseo, mankeum, boda) 우리 반 아이들 중에서 누가 가장 힘이 셀까?
uri ban aideul jungeseo nuga gajang himi selkka?
"Who do you think is the strongest in our class?"

Particle 1: 중에서

중에 (jung-eseo) literally means "in the middle of" or "among" in English. It can be used to single out a specific noun from a group. It comes with a noun indicating groups, such as 1학년 (ilhaknyeon) meaning "1st grade" The group itself should consist of the same kind of nouns as the one being specified.

Formation

(Group Noun) + 중에서 (identifying clause).

1. 아는 사람들 중에서 (aneun saramdul jungeseo) "among the people (you) know"

아는 사람들 중에서 희철이 제일 착해요.

aneun saramdul jungeseo huicheori jeil chakaeyo.

"Huicheol is the kindest out of all the people I know."

2. 이 중에서 (i jung-eseo) "among these, among them"

이 중에서 하나 골라.
i jung-eseo hana golla.

"Choose one out of these (among these)."

3. 외국어 중에서 (eogugeo jung-eseo) - "among foreign languages"

외국어 중에서 아랍어가 제일 쉬어요.
eogugeo jung-eseo arabeoga jeil swieoyo.

"Arabic is the easiest among foreign languages."

4. 친구들 중에서 (chinjudeul jung-eseo) "among friends"

친구들 중에서 윤아가 제일 똑똑해요.
chinjudeul jung-eseo yunaga jeil ttokttokaeyo.

"Yuna is the smartest among my friends."

5. 과일 중에서 (gwail jungeseo) "among fruits"

과일 중에서 사과가 제일 좋아요.
gwail jungeseo sagwaga jeil joayo8.

"Among fruits, my favorite are apples."

Particle 2: 만큼

-만큼 (mankeum) is used to indicate a degree or an extent. It comes directly after a noun and it means "as much as" or "equal to."

Formation

---

(1) Noun + -만큼

♣ 손예진 (Son Yejin) - a Korean actress's name

▷ 손예진 + -만큼 (sonyejin-mankeum)

▷ 손예진만큼 (sonyejin-mankeum) - "as much as Son Yejin"

▷▷ 저는 손예진만큼 예뻐요. (jeoneun son-yejin-mankeum yeppeoyo)

= "I am as pretty as Son Yejin."

♣ 그것 (geugeot) - "that"

▷ 그것 + 만큼 (geugeot-mankeum)

▷ 그것만큼 (geugeot-mankeum) - "as much as that"

▷ 이것은 그것만큼 좋지 않아요. (igeoseun geugeot-mankeum jochi anayo.)

= "This one is not as good as that one."

(2) Verb A + -ㄴ/는/은/ㄹ/을 + 만큼 + Verb B

♣ Verb A should be in the adnominal form to modify 만큼 (mankeum), and this structure can be translated as "Verb A + so much that + Verb B" or "Verb A + enough to + Verb B."

1. 놀라다 (nollada, Verb A - to be surprised) + 비싸다 (bissada, Verb B - to be expensive)

놀랄 만큼 비싸다 (nollal mankeum bissada) = "to be expensive enough to be surprising"

2. 날아가다 (naragada, Verb A - to fly away) + 세다 (seda, Verb B - to be strong)

날아갈 만큼 바람이 세다 (naragal mankeum barami seda.) = "The wind is so strong that I might fly away."

For example:

1. 나는 장동건만큼 멋있어. [멋있다]
   Naneun jangdonggeonmankeum meosisseo.
   "I am as cool as Jangdonggeon."
2. 이 케이크은 스위스 쵸콜릿만큼 맛있어. [맛있다]
   I keikeuneun seuwiseu chokolitmankeun masisseo.
   "This cake is as delicious as Swiss chocolates."
3. 서울은 홍콩만큼 야경이 예뻐요. [예쁘다]
   Seoureun hongkongmankeum yagyeongi yeppeoyo.
   "Seoul has a night view as beautiful as the one that Hong Kong has."
4. 제가 돈 낸 만큼 주세요. [내다, 주다]
   Jega don naen mankeum juseyo.
   "Please give me as much as I paid for."
5. 놀랄 만큼 빨라요. [빠르다]
   Nollal mankeum ppallayo.
   "It's fast enough to surprise you."

Particle 3: 보다

This is used to express comparison and contrast. 더 (deo) is the equivalent of the English word "more" and 보다 (boda) works like the English word "than." But whereas the English phrase "more than" comes before the word that is being the target of comparison, the Korean 보다 (boda) comes right after the word, without any spacing. When you want to compare verbs, you need to make the verb into its noun form before combining it with 보다 (boda).

Formation

[Noun] + 보다 (boda)

나 (na) - I

나보다 (naboda) -" more than I," "more than me"

[Noun Form of The Verb] + 보다 (boda)

생각하다 (saenggakhada) - "to think"

생각한 것보다 (seanggakhan geot-boda)- "more than I thought"

생각하는 것보다 (seanggakhaneun geot-boda) - "more than I think/you think"

For example:

1. 나는 부산보다 서울이 더 좋아!
   na-neun busan-boda seoul-i deo joa!
   "I like Seoul more than Busan!"
2. 영화 보는 것보다 책 보는 것이 더 좋습니다.
   yeonghwa boneun geot-boda cheak boneun geos-i deo josseumnida.
   "I like reading books better than watching movies."
3. 우리 오빠는 공부보다 운동을 더 잘 해.
   uri oppa-neun gongbu-boda undong-eul deo jal hae
   "My brother is better at sports than studying."
4. 여름에는 라면보다 냉면이 더 맛있어요.
   yeoreum-eneun ramyeon-boda naengmyeon-i deo masisseoyo.
   "In summer, cold noodles are more delicious than ramen noodles."
5. 거기보다 여기가 더 재미있어요.
   geogi-boda yeogi-ga deo jaemiisseoyo.
   "It's more fun here than over there."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 마이크보다 용호가 키가 더 크지만 용호는 마이크만큼 근육이 있는 것 같지 않아.
   maikeuboda yonghoga kiga deo keujiman yonghoneun maikeumankeum geunnyugi inneun geot gatji ana.
   "Yongho may be taller than Mike but I don't think Yongho has as many muscles as Mike does."
2. 모르겠어. 어차피 나는 누구보다도 힘이 세지 않으니까 계속 열심히 운동할래.
   moreugeseo. eochapi naneun nugubodado himi seji aneunikka gyesok yeolsimhi undonghallae.
   "I'm not really sure. Anyway, I don't think I'm stronger than anyone else, so I'll just keep working out doing my best."

Sample Sentences

1. 친한 친구 중에서 한 명은 여자예요.
   chinhan chingujungeseo han myeongeun yeojayeyo.
   "Among my closest friends one of them is a woman. "
2. 공부하는 만큼 실력이 늘어날 거예요.
   gongbuhaneun mankeum sillyeogi neureonal geoyeyo.
   "Your ability with improve with the amount you study."
3. 저는 사과보다 포도를 먹는 것을 더 좋아해요.
   jeoneun sagwaboda podoreul meongneun geoseul deo joahaeyo.
   "I like eating grapes more than apples."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Rivalry in Korean Society

The people of South Korea are one of the nation's most important exports. Because of this emphasis on manpower, competition and rivalry between South Koreans is common. This is often seen among college students and graduates as they begin entering the workforce and studying for qualifications to differentiate themselves from their competition.
You can often see Korean people compare themselves with others, usually by comparing salaries, social status, or the size of companies. And it's not just comparing themselves with others; sometimes, parents compare their kids with others and push them to study hard or apply pressure so that they get better jobs. In Korea, there's the term 엄마 친구 아들 (eomma chinju adeul) or 엄친아 (eomchina) which means "a son of mother's friend" to mean someone perfect, as it's common to see mothers talking about their friend's sons or daughters or 엄친아 (eomchina), comparing them with their kids, and asking them to beat their mother's friends.

울릉도에 가면 배 행렬을 꼭 보세요. Ulleundoe gamyeon bae haengryeoreul kkok boseyo. "If you ever visit Ulleung Island, you should definitely watch the fishing boat parade."	물 좀 주세요! Mul jom juseyo! "Please give me some water!"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

좀 (jom) "a bit"

좀 (jom) is a shortened form of the adverb 조금 meaning "a little." In spoken Korean, people use the shortened form 좀 more often, although it's not common to use this word in written Korean. This adverb means "a bit," "just a little," and can in some circumstances mean "somewhat" and "please" depending on context.

좀 (jom) can be used in the sentence and placed right before a verb. For example, you can ask someone to open a door for you by saying 문을 좀 열어줄 수 있겠어요? (muneul jom yeoreojul su itgeseoyo), which means "Could you please open the door?" In this sentence, you can say it without using the adverb to deliver the same meaning, but with the adverb 좀 meaning "a little," you can make your request more polite.

It still has the same meaning if you put it in a sentence such as 물을 좀 더 주세요. (mureul jom deo juseyo), which means "Give me a bit more water please." Here, the mean of 좀 (jom) is "a little," "a bit."

For example:

1. 좀 도와주세요.
   jom dowajuseyo.
   "Please give me a hand. (literally, Please help me a little bit."

약을 먹다 (yageul meokda) "to take medicine"

약을 먹다 (yageul meokda) means "to take/ingest medicine." It is composed of the noun 약 which means "medicine," and the verb 먹다 (meokda) which means "to eat." When talking about medicines, you need to use the verb 먹다 (meokda) which means "to eat." Or if it's in a conversation that's more directly related to a medical situation such as a conversation between a doctor and patient, you will hear the verb 복용하다 (bogyong-hada) meaning "to take medicine"

For example:

1. 약을 너무 많이 먹으면 독이 돼요.
   yageul neomu mani meogeumyeon dogi dwaeyo.
   "Taking too much medicine can be harmful."
2. 아플때 약을 먹으면 좋아요.
   apeulttae yageul meogeumyeon joayo.
   "It's good to take medicine when sick."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Extra Particles - 기만 하면, 도록, 더라도 (gimanhamyeon, dorok, deorado) 저는 배를 보기만 해도 멀미해요. 저 배를 진짜 탈 수 있을까요?
jeoneun baereul bogiman haedo meolmihaeyo. jeo baereul jinjja tal su iseulkkayo?
"I feel seasick just looking at boats. Will I really be able to ride that boat?"

Particle 1: 기만 하면

-기만 하다 (-giman hada) is a verb that means "just have to" or "only need to." -기 (-gi) is a nominalization suffix for verbs, 만 (man) is a particle that means "only," and 하면 되다 literally means "if you do, it works." So all together, it means, "all you have to do is...."

Formation

오다 (oda) "come"

오 (o) - verb stem

오 + 기만 하면 되다 = 오기만 하면 되다 (ogi-man hamyeon doeda)

오기만 하면 돼. (ogi-man hamyeon dwae) "All you have to do is just come."

More examples:

Korean	Romanized	"English"
책을 한 번 읽기만 하면 돼.	chaek-eul han beon ilkgi-man hamyeon dwae.	"All you have to do is just read the book once."
이걸 보내기만 하면 돼.	igeol bonaegi-man hamyeon dwae.	"You just have to send this."
나한테 말하기만 하면 돼.	na-hante malhagi-man hamyeon dwae.	"All you have to do is just tell me."
나가기만 하면 돼.	nagagi-man hamyeon dwae.	"I just have to go outside."
물어보기만 하면 돼.	mureobogi-man hamyeon dwae.	"You just have to ask."

Particle 2: 도록

This particle means "in order for something to happen" but it can also express the degree in which you do a certain action, which is like "until"

Formation

[Verb-stem] + 도록 (dorok)

For example:

1. 심심하지 않도록, 책을 빌려줄게.
   simsimhaji antorok, chaek-eul billyeojulge.
   "So that you don't get bored, I will lend you this book."
2. 팔이 아프도록 글씨를 썼어요.
   pal-i apeudorok geulssi-reul sseosseoyo.
   "I kept writing until my arm started hurting."

Note that in the second example, -도록 (dorok) does not mean "in order to" or "so that."

For example:

Korean	Romanized	"English"
12시가 되도록 아무 소식이 없었어요.	yeoldusi-ga doedorok amu sosik-i eopseosseoyo.	"There was no news from him until it was midnight."
펜이 다 닳도록 그림을 그렸어요.	pen-i da daltorok geurim-eul geuryeosseoyo.	"I drew until the pen was all worn out."
모두가 다 들을 수 있도록 소리를 쳤어요.	modu-ga da deureul su itdorok sori-reul chyeosseoyo.	"I yelled so that everybody could hear me."
제가 이해할 수 있도록 천천히 말해 주세요.	je-ga ihaehal su itdorok cheoncheon-hi malhae juseyo.	"Please speak slowly so that I can understand."

Particle 3: 더라도

더라도 (deorado) is the particle meaning "although" or "even if." It can be used with a verb-stem as below:

[Verb-stem} + 더라도 (deorado)

먹 (meok, Verb-stem of the verb 먹다 meokda "to eat") + 더라도 (deorado) = "Even though you eat."

가 (ga, Verb-stem of the verb 가다 gada "to go") + 더라도 (deorado) = "Even though you go."

You use this particle with a verb-stem in the past tense when you talk about an event in the past, which couldn't have happened.

[Verb-Stem in the past tense] + 더라도 (deorado)

말했더라도 (malhaet-deorado, Verb-stem of the verb 말했다 malhaetda "spoke") + 더라도 (deorado) = "Even if you spoke"

갔더라도 (gat-deorado, Verb-stem of the verb 갔다 gatta "went") + 더라도 (deorado) = "Even if you went"

For example:

Korean	Romanized	"English"
약을 먹더라도 바로 일을 할 수는 없습니다.	yageul meokdeorado baro ireul hal suneun eopseumnida.	"Even if you take medicine, you cannot work right away."
뛰었더라도 그 지하철은 탈 수 없었을 거에요.	ttwieot-deorado geu jihacheoreun tal su eopsseot eul geoeyo.	"Even if you ran, you wouldn't have gotten the subway"

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 네 여기요. 배를 타기 전에 꼭 드시도록 하세요.
   ne yeogiyo. baereul tagi jeone kkonk deusidoronk haseyo.
   "Sure, here you are. Be sure to take it before boarding the boat."
2. 이 멀미약을 드시기만 하면 배가 아무리 앞뒤로 흔들거리더라도 멀미가 안 나요.
   i meolmiyageul deusigiman hamyeon baega amuri apdwiro heundeulgeorideorado meolmiga annayo.
   "If you just take some of this medicine you won't feel seasick even when the boat rocks back and forth."

Sample Sentences

1. 이제부터 더 일찍 출근하도록 하겠습니다.
   ijebuteo deo iljjik chulgeunhadorok hagetseumnida.
   "From now on I'll try to come to work earlier."
2. 내용을 아무리 잘 알더라도 공부하세요.
   naeyongeul amuri jal aldeorado gongbuhaseyo.
   "Regardless of how much you know the material please study."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Activities Around the Han River or 한강 (han-gang)

When you're visiting the Hangang River or 한강 (han-gang) in South Korea you're very likely to come across boats referred to as 오리배 (ori-bae), or "duck boats." These iconic boats are very easy to spot and anyone can rent one easily. These boats are very often shown in famous Korean dramas and films which makes them an attraction for fans of 한류 (hallyu) or Korean Wave.
Also, you can take a cruise which goes up and down the Han-river for around USD 10 to 15. It's the easiest way to see all the downtown areas around the river within two hours. In autumn, you can also see fireworks on the cruise.
If you want to enjoy activities around the river like the locals do, go for a run on the riverside. You can find running tracks around the river, mostly on the southern part, and enjoy the view of the river and downtown Seoul. You can rent a bike for a couple of hours if you want to go around faster.
Useful expression:

1. 한류
   Hallyu
   "Korean wave"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

고장나다 (gojang-nada) "to be broken"

고장나다 (gojang-nada) is composed of the noun 고장 (gojang) which means "trouble," "breakdown" and the verb 나다 (nada) which means "to occur," "to come out." Together they convey the meaning that an object has broken or has a defect. It can be used with any type of machine or device.

고장나다 can be used in the sentences such as 컴퓨터가 고장나서 사용할 수 없어요. (keompyuteoga gojangnaseo sayonghal su eopseoyo), which means "The computer is broken so it cannot be used."

For example:

1. 핸드폰이 고장났나봐요.
   haendeuponi gojangnatnabwayo
   "It seems my cellphone has broken."

그대로 (geudaero) "as it is, intact"

그대로 (geudaero) is composed of 그 (geu) which means "that," and 대로 (daero) which means "like, as is." Together these convey the meaning "as it is."

그대로 (geudaero) can be used in sentences such as 그대로 있어도 돼요. (geudaero iseodo dwaeyo) which means "You can stay as you are." Or in a sentence such as 그대로 두고 가요 (geudaero dugo gayo), which means "Leave it as it is and go."

For example:

1. 그대로 있어보세요.
   geudaero iseoboseyo.
   "Try to stay as you are."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Extra Particles, Part 2 - 대로, 는데 (daero, neunde)

제가 지금 타고 있는 모습 그대로 타 보세요.
jega jigeum tago inneun moseup geudaero ta boseyo.
"Try to ride it as I am riding right now."

Particle 1: 대로

The focus of this lesson is about the two applications of 대로 (daero) meaning "as..." We generally use -대로 (daero) as both a particle and sometimes a bound-noun.

Let's take a look at the two applications of the particle 대로.

Two Applications of 대로 (Daero) "As..."

	1. 조사 (josa) "post-positional particle"	2. 의존명사 (uijon-myeongsa) "bound noun"
Can It Be Dependent?	No! Therefore, it needs a noun or a pronoun before it.	Yes! Therefore, it does not need a noun or a pronoun before it (but it needs VST instead)
How to Use	Noun/pronoun + 대로	 VST + ㄴ/는 대로 (sometimes VST + ㄹ/은 대로)
Example	계획 "a plan" + 대로 = 계획대로 "like the plan"	계획하다 "to plan" + ㄴ or 는 대로 = 계획한 대로 "as we planned" 계획하는 대로 "as we plan"

*Note: VST + ㄴ 대로 generally indicates "a certain state/circumstance/situation [past tense of verb] in the past"

However, VST + 는 대로 generally indicates "Verb + ing as soon as a certain state/circumstance/situation appears in the present."

First Application of 대로 (Daero) as a 조사 (Josa) "Post-Positional Particle"

Just like another 조사 "post-positional particle," it is followed right after a noun or a pronoun, meaning "like (the NOUN)..."

* NOTE: HOWEVER, its best English translation would be "as verb + ed"; that is, "as planned," "as promised," etc..."

Construction: Noun/Pronoun + 대로

Noun	Noun + 대로	Becomes...	Romanization	"English"
1. 계획 "a plan"	계획 + 대로	계획대로	gyeheok-daero	"like the plan"
2. 약속 "a promise"	약속 + 대로	약속대로	yaksok-daero	"like the promise"
3. 법 "the law"	법 + 대로	법대로	beop-daero	"by the law"
4. 제멋 "one's own way"	제멋 + 대로	제멋대로	jemeot-daero	"as one pleases"
5. 평소 "usual"	평소 + 대로	평소대로	peyeongso-daero	"as usual"

For example:

1. 그럼 계획대로 해 볼까?
   geureom gyehoekdaero hae bolgkka?
   "Then should we do it like the plan?"
2. 우리 약속대로 한국에 가자...
   uri yaksokdaero hanguge gaja...
   "Let's visit Korea like we promised..."
3. 법대로 하자, 법대로!
   beopdaero haja, beopdaero!
   "Let's go by the law, by the law!"
4. 제발 제멋대로 행동하지마! (제멋 "one's own feeling/taste" + 대로 = 제멋대로 "as one's own feeling/taste") jebal jemeotdaero haengdonghajima!
   "Please do not behave as you please!" (=as you like/feel)
5. 평소대로 하세요... (평소대로 "as usual") pyeongsodaero haseyo...
   "Please do as you usually would...(=normally)..."

Second Application of 대로 (daero) as a 의존명사 (Uijon-Myeongsa) "Bound Noun"

When we use it as 의존명사 "bound noun," it is attached to the verb stem, meaning "as VERB + -ed/as VERB + -ing"/"as (the subject) verb..."

Construction: VST + ㄴ/는 대로 (Sometimes VST + ㄹ/은 대로)

Verb	Verb Stem + ㄴ/는 대로	Becomes...	Romanization	"English"
1. 말하다 "to talk," "to speak," "to discuss"	말하 + ㄴ 대로	말한 대로	malhan-daero	"as discussed"
2. 계획하다 "to plan," "to schedule"	계획하 + ㄴ 대로	계획한 대로	gyeheokhan-daero	"as planned"
3. 약속하다 "to promise"	약속하 + ㄴ 대로	약속한 대로	yaksokhan-daero	"as promised"
4. 물어보다 "to ask," "to question"	물어보 + ㄴ 대로	물어본 대로	mureobon-daero	"as asked"/"as questioned"

For example:

1. 그럼 우리 아까 말한 대로 하자!
   Geureom uri akka malhan daero haja!
   "Then let's do it as we discussed earlier!"
2. 그럼 우리 아까 계획한 대로 합시다.
   Geureom uri akka gyehoekhan daero hapsiha.
   "Then let's do it as we planned earlier."
3. 이제 아까 약속한 대로 그거 주세요...
   Ije akka yaksokhan daero geugeo juseyo...
   "Please give me that as you agreed (=promised) earlier..."
4. 저기요. 물어본 대로 답해 주세요...
   Jeogiyo. Mureobon daero dapae juseyo...
   "Excuse me. Please answer according to the question..." (=as I asked you...)

Particle 2: 는데

-ㄴ/은데/-는데 (-n/eunde/-neunde) is a grammatical structure that ends a sentence for several different purposes. This grammar note explains this structure's use for making an exclamation or expressing astonishment, surprise, or interest.

This structure is used to illicit a response from the listener, while at the same time expressing the speaker's own astonishment, exclamation, bewilderment, surprise or interest. It can be used in situations when the speaker is responding to something (a comment, an observation, etc.).

All structures can be made polite by adding the politeness particle -요 (-yo).

Formation

1. -ㄴ/은데 (-n/eunde) is used for descriptive verb stems and the copula, 이다 (ida), in the present tense.

바쁘다 (bappeuda) - "to be busy" (descriptive verb)
바쁘 (bappeu) - verb stem (ending in vowel)
바쁘 + ㄴ데 = 바쁜데 (bappeunde)
내일 바쁜데! (naeil bappeunde) "I'm busy tomorrow!" - (expressing exclamation) (implication: so I can't do it!).

2. -ㄴ데 (-nde) is used for descriptive verb stems ending in a vowel. It is also used with the copula 이다 (ida).

이다 (ida) - "to be" (copula)
이 - verb stem
이 + ㄴ데 = 인데 (inde)
나 선생님인데! (naneun seonsaeng-nim-inde) -"I'm a teacher!" (exclamation, "But I'm a teacher!")

3. -은데 (-eunde) is used for descriptive verb stems ending in a consonant.

좋다 (jota) - "to be good" (descriptive verb)
좋 (joh) - verb stem (ending in consonant)
좋 + 은데 = 좋은데 (joeunde)
좋은데! (joeunde) - "It's good!" - (expressing exclamation) - (implication: what do you think?)

4. -는데 (neunde) is used for all other cases regardless of what the verb stem ends in (action verbs, past tense for both action and description verbs, other sentence ending)

먹다 (meokda) - to eat (action verb)
먹 (meok) - verb stem
먹 + 는데 = 먹는데! (meokneunde)
한국 음식 먹는데요! (hangul eumsik meokneundeyo.) - "I eat Korean food!" - (expressing exclamation) (implication: So I can eat this!)

작았다 (jagatda) - to have been small (descriptive verb - past tense)
작았 (jagat) - past tense verb stem
작았 + 는데 = 작았는데 (jagatneunde)
이 학교 더 작았는데! (i hakkyo jagatneunde) - "This school was smaller! "(expressing bewilderment) (implication: what happened to the school?)

Note: Here, although this is a descriptive verb, -는데 is used instead of -ㄴ/은데 because it is in the past tense. -ㄴ/은데 is only used for descriptive verbs in the present tense.

More examples:

1. 1.한국 참 좋은데!
   hanguk cham joeunde!
   "Korea's quite good! (expressing delight)"
2. 저 사람 프랑스어 하는데!
   jeo saram peurang-seu-eo haneunde!
   "That person speaks French! (expressing interest)"
3. 내가 뭘 했는데!
   naega mweol haetneunde!
   "What did I do?! (expressing exclamation - implication: so why are you yelling at me?)"
4. 어? 이 건물 아닌데!
   eo? i geonmul aninde!
   "Huh? It's not this building! (expressing bewilderment - implication: What happened to the building?)"
5. 와! 그 사람 멋진데!
   wa! geu saram meotjinde!
   "Wow... that person's cool! (expressing interest - implication: I wonder if he's single.)"

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 하려고 하는데 자전거가 고장났나 봐요. 잘 안 돼요.
   haryeogo haneunde jajeongeoga gojangnanna bwayo. jal an dwaeyo.
   "I'm trying to but it seems like the bike is broken. It is not working well."
2. 괜찮아요. 다시 한 번 제가 보여준 대로 타보세요.
   gwaenchanayo. dasi han beon jega boyeojun daero taboseyo.
   "It's okay. Just try to ride it one more time like I showed you."

Sample Sentences

1. 제가 부탁한 대로 하세요.
   jega butakan daero haseyo.
   "Please do as I have requested."
2. 겨울에 날씨가 추운데 여름 날씨보다 더 좋아요.

   jigeumeun doni eomneunde najunge iseul geoyeyo.
   "I don't have any money right now but I will later."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Riding Bikes in Seoul

The Han River or 한강 (hangang) is the best place if you like riding bikes. It has riding tracks alongside the running tracks around the river, so you can start riding a bike from the east side of South Seoul or 강남 (gang-nam) area, then to the west, or vice-versa. If you feel hungry, you can easily grab some snacks at a convenience store or stalls in the river parks.
Recently, more Korean people have started riding bikes to work. But riding a bike is not easy in Seoul because there are hills almost everywhere, and drivers usually don't yield to cyclists. For that reason, some people ride their bikes using the river park, then make a turn when they are near their workplace, even though it might take longer than going straight from home to work.
If you're living in a new town such as 분당 bundang, there will be fewer hills around the town, so you'll be able to see more people riding bikes, or find yourself getting around easily with a bike.

DIALOGUE - KOREAN

MAIN

1. 영희 : 이 핸드폰의 배경화면은 누구 사진이에요?
2. 현철 : 아, 이거요? 여기 왼쪽에서 가운데까지는 저의 부모님이고, 가운데에서 오른쪽에 있는 사람들은 제 아내의 부모님입니다.
3. 가운데는 저랑 제 아내입니다. 가족이랑 여행을 갔어요.
4. 영희 : 여기 있는 사람들 중에서 현철 씨가 제일 키가 크네요.
5. 현철 : 맞아요. 하지만 제 동생은 저보다 키가 더 커요. 아무리 높은 곳에 물건이 있더라도 꺼낼 수 있어요.
6. 영희 : 그렇군요. 사진을 찍은 곳은 어디예요?
7. 현철 : 제주도입니다. 제 동생의 결혼식이 있어서 비행기로 같이 갔어요.
8. 영희 : 아, 제주도는 날씨가 매우 좋다는 걸 들었어요. 섬 가운데에 화산이 있다고 들었어요.
9. 현철 : 맞아요. 하지만 우린 3일밖에 있지 못해서 산에 올라가지는 못했어요.
10. 영희 : 그럼 어디에 갔어요?
11. 현철 : 그게.. 사실 날씨가 좋지 않아서 해변은커녕 아무 곳에도 가지 못했어요.

ENGLISH

1. Yonghee : Whose picture is the wallpaper on this mobile phone?

2. Yeonghui : Ah you mean this? From left to the center, these are my parents, and from the center to the right, these are my parents in law (literally, wife's parents).

3. Those who standing in the middle are me and my wife. I went for a trip with family.

4. Yeonghui : Among those who are in the picture, you're the tallest, Hyeon-cheol, right?

5. Hyeon-cheol : That's right. But my younger brother is taller than me. He can take out anything no matter how high it's placed.

6. Yeonghui : I see. Where is the place that you took the picture?

7. Hyeon-cheol : It's Jeju Island. I had my younger brother's wedding there, so we went there by plane.

8. Yeonghui : Ah.. I heard that the weather is very nice in Jeju Island. I heard that there is a volcano at the center of the island.

9. Hyeon-cheol : That's right. But we couldn't climb up the mountain because we were there only for three days.

10. Yeonghui : So where did you go?

11. Hyeon-cheol : Well.. actually the weather was not that good, so we didn't go anywhere let alone beaches.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

산에 올라가다 (sane ollagada) "to climb a mountain"

산 (san) is the word meaning "mountain" and 에 (e) is the location marking particle. The following verb 올라가다 (ollagada) literally means "to go up" so this phrase literally means "to go up a mountain" or "to climb a mountain."

There's another verb 등산하다 (deungsan-hada) meaning "to climb" which is based on the Chinese character 등산 (deungsan) meaning "climbing a mountain." However, in a daily conversation, it's common to say this phrase 산에 올라가다 (sane ollagada) or 산에 내려가다 (sane naeryeogada) to mean "to climb up the mountain" and "to descend the mountain."

For example:

1. 이번 주말에는 아버지와 함께 산을 올라갈 예정입니다.
   ibeon jumareneun abeojiwa hamkke saneun ollagal yejeong-imnida.
   "This weekend, I'm planning to climb the mountain with my father."

아무 (amu) "any, no"

You can use this adverb with the noun 것 (geot), 곳 (got), or 데 (de). When you want to say "anything," you can say 아무 것 (amu geot) using the noun 것 meaning "thing." When talking about "any places," you can use the word meaning "a place" such as 곳 (got) or 데 (de) as in 아무 곳 (amu got) "any place" or 아무 데 (amu de "anyplace.) Note that 곳 (got) can be used in both written and spoken Korean, while 데 can be used mostly in spoken Korean. When talking about "anyone" you don't have to add an extra noun, but simply say 아무 (amu.)

Like in English, this adverb should be used in a negative sentence, for example, 아무 것도 안 먹었다 (amu geotto an meogeotta) "I didn't eat anything" or 아무도 못 만났다. (amudo mot mannatta) "I couldn't meet anyone."

For example:

1. 이번 주말에는 아무 계획도 없어요. 아무도 나와 놀아주지 않아요.
   ibeon jumareneun amu gyeheokdo eopseoyo. amudo nawa norajuji anayo.
   "I don't have any plans this weekend. No one hangs out with me."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is a Review of Particles
여기 왼쪽에서 가운데까지는 저의 부모님이고, 가운데에서 오른쪽에 있는 사람들은 제 아내의 부모님입니다.
yeogi oenjjogeseo gaundekkajineun jeoui bumonimigo, gaundeeseo oreunjjoge inneun saramdeureun je anaeui bumonimimnida.
"From left to the center, these are my parents, and from the center to the right, these are my wife's parents."

In this lesson, we're going to review the particles that we learned in this series.

1. Topic marking particles : -은/는 (eun/neun)

Functions: 1) to designate a noun as the subject of a particular sentence, 2) to bring attention to what the speaker wants to talk about, 3) to clarify what is being spoken about, 4) to contrast items.

For example:

1. 이 핸드폰의 배경화면은 누구 사진이에요?
   i haendeuponui baegyeonghwamyeon-eun nugu sajinieyo?
   "Whose picture is the wallpaper on this mobile phone?"

2. Subject marking particles: -이/가 (i/ga)

Functions: 1) to mark the subject of the sentence, 2) to mark when a subject is introduced for the first time - if it's introduced earlier, you can use the particle 은 (eun) instead - , 3) to mark what exists and what doesn't exist with the verbs 아니다 (anida, "not to exist"), 있다 (itda, "to exist") and 없다 (eoptda, "not to have")

For example:

1. 아무리 높은 곳에 물건이 있더라도 꺼낼 수 있어요.
   amuri nopeun gose mulgeoni itdeorado kkeonael su iseoyo.
   "He can take out anything no matter how high it is placed."

3. Object marking particles: -을/를 (eul, reul)

4. Sentence-ending particles: 다, 이다, 습니다, 요

5. Syllables connecting a verb-stem and the sentence-ending particle ending with 요: 아/어/여 (-a/eo/yeo)

- 아 (a) with the verbs have either the vowel ㅗ (o), or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem final syllable.

- 어 (eo) with verbs that have any vowel other than the vowels ㅗ (o), or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

- 여 (yeo) with 하다 (hada) verbs.

For example:

1. 맞아요. 하지만 제 동생은 저보다 키가 더 커요.
   majayo. hajiman je dongsaengeun jeoboda kiga deo keoyo.
   "That's right. But my younger brother is taller than me."

6. The past tense particle: 았, 었, 였 (-at, eot, yeot)

- 았 (at) for verbs that have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.

- 었 (eot) for verbs that do not have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.

- 였 (yeot) for 하다 (hada) verbs.

1. 그럼 어디에 갔어요?
   geureom eodie gaseoyo?
   "Then, where did you go?"

7. Question Marking Particles: 까 (kka) and 까요. (kkayo)

8. Location Marking particles: - 에 (e, "at"), 에서 (eseo, "from," "at"), 부터 (buteo, "from"), 까지 (kkaji, "to")

For example:

1. 여기 왼쪽에서 가운데까지는 저의 부모님이고, 가운데에서 오른쪽에 있는 사람들은 제 아내의 부모님입니다.
   yeogi oenjjogeseo gaundekkajineun jeoui bumonimigo, gaundeeseo oreunjjoge inneun saramdeureun je anaeui bumonimimnida.
   "From left to the center, these are my parents, and from the center to the right, these are my wife's parents."

9. Time marking particle: - 에 (e, "at"), 부터 (buteo, "from"), 까지 (kkaji, "to")

10. Possessive Particle and Particles that indicate a means of doing something or a material used in making something

- 의 (ui) and pronouns 제 (*je, "*my, humble"), 내 (nae, "my, informal") 니 (*ni, "*your, informal "), 저희 (jeohui, "our, humble")

- 로 (ro) meaning "by"

For example:

1. 비행기로 같이 갔어요.
   bihaenggiro gachi gaseoyo.
   "We went there together by a plane."

11. Linking Particles: - 와, 과 (-*wa, -gwa "*and") 고 (go, "and"), 나, 이나 (na, ina, "or"), 도 (do, "too")

12. Noun Modifying Particles: 은, 는 (-eun, neun)

-은 (eun) is attached to the end of clauses that end in consonants. (e.g.: 작+은 -> 작은, jageun "small (thing)")

-는 (neun)] is attached to the end of clauses that end in vowel. (e.g.: 가+는 -> 가는 , *ganeun "*going (thing)")

13. Particles Normalizing Verbs: Verb Stem + 는 것 (neun geot) or ㄴ 것 (n geot)

1. 사진을 찍은 곳은 어디예요?
   sajineul jjigeun goseun eodieyo?
   "Where is the place that you took the picture?"

14. Particles for quotation: -(는)다고, -ㄴ다고, (neun) dago, n-dago "I heard that.."

1. 섬 가운데에 화산이 있다고 들었어요.
   seom gaundee hwasani itdago deureoseoyo.
   "I heard that it has a volcano in the middle of the island."

15. Particles meaning only: 만 (man), 밖에 (bakke)

16. Particles 라도 (rado) meaning "at least," 면 (myeon) meaning "even if," "if"

- 이거라도 받으세요."Please at least take this." (igeorado badeuseyo.)

- 가다 ("to go") + 면 to mean "If you go." (gamyeon)

17. Particles that express negative feelings: 느니 (neuni, " rather than"), 조차 (jocha, "even"), 는 커녕 (neun keonyeong, "let alone, not even that.")

---

1. 사실 날씨가 좋지 않아서 해변은커녕 아무 곳에도 가지 못했어요.
   sasil nalssiga jochi anaseo haebyeoneunkeonyeong amu gosedo gaji motaeseoyo.
   "Actually the weather was not that good, so we didn't go anywhere even beaches."

18. Confirmation particles: 지, 이죠, 잖아. (ji, ijyo, janna)

19. Checking particles: 는다고 and ㄴ다고. (neundago, ndago)

20. Particles for making suggestions: 자 and 을래. (ja, eullae)

21. Particles that are useful with two or more items or people -마다 (mada, "every"), 씩 (ssik, "once a"), 끼리 (kkiri, "only between), 랑, 이랑 (rang, irang "with")

For example:

1. 가족이랑 여행을 갔어요.
   gajogirang yeohaengeul gaseoyo.
   "I had a trip with family."

22. Particles that are useful for comparison: 중에서 (jungeseo, "among"), 만큼 (*mankeum, "*as much as"), 보다 (boda, "more than")

For example:

1. 여기 있는 사람들 중에서 현철 씨가 제일 키가 크네요.
   yeogi inneun saramdeul jungeseo hyeoncheol ssiga jeil kiga keuneyo.
   "Among them, you're the tallest, right?"
2. 제 동생은 저보다 키가 더 커요.
   je dongsaengeun jeoboda kiga deo keoyo.
   "My younger brother is taller than me."

23-24. Other particles: 기만 하면 (giman hamyeon "only need to," 도록 (dorok, "in order to," 더라도 (deorado, "even if"), 대로 (daero, "as"), 는데 (neunde, "exclaiming.")

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Wedding Ceremonies

Weddings in Korea nowadays are not very different in general from weddings in western countries, since a lot of people are choosing the western style of wedding, but there are some unique parts that you can still find in Korean weddings. Unless the marrying couple or the parents of the couple want to do the wedding in the traditional way, there are mainly three unique points about weddings in Korea.
1. 축의금 (chuguigeum)
Visitors to the wedding are expected to prepare some money to give to the marrying couple, or to be more precise, to the family of the person that you know out of the two people that are marrying each other. The amount varies and depends on the person, but the usual amount ranges between 30,000 won and 100,000 won. If you happen to know both of the two people getting married to each other, you can just give the money directly to them so that they can spend it on their honeymoon trip.

2. 폐백 (pyebaek)
If the married couple just disappeared suddenly right after the main ceremony of the wedding, it is mostly because they are in the 폐백 (peybaek) room giving a big bow to the parents of both sides.

3. Lunch or dinner in a restaurant
In the most common style of wedding, the wedding is done in a professional "wedding hall" and therefore there are usually many other weddings taking place on that day. So the wedding place and the restaurant where the guests can have lunch or dinner are divided into separate places. So people attend the wedding for about 30 minutes, and then head on to the restaurant where they can eat. And while the guests are eating, the bride and the groom come to the restaurant after finishing 폐백 (pyebaek) to say hi to everybody and thank them for coming before they leave for their honeymoon trip.

내일도 비 올 거예요. naeil-do bi ol geo-yeyo. "It's going to rain tomorrow, too."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

오늘 oneul "today"

오늘 (oneul) is the pure Korean word meaning "today." As well as being used as a noun, it can sometimes be used with other nouns that refer to time, such as 아침 (achim) meaning "morning" and 저녁 (jeonyeok "evening") as in 오늘 아침 (oneul achim, "this morning" or literally "today morning") and 오늘 저녁 (oneul jeonyeok meaning "this evening" or literally "today evening").

In English, "yesterday," "today," and "tomorrow" are combined to describe other days such as the day before yesterday and two days after tomorrow. In Korean, there are individual words to describe from three days ago to four days from now. In addition to 어제 (eoje meaning "yesterday"), 오늘 (oneul, "today"), and 내일 (naeil, "tomorrow," there are words such as 그저께 (geujeokke, "two days ago"), and 그끄저께(geukkeujeokke, "three days ago."). There is also the word 모레 (more, "the day after tomorrow") and 글피 (geulpi, "two days after tomorrow"). These are commonly used in Korean, so be sure to remember them!

It's still possible to say 이일 전 (il-il jeon, "two days ago") or 삼일 후 (samil hu) "three days from now," but it would sound strange to directly translate phrases such as "the day before yesterday" into Korean.

For example:

1. 오늘은 월급날입니다.
   oneureun wolgeupnal-imnida
   "Today is a payday."

씨 ssi "Mr. Ms. Mrs."

The honorific suffix 씨 (ssi) is one the most commonly used among people of relatively equal speech level. In Korean, this suffix is usually added after someone's first name, for example, 철수 씨 (cheolsu ssi) to refer to someone whose first name is 철수 (cheolsu) honorifically. It's added to the end of the full name or the first name.

Unlike English, Korean doesn't use this honorific suffix with a person's surname. 씨 (ssi) is never used when referring to oneself or one's superior, but usually with someone who's at the same level as you, or below. If someone has a job title such as 선생 (seonsaeng) meaning "teacher" or 의사 (uisa, "doctor") it is appropriate to attach the honorific suffix 님 at the end as in 선생님 to show your respect.

For example:

1. 지수 씨는 여름휴가를 어디로 가세요?
   jisu ssineun yeorum-hyugareul eodiro gaseyo?
   "Jisu, where are you going for summer vacation?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Discussing Weather Conditions 민호 씨, 오늘 날씨가 어때요?
minhossi, oneul nalssiga eottaeyo?
"Minho, how's the weather today?"

The weather and the temperature are always the safest topics for making small talk!

In this lesson, you'll learn how to describe the day's weather and temperature using the pattern A 이/가 B ("A is B") or A 은/는 B ("A is B") or sentence structure.

Asking about the Weather

A common phrase for asking about the weather in Korean is 오늘 날씨가 어때요? (oneul nalssiga eottaeyo?). It literally means "Today's weather is how?" or "How's today's weather?"

	Korean	English	Romanization
Word 1	오늘	today	oneul
Word 2	날씨	weather	nalssi
Word 3	가	subject-marking particle	ga
Word 4	어때요?	"how is" as in question	eottaeyo?

You can put different nouns such as 내일 (naeil, "tomorrow)" or 이번 주말 (ibeon jumal, "this weekend" instead of the word 오늘 (oneul "today")

Answering a Question about the Weather

In Korean, you can use the following form to answer a question about the weather or describe the weather:

Usage:

오늘은+ [Adjective]

oneureun + [Adjective]

"Today is" + [Adjective] ("The weather today is..") 오늘 날씨 (oneul nalssi) is the word that literally means "today's weather," and you can use it for many cases, but not with phrases that have a verb in them, such as 비가 온다 (biga onda, "raining"). This phrase has the verb 오다 (oda "to come") in it, so you can only use it with 오늘은 (oneureun) and not with 오늘 날씨는 (oneul nalssineun)

For example:

"It's sunny today."

오늘은 맑다 (oneureun maktta) - Correct

오늘 날씨는 맑다 (oneul nalssineul maktta) - Correct

Note - 맑다 (maktta) is the adjective meaning "sunny" and it doesn't have a verb inside.

"It's rainy today."

오늘은 비가 온다. (oneureun biga onda) - Correct

오늘 날씨는 비가 온다. (oneul nalssineul biga onda) - Incorrect

Note: 비가 온다 (biga onda) has the verb 온다 (biga onda) inside the phrase, so you cannot use it with the noun 오늘 날씨 (oneul nalssi, "Today's weather.")

Various Expressions Used To Talk About the Weather

Here is the list of adjectives and expressions you can to describe the weather in Korean.

Expressions For Talking About How you Feel about the Weather

Korean (dictionary form)	Korean Ending w/ 요(yo)	"English"
덥다 (deoptta)	더워요 (deowoyo)	"hot"
춥다 (chuptta)	추워요 (chuwoyo)	"cold"
따뜻하다 (ttatteut-hada)	따뜻해요 (ttatteut-haeyo)	"warm"
시원하다 (siwon-hada)	시원해요 (siwonhaeyo)	"cool"

추워 (chuwo) means "to be cold" as in temperature or weather. 추워 is in the intimate politeness level and comes from the verb 춥다 (chupda), which means "to be cold." You can add -요 (yo) and say 추워요 to be more polite. This is different from 차가워 (chagaowo), which also means to be "cold to the touch." So, for example, you can say 추워 about the weather or a heavily air conditioned room and 차가워 about a cold piece of ice or a cold river after you have just jumped into it.

더워 (deowo) means, "to be hot" as in temperature or weather. 더워 is in the intimate politeness level and comes from the verb 덥다 (deopda), which means "to be hot." You can add -요 (yo) and say 더워요 to be more polite. This is different from 뜨거워 (tteugeowo), which also means to be "hot to the touch." So, for example, you can say 더워 about the weather and 뜨거워 about a hot bowl of rice.

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 오늘은 날씨가 더워요.
   oneureun nalssiga deowoyo.
   "It's hot today."
2. 내일 날씨는 추워요. 그리고 비가 와요.
   naeil nalssineun chuwoyo. geurigo biga wayo.
   "Tomorrow's weather will be cold. And it will rain."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Beating the Heat in Korea

Koreans celebrate some traditionally designated days that are on the lunar calendar (or in Korean 음력 (eumryok) and in summer, there are three special days for marking the beginning, the middle, and the end of the season. These are called 초복 (chobok), 중복 (jungbok) and 말복 (malbok). They take place between June and July in the lunar calendar, or July to August in the solar calendar.
중복 (jungbok) is considered the hottest day of the Summer in Korea, so people try to eat hot dishes, such as 삼계탕 (samgyetang, meaning *"*chicken soup with ginseng") Korean people believe that the smartest way to beat summer is to eat nutritious and hot soups, so on these three days, you will see long lines in front of restaurants that sell chicken soup.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

기르다 gireuda "to keep, to grow, to raise"

기르다 gireuda is the verb that you can use to mean "to grow" plants. For example, you can say 나는 마당에서 나무를 기르다 (naneun madang-eseo namureul gireuda.) to mean "I grow a tree in the garden."

But when Korean people talk about their pets, they use this verb to mean "to keep." or "to raise." For example, you will hear 나는 강아지 세 마리를 기르다. (naneun gang-aji se marireul gireuda) to mean "I keep three puppies (as pets)."

For example:

1. 우리 어머니는 베란다에서 여러가지 꽃을 기릅니다.
   uri eomeonineun beranda-eseo yeoreogaji kkocheul gireumnida.
   "My mother is growing different types of flowers on a balcony."

저희 집 jeohui jip "my home (humble)"

You can use this word to talk about your home humbly. 저희 (jeohui) is the word that means "our (humble)," and 집 (jip) means "house."

In general, you would use the word 우리 (uri) to mean "our," but when you want to be humble, you can use the word 저희 instead.

Unlike in English, even though something is a person's own possession, Korean people prefer to refer to it as "our" rather than "my." You won't hear someone saying 내 집 (nae jip) to mean "my house" using the word 내 (nae, "my").

This kind of usage stems from the Korean culture of a group mindset and is found within entities that are conceived of as communal. When a speaker uses 우리, you can tell that he or she is a member of that entity or is strongly attached to that person (family member).

For that reason, Korean people say 우리 엄마 (uri eomma) to mean "my mother," although its literally meaning is "our mother" and humbly 저희 엄마 (jeohui eomma).

For example:

1. 저희집에는 강아지가 두 마리가 있습니다.
   jeohijibeneun gang-ajiga du mariga itsseumnida.
   "In my home, we have we have two dogs."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Expressing Ownership with Possessive Pronouns 수진씨의 강아지는 아주 커요. 강아지의 이름이 뭐예요?
Sujinssiui gangajineun aju keoyo. gangajiui ireumi mwoyeyo?
"Your dog is very big. What's your dog's name?"

When we use the particle 의 (ui) to connect two nouns, it indicates that the second noun belongs to the first. In this way, it is equivalent to the apostrophe "-s" ('s) in English. We sometimes omit it in casual conversation.

The possessive particle 의 (ui) is used to indicate possession, or a relationship, and is similar to the English "of" or "'s." In the structure A 의 B, "B is of A," or in other words "A's B."

Formation

Object1-의 Object2

Object1-ui Object2

"Object1's Object2" -> "Object2 is of Object1" or "Object1's Object2"

Formation with Different Pronouns

Noun A/ Person	Korean/ Romanization	+ 의 (ui)	"English"
"I"	저 (jeo) (formal) or 나 (na) (informal)	저의 (je-ui) or 나의 (na-ui)	"my"
"you"	당신 (dan-shin) (formal) or 너 (neo) (informal)	당신의 (dangsin-ui) or 너의 = 네 (ne)	"your"
"he"	그 (geu)	그의 (geu-ui)	"his"
"she"	그녀 (geu-nyeo)	그녀의 (geu-nyeo-ui)	"her"
"we"	우리 (wu-ri)	우리의 (wu-ri-ui)	"our"
"you"	당신들 (dan-shin-deul)	당신들의 (dan-shin-deurui)	"your"
"they"	그들 (geu-deul)	그들의 (geu-deurui)	"their"
"male"	남성 (nam-seong)	남성의 (nam-seong-ui)	"male's"
"female"	여성 (yeos-eong)	여성의 (yeos-eong-ui)	"female's"
"Tim"	팀 (tim)	팀의 (tim-ui)	"Tim's"

Note: In this dialogue, "I," 저/나, becomes "my," 제 (je)/내 (nae). This is because 저 + 의 becomes 제 (je) in a shortened form and 나 + 의 becomes 내 (nae) in a shortened form.

Pronoun + Possessive Particle = Possessive Pronoun (Contraction)

In Korean, with the pronouns 나 (na, meaning "I" informal), 저, (jeo, "I" formal) and 너 (neo, "you" informal), a pronoun and the possessive particle 의 (ui) are combined and it is read in short as follows. Note that these are more commonly used in daily conversation.

Pronoun + Possessive Particle	Possessive Pronoun	Romanization	"English"
나의	내	nae	"my"
너의	니	ni	"your"
저의	제	je	"my" (humbling)

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 제 강아지 이름이 포로예요. 민호씨는 애완동물을 길러요?
   je gangaji ireumi poroyeyo. minhossineun aewandongmureul gilleoyo?
   "My dogs name is Poro. Do you have a pet, Minho?"
2. 네, 저는 고양이가 한 마리 있어요. 제 고양이의 이름은 주주예요.
   ne, jeoneun goyangiga han mari iseoyo. je goyang-ui ireumeun jujuyeyo.
   "Yes, I have a cat. My cat's name is Juju."

Sample Sentences

1. 이것들은 저의 신발입니다.
   Igeotteureun jeoui shinba rimnida.
   "These are my shoes."
2. 남성분들의 신발은 여기에 있습니다.
   Namseongbundeurui shinbareun yeogie isseumnida.
   "There are men's shoes here."
3. 여성분들의 신발은 저기에 있습니다.
   Yeoseongbundeurui shinbareun jeogie isseumnida.
   "There are women's shoes (over) there."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The Korean Jindo Dog

Although cats are getting more popular, dogs are still the number one pet in Korea. It's common to have smaller dogs as many people are living in apartments, or shared places, but you will still find some people walking 진돗개 (jindotgae) or "Jindo dog," especially in the countryside.
The 진돗개 (jindotgae) "Jindo Dog" is a breed of hunting dog known to have originated on 진도 (Jindo) Island in southern part of Korea. And 개 (gae) is the word meaning "a dog." These dogs are known as a breed that never betrays its owner. For that reason, more people started keeping 진돗개 (jindotgae) "Jindo Dog" as a pet and a friend, as they want to have someone by their side that they can trust.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

일어나다 (ireonada) "to get up, to wake up"

일어나다 (ireonada) describes the action of standing up, so in Korean it is used to mean "to wake up" or "to stand up."

You can use the verb alone, as in 7시에 일어나다. (ilgopsi-e ireonada, "to wake up at 7 o'clock."). Often, this verb is used with adverbs such as 일찍 (iljjik, meaning "early") or 늦게 (neutkke, meaning "late")

You can also find this verb used with the word 잠자리 (jamjari) as in 잠자리에서 일어나다 (jamjarieseo ireonada, meaning "(literally) to wake up from a bed.") 잠자리 (jamjari) is the noun meaning "a place where I sleep" or "bed."

The same word can be used to mean "to occur" as in 사건이 일어났다.

For example:

1. 알람 시계를 맞추지 않아서 아침에 일어나지 못 했다.
   alram sigeyreul matchuji anaseo achime ireonaji mot haetta.
   "I didn't set the alarm, so I couldn't wake up in the morning."

몇 (myeot) "how many"

몇 (myeot) means "how many (things)." This word cannot be used alone, but with counters, such as 개 (gae, the "counter for things") and 명 (myeong, the "counter for people.")

For example:

몇 명 (myeot myeong) "how many people."

몇 개 (myeot gae) "how many things"

몇 살 (myeot sal) "how old (literally, how many old)"

For example:

1. 이 방에는 몇 사람이 있어요?
   i bang-eneun myeot sarami itsseyo?
   "How many people are there in this room?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Discussing Time and Personal Routines 저는 6시에 일어나고 7시에 학교에 가요.
jeoneun yeoseon sie ireonago ilgom sie hakgyoe gayo.
"I wake up at 6 o'clock and go to school at 7 o'clock."

In Korea, people will often ask you how you spend your day. Don't be surprised because Korean people consider that finding out how someone spends a day is one of the ways to get to know them as a friend.

In this lesson, you'll learn how to talk about your daily routines in Korean.

1) Non-past Formal Form of a Verb

Like in English, you can use the present tense if you're talking about things that you're doing as a routine. There are several verb forms in Korean, but we will learn the -입니다 /ㅂ니다 (-imnida, -pnida form in this lesson. The ending -입니다 /ㅂ니다 (-imnida, -pnida) makes sentences polite.

Here are some verbs that are useful for talking about daily routines:

Korean	Romanization	English
삽니다	samnida	to buy
씁니다	sseumnida	to write
끕니다	kkemnida	to turn off
듣습니다	deutseumnida	to listen
마십니다	masimnida	to drink
보냅니다	bonaemnida	to send
(담배를) 핍니다	(daumbaereul) pimnida	to smoke(cigarettes)
(사진을) 찍습니다	sajineun jjiksseumnida	to take (pictures)
사용합니다.	sayonghamnida	to use
만듭니다	mandeumnida	to make
읽습니다	ilsseumnida	to read
엽니다	yeomnida	to open
나옵니다	naomnida	to leave
봅니다	bomnida	to watch to see to look
내립니다	naerimnida	to get off
닫습니다	datseumnida	to close
먹습니다	meokseumnida	to eat
탑니다	tamnida	to ride on
켭니다	kyeomnida	to turn on
가다	gada	to go
일어나다	ireonada	to wake up

2) Adverbs of Frequency

Let's take a look at some common adverbs of frequency:

자주 jaju	"often"	(저는) 자주 고기를 먹습니다. (jeoneun) jaju gogireul meokseumnida "I eat meat often."
때때로 ttaettaero	"sometimes"	(저는) 때때로 고기를 먹습니다. (jeoneun) ttaettaero gogireul meokseumnida "I eat meat sometimes."
언제나 eonjena	"always"	(저는) 언제나 고기를 먹습니다. (jeoneun) eonjena gogireul meokseumnida "I eat meat always."
매일 maeil	"everyday"	(저는) 매일 고기를 먹습니다. (jeoneun) maeil gogireul meokseumnida "I eat meat everyday."
매일 아침 maeil achim	"every morning"	(저는) 매일 아침 고기를 먹습니다. (jeoneun) maeil achim gogireul meokseumnida "I eat meat every morning."
매일 밤 maeil bam	"every night"	(저는) 매일 밤 고기를 먹습니다. (jeoneun) maeil bam gogireul meokseumnida "I eat meat every night."
거의 geoui	"not often" (used with negative verb)	거의 고기를 먹지 않습니다. geoi gogireul meokji anseumnida "I don't eat meat often."
전혀 jeonhyeo	"never" (used with negative verb)	전혀 고기를 먹지 않습니다. jeonhyeo gogireul meokji anseumnida "I never eat meat."

The native Korean numbers are used to tell the hour. Let's go over "one o'clock" to "twelve o'clock." "One o'clock" in Korean is han si (한 시). The first part han (한) means "one." Actually hana (하나) is "one," but because it is followed by something, it changes to han (한). And what follows this is si (시), which means "hour." Literally, this means "one, hour" but is translated as "one o'clock." The same is done for all of the other hours.

Two o'clock is du si (두 시).

Three o'clock is se si (세시).

Four o'clock is ne si (네 시).

Five o'clock is daseot si (다섯시).

Six o'clock is yeoseot si (여섯 시).

Seven o'clock is ilgop si (일곱 시).

Eight o'clock is yeodeolp si (여덟 시).

Nine o'clock is ahop si (아홉 시).

Ten o'clock is yeol si (열 시).

Eleven o'clock is yeolhan (열한 시).

Twelve o'clock is yeoldu si (열두 시).

With hours, you can use the time marking particle 에 (e) as in 한 시에 (han si-e, " 1 o'clock.")

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 5시에 저녁 식사를 먹고 6시에 집에 가요.
   daseon sie jeonyeong siksareul meokgo yeoseon sie jibe gayo. minhossineun jeonyeong siksareul eonje meogeoyo?
   "I eat supper at 5 o'clock and go home at 6 o'clock. What time do you eat supper, Minho?"
2. 저는 8시에 저녁 식사를 먹고 9시에 집에 가요.
   jeoneun yeodeol sie jeonyeong siksareul meokgo ahop sie jibe gayo.
   "I eat supper at 8 o'clock and go home at 9 o'clock."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Commuting in Korea

In Seoul, people prefer to take a subway to work, or get a bus instead of using their own vehicles because of the traffic jams. Most bus routes have lanes for buses only, so it takes less time than driving a car.
Many companies are located around subway lines 1 and 2, so these are the busiest subway lines during peak hours, which takes place between 7 and 9 a.m. In Korea, it's not common to find a company with flexible working hours as most set their working hours to begin from 9 a.m., meaning the train becomes less busy after 9 a.m.
These days, it is becoming more and more common to see companies that have offices outside Seoul. These companies arrange shuttle buses from the stations where two or three subway stations meet, such as 강남역 (gangmnam yeok, "Gangnam station") or 합정역 (*hapjeong yeok, "*Hapjeong Station," which run between the stations and the company's office during peak hours.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

시험을 치다 (siheomeul chida) "to take a test."

치다 is usually used to mean "to hit" or "to strike" but this verb can be used to mean "to take a test" when it's used in the phrase 시험을 치다 meaning "to take a test." When someone is taking a test soon, people encourage him or her by saying 시험 잘 치세요. (siheom jal chiseyo) or 시험 잘 쳐! (siheom jal chyeo) Both mean "take a test well" literally.

You can use the verb 보다 (boda, "to see") to create "to take a test" as in 시험을 보다 (siheomeul boda.)

밑에 (mite) "under"

밑에 (mit-e) means "below, under," or "beneath." 밑에 (mit-e) is a combination of two words, 밑 (mit) and the location marking particle 에 (e). 밑 (mit) is a noun that means, "under," "below," or "beneath." 에 (e) means, "at," "to," or "in." So together, 밑에 (mit-e) means, "under (something)." The word that 위에 (mit-e) modifies comes before 위에 (mit-e). When we use 위에 (mit-e) on its own, it means "under there."

The order is the opposite of how you say "under" in English, so you need to put the object name first, then put the word 밑 meaning "under."

For example:

1. 다리 밑
   (dari mit)
   "under the bridge."

Note - 다리 (dari) is the word meaning "bridge."

There are other words you can use to indicate the location of an item. For example, 위 (wi, "over") 옆 (yeop, "near"), 뒤 (dwi, "back"). These can be used with the particle 에 (e).

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Useful Classroom Expressions in Korean 모두 숙제를 내세요.
modu sukjereul naeseyo.
"Please hand in your homework."

In this lesson, you'll learn the most useful classroom expressions in Korean!

1. "Please say it."/"Please repeat."

한 번 더 따라하세요. (hanbeon deo ttarahaseyo) means "please say it." 한 번 (han beon) means "one time," 더 (deo) means "more" and 따라하세요 (ttarahaseyo) is from the verb 따라하다 (ttarahada) meaning "to imitate." When teachers want you to repeat exactly what they have said, they will use this phrase.

2. "Please look."

보세요 (boseyo) means "please look," and when an object comes before the phrase, it means "please look at (object)." For example, 칠판을 보세요. means "please look at the blackboard (or whiteboard)." This phrase can also often be used with the word 여기 (yeogi) meaning "here."

보세요 (boseyo) also means "to try" when it's used right next to another verb. For example, 펴 보세요 (pyeo baseyo) means "to try to open it." It can be translated as "open it please" but Korean people use the [Verb-stem] + 보세요 (boseyo, "try") form to make their requests sound polite by making it less direct.

3. "Please read."

읽으세요. (ilgeuseyo) means "please read."

You can expect to hear this phrase if a teacher wants you to practice reading some word, phrase, or passage. For example, 그 문장을 읽으세요. geu munjang-eul ilgeuseyo. means "please read the sentence."

This phrase can be used often with the page number, for example, 10 페이지를 읽으세요. (sip peigi-reul ilgeuseyo.) to mean "Please read page 10." 페이지 (peigi is the counter for pages in Korean).

4. "Please write it."

적으세요 (jeogeuseyo) and 쓰세요 (sseuseyo) mean "please write it."

Teachers may use this phrase when they want you to practice writing some 한글 (hangeul, "Korean characters.") When they want to ask you to write something "IN" Korean, they will use the particle 로 (ro) and say 한글로 쓰세요. (hangulro sseuseyo. "Please write it in Korean.")

5. "Do you understand?"

이해했어요? (ihae-haetsseoyo?) is the phrase meaning "Do you understand?" You might hear different versions of this questions from different teachers, but it will usually have the verb 이해하다 ('ihaehada) meaning "to understand" in the expression regardless.

If teachers want to ask whether there are any questions, they might also ask 질문 있어요? (jilmun itsseoyo?) which means "Are there any questions?"

6. "We will take an exam."

시험을 칠 거예요 (siheomeul chil geoyeyo.) is the phrase meaning "We'll take an exam." or "You'll have an exam." As we saw earlier, 시험을 치다 (siheomeul chida) or 시험을 보다 (siheomeul boda) mean "to take a test."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 오늘은 시험을 칠 거예요. 책은 책상 밑 서랍에 넣어주세요.
   oneureun siheomeul chil geoyeyo. chaegeun chaeksang mit seorabe neoeojuseyo.
   "Today we will take a test. Please place your books in a drawer beneath your desk."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Classroom Culture in Korea

In Korea, every classroom has a home-room teacher. In Korean, they are called 담임선생님 (damim-seonsaeng-nim) 담임 (damim) is the noun meaning "in charge."
Homeroom teachers or 담임선생님 (damim-seonsaeng-nim) have their own subjects to teach, but also take care of everything related to his/her classroom and students. Every morning, the home-room teacher opens 조회 (johoe) or "morning assembly," checks attendance, and deliver school news in person. At the end of the day, the homeroom teacher checks any issues related to the classroom, and releases the students. Since they take care of everything, the homeroom teacher and the class become very close, and students often visit their homeroom teacher on Teacher's Day.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

년생 (nyeon-saeng) "the year of the birth"

년생 (nyeon-saeng) is composed of the word 년 (nyeon) which is derived from the Chinese character meaning "year" and 생 (saeng) which is derived from the Chinese character meaning "life" or "birth." So it literally means "year of the birth."

In Korean, people often tell their age by the year of the birth or 년생 (nyeon-saeng). For example, if you're born in 1986, you can say 저는 1986년생 입니다. (jeoneun 1986 nyeon-saeng imnida.) In general, people ask the other person's age to see if they are older or younger than him/her, so they will quickly figure out who's older by comparing it to their year of birth.

In Korean, the phrase 몇 년 생이세요? (myeot nyeon saeng-iseyo?) meaning "Which year were you born in?" is commonly used for asking ages. It sounds less direct than saying 몇 살이세요? (myeot sariseyo?) which literally means "How old are you?" so it won't sound rude.

For example:

1. 몇 년 생이세요?
   myeot nyeon saeng-iseyo?
   "What's your the year of the birth?"

생일 (saeng-il) "birthday"

생일 (saeng-il) is composed of the word 생 (saeng) which is derived from the Chinese character meaning "life" or "birth" and 일 (il) which is derived from the Chinese character meaning "day." So it literally means "the day of the birth" or simply "birthday."

Using this word, you can say 생일 축하합니다! (saeng-il chukahamnida) in Korean, which means "Happy birthday!" or literally "Congratulations on your birthday!"

But when you're talking to someone who's older than you, you need to use a different word to mean "birthday," which is 생신 (saeng-sin) 생신 (saeng-sin) is the honorific word for 생일.

When you use this word to say "Happy birthday!" you can say 생신 축하드립니다. (saeng-sin chukadeurimnida) In the expression, we use the verb 축하드리다 (chukadeurida), which is the honorific verb, to literally mean "to give a congratulation."

For example:

1. 오늘이 마이클 씨 생일이에요? 생일 축하합니다!
   oneuri maikeul ssi saeng-il ieyo? saeng-il chukahamnida!
   "Is today Michael's birthday? Happy Birthday!"

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Talking about Dates and Birthdays 제 생일은 10월 17일이에요. 수진씨는요?
je saengireun si wol sipchil irieyo. sujinssineunnyo?
"My birthday is October 17th. What about you?"

Asking about Dates in Korean

To task which date is for [something], you can use the following form.

[Topic] + 은/는 (Topic marking particle) + 며칠이에요?

[Topic] + eun/neun (Topic marking particle) + myeochirieyo?

"Which date is [Topic]?"

Here, you can put the nouns for the topic that you want to know the date of, such as 오늘 (oneul, "today") or 생일(*saeng-il, "*birthday")

며칠 is the word meaning "which day?" It originates from the words 몇 (myeot, meaning "what") and 일 (il, meaning "day"). Although the spelling changes to follow the pronunciation, the meaning is still the same: what day. Make sure you write 며칠 (myeochil) correctly, not as 몇일.

You can also use the following pattern:

[Topic] + 은/는 (Topic marking particle) + 언제예요?

[Topic] + eun/neun (Topic marking particle) + eonje-yeyo?

"When is [Topic]?"

언제 (eonje) means "when" so you can use the phrases, especially when you want to know not only the dates, but also the time.

For example:

1. 오늘은 며칠이에요?
   oneureun myeochirieyo?
   “What date is it today?”
2. 마이클씨의 생일은 며칠이에요?
   mikeul-ssi-ui saeng-ireun myeochirieyo?
   "What date is Michael's birthday?"
3. 결혼식은 언제예요?
   gyeolhonsigeun eonje-yeyo?
   "When is the wedding ceremony?"

How to Read Dates in Korean Using Sino Numbers

To answer about a date, you will need to know how to read months and dates correctly.

Korean has two systems for numbers: Sino-Korean numbers and native Korean numbers. We use the Sino-Korean numbers for counting dates, money, people, and so on. We generally use the native Korean numbers for counting. When you're talking about dates, make sure to use Sino-Korean Numbers.

	Sino Numbers	Native Numbers
1	일 (il)	하나 (hana)
2	이 (i)	둘 (dul)
3	삼 (sam)	셋 (set)
4	사 (sa)	넷 (net)
5	오 (o)	다섯 (daseot)
6	육 (yuk)	여섯 (yeoseot)
7	칠 (chil)	일곱 (ilgop)
8	팔 (pal)	여덟 (yeodeol)
9	구 (gu)	아홉 (ahop)
10	십 (sip)	열 (yeol)
11	십일 (sibil)	열하나 (yeolhana)
12	십이 (sibi)	열둘 (yeoldul)
13	십삼 (sipsam)	열셋 (yeolset)
14	십사 (sipsa)	열넷 (yeolnet)
15	십오 (sibo)	열다섯 (yeoldaseot)
16	십육 (sipyuk)	열여섯 (yeolyeoseot)
17	십칠 (sipchil)	열일곱 (yeolilgop)
18	십팔 (sippal)	열여덟 (yeolyeodeol)
19	십구 (sipgu)	열아홉 (yeolahop)
20	이십 (isip)	스물 (seumul)

How to Read Months in Korean using Sino Numbers

Using Sino Korean numbers, you can read the months in Korean. In Korean, the months of the year are constructed by using the number of the month (January is 1, February is 2, March is 3, and so on), using the Sino-Korean numbers. The number is immediately followed by the word 월 (wol, "month").

Here's the list of months in Korean:

1월 (ilwol) - January

2월 (iwol) - February

3월 (samwol) - March

4월 (sawol) - April

5월 (owol) May

6월 (yuwol) - June

7월 (chilwol) - July

8월 (palwol) - August

9월 (guwol) - September

10월 (siwol) - October

11월 (sibilwol) - November

12월 (sibiwol) - December

Note: The months June and October have different pronunciations than what their respective numbers 6, 육 (yuk), and 10, 십 (sip), may suggest. 6월 should be pronounced as 유월 (yuwol) not 육월 (yukwol). 10월 should be pronounced as 시월 (si-wol) not 십월 (sip-wol).

How to Read Days in Korean using Sino Numbers

Dates of the year are constructed in the same manner as months. Using the Sino-Korean number for the date, the number is immediately followed by the word 일 (il, "day").

1일 (ilil) - 1st

3일 (samil) - 3rd

7일 (chilil) - 7th

14일 (sibsail) - 14th

29일 (isibguil) - 29th

31일 (samsibilil) - 31st

For example:

Here are a few example dates in Korean:

1. October 19th - 10월 19일 (siwol sipguil)

2. April 30th - 4월 30일 (sawol samsipil)

3. December 24th - 12월 24일 (sibiwol isipsail)

How to Give Dates in a Sentence in Korean

Now, it's time to give the answer.

To give the date in a sentence, you can use the following form.

[Topic] + 은/는 (Topic marking particle) + [Date]이에요.

[Topic] + eun/neun (Topic marking particle) + [Date] irieyo.

"[Topic] is [Date]."

For example:

1. 새해는 1월 1일이에요.
   saehae-neun il wol iril-ieyo.
   "New Year's Day is January 1st."
2. 시험은 9월 23일이에요.
   siheomeun guwol isipsamil-ieyo.
   "The test is September 23rd."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 우와! 저도 10월 17일이에요! 몇 년생이에요?
   uwa! jeodo si wol sipchil irieyo! myeon nyeonsaengieyo?
   "Wow! My birthday is also October 17th! What year?"
2. 저는 1993년생이에요. 수진씨는요?
   jeoneun gusip sam nyeonsaengieyo. sujinssineunnyo?
   "I was born in 1993. How about you?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The Importance of Age in Korean Culture

In Korea, knowing the age of the person you're talking to is very important. You will be asked how old you are no matter if it's a casual gathering, or a business situation. After you find out each other's ages, you'll be asked if the other person can use informal Korean with you if they are older than you, or be asked to use informal Korean to them if you're the oldest.
The first time you hear this question, you might be surprised if you're not used to asking ages freely in your culture. In Korea, people consider knowing someone's age to be one important step towards getting to know the other person, so you can consider this question as a sign that the other wants to be friends with you or get to know you more. For the same reason, it's rude not to say your age, by the way, so be prepared if you're planning to visit Korea.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

어서오세요 (eoseo-oseyo) "Please come in!/Welcome! (in shops, etc)"

어서오세요 is the phrase that you'll hear when you're entering a shop or someone else's house. This phrase is composed of the adverb 어서 (eoseo) meaning "quickly" and the verb 오세요 (oseyo) meaning "to come." It literally means "Come quickly" but you can translate it as "Welcome" in general.

어서오세요. (eoseo-oseyo) is the most common greeting used to welcome people, especially at shops. It can be used to welcome someone home if that person has been away for some time or is a first-time visitor, but it would be inappropriate to say this to family members every day.

In a casual way, you can say 어서와 (eoseowa) to welcome a friend visiting your home.

For example:

1. 어서오세요, 손님.
   eoseo-oseyo, son-nim.
   "Welcome. (literally, Welcome, guest.)"

드리다 (deurida) "to give" (humble)

드리다 (deurida) is the humble form of the verb 주다 (juda) meaning "to give." You can use it when you describe your action of giving something to someone older than you. You cannot use this verb when you're talking about someone's action of giving something to you. In that case, you need to use the verb 주시다 (jusida), the honorific form of the verb 주다 (juda).

For example:

1. (내가) 선생님에게 선물을 드리다.
   (naega) seonsaeng-nim-ege seonmureul deurida.
   "I give a present to the teacher (humble)"
2. 선생님이 나에게 선물을 주시다.
   seonsaeng-nimi na-ege seonmureul jusida.
   "The teacher gives a present to me."

여러가지 (yeoreogaji) "many types of, a variety of"

여러가지 (yeoreogaji) is composed of two words: 여러 (yeoreo) is the word meaning "many" or "various," and 가지 (gaji) is the noun meaning "types." 가지 (gaji) can be used in a phrase with a number, as in 두 가지 (du gaji) meaning "two types" or 한 가지 (han gaji) "one type"

여러 가지 여러가지 (yeoreogaji) can be followed by a noun, such as 이유 (iyu, meaning "reason") as in 여러 가지 이유 (yeoreogaji iyu) meaning "many reasons" or literally "many types of reasons."

Also this phrase can be used with the particle 로 (ro) as in 여러 가지로 (yeoreogaji-ro) meaning "in many ways."

For example:

1. 이것은 여러 가지로 유용하다.
   igeoseun yeoreogajiro yuyong-hada
   "This is useful in many ways."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Phrases that Express a Desire to Purchase Something 이 시계가 예뻐요. 얼마예요?
i sigyega yeppeoyo. eolmayeyo?
"This watch is pretty. How much is it?"

Here are some common phrases:

Asking how much something is: 이거 얼마예요? "How much is this?"

To ask how much something is, you can use the phrase 얼마예요? (eolmayeyo). We use this question to ask the price of a certain item. We place the item we are inquiring about in front of the phrase 얼마예요? (eolmayeyo).

When you want to make it specific by saying "this" or "that" in Korean when asking the price, you can use pronouns, or nouns indicating the object. For example:

1. 이거 얼마예요?
   igeo eolmayeyo?
   "How much is this?"
2. 저거 얼마예요?
   jeogeo eolmayeyo?
   "How much is that?"
3. 표 얼마예요?
   pyo eolmayeyo?
   "How much is a ticket?"
4. 물 얼마예요?
   mul eolmayeyo?

"How much is water?"

Politeness Levels of the Phrase 얼마예요? (eolmayeyo?) "How much is it?"

얼마예요? (eolmayeyo) is in the standard politeness level, and we can use it with strangers while being polite. As we most commonly use this phrase while shopping with strangers, the standard politeness level is the form we most commonly use. Below is a reference table for the other politeness levels.

Politeness Level	Korean	Romanization	"English"
Formal	얼마입니까?	eolmaimnikka?	"How much is this?"
Standard	얼마예요?	eolmayeyo?	"How much is this?"
Intimate	얼마야?	eolmaya?	"How much is this?"

Phrases for Getting Discounts

After you get the price, you can try to get a discount. If you're in a traditional market or a Dongdaemun shopping mall, it will work. Here are some useful phrases:

A. 깎아주세요... (kkakajuseyo), meaning "Please take off the price..."

깎아 (kkaka) means "to discount" or "to bargain," and it comes from the verb 깎다 (kkakda), meaning "to discount," and 주세요 (juseyo), meaning "please give me..."

Therefore, 깎아주세요 (kkakajuseyo) means "please take off the price..."

* The expression 깎아주세요 (kkakajuseyo), meaning "please take off the price," is a very useful expression in Korea, especially when you visit Korea to shop for many items.

For example:

1. 아줌마, 깎아주세요...
   Ajumma, kkakajuseyo...
   "Ma'am, come down a little more, please..."
2. 너무 비싸다. 깎아주세요...
   Neomu bissade. kkakajuseyo...
   "It's too expensive. Beat down the price, please..."

B. Add 조금만 (jogeumman) "a little"/"a bit"/"some"

*Note: A shortened form of 조금만 is 좀 (jom), which means "a little"/"a bit"/"some."

Formation:

조금만 (jogeumman), which means "a little"/"a bit," + 깎아주세요 (kkakajuseyo), which means "take off the price..."

조금만 (좀) 깎아주세요... (jogeumman (jom) kkakajuseyo...) means "please take off the price a little..."

For example:

1. 아줌마, 조금만 깎아주세요...
   Ajumma, jogeumman kkakajuseyo...
   "Ma'am, beat down the price a little bit..."
2. 너무 비싸요... 조금만 깎아주세요...
   Neomu bissayo... jogeumman kkakajuseyo...
   "It's too expensive...please take off the price a little bit..."

C. Add 더 (deo), which means "more"

Formation:

조금만 (jogeumman)/좀 (jom), meaning "a little"/"a bit," + 더 (deo), meaning "more," + 깎아주세요 (kkakajuseyo), meaning "take off the price please..."

Therefore, 조금만/좀 더 깎아주세요... (Jogeumman/Jom deo kkakajuseyo...) means "Take off the price a little bit more..."

For example:

1. 이 가방, 조금만 더 깎아주세요.
   I gabang, jogeumman deo kkakajuseyo...
   "This bag-take off the price a little bit more..."
2. 아줌마, 이 옷 조금만 더 깎아주세요...
   Ajumma, i ot jogeumman deo kkakajuseyo...
   "Ma'am, take off the price on this clothing a little bit more..."

Making a Decision and Saying "I'll take this."

After getting the discount, you can say "I'll take this." In Korean, you can say 그럼, 이거로 주세요. (geureom, igeo juseyo.) It literally means "Then, please give (me) this." 그럼 (geureom) means "then," or "well," 이거 (igeo) is the noun meaning "this thing," 주세요 is the verb meaning "please give." You can put 그거 (geugeo, "the") or 저거 (jeogeo, "that") instead, if the item is not near you.

In daily conversation, it's common to see people add an extra ㄹ(L) sound with the particle 로(ro) when the noun before the particle doesn't have a batchim, or the last consonant. So the pronunciation changes slightly as follows:

이거로 (igeoro) -> 이걸로 (igeollo)

저거로 (jeogeoro) -> 저걸로 (jeogeollo)

그거로 (geugeoro) -> 저걸로 (geugeollo)

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 네, 그걸로 주세요.
   ne, geugeollo juseyo.
   "Yes, please give it to me."
2. 5만 원이에요. 이걸로 드릴까요?
   o man wonieyo. igeollo deurilkkayo?
   "It is 50,000 won. Would you like this one?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Popular Gifts in Korea

If you're dating a Korean, make sure to count how many days have passed since you met your boy/girl friend. It's very common to celebrate the 30th, 100th, or 200th day after becoming a couple with gifts. It's still popular to give a watch to a boyfriend and a bag to a girlfriend, but the most enjoyable thing is having a dinner together at a nice restaurant.
Talking about gifts, these days, it is very common to send and receive online gift vouchers among tech-savvy Koreans. Because it is easy and quick, many people exchange gift vouchers instead of actual gifts via email and mobile phone. In Korea, people also use cell phones to pay for public transport.

기말고사가 며칠 안 남았다.

"We have only a few days left till the finals."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

밖에 (bakke) "only, no more than"

밖에 (bakke) is a word meaning "only." This is only followed by a negative form of a verb such as 없다 (eopta "not to have," "there is not") or 않다 (anta, "not to be") to say "only but." This word cannot be used with a positive verb form such as 있어 (itsseo meaning "there is" "to have"

When you don't have anything but only a book, you can say...

1. 나는 책 밖에 없다.
   naneun chaek bakke eopta.
   "I have nothing but only a book."

You can place the item that you have before the word 밖에.

For example:

1. 어떡해! 하나밖에 남지 않았어.
   eotteokae! hana-bakke namji anatseo.

친구 (chingu) "friend"

친구 (chingu) is composed of the character 친 (chin) which is derived from the Chinese character meaning "close" and the word 구 (gu) which is derived from the Chinese character meaning "old." Hence, 친구 (chingu) refers to someone to whom you have been close for a long time, otherwise known as "a friend."

In Korea, the term 친구 (chingu) refers to friends of the same age. If you know someone as a friend, but he/she is older or younger than you, you will use a different term. For example, you can use 동생 (dong-saeng) meaning "younger brother" or "younger sister" to refer to someone you consider to be a friend, but who is younger than you. For those who are older than you, you will use 형(hyeong) or 오빠 (oppa) for guys, and 누나 (nuna) or 언니 (eonni) for girls. These mean "older brother" or "older sister." If you have a Korean friend who is younger or older than you, you might be surprised to find out that he or she never thought of you as a friend.

The usage of "friends" is more casual in English than Korean. Phrases such as 내 친구의 친구야. meaning "This is a friend of my friend." or 아는 동생이야. meaning "This is a younger brother (younger friend) I know" are often used to introduce someone that would just be called a "friend" in English. You can be friendly with older or younger people, but you will never call them your friends.

For example:

1. 내 친구의 친구야.
   nae chingu-ui chinguya.
   "This is a friend of my friend."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Asking about the Time
민호씨. 우리, 몇 시에 친구를 만나요?
minhossi. uri, myeon sie chingureul mannayo?
"Minho, at what time do we meet our friend?"

---

1. Asking About the Time

When you want to go somewhere, in order to be able to ask the time of departure for your transportation, you need to know how to ask what time something is. The expression you can use to ask the time is 몇 시예요? (myeot si-yeyo?), which literally means "What time is it?"

몇 (myeot) means "how many" or "which number" and 시 (si) means "o'clock" or "time" so 몇 시 (myeot si) plus 예요 (yeyo), which means "it is" becomes 몇 시예요? (myeot si-yeyo?), "What time is it?"

In Korean, "What time is it?" is 지금 몇 시에요? The first word, 지금, means "Now." The next word, 몇, means "What time." Literally, 지금 몇 시예요? means "Right now what time is it?" When saying the hours—saying what o'clock it is—we use a native Korean number followed by 시

In order to ask what time your bus or train is, you can just add 버스는 (beoseu-neun), "as for the bus," or 기차는 (gicha-neun) "as for the train," in front of 몇 시예요?

For example:

1. 버스는 몇 시예요?
   beoseu-neun myeot si-yeyo?
   "What time is the bus?"
2. 기차는 몇 시예요?
   gicha-neun myeot si-yeyo?
   "What time is the train?"

And if you want to ask more these question more specifically, you can ask:

1. 버스는 몇 시에 있어요?
   beoseu-neun myeot si-e isseoyo?
   "What time is there a bus?"

2. 기차는 몇 시에 있어요?
   gicha-neun myeot si-e isseoyo?
   "What time is there a train?"

If you want to know what time to meet someone, you can put the verb indicating the action after saying 몇시에 (myeot si-e) meaning "at what time." Here are some examples:

1. 몇 시에 만나요?
   myeot sie mannayo?
   "What time will (we) meet?"
2. 몇 시에 먹어요?
   myeot sie meogeoyo?
   "What time will (we) eat?"
3. 몇 시에 가요?
   myeot sie gayo?
   "What time will (we) go?"

2. Answering with the Time

To tell the minutes when speaking about the time, you need to know the Sino-Korean numbers. When you're talking about the hour, the native Korean numbers are used. Below is the basic construction of time.

Formation:

(Native Korean #) 시 (Sino-Korean #) 분

(Native Korean #) hour (Sino-Korean #) minute

Hours

In Korean, in order to say the time, you put the word 시 (si) after a number, and that is equivalent to "a number + o'clock" in English. And after this, you add the verb 이다 (ida) to form a sentence.

For example:

"It's 10 o'clock." --> 10 + 시 + 이다

10시입니다 (formal)

10시예요 (standard)

10시야 (intimate)

When saying the time, the native Korean numbers are used, so the following is how to read from 1 o'clock to 12 o'clock in Korean, using native Korean numbers.

Time	Korean	Romanization
1 o'clock	한 시	han si
2 o'clock	두 시	du si
3 o'clock	세 시	se si
4 o'clock	네 시	ne si
5 o'clock	다섯 시	daseot si
6 o'clock	여섯 시	yeoseot si
7 o'clock	일곱 시	ilgop si
8 o'clock	여덟 시	yeodeol si
9 o'clock	아홉 시	ahop si
10 o'clock	열 시	yeol si
11 o'clock	열한 시	yeolhan si
12 o'clock	열두 시	yeoldu si

Minutes

To express minutes, state the minute using a Sino-Korean number and add the counter 분 (bun), which means "minute."

Time	Korean	Romanization
5 minutes	오 분	o bun
10 minutes	십 분	sip bun
15 minutes	십오 분	sibo bun
20 minutes	이십 분	isip bun
25 minutes	이십오 분	isibo bun
30 minutes	삼십 분	samsip bun
35 minutes	삼십오 분	samsibo bun
40 minutes	사십 분	sasip bun
45 minutes	사십오 분	sasibo bun
50 minutes	오십 분	osip bun
55 minutes	오십오 분	osibo bun

For 1:15, the construction is 한 시 십오 분 (han si sibo bun), literally "1 o'clock, 15 minutes." Please see the following examples.

1:00 - 한 시 (han si)

8:00 - 여덟 시 (yeodeolp si)

3:10 - 세 시 십 분 (se si sip bun) - note the pronunciation change for 3

7:15 - 일곱 시 십오 분 (ilgop si sipo bun)

5:30 - 다섯 시 삼십 분 (daseot si samsip bun)

9:45 - 아홉 시 사십오 분 (ahop si sasipo bun)

12:57 - 열두 시 오십칠 분 (yeoldu si osipchil bun)

3. Time marking particle

When talking about time in Korean, make sure to use the particle -에 (-e) This can be translated into English as "at," "to," "on" or "in," depending on the context. It can be used to indicate time, direction, or a specific location where an action takes place. In this specific lesson it is used to indicate time and can be translated as "at," "on," or "in."

The particle -에 (-e) can be used to indicate the time at which an action takes place. This particle is attached to time specific words, which includes time, day of the week, date, month, and year. Depending on context, this particle can be translated as "at," "on," or "in."

For example:

1. [두 시 반에 끝나요.]
   du si ban-e kkeutnayo.
   "It ends at two-thirty."

In this sentence, the particle -에 (-e) indicates the time it ends (2:30).

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 7시에 친구를 만날 거예요. 지금은 몇 시예요?
   ilgom sie chingureul mannal geoyeyo. jigeumeun myeon siyeyo?
   "We meet our friend at 7. What time is it now?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Time

Among foreigners living in Korea, and even among Korean people, there is a term called "Korean time" or in Korean 코리안타임 (korian ta-im). It was known that Korean people tended to show up later than the scheduled time, usually by around 10-20 minutes. Even though these days more and more Korean people are getting stricter about showing up on time, the term is still used in the media.
When setting times, it's still common to see people try to come to the place "on time" rather than "10 minutes earlier" and so you might still see some of your friends running late even though they tried.
When that happens, it's best to set the meeting place inside a bookstore, or somewhere you can spend 5-10 minutes by yourself, while you're waiting for the rest of the group.

책 어디에 놓았어요?

chaek eodi-e noasseoyo?

"Where did you put the book?"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

위 (wi) "up," "above"

위 (wi) is the noun meaning "up" or "above." It can be used alone as in 위를 보세요. (wi-reul boseyo.) meaning "look above" but in many cases, it's used with the location marking particle 에 (e). When you describe where something is, you can say 책상 위에 (chaeksang wi-e) to mean "on the top of a desk." 책상 (chaeksang) is the noun meaning "desk" and 위에 is the phrase meaning "on the top of," so it literally means "desk, on the top of." The word order is different than English, so make sure to follow the right order.

This word can be used to describe someone above you as in 윗사람 (wit-saram.) 위 means "above," and it has an extra consonant ㅅ (s) connecting the two words. 사람 (saram) is the word meaning "person" so it literally means "a person above." It refers to those who are older than you, or someone of higher social status.

For example:

1. 책 위에 연필이 있다.
   chaek wi-e yeonpiri itda.
   "There's a pencil on the top of a book."

축하하다 (chukahada) "to celebrate," "to congratulate"

축하 (chuka) means "congratulation" and the verb 하다 means "to do." When you give congratuations to someone older than you, you can use the verb 축하드리다 (chukadeurida) which means the same, but with the humble verb 드리다 (deurida) meaning "to give."

This word is usually used in a phrase like 생일 축하해요. (saengil chukahaeyo) meaning "Happy birthday." The word 생일 (saeng-il) means "birthday" and this can be replaced with other nouns such as 승진 (sengjin) meaning "promotion." When you want to congratulate someone on a promotion, you can say 승진 축하드립니다 (sengjin chukadeurimnida) using the humble verb 드리다 (deurida) meaning "to give."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is How to make Honorific Verbs Using the Extra Word 시 (si) 수진 씨, 민호 씨! 어서오세요!
sujin ssi, minho ssi! eoseooseyo!
"Sujin, Minho! Com in, please!"

To make your sentences polite, you can use an honorific verb with the extra word 시(si) To make a verb honorific, take the verb stem and add -시 (si) when the verb stem ends in a vowel, or -으시 (eusi) when the verb stem ends in a consonant.

Here are some examples using the extra word 시 (si)

주다 (juda) "to give"

주시다 = 주+시+다 (jusida) "to give (honorific)"

오다 (oda) "to come"

오시다 = 오+시+다 (osida) "to come (honorific)"

놓다 (notta) "to put"

놓으시다 = 놓+으시+다 (no-eusi-da) "to put (honorific)"

When you use the sentence ending particle 요 (yo) which sounds natural in a daily conversation, you can simply replace 시다 (sida) with 세요 (seyo) as below:

주다 (juda) "to give"

주시다 = 주+시+다 (jusida) "to give (honorific)"

주세요 = 주+ 세요 (juseyo) "to give (honorific)"

오다 (oda) "to come"

오시다 = 오+시+다 (osida) "to come (honorific)"

오세요 = 오+세요 (oseyo) "to come (honorific)"

놓다 (notta) "to put"

놓으시다 = 놓+으시다 (no-eusi-da) "to put (honorific)"

놓으세요 = 놓+으세요 (no-euseyo) "to put (honorific)"

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 고마워요. 신발을 벗고 들어오세요.
   gomawoyo. sinbareul beotgo deureooseyo.
   "Thank you. Please, take your shoes off and come in."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Celebrating Birthdays in Korea

No conversation about birthdays in Korea is complete without a mention of the special food 미역국 (miyeokguk) or "seaweed soup." Traditionally, mothers of newborns had this soup for recovery, and later, it became a soup that people would have on their birthdays, even today.
In the past, many newborn babies died beore their first birthday. So people in their town gathered together and had a party to celebrate a baby's first birthday and pass on wishes for his/her health. This tradition remains today, so Korean parents also throw a big party called 돌잔치 (dol-janchi) on their child's first birthday. People eat cake and give birthday gifts. If you have some friends who just had a baby, you'll be invited to join the party.

시간이 늦었으니까 빨리 집에 가자.

sigani neujeosseunikka palli jibe gaja.

"Let's go back home quickly. It's late."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

재미가 있다 (jaemiga itda) "interesting," "to be fun"

The phrase 재미가 있다 (jaemiga itda) is comprised of the noun 재미(jaemi) which translates to "fun" or "interesting," and the verb 있다 (itda) which means "to be," or "to exist."When combined they create the phrase 재미가 있다, which literally translates as "fun exists," but figuratively translates to fun.

재미가 있다 is used primarily to express excitement about a certain subject, person, place, or thing. There is no negative feeling inside this phrase, so when someone has a good sense of humor, you can refer to him as 그 사람은 재미가 있다. (geu sarameun jaemiga itda) which literally means "That person has a fun." or "He's fun."

For example:

1. 이 영화는 재미가 있어요.
   i yeonghwa-neun jaemiga isseoyo.
   "This movie is interesting"

안녕히 가세요, 안녕히 계세요 "goodbye" (honorific)

안녕히 가세요 (annyeonghi gaseyo) and 안녕히 계세요 (annyeonghi gyeseyo) are honorific forms of the phrase "goodbye." 안녕히 (annyeonghi) is an interjection based on the verb 안녕하다 which means "peace/stability." 가다 (gada) is a verb that means "to go." And 계세요 (gyeseyo) is an honorific verb which means "to be," "to stay." Therefore 안녕히 가세요 (annyeonghi gaseyo) can be understood to mean "go in peace," while 안녕히 계세요 (annyeonghi gyeseyo), can be understood as "stay in peace."

When you're the one staying, for example, a shop owner saying bye to a customer, you can say 안녕히 가세요 (annyeonghi gaseyo) which literally means "Go peacefully." If you're the one going away, like a customer, you can say "안녕히 계세요" (annyeonghi gaseyo) which literally means "Be here peacefully."

For an informal situation, you can say 잘 가. (jal ga, literally, "Go well") using the adverb 잘 meaning "well" and 잘 있어 (jal itseo, literally "Be here well."). When both speakers are going away, both can say 안녕히 가세요 (annyeonghi gaseyo) which literally means "Go peacefully" or 잘 가. (jal ga, literally, "Go well") using the verb 가다 (gaga "to go.")

For example:

1. A: 만나서 반가워요. 안녕히 가세요.
   mannaseo bangawoyo. annyeonghi gaseyo.
   "It's nice meeting you. Goodbye."
   B: 저도요. 안녕히 계세요.
   jeodoyo. annyeonghi gyeseyo.
   "Me too. Goodbye."

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson is How to Express "Thanks for -ing" in Korean.
오늘 와 줘서 고마워요. 선물도 고마워요. 안녕히 가세요.
oneul wa jwoseo gomawoyo. seonmuldo gomawoyo. annyeonghi gaseyo.
"Thank you for coming today. Thank you for the present as well. Goodbye."

"Thanks for -ing" -줘서 고맙다 (고마워요)

This grammatical structure expresses appreciation, and is used very often in Korean for thanking someone. This construction has two grammatical entities in one. The verb 주다 (juda, "to give") is used as the request and is combined with (아/어/여, a/eo/yeo)서 (seo), which is used to express cause or reason. This construction can be translated as "Thanks for (Verb)ing."

The verb 고맙다 (*gomapta, "*to be thankful") expresses the tense, negation, and politeness level. This verb can also be replaced with the verb 감사하다 (*gamsahada, "*to be thankful"), which would express the same things.

Formation:

To make a clause phrase, you need to use 아 (a), 어 (eo), or 여 (yeo) between the verb stem related to the reason or clue, and the word 줘서/주어서(jweoseo/ jueoseo), and 고맙다 (gomapta, "Thank you")

[Verb-stem] + 아/어/여 + 줘서 (jwoseo) + 고맙다. (gomapta)

"Thank you for [Verb-ing]"

First, you need to make the part for [Verb-stem] + [아/어/여] 줘서 to make it into a clause of appreciation.

I. We use -아 줘서 (-a jwoseo) with verbs that have either the vowel ㅗ (o) or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

For example:

1. 오다 (oda) "to come" / 오 (o) - verb stem (with ㅗ) -> 와 줘서 (wa jeoseo) "for coming"

II. We use -어 줘서 (-eo jwoseo) with verbs that have any vowel other than the vowels ㅗ (o) or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

For example:

1. 먹다 (meokta) "to eat" / 먹 (meok) - verb stem (with ㅓ.) -> 먹어 줘서 (meogeo jweoseo) "for eating"

III. We replace 해 줘서 (hae jwoseo) with 하다 (hada) with 하다 (hada) verbs.

For example:

1. 초대하다 (chodaehada) "to invite" / 초대 (chodae) -> 초대해 줘서 (chodaehae jweoseo) "for inviting"

Note: In a formal situation, you can use 주셔서 (jusyeoseo) instead of 줘서 (jwoseo)

Formation:

After making a clause using construction 1, you can add the main verb 감사합니다 (gamsahamnida), 고맙습니다 (gomapseumnida), 고마워요 (gomaweoyo) meaning "to thank."

Case 1: Verb-stem + [아/어/여] 줘서 + (고마워.) - informal situation

Case 2: Verb-stem + [아/어/여] 주셔서 + (감사합니다 / 고맙습니다) - formal situation

For example:

1. 도와 줘서 고마워.
   dowa jweoseo gomaweo
   "Thanks for helping me."
2. 말해 줘서 고마워.
   malhae jweoseo gomaweo
   "Thanks for telling me."
3. 들어 줘서 고마워.
   deureo jweoseo gomaweo
   "Thanks for listening to me."
4. 도와 주셔서 고마워요.
   dowa jweoseo gomaweoyo
   "Thank you for helping me." (honorific)
5. 말씀해 주셔서 감사합니다.
   malsseumhae jusyeoseo gamsahamnida
   "Thanks for telling me." (honorific)
6. 들어 주셔서 고마워요.
   dereo jusyeoseo gamsahamnida
   "Thanks for listening to me." (honorific)

Note: 고마워요 (gomaweoyo) and 고맙습니다 (gomapseumnida) can also be replaced with 감사합니다 in all of the examples above.

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 네, 안녕히 계세요. 다음에 봐요.
   ne, annyeonghi gyeseyo. daeume bwayo.
   "Goodbye. See you later."
2. 지석 씨, 저희를 초대해 주셔서 고마워요.
   jiseok ssi, jeohuireul chodaehae jusyeoseo gomawoyo.
   "Thank you for inviting us, Jiseok."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Saying Goodbye on the Phone

Although there are farewell phrases like 안녕히 가세요 (annyeonghi gaseyo) and 안녕히 계세요 (annyeonghi gyeseyo), Korean people don't use these over the phone. After they say something like 그럼 다음에 연락할게요. (geureom daeume yeon-rak-halgeyo. "I will call you later" they say 네 (ne, "Yes") to each other, then hang up the phone. Or between friends, you will hear multiple 응 (eung, "Yes") when hanging up the phone. So don't be surprised when you don't hear any farewell phrases when you're hanging up the phone, and instead hear endless "yeses."
When you're talking on the phone, by the way, make sure you don't hang up before someone older than you or someone who's of a higher social status. It's a polite gesture to wait until the other person hangs up the phone, then you do it, in the same way you wouldn't leave before an older person when leaving a room in Korea.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

주말에 뭐해요 (jumare mweohaeyo?) "What will you do this weekend?"

주말에 뭐해요 (jumare mweohaeyo?) is composed of the noun 주말 (juman) which means "weekend," the time marking particle 에 (e) and the phrase 뭐 해요, which is made up of the noun 뭐 (mwo) which means "what" and the verb 하다 (hada) which means "to do."

The literal translation of the phrase in the sequence that it is written is "weekend on what do" but it is figuratively understood to mean "What will you do on the weekend?" Although the phrase is not using the future tense of the verb, it is inferred through the context that the speaker is asking about the future.

You can replace 주말 (jumal, "weekend") with other nouns indicating time, such as 일요일 (iryoil, "Sunday") or 내일 (naeil, "tomorrow")

하고 (hago) "with," "together"

하고 (hago) is used like "with" in English. But the order is different. You need to put a pronoun or an object's name (Noun A) before the word 하고 (hago, "with") as in 나하고 (nagaho, "with me")

Noun A + 하고 (hago)

"with Noun A"

While it is often okay to use the 하고 particle in casual spoken language, you should note that it is primarily used in written text. In spoken language, it's more common to say 랑 (rang) to mean "with" in informal situations as in 나랑 (narang, "with me")

For example:

1. 저하고 같이 가는 사람들이 몇 명 있어요?
   jeogaho gachi ganeun saremdeuri myeot myeong itsseoyo?
   "How many people are going with me?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus Of This Lesson Is Discussing Future Plans with Honorific Forms 남동생하고 등산할 거예요.
namdongsaenghago deungsan hal geoyeyo.
"I will go hiking with my younger brother."

When you talk about what you're going to do, you use the structure -ㄹ/을 거야 or -ㄹ/을 거예요. This is the basic way to make a sentence in the future tense in Korean. We can translate it as "to be going to" or "will."-ㄹ/을 거예요 (-l/eul geo-yeyo) is more polite than -ㄹ/을 거야. (-l/eul geo-ya).

You can use ㄹ거예요 (-l geo-yeyo) when the verb stem ends in a vowel, while using 을 거예요 (eul geo-yeyo) when the verb stem ends in a consonant.

For example:

1. 오다 (oda - "to come") ▶ 오 + ㄹ 거예요 = 올 거예요 (ol geo-yeyo) "I will come."
2. 나가다 (nagada - "to go outside") ▶ 나가 + ㄹ 거예요 = 나갈 거예요 (nagal geo-yeyo) "I will go outside."
3. 먹다 (meokda - "to eat") ▶ 먹다 + 을 거예요 = 먹을 거예요 (meogeul geo-yeyo) "I will eat."

Examples from the dialogue:

Korean	Romanization	"English"
오늘 밖에서 밥 먹을 거예요?	oneul bakk-eseo bap meogeul geo-yeyo?	"Are you going to eat outside today?"
집에 일찍 올 거예요?	jib-e iljjik ol geo-yeyo?	"Are you going to come home early?"
밖에 나갈 거예요?	bakk-e nagal geo-yeyo?	"Are you going to go outside?"

Sample Sentences

   "I go hiking on weekends."
2. 누구랑 등산 해요?
   nugurang deungsan haeyo?
   "Who do you go hiking with?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

What Do Koreans Do in their Spare Time?

등산 (deugsan), which means "mountain climbing," is a very popular activity in South Korea among young individuals and even more so among the elderly. This is mainly due to the beautiful foliage that can be seen in the mountains during autumn. It is very common to see older Korean women and men (also known as 아줌마-ajumna- and 아저씨-ajeossi-) dressed from head to toe in matching mountain climbing gear and visors on the subways in South Korea. They are almost guaranteed to be heading to the mountains for a day of hiking and drinking 막걸리 (makgeoli), a traditional Korean alcoholic drink made out of rice.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

예약 "reservation"

예약 (yeyak) means "reservation," or "booking." It is composed of the character 예 (ye) which carries the meaning of "beforehand," and the character 약 (yak) which is derived from the Chinese character meaning "promise." So it literally means "a promise made beforehand."

예약 (yeyak) can be used with 하다 (hada, "to do") as in 예약하다 (yeyakhada), meaning "to make reservation." For example, the expression 12월 티켓을 예약하고 싶어요. (shipiwol tikeseul yeyakhago sipeoyo.) can be used to mean "I want to book a ticket for December."

내용 "content, substance"

내용 (naeyong) means "content,""substance," or "information."

To refer to the content of a book, you can say 책 내용 (chaek naeyong), a simplified form of 책의 내용 (chegui naeyong) to mean "content of books."

For example, the sentence 책 내용이 어땠어요? (chaek naeyong-i eottaesseoyo?) means "How was the books content?" When 책 (chaek) or any other object is placed in front of 내용 (naeyong), it implies that the information, or 내용 (naeyong), being discussed is about the book.

At a hostel, it can be used with the word 예약 (yeyak, "reservation) as in 예약한 내용이 있네요. (yeyakhan naeyongi itneyo) which means "We have your reservation here." The information, or 내용, being referred to is the 예약한 (yeyakhan) or "reserved information."

For example:

1. 이 책 내용이 어때요?
   i chaek naeyong-i eottaeyo?
   "How is this book's contents?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is How to Inquire About Hotel Reservations Using Honorific Korean 안녕하세요. 예약을 했는데요.
annyeonghaseyo. yeyageul haetnneundeyo.
"Hello. We have a reservation here."

When checking into a Korean hotel, especially lower priced hotels, you will need to use the following phrases to ask the staff to check your reservation.

1. 예약했는데요. (yeyak-haetnneundeyo. "I have a reservation.")

예약 (yeyak) means "reservation" and it can be used with the verb 했다 (haetta) meaning "did." You can simply say 예약했습니다 (yeyakhaetseumnida) or 예약했어요 (yeyakhatseoyo) to mean "I have a reservation (literally, I did reservation)" at the front desk, but it sounds more natural to say 예약했는데요 (yeyakhaetneundeyo) using 는데요 (neundeyo) after the verb-stem.

-ㄴ/은데/-는데 (-n/eunde/-neunde) can be added to a verb-stem when you want to give information about an action that's already completed. This extra word will make your sentence polite with the sentence-ending particle 요, while making it clear that you've done something already.

2. 성함이 어떻게 되세요? (seonghami eotteokge doeseyo, "What's your name, sir?")

This is the most polite way to ask someone's name, and you will certainly hear this at a hotel front desk. 성함 (seongham) means "name," the same as the word 이름 (ireum), and is an honorific noun that can be used for guests with their respects. Instead of asking 뭐에요 (mwoeyo) meaning "What is..?" they will use 어떻게 되세요? (eotteokge doeseyo) which literally means "how it becomes." So 성함이 어떻게 되세요 (seonghami eotteokge doeseyo) literally means "How does your name become?," but in reality it's just "What's your name?" Remember this as a set phrase. But note that you cannot use the word 성함 (seongham), when talking about your name. You cannot say 제 성함 (je seongham) to mean "my name." You should say 내 이름 (nae ireum) or 제 이름 (je ireum) for this.

3. 아침식사가 제공돼요? (achimsiksaga jegong-dwaeyo?) "Do you provide breakfast?"

If you want to know what services the hotel provides, you can use the phrase 이/가 제공돼요? (i/ga jegong-dwaeyo) or 있어요? (itseoyo?) 제공되다 (jegong-deoda) means "to be provided," so 아침식사가 제공돼요? (achimsiksaga jegong-dwaeyo) literally means "Is breakfast provided?" You can simply use the verb 있어요 (itseoyo) meaning "there is" and say 아침식사가 있어요? (achimsiksaga itseoyo) which literally means "Is there a breakfast?"

Of course, you can also use other nouns instead of 아침식사 (achimsiksa). For example, you can say 방에 와이파이 제공돼요? (bang-e waipai jegong-dwaeyo?) to ask "Is there Wi-Fi in the room?" But if your question is about a facility, not a service, you can only use 있어요 (itseoyo) as in 수영장 있어요? (suyeongjang itseoyo?) which means "Is there a swimming pool?"

4. 트윈룸으로 주세요. (twinromeuro juseyo) "Please give me a twin room."

At a hotel, you can use the word 트윈룸 (teuwin-rum) to mean "a twin room" or 더블룸 (deobeul-rum) to mean "a double room." Then you can say 으로 주세요 (euro juseyo) which literally means "please give (a room) as." If you need a twin room, you can say 트윈룸으로 주세요. (teuwin-rumeuro juseyo), meaning "Please give me a twin room." This sentence contains the particle 으로 (euro) which means "by" or "as," meaning that literally translated, the phrase is "Please give a room as a twin room."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 네, 성함이 어떻게 되세요?
   ne, seonghami eotteohge doeseyo?
   "Okay, what is your name, sir?"
2. 이 호텔은 아침 식사가 제공 돼요?
   i hoteleun achim simsiksaga jegong dwaeyo?
   "Do you provide breakfast at this hotel?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Honorific Versions of Common Words

Unlike English, in Korean there are honorific versions of common words. They were created to be used when speaking with elders and those of higher social position. It's important to know how to use these kinds of words correctly when communicating in Korean.
The most common of these honorifics is 드시다 (deusida), which is the honorific of the verb 먹다 (mokda "to eat"), 주무시다 (jumushida) which is the honorific of the verb 자다 (jada, "to sleep"), 말씀하시다 (malsumhashida) which is the honorific of the verb 말하다 (malhada, "to speak"), and 계시다 (gyeshida) which is the honorific of the verb 있다 (iitda, "to be"). Naturally there are more of these words in the Korean vocabulary, these are just a few of the most common ones.
When describing an action performed by someone older than yourself, or of higher social status, it is required that you use honorific verbs. Similarly, the staff at hotels and other such places will always use honorific verbs when speaking with customers, so be ready to hear them when checking into a hotel in Korea.
Useful expression:

1. 언제까지 계세요?
   eonjekkaji gyeseyo?
   "Until when would you be here?" (literally, "Until when would you be?")

저기요. 지금 몇 시예요? Jeogiyo. jigeum myeot siyeyo? "Excuse me. What time is it now?"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

저기요 (jeogiyo) "Excuse me."

저기요 (jeogiyo) can be used in various situations when soliciting someone's attention. It is often used in restaurants or just to politely get someone's attention.

The expression 저기요 (jeogiyo) is simply an honorific version of the word "there." 저기요 (jeogiyo) is figuratively used to mean "excuse me"/"pardon me."

Although 저기요 (jeogiyo) means "excuse me," it is never used to excuse oneself or ones actions. 저기요 (jeogiyo) is only used to alert or get someone's attention.

For example:

1. 저기요, 소주 한병 주세요.
   jeogiyo, soju hanbyeong juseyo.
   "Excuse me, one bottle of soju please."

쭉 가다 (jjuk gada) "go straight"

쭉 가다 (jjuk gada) is composed of the adjective 쭉 (jjuk) which means "straight" or "directly" and the verb "가다" (gada) which means "to go." Together this creates the phrase, "go straight."

쭉 가다 (jjuk gada) is primarily used to give or receive directional instructions. It can also be used in a taxi as well. For example one can tell the driver of the taxi 쭉 가주세요 (jjuk gajuseyo), to say "please fo straight." When you give a direction to someone else, you can say 쭉 가세요 (jjuk gaseyo) which means "Go straight please."

For example:

1. 여기서 쭉 가세요. 그러면 가게가 나올 거에요.
   yeogiseo jjuk gaseyo. geureomyeon gagega naol geoeyo.
   "Go straight from here. Then the shop will be there."

돼요? dwaeyo? "can," "to become" "alright,"

"되다" (doeda) is a verb which contains multiple meanings depending on the context of a conversation/sentence such as "can," "to become" and "alright." When it's used with the sentence-ending particle 요 (yo) and becomes 되어요 (deo-eoyo), it can be shortened to 돼요 (dwaeyo)

In the dialogue, it's used with the word 면 (myeon), meaning "if." and combined as "(verb-stem)면 되다" (myeon doeda) it conveys that a certain action is all right under the situation, so someone can do the action. For example, the phrase "말 하면 돼요" (mal-hamyeon dwaeyo) literally means, "if speak-is appropriate." This figuratively means "you can just speak." in a polite way. Or when someone asks if he can use a computer, you can say 컴퓨터 사용하면 돼요 (keompyuteo sayong-hamyeon deoyo.) "It's okay to use the computer." (literally it's okay if you use the computer.")

For example:

1. 일찍 오면 돼요.
   iljjik omyeon deoyo.
   "You should arrive early." Or "It's okay if you arrive early"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Inquiring About Direction Using Honorific Forms 네, 엘리베이터로 4층까지 올라가세요.
ne, ellibeiteoro sacheungkkaji ollagaseyo.
"Yes, go up to the 4th floor using the elevator please."

In this lesson we'll go over a few basic directions. In Korean there are a number of ways to say go straight, turn right, turn left, it's on the left, it's on the right, etc. For practical purposes, this lesson will focus on the ones that are the easiest to remember.

1. 쭉 가세요 (jjuk gaseyo) "Go straight"

For "go straight" we can say 쭉 가세요 (jjuk gaseyo). The first syllable 쭉(jjuk) means "straight." What follows that is 가세요 (gaseyo), which means "to go."

2. 오른쪽으로 가세요 (oreunjjok-euro gaseyo) "Turn right."

For "turn right" we can say 오른쪽으로 가세요 (oreunjjok-euro gaseyo). The first word 오른쪽 (oreunjjok) means "right," or "right side." This is followed immediately by -으로 (-euro) a particle which roughly translates as "to." The last part, 가세요 (gaseyo), is once again "go." The phrase literally means "right, to, go." This can be interpreted as "Go to the right" or "Turn right."

3. 왼쪽으로 가세요 (oenjjok-euro gaseyo) "Turn left."

Next is the phrase "turn left." In Korean that would be 왼쪽으로 가세요 (oenjjok-euro gaseyo). This phrase is exactly the same as the last phrase, but the only difference is oreun, or "right," is replaced with 왼 (oen), or "left." So 왼 (oen) means "left" or "left side." Everything else is the same and retains the same meaning. The word at the beginning is the only thing that changes. The literal meaning of the phrase is "left, to, go." This can be interpreted as "Go to the left," or "Turn left."

4. 왼쪽에 있어요 (oenjjok-e isseoyo) "It's on the left.

"It's on the left" in Korean is 왼쪽에 있어요 (oenjjok-e isseoyo). The first part of the phrase, 왼쪽 (eonjjok) is once again "left" or "to the left." What follows that is 에 (-e), a location particle, which roughly translates (in this context) to "on." Lastly we have 있어요(isseoyo). This word means "to exist" or "to be." So altogether the phrase we have is "left, on, is." This is understood as "It's on the left."

5. 오른쪽에 있어요. (oreunjjok-e isseoyo) "It's on the right."

If what you're looking for is on the right, we can say 오른쪽에 있어요(oreunjjok-e isseoyo). This phrase is, once again, nearly identical to its predecessor. The only thing that changes is the direction, which is the word in front. In this case we replaced 왼 (oen "left") with 오른 (oreun "right"). Everything else in the phrase stays exactly the same. So this phrase literally means "right, on, is." This is interpreted as "It's on the right."

6. 4층까지 엘리베이터로 가세요. (sacheungkkaji elibeiteoro gaseyo.) "Please go up to the 4th floor by an elevator.")

To talk about something on a different floor, you can use 4층 (sa-cheung, "4th floor") and say 까지 (kkaji) the particle meaning "up to" or "until." If the speaker wants to specify how to go there, they may add 엘리베이터 (elibeiteo) meaning "elevator" and the particle 로 (ro), meaning "by." 가세요 (gaseyo) is the phrase meaning "Please go."

If you're looking for a place outside, you'll also hear 택시로 (taek-siro) meaning "by taxi" or 버스로 (beoseuro) meaning "by bus." instead.

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 엘리베이터에서 내려서 오른쪽으로 쭉 가시면 202호가 있습니다.
   ellibeiteoeseo naeryeoseo oreunjjogeuro jjuk gasimyeon ibaegiho-ga itseumnida
   "After you take off the elevator, if you take a right and go straight, room number 202 will be there."
2. 저기요, 방에 어떻게 가면 돼요?
   jeogiyo, bang-kkaji eotteoke gamyeon dwaeyo?

"Excuse me? How do we get to our room?"

Sample Sentences

1. 여기서부터 어디로 가면 돼요?
   yeogiseobuteo eodiro gamyeon dwaeyo?
   "Where should I go from here?"
2. 쭉 가시면 오른쪽에 은행이 있어요.
   jjuk gamsiyeon oreunjjoge eunhaeng-i itseoyo.
   "If you go straight there is a bank on the right."
3. 좌회전 해주세요. 그 다음에 길옆에 내려주세요.
   jwahoejeon haejuseyo. geu da-eume gil-yeope naeryeojuseyo.
   "Please make a left. Then please drop me off at the side of the road."

Getting Around on the Streets in Korea

Korea uses two different systems to label addresses. It used to use only one system, which is Japan's naming system, also known as the East Asian System. Under this system, addresses are written as below. City name, city ward, neighborhood, and number given to the area inside the neighborhood.

1. 서울시 서대문구 홍은동 20-1 seoul-si seodaemun-gu hongeun-dong isip-il

Korea has recently adopted an address system similar to the systems used in the Western parts of the world. Under the new street system, the name of the neighborhood is no longer included. Instead, the name of the nearby street, and the number of the building the used.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

배고파 죽겠다 (baegopa jukgetda) "so hungry I could die"

배고파 죽겠다 (baegopa jukgetda) is composed of the phrase 배가 고프다 (baega gopeuda) which means "to be hungry," and the phrases 죽겠다 (jukgetda), which literally means "going to die." 배가 고프다 (baega gopeuda) is usually shortened to simply 배고프다 (bae-gopeuda) in causal Korean. While the literal meaning of this phrase means "I'm so hungry I'm going to die," figuratively it means "to be very hungry."

Phrases like 배고파 죽겠다 (baegopa jukgetda) can be used to express emphasis on the verb phrase that 죽겠다 (jukgetda) is paired with.

For example, this can also be used with the verb피곤하다 (pigonhada), which means to be tired. In this case, we come up with 피곤해 죽겠어요 (pigonhae jukgeseoyo), which literally means, "so tired I will die," but figuratively translates to mean "very tired."

For example:

1. 저는 힘들어 죽겠어요.
   jeoneun himdeureo jukgetseoyo.
   "I'm very tired."

정말 (jeongmal) "really," "for real"

정말 (jeongmal) is composed of the character 정 (jeong), which is derived from the Chinese character for "upright"/"true," and the character 말 (mal), which means "words" or "speak." Together they literally mean "truthful words," which figuratively translates to "really."

In daily conversation, people often use this phrase when someone else says something interesting. Although 정말 (jeongmal) means "really?," you could also translate it as "oh" or "interesting." The formal version of this would be 정말이요 (jeongmariyo?) meaning "really?" or "Is it true?"

정말 (jeongmal) has a similar meaning to 진짜 (jinjja) which also means "really." However, 정말 (jeongmal) can be used for more formal situations while 진짜 (jinjja) is more colloquial.

For example:

1. 그녀를 정말 사랑해요.
   geunyeoreul jeongmal saranghaeyo.
   "I really love her."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Expressing Hunger and Giving Suggestions
저는 배가 고파 죽겠어요.
Jeoneun baega gopa jukgetseoyo.
"I'm starving to death."

---

1. Expressing Hunger - 배고프다 (baegopeuda)

배고프다 (baegopeuda) is a descriptive verb that means "to be hungry" or literally "to have a hungry stomach." This phrase can be broken down a little further. The first word is 배 (bae), means "stomach." 고프다 (gopeuda) means "to be hungry." Literally the phrase means "stomach, is hungry." This is a set phrase and can be used just like the English "(I'm) hungry."

Below is a list of different politeness levels for the phrase "I'm hungry"

배고픕니다 (baegopeumnida) - Formal Politeness Level

배고파요 (baegopayo) - Standard Politeness Level (used in the conversation)

배고파 (baegopa) - Intimate Politeness Level

배부르다 (baebureuda) is a descriptive verb that means "to be full" or literally "to have a full stomach." This phrase can be broken down a little further. The first word is 배 (bae), which means "stomach." 부르다 (bureuda) means "to be full," or "to be filled." This verb gives the meaning that one's stomach is physically full. Literally the phrase means "stomach, is full." This is a set phrase and can be used just like the English "(I'm) full."

Below is a list of different politeness levels for this phrase "I'm full"

배부릅니다 (baebureumnida) - Formal Politeness Level

배불러요 (baebulleoyo) - Standard Politeness Level (used in the conversation)

배불러 (baebulleo) - Intimate Politeness Level

2. Giving Suggestions With -ㄹ/을래? (-l/eullae?)

When you want to suggest doing something together with someone else or ask whether the other person wants to do something, you can use this structure. We can translate this as both "Shall we do something?" or "Do you want to do something?" in English.

Construction:

Verb stem + -ㄹ/을래? (-l/eullae?)

For Example:

1. 가다 (gada) - "to go" --> 갈래? (gallae?) "Do you want to go?" or "Shall we go?"
2. 사다 (sada) - "to buy" --> 살래? (sallae?) "Do you want to buy it?" or "Shall we buy it?"

When using -ㄹ/을래? (-l/eullae?), if referring to something that the other person is going to do alone, this phrase translated only as "Do you want to...?" but when you're referring to something that you can do together, it's also translated as "Shall we...?"

For example:

"English"	Romanization	Korean
Do you want to go eat with" "?me	?gachi bap meogeullae	?같이 밥 먹을래
Do you want to come to my" "?place later	?najung-e uri jip ollae	?나중에 우리 집 올래
Do you want to drink some" "?beer	?maekju masillae	?맥주 마실래

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 지금 같이 갈래요?
   jigeum gachi gallaeyo?
   "Shall we go there now?"
2. 같이 식사할래요?
   gachi siksahallaeyo?
   "Shall we have a meal together?"

Sample Sentences

1. 저는 아침식사를 못 먹어서 배고파 죽겠어요.
   jeoneun achimsiksareul mot meogeoseo baegopa jukgetseoyo.
   "I couldn't eat breakfast so I'm so hungry."
2. 저는 떡볶이를 먹고 싶어요.
   jeoneun tteogbokkireul meokgo sipeoyo.
   "I want to eat spicy rice cakes."
3. 저녁에 차 한잔 마실래요?
   jeonyeoge cha hanjan masillaeyo?
   "Would you like to drink a cup of tea this evening?"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

카드 (kadeu) "card, credit card"

카드 (kadeu) is a loan word which originates from the english word for "card." It means any type of cards, but 카드 (kadeu) is used primarily to refer to credit cards, bank cards, or methods of paying.

For example, when taking taxis in Korea, one can say 카드로 계산할게요 (kadeulo gyesanhalgeyo), which literally means, "I'll calculate the sum with a card," or in layman's terms "I'll pay with my card." Since you want to use the credit card as a method, you can use the particle 로 (ro) to mean "by" as in 카드로 (kadeuro) "by a credit card." 계산할게요 (gyesanhalgeyo) means "I will pay" or literally "I will calculate the sum."

You'll also hear the verb 결제하다 (gyeljehada) when you are paying something at a restaurant. 결제하다 (gyeljehada) is the verb meaning "to charge (a card)" and it sounds more formal in Korean.

For example:

1. 카드로 결제하시겠어요?
   kadeuro gyeoljehasigetseoyo?
   "Would you like to pay with your card?"

이 인분 (i inbun) "portion/serving for two"

인분 (inbun) is a counting noun used to dictate the amount of servings an individual wishes to receive when ordering food in restaurant. 인 (in) means "person" and 분 (bun) means "per," so 인분 (inbun) literally means "per a person."

인분 (inbun) is normally combined with a number to indicate the amount of servings one wishes to receive. For example, 일인분주세요 (il inbun juseyo) is used to ask for portion size for one individual. When you want to specify the object that you need, you can add it at the beginning of the sentence and say [object] 일인분 주세요 ([object] il inbun juseyo) "please give me the serving of [object] for one."

This type of counter is mostly used to order servings of meat or other similar products.

For example:

1. 이모, 떡볶이 3 인분 주세요.
   imo, tteogbokki sam inbun juseyo.
   "Excuse me, Auntie. Please give us three servings of spicy rice cakes."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Ordering Food at a Restaurant 그리고 소주 두 병 주세요.
geurigo soju du byeong juseyo
"Also could we get two bottles of soju, please?"

In this lesson, you'll learn key phrases that you need to know to order food at a restaurant.

1. 저기요. (jeogiyo) "Excuse me."

Our first priority when sitting down at a table is to get the attention of the staff. In Korean, we use 저기요 (jeogiyo). This phrase translates roughly to "over here" or "excuse me." You can use this phrase not just in a restaurant, but in a store as well. If you are someplace where people are there to assist you and you need help, jeogiyo is appropriate language. But you cannot use this phrase if you've bumped into someone. You should only use this phrase when calling someone over to you.

2. [Food name] 주세요 (juseyo) "Please give me [food name]"

Next, when you have the staff at the table, what should you do? It's easiest to just point at what you'd like and say "this please." In Korean, you can say 이거 주세요 (igeo juseyo). The first part of the phrase is 이거 (igeo), or "this." The next part is 주세요 (juseyo), or in English, "give." But here we can translate it as "please." Literally, the phrase we have here is "this, give," but we can interpret it as "this, please."

So if you want to ask for water, you could say the word for water, 물 (mul), and simply add juseyo at the end. The phrase here is 물주세요 (mul juseyo). Literally, it's "water, give," but we can interpret it as "water, please." If there's anything else you want, you can just say the word and add juseyo to complete the phrase.

We use the phrase 주세요 (juseyo), to request something from someone. We translate it as "please give me." While we can use it in many different circumstances, we most often use it in business establishments, for instance, when ordering food at a restaurant, buying movie tickets, or asking for something behind a counter. This phrase is polite and we can use it with strangers, superiors, and for people with whom we are on polite speaking terms.

Construction:

Asking for objects:

1. (명사) + (주세요)
   (noun) + (juseyo) = "please give me (noun)"

For example:

주스 (juseu) "juice" (noun)

주스 + 주세요

주스 주세요 (juseu juseyo) = "Please give me juice."

A number (and counter) can also follow the noun to specify the quantity of things desired:

For example:

(noun) + (number) + (juseyo)

주스 + 두 잔 + 주세요

주스 두 잔 주세요 (juseu du jan juseyo) = "Please, give me two glasses of juice."

List of Food Names

"water"	mul	물
"soju"	soju	소주
"beer"	maekju	맥주
Gimbap, steamed rice and" various other ingredients including meat, ham, spinach, "pickled radish, and egg	gimbap	김밥
Kimchi soup	kimchijjigae	김치찌개
Bulgogi, marinated beef	bulgogi	불고기
pork belly meat	samgyopsal	삼겹살
a bowl of rice mixed with vegetables	bibimbap	비빔밥

3. 계산할게요.(gyesanhalgeyo) "I'll pay." "Check, please."

First, you can call the waiter with 여기요 (yeogiyo) then say 계산할게요 (gyesanhalgeyo). 계산 (gyesan) means "paying" and 할게요 (halgeyo) means "I'll do." So 계산할게요 (gyesanhalgeyo) literally means "I'll pay." You can use this phrase to ask for the bill. Soon the bill will arrive, usually as a small sheet of paper. If you're with friends, now comes the fight over who will pay. Koreans hardly ever split the bill. Instead, people take turns treating each other.

4. 제가 살게요. (jega salgeyo) "I'll treat you."

If you aren't sure whose turn it is, or if you just got paid or want to celebrate your friends' success, etc, you can offer to pay by saying 이번에는 제가 살게요. (ibeoneneun jega salgeyo). 이번에는 (ibeoneneun) means "this time," 제가 (jega) means "I," and 살게요 (salgeyo) is a casual way to say "will buy." All together, it means "I will buy this time" or "I will treat you."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 저기요. 여기 불고기 이 인분 주세요.
   jeogiyo. yeogi bulgogi i inbun juseyo.
   "Excuse me. Can we get bulgogi for two people over here, please?"
2. 카드로 계산해도 돼요?
   kadeuro gyesanhaedo dwaeyo?
   "Can I pay with my credit card?"

Sample Sentences

1. 저희, 이제 주문할게요!
   jeohui, ije jumunhalgeyo!
   "We'll order now!"
2. 무엇을 드릴까요?
   mueoseul deurilkkayo?
   "What can I get for you?"
3. 목살 4 인분 주세요.
   mogsal sa inbun juseyo.
   "Please give us 4 orders of pork neck."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korea's Colorful Drinking Culture

One thing Korea is renowned for is its variety of traditional drinks. One of Korea's most famous teas is 오미자차 (omijacha) which roughly translates as "five-flavor tea." The tea supposedly contains five different flavors that drinkers can identify and taste all at the same time. There are even traditional cafés hidden within Seoul that specialize in creating this tasty tea. Korea is also famous for its rice wines. Two of the most famous examples are 소주 (soju) and 막걸리 (makgeolli) which are both traditional rice-based alcohols.
When you order something to drink at a restaurant, you can say the name of the drink, and say 한잔 (han jan) which literally means "a cup of," and 주세요 (juseyo) which means "please give." For example, if you want to order a cup of beer for yourself, you can say 맥주 한 잔 주세요. (maekju han jan juseyo). For a bottle, you can use the word 병 instead, and say 맥주 한 병 주세요. (maekju han byeong juseyo.)

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

약속이 있다 (yaksogi itda) "to have plans, to not have plans"

약속이 있다 (yaksogi itda) is composed of the noun 약속 (yaksok) which means "promise," and the adjective 있다 (itda) which means "to be" or "to exist." When these two are combined into a phrase, such as 약속이 있어요 (yagsogi isseoyo) is is figuratively understood to mean "I have plans / a previous engagement." The 있다 (itda) adjective can be interchanged with 없다 (eopda) to imply the opposite meaning, as in 약속이 없다 (yaksogi eopda) to mean "I don't have plans."

In a daily conversation, people usually omit the particle 이 (i) and say 약속있다 (yaksok-itda) as it's used in the dialogue.

Although 약속이 있다 (yaksogi itda) literally means "I have a promise," it is figuratively understood to mean "I have plans" and can be used as such.

For example:

1. 주말에 약속이 없는데 만날래요?
   jumare yagsogi eopneumde mannallaeyo?
   "I don't have any plans this weekend so would you like to meet?"

만날까요? (mannalkkayo?) "shall we meet?"

만날까요 (mannalkkayo) is composed of the verb 만나다 (mannada) which means "to meet," conjugated with the ㄹ/을까 (l/eulkka) particle, which can be used to make a suggestion meaning "shall we?" Combining these two into a verb phrase solicits the listener's input towards a suggestion such as "Shall we meet?"

만날까요 (mannalkkayo) can be used to suggest that the speaker and listener meet. For example, the expression 학교앞에서 만날까요? (hakgyo-apeseo mannalkkayo) is used to suggest that speaker and listener meet in front of a school. At the same time this expression is used to solicit the opinion of the listener.

For example:

1. 언제 만날까요?
   eonje mannalkkayo?
   "When shall we meet?"

괜찮다 (gwaenchanhda) "to be okay, to be all right"

괜찮다 (gwaenchanhda) is an adjective which means to "be good," "okay," or "all right." 괜찮다 (gwaenchanhda) can be used to describe a wide range of nouns from things like the weather, to an individual personality. 괜찮다 (gwaenchanhda) can also be used to describe ones state or emotions. For example, 저는 이제 아프지 않고 괜찮아요.(jeoneun ije apeuji anko gwaenchanhayo) means "I'm not hurt and I'm okay now."

For example:

1. 날씨가 이제 괜찮아요
   nalssiga ije gwaenchanayo.
   "The weather is okay now."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Making Future Arrangements Using Honorific Forms 그러면 어디서 만날까요?
geureomyeon eodiseo mannalkkayo
"Then where should we meet?"

1.-ㄹ/을까요? (l/eulkkayo, "Shall we?")

The volitional form is used to express intention on the part of the speaker or to invite someone to do something in informal situations. Specifically, it is used when asking someone if one would like to do something with the speaker, or with a group that includes the speaker. This can be translated in English as "Shall we...?"

In addition to inviting someone, it is also used to ask for one's opinion, view, or appraisal about a certain fact. In this specific usage it can be translated as "Will it be (verb)"

This form is a sentence ender.

Construction:

-ㄹ/을까요? - (-l/eulkkayo) - Standard Politeness Level

-ㄹ/을까? - (-l/eulkkayo) - Intimate Politeness Level

(a) -ㄹ까요? (-lkkayo?) is used with verbs that end in vowels.

보다 (boda) - "to see," "to watch"
보 - verb stem
보 + ㄹ까요? (bo + lkkayo)
볼까요? (bolkkayo?) - "Shall we watch?" (Standard Politeness Level)
볼까? (bolkka?) - "Shall we watch?" (Intimate Politeness Level)

(b) -을까요? (-eulkkayo?) is used with verbs that end in consonants.

재미있다 (jaemiitda) - "to be fun," "to be interesting"
재미있 (jaemiit) - verb stem
재미있 + -을까요 (jaemiit) + (-eulkkayo?)
재미있을까요? (jaemiisseulkkayo?) - "Will it be fun?" ("What do you think?") - Standard Politeness Level

재미있을까? (jaemiisseulkka?) - "Will it be fun?" ("What do you think?") - Intimate Politeness Level

For example:

1. 우리 오늘 영화 볼까요? (uri oneul yeonghwa bolkkayo?) - Standard Politeness Level "Shall we see a movie today?"
2. 숙제를 했을까요? (sukje-reul haesseulkkayo) - Standard Politeness Level "Will (he) have done the homework? (What do you think?)"
3. 이 책이 재미있을까? (i chaegi jaemiisseulkka?) - Intimate Politeness Level "Will this book be interesting? (What do you think?)"
4. 광주로 갈까? (gwangju-ro galkka?) - Intimate Politeness Level "Shall we go to Gwangju?"

2. 어때요? (eottaeyo?) "What about...?"

We use 어때요? (eottaeyo?) to express a suggestion or proposal, and it is usually preceded by the subject that is being suggested or proposed.

Construction:

Subject + -은/는 + 어때요?

Subject + -eun/neun + eottaeyo?

Note: The distinction between 은 and 는 as the subject marking particle is solely based on the ease of pronunciation. When the word for the subject ends in a consonant, we attach -은, and when the word ends in a vowel, -는 is attached.

For example:

1. 아홉 시 (ahopsi) "9 o'clock" ends in a vowel, so it becomes:
   아홉 시는 어때요? (ahopsi-neun eottaeyo?) "How about 9 o'clock?"
2. 내일 (naeil) "tomorrow" ends in a consonant, so it becomes:
   내일은 어때요? (naeil eottaeyo?) "How about tomorrow?"

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 그러면 몇 시에 명동역에서 만날까요?
   geureomyeon myeot sie myeongdong-yeogeseo mannalkkayo?
   "Then what time should we meet at Myeongdong Station?"

Sample Sentences

1. 몇 시에 만날까요?
   myeot sie mannalkkayo?
   "What time shall we meet?"
2. 내일 서울역에서 노는 게 어때요?
   naeil seoullyeogeseo noneun ge eottaeyo?
   "How about hanging out at Seoul Station tomorrow?"
3. 공부를 해야 해서 못 만나요.
   gongbureul haeya haeseo mon mannayo.
   "I can't meet because I need to study."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Namsan Seoul Tower in Yongsan, Seoul

Namsan Seoul Tower is formally known as 남산타워 (namsan-tawo "Namsan tower") or 서울타워 (seoul-tawo "Seoul tower") and it's a Korean landmark located in Yongsan, Seoul Korea. Visitors that are wishing to trek to the top of Namsan to visit the tower can either tackle the mountain on foot or take a cable car all the way to the top. Namsan Tower is a very popular place for couples to go on dates because of the breathtaking views of the city below and romantic atmosphere.

"The phone rang and I answered it."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

전화를 걸다, 전화를 받다 (jeonhwareul geolda, jeonhwareul batda) "to make a phone call, to answer a phone call"

전화를 걸다 (jeonhwaleul geolda) is composed of the noun 전화 (jeohwa), which means "telephone," and the verb 걸다 (geolda) which means to "to hang" or "to make a phone call." When combined, 전화를 걸다 (jeonhwaleul geolda) simply means "to make a call." Interchanging the verb 걸다 (geolda) with the verb 받다 (batda), which means "to receive," changes the meaning of the phrase to "to receive a phone call" or "to answer the phone," and makes the sentence 전화를 받다. (jeonhwreul batda)

전화를 걸다 (jeonhwaleul geolda) is used when one wishes to receive a phone call or call another individual. The expression 내일 전화를 걸어주세요. (naeil jeonhwareul georeojuseyo) can be used when you want to say "Please call me tomorrow."

For example:

1. 나중에 전화를 걸겠습니다. 왜 제 전화를 안 받았어요?
   najunge jeonhwareul geolgetseumnida. wae je jeonhwareul an badatseoyo?
   "I'll call you later. Why didn't you answer my call?"

고객 (gogaek) "customer"

고객 (gogaek) is Korean for "customer," "client," or "guest." This word is used primarily by workers such as stewardesses, service workers, or individuals helping you on behalf of an organization or business. 고객 (gogaek) is interchangeable with 손님 (sonnim) which has the meaning of "a guest"

고객 (gogaek) is never used when inviting acquaintances to one's home. 고객 (gogaek) only refers to individuals being served/targeted by a business. For that case, you can use the noun 손님 (sonnim) instead.

For example:

1. 21 번 고객님! 어떻게 도와드릴까요?
   "Customer #21! How may I help you?"
   isip-il beon gogaegnim! eotteoke dowadeurilkkayo?

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Getting Familiar with Phone Announcements and Leaving a Voicemail 고객님이 전화를 받지 않습니다. 삐소리 후 음성사서함으로 연결됩니다.
gogaengnimi jeonhwareul batji ansseumnida. ppisori hu eumseong-saseohameuro yeongyeoldoemnida.
"The person you are calling didn't answer the phone. You'll be directed to the voice mail service after the beep."

Like any other country, Korean people make liberal use of their cell phones. Although fewer people are using voice mail these days, it's still important to correctly understand the meaning of phone announcements, especially when making calls for official purposes.

1. Words related to why a call cannot be completed

When listening to automated messages produced by telephone networks, or someone's message on their home phone, you'll hear a phrase phrase indicating why they cannot answer the phone. Phrases used in phone announcements are usually complicated as they are designed to sound polite. Still, it shouldn't be a problem if you understand the keywords indicating the reason why the person is not available.

Here are some common words you'll likely hear. Many of these words have the word 중 meaning "in the middle of"

부재 중	bujae jung	" not in the seat (literally, in the middle of not existing)"
회의 중	hoeui jung	"in a meeting"
출장 중	chuljang jung	"on a business trip"
휴가 중	hyuga jung	"on vacation"
통화 중	tonghwa jung	"on the phone (when the line is busy)"

For example:

1. 지금은 부재 중이어서 전화를 받을 수 없습니다.
   jigeumeun bujae jung-ieoseo jeonhwareul batdeul su eopseumnida.
   "I cannot answer the phone because I'm not at my desk."
2. 15 일까지 휴가 중입니다. 메시지를 남겨주세요.
   ipo ilkkaji hyuga jungimnida. mesigireul namgyeojuseyo.
   "I'm on vacation until 15th. Please leave a message."

2. Voice-mail Prompts

In messages from network providers, you'll be asked to press a specific button to leave a message. The sentences may vary depending on the network, but you'll be fine as long as you understand the key words used in the phrase.

For example, you will hear 음성사서함은 1번 (eumseongsaseohameun il-beon) which means "Number one for voice mail."

음성사서함 (eumseongsaseohameun) is for "voice mail" and 1번 (ilbeon) means "the number 1." 번 is the counter for numbers. Although this message omits the verb 눌러주세요 (nulleojuseyo) meaning "please press," understand that 음성사서함은 1번 (eumseongsaseohameun il-beon) means "Press number 1 to leave a voicemail" or literally "number 1 for voicemail."

3. Phrases that you can use when leaving your messages

1. [Reason] 이어서 전화를 못 받았습니다.
   [Reason] iseoseo jeonhwareul mot batatseumnida.
   "I couldn't answer the phone because of [reason]."

When you can't answer someone's phone call, you can describe the reason at the beginning of your message. Below are some words that can be used to describe your reason.

이어서 (ieoseo) is the particle meaning "due to" or "because of" and it should be used with a noun.

회의 중이어서 전화를 못 받았습니다.	heoui jungieoseo jeonhwareul mot badatseumnida.	"I couldn't answer the phone because I was in the meeting."
여행 중이어서 전화를 못 받았습니다.	yeohaeng jungieoseo jeonhwareul mot badatseumnida.	"I couldn't answer the phone because I was travelling."
버스 안이어서 전화를 못 받았습니다.	beoseu anieoseo jeonhwareul mot badatseumnida.	"I couldn't answer the phone because I was in a bus."
자는 중이어서 전화를 못 받았습니다.	janeun jungieoseo jeonhwareul mot badatseumnida.	"I couldn't answer the phone because I was asleep."

4. Phrases to close your voicemail

At the end, you can leave a line asking the other to call you, or letting him/her know what you're going to do. Here are the useful expressions.

1. 그럼 전화 부탁드립니다.
   geureom jeonhwa butakdeurimnida.
   "Please call me back. (literally, I'll ask for your call.)"
2. 오늘 저녁에 전화 드리겠습니다.
   oneul jeonyeoge jeonhwa deurigetseumnida.
   "I will call you again this evening."

Note: 전화를 드리다 (jeonhwa deurida) is the honorific phrase meaning "I will call you." 드리다 (deurida) is the honorific verb meaning "to give."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 안녕하세요, 수진 씨. 전화를 안 받아서 음성메시지 남깁니다. 나중에 전화해 주세요.
   annyeonghaseyo sujin ssi, jeonhwareul an badaseo eumseongmesiji namgimnida. najunge jeonhwahae juseyo.
   "Hi Suji. You didn't answer your phone so I'm leaving you a message. Call me later, please."
2. 여보세요? 민호 씨! 미안해요. 약을 먹는 중이어서 전화를 못 받았어요.
   yeoboseyo? minho ssi! mianhaeyo. ageul meokneun-jungieoseo jeonhwareul mon badaseoyo.
   "Hello, Minho! Sorry. I was taking medicine so I couldn't answer the phone."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Popular Korean Cell Phone Networks

There are only three major phone service providers in South Korea: SK Telecom (also known as SKT), Korea Telecom (KT), and LG U Plus. This doesn't give individuals living in South Korea many options to choose from, but each phone company has plenty to offer. A common feature available on almost every modern phone sold in South Korea is free cable television streamed right to your phone.
If you're looking for a prepaid phone service, KT offers this service. But you will need your alien registration card to purchase it. If you're a tourist, the easiest and cheapest way to use a Korean cell phone network would be to borrow a sim card from SK telecom. You can find more information on their website or visit their counter at the airport.

집에 가서 푹 쉬어라.

jibe gaseo puk shwieora.

"Go home and rest completely."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

짜증나다 (jjajeungnada) "to get annoyed"

짜증나다 (jjajeungnada) is composed of the noun 짜증 (jjajeung) which means "irritation," and the verb 나다 (nada) which means "to come out" or "to occur." Together they create the phrase 짜증이 나다 (jjajeungi nada) which means "to be irritated" or "to be annoyed."

짜증나다 (jjajeungnada) is used primarily to express annoyance about a person, place, or thing as in 그 사람은 짜증나다. (geu saramuen jjajeungnada, "He is irritated.")

The verb 나다 (nada) is often used in expressions related to feelings. For example, 화가 나다, (hwaga nada) and 신이 나다. (sini nada) Since the verb 나다 (nada) has the same spelling of the verb meaning "to make something out from inside" you can remember it more easily by imagining someone taking their anger or excitement out from inside themselves.

For example:

1. 그는 제 말을 안들어서 짜증나요.
   geuneun je mareul andeureoseo jjajeungnayo.
   "I'm annoyed because he won't listen to me."

못 지키다 (mot jikida) "to not abide by the rules, not keep a promise"

The meaning of 지키다 (jikida) can change depending on the context of a sentence, but in general, it means "to obey" as in 법을 지키다 (beobeul jikida) meaning "to obey the law." In the phrase 약속을 지키다 (yagsogeul jikida), which means "to keep a promise," it takes on the meaning of "to keep." While in the phrase 규칙을 지키다 (gyuchigeul jikida), which means "to obey the rules," it is understood to mean "to obey." Placing the adverb 못 (mot) into the phrase 약속을 지키다 (yagsogeul jikida) to create 약속을 못 지키다 (yagsogeul mot jikida) creates the opposite meaning. 못 (mot) can be translated as "cannot." So placing "못" (mot) in front of verbs simply indicates inability.

When the phrase 못 지키다 (mot jikida) is used with other pronouns or nouns, besides 약속 (yaksok) meaning "promise," it can have numerous meanings. A few of these are "to fail to protect" and "cannot obey."

For example:

1. 약속을 못 지켜서 죄송해요!
   yakssogeul mot jikyeoseo jeosonghaeyo!
   "I'm sorry that I didn't keep the promise."

푹 (puk) "deeply," "completely," "soundly"

푹 (puk) is an adverb used to describe a deep and thorough resting period.

푹 (puk) is most commonly used in the phrases 푹잠이 들다 (puk jami deulda), which means "to fall asleep completely," and in 푹 쉬다" (puk shwida), which means "to rest completely" For example, the expression 이번 주말에 집에 가서 푹 쉬어야 한다. (ibeon jumale jibe gaseo puk swieoya handa) can be used to say "This weekend, I should go home and rest thoroughly." When you're falling in love deeply, you can say 사랑에 푹 빠졌어요. (*sarang-e puk ppajyeotseoyo.)*it. It literally means "I'm completely falling in love."

For example:

1. 어제밤에 푹 잤어요.
   eojetbame puk jatsseoyo.
   "I slept soundly last night."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Discussing One's Current State (sick, tired, happy, etc) 목이 아프고 콧물이 나서 조금 짜증나요.
mogi apeugo konmuri naseo jogeum jjajeungnayo.
"I've been feeling a bit annoyed as my throat hurts and I have a runny nose."

In this lesson, you'll learn useful expressions and adjectives to describe your state of being.

Talking about Pain

---

1. (the body part) + 이(i)/가 (ga) 아파요 (apayo).

Korean people often ask someone if someone is feeling okay or not, especially when they look as though they are feeling down. If you are asked, you'll need to know how to express your own state and let them know you feel sick. To say "I feel pain from (the body part)," you can use the pattern below:

(the body part) + 이(i)/가 (ga) 아파요 (apayo).

* Note: If you are not sure or don't know about the subject marking particles (이/가), please listen to Absolute Beginner Season 2 Lesson 3.

Formation:

Parts of body + subject-marking particles (이/가) + 아프다 (apeuda): standard speech

Parts of body + subject-marking particles (이/가) + 아파 (apa)/아퍼 (apeo): casual informal speech

Parts of body + subject-marking particles (이/가) + 아파요 (apayo)/아퍼요 (apeoyo): casual formal speech

For example, when you want to say "My stomach hurts," you can say 배가 아파요 (bae-ga apayo). The first word of the phrase is 배 (bae) which means "stomach." What follows immediately after that is 가 (ga), which is a subject marker. These two are spoken together. After that is 아파요 (apayo), which means "to hurt." Literally the phrase means "stomach, hurt." "My" is not actually included in this sentence, but it is inferred. So this phrase is translated as "My stomach hurts."

If it really hurts, you can add the adverb 너무 (neomu) and say 배가 너무 아파요. (baega neomu apayo, "My stomach really hurts.")

For example:

1. Miyoung: 어디가 아파요?
   eodiga apayo?
   "Where do you feel pain?"
   Suna: 머리가 (너무) 아파요.
   meoriga (neomu) apayo.
   "My head (really) hurts."
2. Debbie: 왜 그래, 팀? 괜찮아?
   wae geurae, tim? gwaenchana?
   "What's the problem, Tim? Are you all right?"
   Tim: 배가 (너무) 아파!
   baega neomu apa!
   "My stomach (really) hurts!"
3. Patient: 팔이 (너무) 아파요.
   Pari (neomu) apayo.
   "My arms (really) hurt."

2. Other Useful Expressions to Describe your Condition

감기에 걸렸어요. (gamgi geollyeosseoyo) "I have a cold."

This phrase in Korean is 걸렸어요 (gamgi geollyeosseoyo.) The first word of this phrase is 감기 (gamgi), which means "cold." The next part of the phrase is 걸렸어요 (geollyeosseoyo), which means "caught." Literally the phrase we have here is "cold, caught." This is translated as "I caught a cold." "I" is inferred in this phrase.

열이 났어요. (yeol-i natsseoyo) "I have a fever."

In Korean, this phrase is 열이 났어요 (yeol-i natsseoyo). The first word of this phrase, 열 (yeol), means "fever." This is immediately followed by 이 (i), which is a subject marking particle. These two are spoken together. What follows that is the verb 났어요 (natsseoyo.) This literally means "to occur," but is translated as "have" in this particular context. Literally 열이 났어요 (yeol-i natsseoyo) means "fever, have." This phrase is translated as "I have a fever."

You can also use the same verb 났어요 (natsseoyo) when you have a runny nose. In that case, you can say 콧물이 났어요. (konmuri natsseoyo "I have a runny nose.") 콧물 (konmul) means "runny nose" or literally "water of nose." This phrase can be used to mean that you got a cold, and it seems serious.

죽을 것 같다. (jugeulget gatda) "I feel like dying."

You can hear many Koreans say the phrase 죽을 것 같다 (jugeulget gatda) when they describe their feelings. When someone feels worse (or better) than usual, you can use this phrase. It means "it's so bad/good that it'll make me dead."

죽을 것 같이 (jugeulgeto kachi) + Verb about Feeling.

You can use this phrase along with a verb to describe more about your feelings.

죽을 것 같이 + Adjective about feeling.

For example:

1. 죽을 것 같이 아프다.
   "It hurts so much that I feel like I'm dying."
   jugeul get gachi apeuda.

You can use this phrase in any situation that is worse than usual. You can say 죽을 것 같이 배고프다 (jugeul get gachi baegopeuda) which means "I feel so hungry that it will make me dead." or 죽을 것 같아 피곤하다 (jugeul get gachi pigon-hada) which means "I feel so tired that it will make me dead." If you are in extremely good condition, you can also use this phrase to describe your feeling, as in 죽을 것 같이 기쁘다 (jugeul get gachi gippeuda), which means "I feel so happy that it will make me dead."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 조금이요. 목이 아프고 콧물이 나서 조금 짜증나요.
   jogeumiyo. mogi apeugo konmuri naseo jogeum jjajeungnayo.
   "A little. I've been feeling a bit annoyed as my throat hurts and I have runny nose."

2. 그래요? 감기가 심해요?
   geuraeyo? gamgiga simhaeyo?
   "Really? Is the cold serious?"

Sample Sentences

1. 콧물이 나고 머리도 아파요.
   konmuri nago meorido apayo.
   "My nose is running and my head hurts too."
2. 어제 3시간밖에 못 자서 죽을 것 같이 피곤해요.
   eoje se-siganbakke mot jaseo jugul get gachi pigonhaeyo.
   "I only slept 3 hours last night so I'm quite tired."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Traditional Korean Medicine

Korean ginseng, also known 인삼 (insam), is a widely used herbal medicine and cooking ingredient in South Korea. The Korean variant of this herb is unique in that it has a strong smell and is often used in traditional Korean dishes such as 삼계탕 (samgyetang, "Chicken soup with ginseng.") The health benefits of ginseng are still being researched, but some researchers say that it can be eaten to prevent certain types of cancer. For that reason, you can find shops selling items using Gen-seng, such as 인삼젤리 (Insam jelli, "Ginseng jelly"), 인삼차 (imsamcha, "Ginseng tea"), very easily around the city, and duty free shops selling it at airports.

먼저 밥을 먹자.

neonjeo bab-eul meokja.

“Let's eat first.”

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

복통 (boktong) "stomachache"

복통 (boktong) is comprised of the two Chinese-based words 복 (bok) and 통 (tong). The word 복 (bok) originates from the Chinese character meaning "stomach," and the word 통 (tong) is derived from the Chinese character meaning "pain"or "agony." The second word is used in other nouns such as 두통 (dutong) meaning "headache" with the word 두 (du) meaning derived from the Chinese character meaning "head."

통 (tong) is often used in other words, such as 치통 (chitong), in which 치 (chi) means "teeth" and 통 (tong) again refers to "pain," to create the term "toothache."

For example:

1. 두통이 있어요?
   dutong-i itseoyo?
   "Do you have a headache?"

간단하다 (gandanhada) "to be simple," "to be brief"

간단하다 (gandanhada) can be used to explain that something is simple. For example, the expression 그 이유는 아주 간단해요. (geu iyu-neun aju gandanhaeyo) means "The reason is simple." Here, 간단하다 (gandanhada) is used to describe the noun 이유 (iyu) meaning "reason" as simple. With the sentence-ending particle 요 (yo), it can be used as in 간단해요 (gandanhae-yo).

For example:

1. 이 이야기는 아주 간단하다.
   i iyagineun aju gandanhada.
   "This story is very simple."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Explaining One's Symptoms to a Doctor 목도 아프고, 두통도 있고, 복통도 있어요.
mokdo apeugo, dutongdo itgo, boktongdo itsseoyo.
"My throat hurts, and I also have a headache and stomachache."

---

1. Expressions for describing your symptoms using medical terms

---

In the previous lesson, we learned the grammar pattern (body part) + 이(i)/가 (ga) 아파요 (apayo "sick"). You can use the pattern when describing your symptoms to a doctor, but it's more common to use medical terms in Korean in such a scenario.

This pattern is outlined below.

(the symptom's name) + 이(i)/가(ga) 있어요 (itseoyo, "to have").

For example, if you have a headache, you can say 머리가 아파요 (meoriga apayo) using the pattern with 아파요 (apayo), meaning "sick." Instead, you can say 두통이 있어요. (dutong-i itseoyo) using the word 두통 (dutong) meaning "headache." This word can be used only to describe "headache" and it's more commonly used at a hospital.

Here are some useful vocabulary words for symptoms that you can use in the above sentence pattern.

Korean	"English"
두통 dutong	"headache"
치통 chitong	"toothache"
신경통 shin	"neuralgia"
요통 yotong	"backache"
근육통 geunyuk-tong	*"muscle pain"
생리통 saengri-tong	"menstrual pain"

All of these words contain the noun 통 (tong), which means "pain," alongside a word indicating a part of body, such as 두 (du) for "head" and 근육 (geunyuk) for "muscle."

But for other parts of the body, such as 목 (mok, "neck"), 팔 (pal, "arm(s)"), 발 (bal, "leg(s)"), 손가락 (songarak, "finger"), 발가락 (*balgarak, "*toe"), 가슴 (*gaseum, "*chest"), and 엉덩이 (eong-deong-i, "butt"), you can only use the pattern of (the symptom's name) + 이(i)/가(ga) 아파요 (apayo, "hurt") as the medical terms for the related symptoms are not known widely.

For example:

1. 어제부터 요통이 있어요.
   eojebuteo yotong-i itseoyo.
   "I have had back pain since yesterday."
2. 치통이 심해요.
   chitong-i simhaeyo.
   "I have a serious toothache." (literally, "my toothache is serious.")

2. Usage of 있는데요 (inneundeyo)

We use 있는데요 (inneundeyo) instead of 있어요 (itseoyo) for giving and asking for explanations.

You can certainly use the verb 있어요 (itseoyo) to mean "I have a [symptom]," but the word 있는데요 (inneundeyo) sounds much more natural.

For example, you can say 어제부터 두통이 있는데요 (eojebuteo dutong-i itneundeyo.) to mean "I have had a headache since yesterday." Usually a phrase like this follows the question 어디가 아프세요? ("What's wrong?" or literally "Where do you feel sick?)

If you had simply said 어제부터 두통이 있어요. (eojebuteo dutong-i itseoyo.), it would sound as if you were simply stating a fact and may have come off a little abrupt. By instead saying 있는데요 (inneundeyo), it makes it clearer that the speaker is trying to explain something or make a point.

For example:

1. Doctor: 어디가 아프세요?
   eodiga apeuseyo?
   "What's wrong?" or literally "Where do you feel sick?"
2. A: 두통이 있어요 (eojebuteo dutong-i itneundeyo.) (=>sounds a bit abrupt) dutong-i itseoyo.
   "I have a headache."
3. B: 두통이 있는데요 (eojebuteo dutong-i itneundeyo.) (=>is trying to explain something) dutong-i itneundeyo.
   "I have a bad headache."

Sample Sentences

1. 어제부터 목이 아픈데요.
   eojebuteo mogi apeundeyo.
   "I've had a sore throat since yesterday."
2. 식욕이 없는데요.
   sigyogi eopneundeyo.
   "I don't have an appetite."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The Korean Checkup System

Due to Korea's large population density, the medical checkup system has become very streamlined and efficient. In other countries, like the U.S., people usually receive checkups alone in a room by him/herself with a doctor. However, in Korea, multiple people receive their checkups simultaneously. Instead of everything taking place in one room, Korean people have stations where patients go to complete a section of their health checklist. This way, each individual can keep moving and spend less time waiting. In Korean, a checkup or annual checkup is called as 건강검진 (geongang-geomjin). 건강 (geongang) means "health" and 검진 (geomjin) means "examination." Under Korean labor law, all employees are required to receive an annual checkup.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

복 (bok) "clothes," "clothing"

In general, the word 옷 (ot) means "clothes." However, when describing a type of clothing, such as 아동복 (adong-bok, "children's wear"), the word 복 (bok) is used instead.

복 (bok) is derived from the Chinese character meaning "garment." Note that this word cannot be used alone. Rather, it is only used when describing a type of clothing.

The word 복 (bok) can be placed alongside certain nouns it to take on the meaning of the garment or piece of clothing relative to that word. For example, taking the word 환자 (hwanja) which means "patient" and combining it with 복 (bok) makes the word 환자복 (hwanjabok) which means "patient gown" or "hospital gown." Again if you take 한 (han), which means "Korea," and combine it with 복 (bok), you get 한복 (hanbok) which means "traditional Korean clothes." or literally "Korean clothes."

For example:

1. 색동 한복은 아주 아름다워요.
   saekdong hanbogeun aju areumdawoyo.
   "Rainbow colored Hanbok (traditional Korean clothings) are beautiful."

눕다 (nupda) "to lie down"

눕다 (nupda) is the verb meaning "to lie down." The infinitive form of the verb 눕다 (nupda) is 누워 (nuwo) or 누워요 (nuwoyo) and is primarily used in spoken conversation.

눕다 (nupda) is used to express the action of lying down. For example, the phrase 침대위에 누워요 (chimdae-wie nuwoyo) can mean "Lie down on the bed."

For example:

1. 편히 누워요.
   pyeonhi nuwoyo.
   "Please lie down comfortably."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Understanding Instructions Given by a Medical Professional 환자복으로 갈아입으세요. 그리고 진찰대 위에 누우세요.
hwanjabogeuro garaibeuseyo. geurigo jinchaldae wi-e nu-useyo.
"Please change into the hospital gown. And please lie down on top of the examination table."

---

1. 갈아입으세요. (gara-ibeuseyo) "Please change into (for clothes)"

갈다 (galda) is the verb meaning "to change" and 입다 (ipda) is the verb meaning "to wear (for clothes)." Together, they make 갈아입다 (gara-ipda) which means "to change clothes." When you're at the hospital for a check-up, you may be told 환자복으로 갈아입으세요. (hwanjabogeuro garaibeuseyo), which means "Please change into the hospital gown (patient's gown)." Sometimes, you may hear 갈아입고 오세요 (garaipgo oseyo), which means "Please come back here after you change into (a type of clothes.)"

2. 누우세요. (nu-useyo) "Please lie down."

눕다 (nupda) is the verb meaning "to lie down." When someone asks you to lie down at a hospital, they will say 누우세요. (nu-useyo), meaning "Please lie down." In general, you'll be asked to take off your shoes when lying down on a bed.

Usually, this word is paired with something indicating where to lie down, for example, 진찰대 위에 누우세요. (jinchaldae wi-e nu-useyo). This means "Please lie down on top of the examination table." 진찰대 (jinchaldae) means "the examination table," 위 (wi) means "on the top of" and 에 is the place marking particle. Or simply, someone may say 침대 위에 누우세요. (chimdae-wi-e nu-useyo) which means "Please lie down on the bed."

3. 숨을 깊게 쉬세요. (sumeul gipge swiseyo) "Take a deep breath please."

Since 쉬다 (swida) means both "to take a rest" and "to take a breath," it comes with the phrase 숨을 (sumeul) which has the word 숨 (sum) "breath" and the object-marking particle 을 to make the meaning clear. 깊게 (gipge) is the adverb meaning "deeply."

When you hear this phrase, you can take a breath deeply, hold it for one second, and release it. When you take an X-ray, you'll hear 숨을 참으세요 (sumeul chameuseyo), which means "Please hold your breath." Here, the verb 참다 (chamda) means "to hold."

4. 일어나세요. (ireonaseyo) "Please stand up."

일어나다 (ireonada) means "to get up," "to sit up," and "to stand up." When speaking to someone who is laying down, this phrase would mean "Please sit up." When spoken to someone who is sitting, it would mean "Please stand up." This word can be used along with the adverb 이제 (ije) meaning "now" as in 이제 일어나세요. (ije ireonaseyo.)

6. 올려주세요. (ollyeojuseyo) "Please lift [something]."

The verb 올리다 (ollida) means "to raise something up." This can be used in 팔을 올려주세요 (pareul ollyeojuseyo.) meaning "Please raise your arms" or 발을 올려주세요 (bareul ollyeojuseyo) meaning "Please raise your legs." Please note that sometimes this phrase can be used as an idiom to mean "Please roll up your sleeve" when the nurse is going to give you a shot.

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 네, 저기에 누우세요. 숨을 한 번 깊게 쉬세요.
   ne, jeogie nuuseyo. sumeul han beon gipge swiseyo.
   "Yes please, lie down over there. Take a deep breath please."
2. 이제 됐어요. 이제 일어나세요.
   ije dwaetsseoyo. ije ireonaseyo.
   "Okay that's good. Please stand up now."

Plastic Surgery in Korea

In recent years there have been large numbers of foreigners and tourists who visit South Korea to experience its rich cultural heritage. Nowadays a large number of individuals are visiting Korea because of its medical tourism. Korea is highly renowned in East Asia for its well-developed and skilled plastic surgery procedures and surgeons. Plastic surgery is called 성형수술 (seonghyeong-susul). Individuals from other East Asian countries, such as Japan and China, make up a large portion of the people participating in Korea's medical tourism.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

독감 (dokgam) "flu," "influenza."

독감 (dokgam) is composed of 독 (dok) and 감 (gam). 독 (dok) is the Chinese character-based word meaning "poison" and 감 (gam) refers to a Chinese character which means "feeling" Together, these two mean "terrible feeling.," and it can be used to mean "flu" or "influenza."

Since 독감 (dokgam) has the word 감 (gam), which you also find in the word 감기 (gamgi) meaning "a cold," some Korean people use the word 독감 (dokgam) to mean a "severe cold," as they consider this word to be a simplified version of 독한 감기 (dokan gamgi) which literally means "a serious cold."

독감 (dokgam) and 감기 (gamgi) are normally used with the verb 걸리다 (geollida) to create phrases like 감기에 걸리다 (gamgie geollida) which means "to catch a cold.

For example:

1. 감기가 아직도 안 나았어요?
   gamgiga ajigdo an naatsseoyo?
   "Your cold still has not gotten better?"

두 번씩 (du beonssik) "twice," "in twos"

-씩 (-ssik) is a particle that expresses frequency, or allocated amounts or numbers. There is no single word with the same function as this one in English, but can be expressed through words such as "every, each," or "a." For example, 하루에 운동을 두 번씩 해요. (harue undong-eul du beonssik haeyo) means "to exercise twice a day" is counting the number of times an action, like exercise, is performed. 두 번 (du beon) still means "twice" but if you add the word 씩, it adds the meaning that you do the exercise twice day regularly."

You can of course use this with numbers other than 두 (du). For example, 한 번씩 (han beonssik) means "once." 주말에 한 번씩 청소를 해요. (jumare han beonssik cheongsoreul haeyo) means "to clean once every weekend (regularly)." It identifies the act of cleaning as the item being counted. The words 두 번 (du beon) and 한 번 (han beon) are composed of the native Korean numbers 두 (du), which means "two," and 한 (han), which means "one," and the word 번 (beon) which in this context is translated to mean "times."

For example:

1. 저는 매일 하루에 세번씩 양치질을 해요.
   jeoneun maeil harue sebeonssik yangchijireul haeyo.
   "I brush my teeth three times a day every day."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Understanding Advice Given by a Medical Professional i yageul harue du beonssik deuseyo.
이 약을 하루에 두 번씩 드세요.
"Be sure to take this medicine twice a day."

It's uncommon to receive printed instructions which tell you how to take a certain medicine in Korea, so it's important to understand clearly what advice the doctor has given you.

1. Instructions for how many times a day you need to take medicine

Formation:

[PERIOD] 에 [NUMBER of TIMES] 드세요.
[PERIOD] e [NUMBER of TIMES] deuseyo.
"Please take [Number of times] + [Period]"

For example:

1. 하루에 세 번 드세요.
   harue se beon deuseyo.
   "Please take the medicine three times a day."

The particle 에(e) is used along with a time duration to indicate the frequency that an action takes place. When talking about "taking medicine," Korean people use the verb 먹다 meaning "to eat." So the doctor will usually say 드세요 (deuseyo) when giving you advice about how often to take medicine. 들다 / 드세요 (deulda / deuseyo) are the honorific forms of 먹다 / 먹으세요 (meokda, meogeuseyo. "to eat")

세 번 (se beon) means "three times" and it uses the counter for times. With the counter 번 (beon), you need to use pure Korean numbers, as listed in the table below.

For example:

Number	순수 한국어 숫자 ("Pure Korean Numbers")	Number + "times" (counting units)	Changes in Pure Korean Numbers (only in one through four)
1	하나 (hana)	"one time"	한 번 (han beon) (하나 (hana) becomes 한 (han))
2	둘 (dul)	"two times"	두 번 (du beon) (둘 dul becomes 두 (du))
3	셋 (set)	"three times"	세 번 (se beon) (셋 set becomes 세 (se)
4	넷 (net)	"four times"	네 번 (ne beon) (넷 (net) becomes 네 (ne))
5	다섯 (daseot)	"five times"	다섯 번 (daseot sbeon)
6	여섯 (yeoseot)	"six times"	여섯 번 (yeoseot sbeon)
7	일곱 (ilgob)	"seven times"	일곱 번 (ilgob sbeon)
8	여덟 (yeodeol)	"eight times"	여덟 번 (yeodeol sbeon)
9	아홉 (ahob)	"nine times"	아홉 번 (ahob sbeon)
10	열 (yeol)	"ten times"	열 번 (yeol sbeon)
11	열 하나 (yeol hana)	"eleven times"	열한 번 (yeorhan beon)
12	열 둘 (yeol ddul)	"twelve times"	열두 번 (yeolddu beon)

There are changes in the numbers from one to four when the format is Pure Korean number + Noun/Counting unit.

2. Instructions for how many pills and when you need to take medicine

Formation:

[When] 에 [NUMBER of pills] 드세요.
[When] e [NUMBER of pills] deuseyo.
"Please take + [Number of pills] + [when]"

For example:

1. 식후에 두 알씩 드세요.
   sikue du alssik deuseyo.
   "Please take two tablets after every meal."
2. 식전에 한 알씩 드세요.
   sikjeone han alssik deuseyo.
   "Please take one tablet before each meal."

씩 (sik) is a particle meaning "apiece" and when you say 두 알씩 (du alssik), it means "two each time." 알 (al) is the counter for pills. It can be replaced by 개 (gae), the counter for "things" in general as in 두 개씩 (du gaessik)

Here is a list of phrases concerning when to take medicine:

"English"	Korean
"after eating"	식사 후 (siksa hu) 식후 (siku)
"after dinner"	저녁식사 후 (jeonyeok-siksa hu)
"before meals"	식사 전 (siksa jeon) 식전 (sikjeon)
"before bed"	자기 전 (jagi jeon)

3. Other instructions you'll often hear from a doctor

You may be given instructions on what not to do as well. For example:

1. 오늘은 목욕하지 마세요.
   oneureun mogyokaji maseyo.
   "You shouldn't take a bath today."
2. 오늘은 운동하지 마세요.
   oneureun undong-haji maseyo.

"You shouldn't exercise today."

3. 졸릴 겁니다. 운전하지 마세요.
   jollil geomnida. unjeonghaji maseyo.
   (For example, after taking medicine) "You'll get sleepy. Please don't drive."

4. Instructions for something you need to do

1. 푹 쉬세요.
   puk swiseyo.
   "Please rest well."
2. 물을 많이 드세요.
   mereul mani deuseyo.
   "Please drink a lot of water."

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 따뜻한 물을 많이 드시고 피곤하지 않게 푹 쉬세요.
   ttatteutan mureul mani deusigo pigonhaji anke puk swiseyo.
   "Drink lots of warm water and try to get lots of rest so that you don't feel tired."

Sample Sentences

1. 의사의 진찰을 받아보세요.
   uisaui jinchareul badaboseyo.
   "Try to get your doctor's consultation."
2. 매일 손을 깨끗이 씻으세요.
   maeil soneul kkaekkeusi ssitseuseyo.
   "Please make sure to wash your hands thoroughly everyday."
3. 밤마다 8 시간씩 잠을 자도록 하세요.
   bammada yeodeol siganssik jameul jadolok haseyo.
   "Try to sleep 8 hours every night."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Getting a Cold in South Korea

The climate in Korea can be extremely cold during the winter. The country receives a lot of snow and frequently realizes average temperatures of zero or below. However, what is especially unique is the regularity of temperature cycles, in which the temperature will drop for three days, and then become warm again for four. However, this cold weather can also have a big effect on the population, resulting in many people becoming sick during this time of year. So during the winter in Korea, you should take extra care to avoid catching a cold. Surely you'll have frequent opportunity to hear the phrase "be careful of colds" or 감기 조심하세요 (gamgi josimhaseyo) a lot.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

모시다 (mosida) "to take someone to a place (honorific)"

모시다 (mosida) is an honorific verb with multiple meanings depending on the context in which it is useD. 모시다 (mosida) can be used to mean "to bring," "to take" and "to invite."

모시다 is primarily used when servicing or attending to a person of high status. While this may not be applicable to western culture, it is quite common in Korea. 모시다 (mosida) is used in reference to customers, elders, or individuals with which the speaker is not familiar. For example, when saying 방으로 모시겠습니다 (banguro mosigetsumnida), which means "I'll take you to the room," 모시다 is used to usher around elders and unfamiliar acquaintances.

For example:

1. 추석때 할머니를 모시고 오겠습니다.
   chuseokttae halmeonireul mosigo ogetseumnida.
   "I'll bring grandmother during Chusok (Korean Thanksgiving Day.)"

좌, 우 (jwa, u) "left," "right"

왼쪽 (oenjjok) and 오른쪽 (oreun-jjok) are common to say "left" and "right." But when you want to indicate the direction with the other word, for example, "left turn" or "right turn," it's common to use the Chinese-based words 좌 (jwa) and 우 (u).

좌 (jwa) is a directional adverb meaning "left" and is used primarily when discussing or providing directions. 우 (u) is a directional adverb meaning "right" and is also used primarily when discussing or providing directions.

좌 (jwa) and 우 (u) can be used when giving directions in a vehicle or when giving commands. For example, 좌회전 (jwa-heojeon), can be used to give the instruction "left turn." Since 회전 (heojeon) "turn" is also a Chinese-based word, and thus it is natural to use 좌 to indicate "left" instead of the Korean based 왼쪽 (oenjjok). Using this word, you can make the expression 좌회전 해 주세요 (jwaheojeon hae juseyo) which means "Please make a left" and is used in taxi's and other vehicles.

For example:

1. 여기서 좌회전하고 그 다음에 우회전 해 주세요.
   yeogiseo jwahoejeonhago geu daeume uhoejeon hae juseyo.
   "Make a left turn here and then please make a right turn."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Giving Directions to a Taxi Driver 여기서 직진해서 우회전 해 주세요.
yeogiseo jigjinhaeseo uhoejeon hae juseyo.
"Go straight here and then make a right please."

In Korea, taxis are a very common means of transportation; the streets are always filled with them, and so they are rarely hard to find. Also, since the public transportation stops running after a certain hour, taxis are a very popular means of transportation at night.

In this lesson we'll go over a few basic directions that you can use with a taxi driver. In Korean there are a number of ways to say go straight, turn right, turn left, it's on the left, it's on the right, etc. For practical purposes, this lesson will focus on the ones that are the easiest to remember.

1. [Destination] 가 주세요. (ga juseyo) "Please go to [Destination]"

Let's say you want to go to 강남역 (gangnamyoek), The Gangnam station, one of the most crowded areas in the southern part of Seoul. 강남 (Gangnam) is the name of the station, and yeok (역) is the actual word for "station." Gangnam station is a very popular subway station where there are lots of things to do and see. The nightlife is great, and there are plenty of restaurants. It also houses a central bus terminal.

If you want to go to the station, add 가 주세요 (ga juseyo), or in English "go, please." Here we want to have the location in front of this phrase. In this case, the phrase would be 강남역 가 주세요 (Gangnam-yeok ga juseyo). 가 (Ga) is the verb-stem of the verb meaning "to go" and 주세요 (juseyo) means "to give" or "please." So this phrase is literally translated as "Gangnam station, go please." When translated it means "Go to Gangnam station, please."

You can interchange 강남역 (*gangnamyoek, "*Gangnam station") with any other location you wish to go to. If it's a subway station, just say the name of the station, and then add the word for station, which is 역 (yeok,) at the end. Seoul station is 서울역 (Seoul-yeok). Jamsil station is 잠실역 (Jamsil-yeok). To tell your taxi driver to go to that location, just say the location and add 가 주세요 (ga juseyo.)

After the destination's name, you can also add the particle 으로 (euro) which roughly translates into "to." For example, you can say either 강남역 가 주세요 (gangnamyoek ga juseyo). or 강남역으로 가 주세요 (gangnamyoegeuro ga juseyo) to mean "Please go to the Gangnam station."

2. 쭉 가 주세요. (jjuk gajuseyo) "Go straight please."

For "go straight" we can say 쭉 가 주세요 (jjuk gajuseyo). The first syllable 쭉 (jjuk) means "straight." This is followed by 가 주세요 (gajuseyo), which means "please go."

Or you can say 직진 해 주세요 (jikjin hae juseyo). 직진 (jikjin) is the word meaning "going straight" and 해 주세요 (hae juseyo) means "Please do." So together, this means "Please go straight," or literally "Please do going-straight." The verb-stem 주세요 (juseyo) means "Please [verb]" and can be used to make a polite request.

3. 오른쪽으로 가 주세요. (oreunjjogeuro ga juseyo), "Please turn right."

For "turn right" we can say 오른쪽으로 가 주세요 (oreunjjogeuro ga juseyo). The first word is 오른쪽 (oreunjjok) means "right," or "right side." This is followed immediately by -euro, (-으로) a particle which roughly translates into "to." The last part, 가 주세요 (gajuseyo), is once again "please go." The phrase literally means "right, to, please go." This can be interpreted as "Go to the right" or "Turn right."

Or you can say 우회전 해 주세요 (uheojeon hae juseyo) to mean the same using the word 우회전 (uheojeon) meaning "right turn." This phrase literally means "Please do the right turn."

3. 왼쪽으로 가 주세요. (oenjjogeuro ga juseyo.) "Please turn left."

Next is the phrase "turn left." In Korean that would be 왼쪽으로 가 주세요 (oenjjogeuro ga juseyo). This phrase is exactly the same as the last phrase, but the only difference is oreun, or "right," is replaced with oen, or "left." Oen means "left" or "left side." Everything else is the same and retains the same meaning. The literal meaning of the phrase is "left, to, go." This can be interpreted as "Go to the left," or "Turn left."

You can also say 좌회전 해 주세요 (jwaheojeon hae juseyo.) to express the same meaning, using the word 좌회전 (jwaheojeon) meaning "right turn." This phrase literally means "Please do the left-turn."

4. 여기 세워주세요. (yeogi sewojuseyo.) "Please stop here."

When you want to ask the driver to stop, you can simply say 여기 세워주세요 (yeogi sewojuseyo) which means "Please stop here." or literally "Here, stop please." 여기 (yeogi) means "here, and it can be replaced by 저기 (jeogi) meaning "over there." 세워주세요 is the conjugated form of two verbs 세우다 (se-uda "to stop") and 주세요 (juseyo, "please.")

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 안녕하세요. 시청으로 가 주세요.
   annyeonghaseyo. sicheongeuro ga juseyo.
   "Hello. Please take me to city hall."

Sample Sentences

1. 강남역으로 가 주세요.
   gangnamyeogeuro ga juseyo.
   "Please go to Gangnam station."
2. 사거리에서 직진하고 다음 신호등에서 우회전 해 주세요.
   sageorieseo jikjinhago daeum sinhodeung-eseo uhoejeon hae juseyo.
   "Please go straight at the intersection and make a right at the next traffic light."
3. 아저씨! 여기서 내려주세요.
   ajeossi! yeogiseo naeryeojuseyo.
   "Excuse me Sir! Please drop me off here."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Events at City Hall in Seoul

When in Korea, if you're not sure how to get to downtown Seoul, just ask a taxi driver to go to City Hall, or 시청 (sicheong). A number of tourist attractions encircle the building, but the City Hall itself is also a very interesting tourist spot.

City Hall in downtown Korea, also known as 시청 (sicheong), is a common place to hold a variety of activities. On any given weekend, it is common to see traditional musical performances, concerts, or even public demonstrations by various citizens' groups, and is often frequented by both Koreans and tourists alike. In 2012, the Korean singer Psy (싸이, sai) held a free concert at 시청 (sicheong) after his song 강남스타일 (*gangnam seuta-il, "*Gangnam style") gained international success.

Useful expression:

1. 시청 sicheong
   "City Hall"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

밥을 사주다 "to buy a meal (for someone)"

밥을 사주다 (babeul sajuda) is composed of the noun 밥 (bap) which means "rice," "meal," or "food," and the verb 사주다 (sajuda) which means "to buy something for someone." The verb 사다 (sada) by itself means simply "to buy," but when the verb 주다 (juda) is attached to the end, the meaning is altered to imply the action is performed for another individual.

밥을 사주다 (babeul sajuda) is used when an individual wants to purchase a meal for someone else. In Korea, it's common to see the most senior member of groups pay for a meal for the other members.

This phrase can also be used to request that someone purchase a meal for you. For example, the phrase 밥을 사주세요 (babeul sajuseyo) can be used to mean "Please buy me a meal."

When another person pays for your meal, you can casually say 밥을 얻어먹다 (babeul eodeomeokda) to mean "I got a free meal."

For example:

1. 어제도 밥을 사줬잖아!
   eojedo babeul sajwojjana!
   "I bought your meal yesterday too!"

금방 "soon," "shortly"

금방 (geumbang) is Korean for "soon" or "shortly."

금방 (geumbang) can be used to mean "soon," as in, something that will occur during the day you are speaking. If you want to imply "soon," but for something that won't happen on the day you are speaking, you need to use the adverb 조만간 which means "soon," but with an implication that it will occur on some future date.

You can use this adverb in the phrase 걱정하지 마요. 금방 갈게요 (geokjeonghaji mayo. geumbang galgeyo.) means "Don't worry. I'll go soon." Placing the adverb 금방 (geumbang) in front of the verb 갈게요 (galgeyo), it is implyed that the action will be performed soon.

For example:

1. 감기가 금방 나을거예요.
   gamgiga geumbang naeulgeoyeyo.
   "I'll get over my cold soon."

아, 참 "oh that's right!"

아, 참 (acham) is a simple phrase in Korean that means "oh that's right!" The world itself is difficult to find in a dictionary because it is used colloquially, and normally only in informal speech.

아, 참 (acham) is used colloquially when an individual thinks of something they had meant to say, or when a thought occurs that wasn't originally present. For example, the phrase 어제 친구랑 같이 영화를 보기로 했어요. 아, 참! 혹시 내일 시간이 있어요? 친구를 소개시켜줄게요." (eoje chingulang gati yeonghwaleul bogilo haesseoyo. acham! hogsi naeil sigani dwaeyo? chinguleul sogaesikyeojulgeyo) means "I made plans to see a movie with my friend yesterday. Oh that's right! Do you have time tomorrow? I'll introduce you to my friend." In this context, 아, 참 is used when the speaker is reminded of their friend and suddenly remembers that they wanted to introduced them.

For example:

1. 아, 참! 혹시 어제 축구경기를 보셨어요?
   acham! hogsi eoje chuggugyeonggileul bosyeosseoyo?
   "Ah that's right! Did you see yesterday's soccer match?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this lesson Is Korean Counters

종로3가에서 만날까요? 거기서 금방 가요. 아, 참! 입장료는 1,000원이에요.

jongnosamgaeseo mannalkkayo? geogiseo geumbang gayo. a, cham! ipjangnyoneun 1,000wonieyo.

"Shall we meet at Jongro 3 ga? From there, we can go there in no time. The entrance fee is 1000 won, by the way."

There are not many words in English that are used as "counters," but in Korean, counter words are often used to describe what you are counting. In general, when you are counting nonspecific things, and when you are not sure which specific counter word to use, you can use the word 개 (gae).

Before counting, you need to be familiar with the number system. Let us review.

Number	Native Korean Number	Romanization	Number	Sino-Korean Number	Romanization
1	하나	hana	1	일	il
2	둘	dul	2	이	i
3	셋	set	3	삼	sam
4	넷	net	4	사	sa
5	다섯	daseot	5	오	o
6	여섯	yeoseot	6	육	yuk
7	일곱	ilgop	7	칠	chil
8	여덟	yeodeol	8	팔	pal
9	아홉	ahop	9	구	gu
10	열	yeol	10	십	sip

For counting items, native Korean numbers are used along with the counter, but the numbers 1 to 4 are irregular and change their forms when they are followed by a counter.

- 1 thing = 하나 (hana) + 개 (gae) = 한 개 (han gae)
- 2 things = 둘 (dul) + 개 (gae) = 두 개 (du gae)
- 3 things = 셋 (set) + 개 (gae) = 세 개 (se gae)
- 4 things = 넷 (net) + 개 (gae) = 네 개 (ne gae)

Here are the common counters you need to know.

Korean counter	Romanization	Objects to the counter	Example
개	gae	things (inanimate)	컴퓨터 한 개 hangae "a computer"
마리	mari	animals	강아지 세 마리 gangaji se mari "three dogs"
원	won	currency, Korean won	십만 원 sipman won "100,000 won"
명	myeong	people	학생 두 명 haksaeng du myeong "two students"
살	sal	ages	열 다섯 살 yeol daseot sal "15 year-old."
시	si	times	세 시 se si "three o'clock"
권	gwon	books	교과서 다섯 권 gyogwaseo daseot gwon "five textbooks"
잔	jan	cups	커피 네 잔 keopi ne jan "four cups of coffee"
채	chae	houses	집 열 채 jip yeol chae "ten houses"
대	dae	cars, computers, machines	차 여섯 대 cha yeoseot dae "six cars"
그루	geuru	trees	나무 다섯 그루 namu daseot geuru "five trees"
장	jang	paper	종이 세 장 jong-i se jang "three sheets of paper"
층	cheung	floor	7 층 chil cheung "7th floor"
번	beon	times	열두 번 yeoldu beon

			"twelve times"
벌	beol	clothes	바지 두 벌 baji du beol "two pairs of pants"
접시	jeopsi	dishes	세 접시 se jeopsi "three dishes"

If you are not sure what the correct counter is for a certain object, you can always fall back on the general counter. This general counter is 개 (gae). We can loosely interpret it as "piece" or "unit." Once again, this number changes the pronunciation of numbers one to four. Let's take a look at numbers one to five with the general counter gae added onto the end.

Korean	Romanization	"English"
한 개	han-gae	"one (item)"
두 개	du-gae	"two (items)"
세 개	se-gae	"three (items)"
네 개	nae-gae	"four (items)"
다섯 개	daseot-gae	"five (items)"

The History of Jongmy Palace

The original 종묘, or Jongmyo Palace, was burned down during raids by Japanese invaders, but was rebuilt later on by the Kings of the Joseon Dynasty. Jongmyo Palace is registered as a UNESCO World Heritage Site and has also been recognized by the Korean government as a national treasure. It is a great place to visit for people who are interested in Korean history, culture, or just simply like to admire architecture.
Useful expression:

1. 종묘
   Jongmyo
   "Jongmyo"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

붉다 "red, crimson"

붉다 (bukda) is an adjective meaning "red", "crimson", "scarlet", or other such shades of red.

To say "red", you can use 붉다 (bukda) and also 빨갛다 (ppalkatta). Although both mean "red", they are slightly different. It's important to know the difference so that your speech sounds more natural.

붉다 (bukda) can be used to mean "red" created in nature, for example, the red found in the 태양 (taeyang) "sun" or 노을 (noeul) "sunset."

For artificially created reds, such as the color of food, or the color of clothes, it sounds more natural to use the adjective 빨갛다 (ppalkatta).

For example:

1. 붉은 노을이 정말 아름다워요.
   bulgeun noeuri jeongmar areumdawoyo.
   "The red sunset is really beautiful."

그렇죠? "isn't it? isn't that so"

그렇죠? (geureohchyo) is a Korean phrase which can mean "yes" or "isn't it?" depending on the context of the situation.

그렇죠? (geureohchyo) is normally used in situations where the listener is in agreement with, or confirming information that the speaker has said. For instance, if a speaker says 오늘 날씨가 아주 덥지요? (oneur nalssiga aju deopjiyo), which means "Today's weather is very hot, right?", then 그렇죠 (geureohchyo) could be used as an appropriate response to mean "Yes.", or "I agree." 그렇죠 is a colloquial expression and used primarily in spoken speech and very rarely used in literature.

For example:

1. A: 저기 편의점이 있어요?
   B: 그렇죠.
   A: jeogi pyeonuijeomi isseoyo?
   B: geureochyo.
   A: "Is there a convenience store there?"
   B: "Yes."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Describing Objects and Scenery 아주 아름다워요. 저기 조각상을 좀 봐요.
aju areumdawoyo. jeogi jogaksangeul jom bwayo.
"It's very beautiful. Just look at that sculpture over there."

1. Basic Adjectives

In this lesson, we'll go over a few useful and high frequency adjectives. When you're traveling in Korea and you're hanging out with your friends, you may want to express your admiration towards something. Korea has been modernizing quite rapidly over the last few years and Seoul has recently become a very modern, and beautiful city.

So, to express your admiration towards modern Korea, we can say 예뻐요 (yeppeoyo). This phrase means "pretty." Now you can use this when talking about buildings, mountains, articles of clothing, and people as well. We can use this word as is. But if you want to be a little more specific, we can say 이거 예뻐요 (igeo yeppeoyo). The word we just added 이거 (igeo) means "this." So literally we have "this, pretty." 이거 예뻐요 (igeo yeppeoyo). In English, this translates to "this is pretty."

Another useful and high frequency adjective is 좋아요 (johayo), which in English means "good." We can use this phrase when referring to someone or something that is...well...good! For example, we can use this phrase when someone suggests something. To say that's a good idea, we can say 좋아요 (johayo). If you're traveling and walking all day, and then you finally get to sit down, you can say 좋아요 (johayo) to sound like a native Korean. Once again, we can add 이거 (igeo) to the front of the phrase as well. This again means "this." So if you're a teacher, you can point to someone's work and say 이거 좋아요 (igeo johayo.)

One way we can modify these adjectives is by saying 진짜 (jinjja) in front of the adjective. This means "really." Just like in English, Koreans frequently say "really pretty, or "really good." In Korean, this would be 진짜 예뻐요 (jinjja yeppeoyo) and 진짜 좋아요 (jinjja johayo). Its usage is just like in English, but please note that 진짜 sounds a bit casual, and in some formal situation shouldn't be used.

If you are in a more formal situation, you can use the adverb 매우 (maeu) or 아주 (aju) to mean "very" as in 매우 좋아요. (maeu joayo, "It's very good.") or 아주 예뻐요. (aju yeoppeoyo, "It's very pretty.")

2. Describe things by making an adjective as a noun-modifier

If you want to describe an object more clearly, you can use the following pattern:

[The stem of the describe verb] + 은 or ㄴ (noun modifier)

For example:

작다 [jakda] - "to be small" - adjective

작은 [jageun] -"a small (noun)" - adjective + 은/ㄴ

Note: 작 (jak) is the stem form of 작다 (jakda, "small") and is followed by 은 (eun), the particle marking an adjective as a noun modifier.

You can choose 은 or ㄴ depending on how the adjective ends.

I. -은 [eun] can be attached when the verb-stem ends in consonants.

작다 [jakda]: "to be small"

작 (Verb stem ending in a consonant) + -은 ---> 작은[jak-eun]: "small"/adjective

작은 + Noun -> 작은 모자 [jak-eun moja]: "a small hat"

좋다 [jota]: "to be good"

좋 (Verb stem ending in a consonant) + -은 ---> 좋은 [jo-eun]: "good"/adjective

좋은 + Noun -> 좋은 사람 [jo-eun saram]: "a good person"

II.-ㄴ [-n] can be attached when the verb-stem ends in vowels.

크다 [keuda]: "to be big"

크 (Verb stem ending in a vowel) + -ㄴ ---> 큰 [keun]: "big"/adjective

큰 + Noun -> 큰 집[keun jip]: "a big house"

나쁘다 [nappeuda]: "to be bad"

나쁘 (Verb stem ending in a vowel) + -ㄴ ---> 나쁜 [nappeun]: "bad"/adjective

나쁜 + Noun -> 나쁜 사람 [nappeun saram]: "a bad person"

화려하다 [hwaryohada]: "to be fancy/magnificent"

화려하 (Verb stem ending in a vowel) + -ㄴ ---> 화려한 [hwaryohan]: "fancy/magnificent" / adjective

화려한 + Noun -> 화려한 옷 [hwaryohan ot]: "a fancy dress"

Note:

The level of politeness is indicated not by the noun modifier itself but by the verb that follows.

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 네, 아주 크네요. 아, 저기에 가면 정원도 있어요.
   ne, aju keuneyo. a, jeogie gamyeon jeongwondo iseoyo.
   "Yes it's very big. If we go over there, there's a garden too."
2. 그렇죠? 특히 이 붉은 꽃이 가장 예뻐요!
   geureochyo? teuki i bulgeun kkochi gajang yeppeoyo!
   "Right? The red flower is especially the most beautiful."

Sample Sentences

1. 강남에 있는 건물들이 아주 커요.
   gangname itneun geonmuldeuri aju keoyo.
   "The buildings in Gangnam are very big."
2. 이 꽃향기가 아주 좋아요.
   i kkochyanggiga aju johayo.
   "The scent of this flower is very nice."
3. 내 인생에서 본 여자 중에서 가장 예쁜 여자예요.
   nae insaengeseo bon yeoja jungeseo gajang yeppeun yeojayeyo.
   "Of all the women I've seen in my life, she is the most pretty."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Architecture

If you have to choose only one word to describe Korean architecture, "balance" would probably be a good choice. When building houses in Korea, architects typically try to construct buildings so that they blend with nature, for example, by matching the line of the roof with the ridge of a mountain behind it. When talking about Korean architecture, Buddhism always finds its way into the conversation. Buddhism has been extremely influential in Korean culture for a long time. If you'd like to see the fantastic art that is Korean architecture, you can visit historical buildings such as 불국사 (bulguksa) Bulguksa temple, the oldest temple in South Korea. It was constructed during the Silla dynasty, and is a great example of the Buddhist influences that help to shape some of Korea's architecture.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

국내 (gungnae) "domestic, international"

This word has two components 국 (guk) meaning "country" and 내 (nae) meaning "inside." Therefore, 국내 (gungdae) literally means "inside a country" or "domestic." When the word 국 (guk) is combined with a nasal sound such as 내 (nae) as in 국내 (guk-nae), the pronunciation of the word 국 (guk) changes to 궁 (gung) as in 궁내 (gungnae)

To say "international," you can use the word 국제 (gukje). It has the same word 국 (guk) meaning "country," but the second word is 제 (je) which means "around."

These two words can be found not only in regards to postal services, such as 국내우편 (gungnae-upeyon, "domestic mail") and 국제우편 (gukje-upeyon, "international mail"), they can be also found at the airport. For example, placing 국내 or 국제 in front of the word 선 (seon), which means "vessel/ship" creates 국제선 / 국내선 (gukjjeseon / gungnaeseon) which means "international flight" and "domestic flight."

For example:

1. 그는 국제 관계학 전공을 하고 있어요.
   geuneun gukjje gwangyehak jeongongeul hago isseoyo.
   "He's majoring in international relations."

결제하다 "payment, charge, settlement"

결제하다 (gyeoljehada) is Korean for "to charge," "to pay for."

결제하다 (gyeoljehada) is used mainly within businesses by cashiers and individuals who work in the service industry. It is very common to hear phrases such as 결제해 드리겠습니다 (gyeoljehae deurigetsseumnida) which can mean "to charge for a bill" or to "check out someones purchases."

For example:

1. 카드로 결제해 드리겠습니다.
   kadeuro gyeoljehae deurigetsseumnida.
   "I'll charge your card."

말씀이세요?"speak, talk (honorific)"

말씀이세요 (malsseumiseyo) figuratively translates to mean "that's what I'm saying." 말씀 (malsseum) is simply the honorific form of the word 말 (mal) which means "words / speech."

말씀이세요 (malsseumiseyo) is used to stress or place emphasis on information spoken by an individual. For example, saying 어제 구매하신 가방 말씀이세요? (eoje gumaehasin gabang malsseumis-yo) means "Are you speaking about the bag you purchased yesterday?" and reiterates the information spoken before it.

For example:

1. 저희 교수님 말씀이세요?
   jeohi gyosunim malsseumiseyo?
   "Are you speaking about our professor?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is How to Inquire About Postal Practices and Prices 안녕하세요? 우편 요금이 얼마예요?
annyeonghaseyo. upyeon yogeumi eolmayeyo.
"Hello, how much is postage here?"

Post offices in Korea are quite similar to other countries, but chances are you will have to speak some Korean to make sure your letter or parcel is being sent to the right place, using the right service. In this lesson, we will go over some basic phrases that you may need to use when at a post office.

1. 어디로 보내실 거예요? (eodi-ro bonaesil geo-yeyo?) "Where are you going to send it to?"

This would be the first question that you will hear at a post office. 보내다 is the verb meaning "to send" and can be used when speaking to say "sending something by a mail." When you hear this expression, you can simply say...

[destination name] + (으)로요. (royo)

"To [destination]"

For example, if you want to send something to Jeju island or 제주도(jejudu), you can say 제주도로요. (jejudoroyo.)

You don't have to give the specific address to the staff. The staff will ask this question just to know how far your destination will be, so it's okay to give him the country's name, or the city/province's name only.

2. 어떤 우편으로 보내실 거예요? (eotteon upeyoneuro bonaesilgeo-yeyo?) "Which post service are you going to use?"

If you're sending something domestically in Korea, the agent at the post office might also ask you which type of service you would like. 어떤 (eotteon) means "which" and 우편 (upeyon) means "post." To answer this question, you can simply say..

[Type of service] + 로요. (royo)

"By [type of service.]"

There are three types of mail services in Korea: regular mail, registered mail, and express mail."Regular mail" is called 일반 (ilban), "registered mail" is called 등기 (deunggi), and "express mail" is 빠른 우편 (ppareun upyeon). If you are sending something important or legal-related, make sure to send it as 등기 (deunggi). Or if you need to send something by next day, you can choose 빠른 우편 (ppareun upyeon), "express mail."

If you want to send mail to another country, you should to choose 국제우편 (gukje-upyeon) meaning "international mail."

3. 안에 뭐가 있나요? (ane mwoga innayo?) "What's inside?"

When sending a large package, you'll surely asked this question. You can simply say the name of the objects along the copular verb 이요 (iyo), for example, 옷이요. (osiyo, "They are clothes.") or 핸드폰이요. (haendeuponiyo."It's cellphones..)"

At a post office, you also may need to ask some questions yourself. Here are the most commonly questions that customers ask staff at the post office.

Korean	Romanization	"English"
얼마예요?	eolma-yeyo?	"How much does it cost?"
며칠 걸려요?	myeochil geollyeoyo?	"How many days does it take?"
얼마나 걸려요?	eolmana geollyeoyo?	"How long does it take?"

Examples from the dialogue:

1. 아니요. 미국으로 편지를 보내고 싶어요.
   aniyo. migugeuro pyeonjireul pponaego sipeoyo.
   "No, I want to send a letter to the United States."

Sample Sentences

1. 택배는 어디로 배송 해드릴까요?
   taekbaeneun eodiro baesong haedeurilkkayo?
   "To where would you like the package delivered?"
2. 택배로 보내면 얼마예요?
   taekbaero bonaemyeon eolmayeyo?
   "How much does it cost to send a package?"
3. 주문하신 택배를 잘못 배송했어요.
   jumunhasin taekbaereul jalmon baesonghaeseoyo.
   "Your package was incorrectly delivered."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korea's Postal System

Due to the large amount of competition between delivery companies in South Korea, the service each company provides is speedy and exceedingly efficient. While South Korea's delivery speed is extremely fast, it doesn't eliminate the hassle of catching the delivery man when he's running around the city with your package. What's unique about Korea is that often you can request that your package be left at a convenience store in your neighborhood, or with the 경비아저씨 (gyeongbiajeossi) that works at your apartment complex. If these two options don't appeal to you, you can always have the item shipped to your place of work to ensure that you never miss the delivery.
Useful expression:

1. 경비아저씨
   gyeongbiajeossi
   "security guard, guardsman"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

전세, 월세 "lease (deposit based)," "monthly rent"

전세 (jeonse) and 월세 (wolse) mean lease and monthly rent respectively. Both words share the same 세 (se) character, which means "money exchange for another thing." The 전 (jeon) in 전세 simply means "before," 전세 (jeonse) is used to refer to a "lease," which you pay before you move into the house. The 전세 (jeonse) deposit is then refunded when the contract period expires. Also, in the word 월세 (wolse) we have the 월 (wol) "month/monthly."

The two terms are used primarily to distinguish between the type of payment system one will use when finding a place to live. These are used commonly in phrases like 전세 계약은 언제까지 이에요? (jeonse gyeyageun eonjekkaji ieyo) which means "How long is the jeonse contract?"

For example:

1. 전세값이 서서히 상승하고 있어요.
   jeonsegapsi seoseohi sangseunghago isseoyo.
   "The price of house leases is steadily rising."

동네 "neighborhood"

동네 (dongne) is the Korean word for "neighborhood," "town," "village," etc.

동네 (dongne) is used to refer to a neighborhood. For example, the phrase 부모님하고 같은 동네에서 살고있어요. (bumonimhago gateun dongneeseo salgoisseoyo.) means "I live in the same neighborhood as my parents."

For Example:

1. 동네 아줌마들이 먹을 것을 많이 갔다줬어요.
   dongne ajummadeuri meogeul geoseul manhi gassdajwosseoyo.
   "The women in the neighborhood brought many things to eat."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Talking About Reasons 매우 넓어서 좋아요. 월세는 얼마예요?
maeu neolbeoseo joayo. wolseneun eolmayeyo?
"I like that it's spacious. How much is the monthly rent?"

There are four ways to express reasons in Korean:

1. Verb stem + (past infix if necessary) + -아/어/여 + 서
2. Verb stem + (past infix if necessary) + -(으)니까
3. Verb stem + (past infix if necessary) + -(으)므로
4. Verb stem + (past infix if necessary) + -기 때문에

In this lesson, we'll look into the most commonly used way to express reason: Verb-stem + 아/어/여 서

This grammatical structure indicates the cause or reason for a consequence. It is a non-final ending, and thus we typically introduce a consequential statement after this structure. However, we commonly use it as a sentence ending as well, because many times we can infer what the consequence may be without actually saying it.

We can often translate this construction as "because..." or "...so" with the result coming after (or being inferred).

Formation:

[verb] + -(아/어/여)서

For example:

1. 괜찮다 (gwenchanta) "to be all right," "to be okay"
2. 괜찮 (gwenchanh) - verb stem
3. 괜찮 + 아서 (gwenchanh + aseo)
4. 괜찮아서... (gwenchanhaseo...) "because it's all right..."

Sentence 1 서, Sentence 2

Sentence 1 (sep), Sentence 2

Sentence 1 = (the reason)

Sentence 2 = (consequence)

Sentence 1 provides the reason for Sentence 2.

Useful Examples

Here are a few examples that you may find useful. These examples do not give a definitive statement, thus giving the user more flexibility in use.

For example:

1. 늦게 자서...
   neutge jaseo...
   "I slept late, so..."
2. 술 마셔서...
   sul masyeoseo...
   "I drank alcohol yesterday, so..."
3. 피곤해서...
   pigonhaeseo...
   "I'm tired, so..."
4. 좋아해서...
   johahaeseo...
   "I like it, so..."
5. 돈 없어서...
   don eopseoseo...
   "I don't have money, so..."

In the dialogue, Sujin and the agent expressed reasons in the following phrases.

1. 넓어서 좋아요.
   neolbeoseo joayo.
   "I like that it's big."
   넓+어서 (neol+eoseo) "because it's big."
2. 여기는 아파트만 있어서 월세는 없어요.
   yeogineun apateuman isseoseo wolseneun eopseoyo.
   "There is no monthly rent here, because they are only the apartments around."
   있+어서 (isseo+eoseo) "because there are.."
3. 여기 동네랑 교통이 좋아서 비싸요.
   yeogi dongne-rang gyotong-i joaseo bissayo.
   "It's expensive because the neighborhood and the transportation system is nice here."
   좋+아서 (jo+aseo) "because [something] is good"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The Korean Jeonse System

The lease system for apartments in Korea known as 전세 (jeonse) is very different from other countries. The system is deposit based, which means that when an individual enters into a lease, they provide a large sum deposit. There is no monthly rent; instead, the owner of the apartment invests the deposit paid by the tenant and takes the interest generated by the deposit. For this reason the 전세값 (jeonsegabp) or "lease price" for apartments is very expensive and takes years to save for. But many people prefer 전세 (jeonse, "lease") over 월세 "wolse, "monthly rent") because they can get the full amount of the money back after the contract expires, usually in two years.

Useful expression:

1. 전세값 jeonsegabp
   "lease price"

안녕하세요. 처음 뵙겠습니다. annyeonghaseyo. cheoum beopgesseumnida. "Hello. How do you do?"

GRAMMAR

This lesson introduced a few standard greetings that can be used when meeting someone for the first time. The following are a few notes that go more in-depth into these greetings, as well as some important grammar points related to the lesson.

Vocabulary Focus #1 - Hello - 안녕하세요?

The Korean greeting - 안녕하세요? (annyeonghaseyo?) has the literal meaning of "Are you at peace?" But this is used as same as "Hello" in English. This can be used during the morning, day, and evening, and is used for people who are on formal or polite speaking terms.

Vocabulary Focus #2 - It's Nice to Meet You - 처음 뵙겠습니다

“It’s nice to meet you” - The expression 처음 뵙겠습니다 (cheoeum boepgesseumnida) literally means "I'm meeting you for the first time," but is translated as "It’s nice to meet you." This is used when meeting someone for the first time.

Grammar Point #1 - The Copula - 이다

Identifying People and Things Using the Korean Copula (Part I) - The affirmative Korean copula – the verb expressing “to be” – is 이다 (ida). When 이다 is conjugated in the present tense and expressed for use in a formal context, it changes into 입니다 (imnida). Note that the speakers used 입니다 (imnida) (See line 1:“저는 Keith입니다.”) in this conversation.

이다 (ida) is the Korean affirmative copula. This is roughly equivalent to the English verb "to be." Using 이다 (ida) is the most useful and basic way to identify people and objects. An example of a sentence is “(Subject and particle) + [Noun]+입니다.” This expresses "(Subject) is [noun]." If the subject is not included in the sentence, the subject must be inferred.

*Note:*이다 (ida) only expresses equation, definition, identification, or description. But it is not existential. Essentially, 이다 (ida) is used much like the English verb "to be" in all ways except expressing existence. Korean has a separate word that expresses existence.

Grammar Point #2 - The Formal Declarative Sentence Ending - ㅂ/습니다

입니다 (imnida) is the copula conjugated into the present tense, and in the formal politeness level.

▷ Construction

To conjugate 이다 (ida) using this sentence ending, we take the dictionary form of the copula 이다 (ida) and remove 다 (da) to get the verb stem, 이 (i). From there we add ㅂ 니다 (mnida). 이 (i) + ㅂ 니다 (mnida) = 입니다 (imnida). For verb stems that end in vowels we attach ㅂ 니다 (mnida), such as the case is with 이다 (ida), the copula. For verb stems that end in consonants, we attach 습니다 (seumnida).

Using 입니다 (imnida) is the most useful and basic way to identify people and objects. See the sentence structure below:

“Noun 1는(은) Noun 2입니다.”

Note that 는(은) is called the topic particle and placed after a noun to make it the topic under discussion. Using the topic particle is one way to designate a noun as the topic of a particular sentence.

“저는 윤설입니다”
“I am Yunseol.”

In the sentence above, 저 (I) was Noun 1 and 윤설 (Yunseol) was Noun 2. We identified “I” as “Yunseol.”

Grammar Point #3 - Dropping the "I"

As is often done in Korean, when the meaning can be clearly derived from context, dropping 저는 (jeoneun), which means “I” with the topic particle, is acceptable in the conversation. No significant changes occur in translation or meaning. See the example below:

Before:
저는 [이름]입니다.
Jeoneun [ireum] imnida.
I am [name].

After:
[이름]입니다.
[ireum] imnida.
I am [name].

Likewise, 저는 could have been dropped from our conversation as well:

(1) Keith：안녕하세요? Keith입니다. 처음 뵙겠습니다.
(2) 윤설：안녕하세요? 윤설입니다. 처음 뵙겠습니다.

(1) Keith: Hello, how do you do? I am Keith. It’s nice to meet you.
(2) Yunseol: Hello, how do you do? I am Yunseol. It’s nice to meet you.

In many cases, the dropping of subjects, or topics can be done for many sentences, not just the pronoun 저 (jeo - I).

CULTURAL INSIGHT

•In Korean culture, it is customary for one to bow to another when greeting someone with “안녕하세요?” The bow is performed and the spoken greeting stated, simultaneously. Bowing is a gesture of respect and generally divided into three types: informal, formal, and very formal. The angle at which one bows increases (increased stooping) as the situation becomes more formal. A quick greeting with a peer would require a very slight bow. A nod would even suffice in this kind of informal situation. A formal conversation with strangers, like the one featured in today’s lesson, would require a formal bow (~15 degrees). A meeting with a potential set of Korean in-laws would most certainly call for very formal bow (>45 degrees).

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - The Honorific Suffix - 씨

In Korean 씨 (ssi) is the honorific suffix. Just as the title suggests, it gestures respect to the name it is suffixed to. Its usage is a bit different than the English counterparts: Mister, Misses, Miss.

Here are a few properties of the honorific suffix -씨 (-ssi):

• It can be used to respect anybody. It is unisex and can be used regardless of age (although children tend to not be honored).

• It is used more frequently than the English titles, Mister, Misses, and Miss. If two people are not on casual terms, they will typically suffix 씨 (ssi) to the other person's name. This can even apply if two people have been acquaintances or even friends for a long time.

• It is only used when referring to someone else. One cannot use 씨 (ssi) for their own name.

• When it is suffixed to a name, it must be suffixed to a person's given name. As Korean names typically have family names in front with given names following that, the honorific suffix must always be attached to the person's given name, as the given name is always at the end. If the honorific suffix is attached to only the person's family name, it can sometimes be seen as demeaning.

• Attaching 씨 (ssi) with a full name is a bit more respectful than attaching it only to the given name.

♣ More Examples ♣

A typical Korean name is:

이수한 (LeeSuhan) - Full name 이 (Lee) - Family name 수한 (Suhan) - Given name

▽ Attached with the honorific suffix

이수한 씨 (LeeSuhan ssi) - respectful 이씨 (Lee ssi) - disrespectful (attached to only the family name) 수한 씨 (Suhan ssi) - respectful (attached to only the given name)

이수한 씨 (LeeSuhan ssi) is a bit more respectful than 수한 씨 (Suhan ssi).

Grammar Point #2 - The Affirmative Copula - 이다

The affirmative copula in Korean is 이다 (ida). This verb generally translate as "to be." This means it can be used to express equation, definition, identification, and description. But it is not existential. Korean has a separate verb to express existence.

Example:
He is tall. - This sentence expresses description. Therefore, in Korean, the verb 이다 (ida) would be used.
He is John. - This sentence expresses identification. Therefore, in Korean, the verb 이다 (ida) would be used.
He is home. - This sentence expresses existence. Therefore the verb 이다 (ida) would not be used in this context.

When 이다 (ida) is conjugated in the present tense and expressed for use in a formal context, it changes into 입니다 (imnida). Note that the speakers used 입니다 (imnida) (See line 1:“저는 Keith입니다.”) in this conversation.

Grammar Point #3 - Formal Politeness Level Conjugation (-ㅂ/습니다) ----------

---

입니다 (imnida) is the copula conjugated into the present tense, and in the formal politeness level. To conjugate 이다 (ida) we take the dictionary form of the copula 이다 (ida) and remove 다 (da) to get the verb stem, 이 (i). From there we add -ㅂ 니다 (-mnida). 이 + ㅂ 니다 = 입니다 (i + mnida = imnida).

▷ Construction

For verb stems that end in vowels we attach -ㅂ 니다 (-mnida), such as the case is with 이다 (ida), the copula. For verb stems that end in consonants, we attach -습니다 (-seumnida).

이다 (ida) - the verb stem is 이 (i) - the last portion of this is a vowel. -ㅂ니다 (-mnida) is used.
먹다 (meokda) - the verb stem is 먹 (meok) - the last portion of this is a consonant. -습니다 (-seumnida) is used.

GRAMMAR

In this lesson, the speakers not only introduced themselves, but have also started to ask each other yes-or-no questions. The following are a few grammar notes associated with this lesson:

Grammar Point #1 - The Formal Interrogative - -ㅂ/습니까?

The verb used in this conversation was 이다 (ida) - To be. This was conjugated in the formal (politeness level) interrogative sentence ending. This construction is used to ask a question in a formal level of politeness. It attaches to verbs as a final sentence ending. -ㅂ/습니까 (-m/seumnikka) can be attached to any verb to form a present tense question with that verb. This conjugation is in the formal politeness level and is used for very formal situations.

▷ Construction

Take the stem of any verb and attach "(ㅂ/습)니까?" at the end.

•If the verb stem ends in a vowel, "ㅂ" would be added to the stem to form a new syllabic block, and 니다 (nida) would be come after the new syllabic block.

Verb stem + ㅂ습니까? (m/seumnikka?)

In this conversation, the verb was 이다 (ida) - to be. 이 (i) is the stem of the verb 이 + ㅂ 니까 = 입니까 (i + mnikka = imnikka). Here we attached -ㅂ 니까 (-mnikka) because the verb stem, 이 (i), ends in a vowel. For verbs that end in a consonant, we attach -습니다 (-seumnida).

☞ remember ☜

This conjugation can be applied to all verbs.
Verb Stem + ㅂ/습니까 (m/seumnikka).

- 읽다 (ilkda) - To read - 읽 (ilk) - Verb Stem - 읽 + 습니까 = 읽습니까 (ilk + seumnida = ilkseumnikka) - read?

Grammar Point #2 - Formulating Yes-or-No Questions ----------

---

To ask if someone "is" something, we can use the formal interrogative form of the copula. And to form the question form of the copula, recall the very useful and simple sentence structure we learned in the previous lesson used to identify people and objects.

▷ Construction

The formal interrogative sentence ending is -ㅂ/습니까? (m/seumnikka?) and attaches to the end of verbs.

Verb Stem + ㅂ/습니까? (m/seumnikka?)

- 이다 (ida) - to be
- 이 (i) - verb stem
- 이 +ㅂ니까? = 입니까? (imnikka?) - Are (you)? Is (it)?

☞ remember ☜

“Noun 1는(은) Noun 2입니다.”
This sentence structure is using the formal present conjugation of the copula.

Replacing “다” (da) of “입니다” (imnida) with “까” (kka), changes the statement into a question:

“Noun 1는(은) Noun 2입니까?”

For example, below is the statement “Yunseol is a student.”

“윤설 씨는 학생입니다.” (yunseol ssi-neun hakseng-imnida)

If we replace “다” (da) with “까” (kka), we change the statement into the question: “Is Yunseol a student?”

“윤설 씨는 학생입니까?” (yunseol ssi-neun hakseng-imnikka?)

Here’s another example:

Yunseol: Keith 씨는 학생입니까?
(Keith ssi-neun hakseng-imnikka)
“Keith (in a tone addressing Keith politely), are you a student?

Keith: 네. (저는) 학생입니다.
[ne. (jeo-neun) hakseng-imnida]
“Yes, (I) am a student.”

Grammar Point #3 - The Augmentative Particle -도

-도 (-do) is a particle used to indicate that something that has previously been stated also holds true for the item currently under discussion. It corresponds with the English words "also" or "too."

▷ Construction

Noun + 도 = Noun, too.
저 (jeo) - I
저 + 도 = 저도 (jeo-do) - Me too.

♣ More Examples ♣

Example 1
A: 저는 학생입니다. (jeo-neun hakseng-imnida)
B: 저도 학생입니다. (jeo-do hakseng-imnida)

A: I am a student.
B: I am also a student.

Example 2
A: 수한 씨는 회사원입니다. (Suhan ssi-neun hoesawon-imnida)
B: 영진 씨도 회사원입니다. (Yeongjin ssi-do hoesawon-imnida)

A: SuHan is an office worker.
B: Yeongjin is also an office worker.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

When addressing someone in Korean, it would be uncommon to use the word "you." This is because addressing someone so directly is not common in the Korean language. Korean language tends to stray away from directness, especially in situations that are not so intimate. And as a result, a person would most likely use the person's name when they wish to address that person. In this conversation, when Keith wanted to ask Seol a question, he said "윤설 씨는 학생입니까?" (Yunseol ssi-neun haksaeng-imnikka?). Here he doesn't say "you" but rather he says the name of the person he's speaking to, in this case "Yun Seol."

제 친구는 오스트레일리아 사람입니다. je chinguneun oseuteureilia saramimnida. "My friend is Australian."	인도에 가 봤어요? indoe ga bwasseoyo? "Have you been to India?"
저는 일본에 살아요. jeo-neun ilbon-e sarayo. "I live in Japan."	저는 중국 사람이 아닙니다. jeoneun jungguk sarami animnida. "I'm not Chinese."
저는 한국 사람입니다. jeoneun hanguk saramimnida. "I am Korean."	어느 나라 사람입니까? eoneu nara saramimnikka? "What country are you from?"

우리 나라에 오세요. uri nara-e oseyo "Please come to our country."	매튜 씨는 뉴질랜드 사람입니다. maetyu ssineun nyujilaendeu saramimnida. "Matthew is from New Zealand."
그는 외국인입니다. geuneun oeguginimnida. "He's a foreigner."

GRAMMAR

In this lesson, the speakers describe and ask about each other's nationalities. The following are a few grammar notes related to this lesson.

Grammar Point #1 - Describing One's Nationality - 저는 한국 사람입니다

To describe nationalities, first, suffix the word 사람 (saram), or in English "person" or "people," to the name of the country. Then, utilize the basic sentence structure we have been using to form a complete sentence:

"Noun 1는(은) Noun 2입니다."
"(저는) 한국 사람입니다." (jeo-neun hanguksaram-imnida),
"I am Korean."

Literally, this means "I, Korea, person, am." This is translated as "I am Korean." To make your own nationality, just replace 한국 (hanguk) with your country, and follow the rest of the sentence pattern.

The vocabulary list above features a list of countries and their names in Korean. For the nationality American, suffix 사람 (saram; person) to 미국 (miguk; America). The resulting clause, 미국 사람 (miguk saram) translates literally into "America person." Likewise, an Australian and a Canadian would be 오스트레일리아 사람 (oseuteureillia saram) and 캐나다 사람 (kaenada saram), respectively.

*Note:*This sentence structure utilizes the Formal Politeness Level Simple Present Tense -ㅂ/습니다 (-m/seumnida). It is a Final-Sentence ending.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
a) "저는 중국 사람입니다." (jeo-neun jungguk saram-imnida)
"I am Chinese."

b) "저는 일본 사람입니다." (jeo-neun ilbon saram-imnida)
"I am Japanese."

Grammar Point #2 - Asking about another's nationality - 어느 나라 사람입니까?

To ask "What nationality are you?" the question, "어느 나라 사람입니까?" (eoneu nara saram-imnikka?) is used. "어느" (eoneu) means "which." "나라" (nara) means "country." "사람" (saram) means "people.""입니다" is the copula, which means "are (is,am)"

"어느 나라 사람입니까?" (eoneu nara saram-imnikka?). The literal translation is, "Which country people are you?" This is translated as "What nationality are you?"

*Note:*This sentence structure utilizes the Formal Politeness Level Interrogative (ㅂ/습니까? - m/seumnikka?). It is a Final-Sentence ending.

♣ More Examples ♣

A: "어느 나라 사람입니까?" (eoneu nara saram-imnikka?)
B: "인도 사람입니다." (indo saram-imnida)

A: "What nationality are you?"
B: "I am Indian."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

As the number of people from other countries visiting Korea is increasing, so is the number of foreigners in Korea who speak Korean (한국어 or 한국말). But this does not guarantee that a store owner or the bus driver you want to talk to won't be surprised when you speak Korean. What does this lead to? More often than not, if you just spit out a phrase you learned by heart and expect the other person to have understood you, you might be disappointed that they actually didn't understand you. But don't worry, the reason they don't understand is most likely because they simply did not expect you to speak Korean. So if you are in Korea, and have experienced this before, it may be a good idea to say a word or two in Korean to call their attention to you, and let them know that you are going to say something in Korean. Try using "저기요 (jeogiyo)" or "죄송한데요 (joesonghandeyo)", which both mean "Excuse me" in English. When they give you this look of "Wow, this person is speaking Korean!", it is time for you to surprise them even more with the phrases you've mastered!

저는 배우가 아닙니다. jeoneun baeuga animnida "I'm not an actor."

GRAMMAR

In this lesson, the speakers answer questions in the negative. The following are a few grammar notes related to this lesson.

Grammar Point #1 - Making negative statements - anida - 아니다 (anida)

The negative copula is 아니다 (anida). This means "not to be." This is not a conjugation of the affirmative copula 이다 (ida), but an independent word. In this lesson, the negative copula 아니다 (anida) was conjugated into the formal (politeness level) simple present tense (-ㅂ니다/mnida).

▷ Construction

Just as most Korean verbs are conjugated, -다 (-da) is removed from 아니다 (anida) to get 아니 (ani), which is the verb stem of this word.

아니 + ㅂ니다 = 아닙니다 ani + mnida = animnida verb stem + formal simple present tense conjugation = "am/is/are not"

When conjugated in the present tense and expressed for use in a formal polite context, 아니다 (anida) becomes 아닙니다 (animnida). Note the difference between the affirmative and negative Korean copulas when conjugated in the simple present tense and expressed in the formal politeness level: 입니다 vs. 아닙니다 (imnida vs. animnida).

♣ More Examples ♣

Here are some examples of negative statements:

“저는 학생이 아닙니다.” (jeon-eun hakseng animnida)
“I am not a student.”

“요한은 의사가 아닙니다.” (yohan-eun uisa-ga animnida)
“Yohan is not a doctor.”

“요한은 영국사람이 아닙니다.” (yohan-eun yeongguksaram-i animnida)
“Yohan is not British.”

☞ remember ☜

To make negative sentences, use the following sentence structure:

“Noun1는(은) Noun2가(이) 아닙니다.”
(Noun1-neun(eun) Noun2-ga(i) animnida.)

Let’s break this sentence structure down to its basic components:

"Noun1는(은)" expresses "As for Noun1" or "Speaking of Noun1." And "Noun2가(이) [verb]" expresses something about Noun1. In the case of this conversation "Noun1는(은) Noun2가(이) 아닙니다” would translate to "As for Noun1, it isn't Noun2."

는 (neun) is used when it is affixed to a word ending in a vowel.
저는 (jeoneun) - 는 (neun) is attached to 저 (jeo). "ㅓ"(eo) is a vowel and what immediately precedes the subject marker (in this case 는 - neun).

은 (eun) is used when it is affixed to a word ending in a consonant.
요한은 (yohaneun) - 은 (eun) is attached to 요한 (yohan). "ㄴ" is a consonant and is what immediately precedes the subject marker (in this case 은 - eun).

Grammar Point #2 - Using the subject marker - i/ga - "이/가"

In this particular context, because the verb 아니다 (anida) is used, we use "이/가" (i/ga), the subject marker. This is because, generally speaking, they are part of a set. In most situations 아니다 (anida) is used, 이/가 (i/ga) is used as well. 이/가 (i/ga) marks what the topic is not. Also, it is used when introducing the subject for the first time during a conversation or discussion, among many other uses.

☞ remember ☜

가 (ga) is used when it is affixed to a word ending in a vowel.
배우가 아닙니다 (baeuga animnida) - 가 (ga) is attached to 배우 (baeu). 'ㅜ' (u) is a vowel and is what immediately precedes the subject marker (in this case 가).

이 (i) is used when it is affixed to a word ending in a consonant. 회사원이 아닙니다 (hoesawoni animnida) - 이 (i) is attached to 회사원 (hoesawon). "ㄴ" is a consonant and is what immediately precedes the subject marker (in this case 이).

♣ More Examples ♣

배우가 아닙니다 (O)
배우이 아닙니다 (X)

회사원이 아닙니다 (O)
회사원가 아닙니다 (X)

민지 씨는 남자친구가 없습니다.

minji ssineun namjachinguga eopsseumnida.

"Minji doesn't have a boyfriend."

GRAMMAR

The speakers in this conversation introduced how one would state the existence, or non-existence of things. The following are a few notes that go more in-depth.

Grammar Point #1 - Stating the Existence or Possession of Something - 있다 (itda)

The sentence structure used to express the existence of something is as follows:

“Noun 1가(이) 있습니다.”
“Noun 1 exists.”

For example:

“돈이 있습니다.” (don-i itsseumnida)
“Money exists.”

The translation for the example sentence above may sound awkward. This is why the verb 있다 (itda) is used to express that someone has something, or that something exists for someone. In this conversation 윤설 (Yun Seol) used the following sentence structure:

“Noun 1는(은) Noun 2가(이) 있습니다.”

“저는 남자친구가 있습니다.”
(jeo-neun namjachingu-ga isseumnida)
“I have a boyfriend.” (Literally: A boyfriend exists for me.)

♣ More Examples ♣

“윤설은 남자친구가 있습니다.”
(yunseol-eun namjachingu-ga isseumnida)
“Yunseol has a boyfriend.” (Literally: A boyfriend exists for Yunseol.)

“저는 자동차가 있습니다.”
(jeo-neun jadongcha-ga isseumnida)
"I have a car." (Literally: A car exists for me.)

Grammar Point #2 - Stating the absence or non-presence of something - 없다

The verb 없다 (eopda) expresses the non-existence of something. The sentence structure used to express the non-existence of something is as follows:

“Noun 1는(은) Noun 2가(이) 없습니다.”

♣ More Examples ♣

A: “저는 차가 없습니다.”(jeo-neun cha-ga eopsseumnida)
“I do not have a car.” (A car does not exist for me.)

B: “저도 차가 없습니다.”(jeo-do cha-ga eopsseumnida)
“I too, do not have a car.” (A car does not exist for me as well.)

Grammar Point #3 - Asking about the presence of something - 있습니까?

One can also ask if something exists for him/her:

▷ Construction

“Noun 1는(은) Noun 2가(이) 있습니까?”

♣ More Examples ♣

“예린은 책이 있습니까?”
(yerin-eun chaek-i isseumnikka?)
“Does Yerin have a book?” (Does a book exist for Yerin?)

경희: 민 씨는 가방이 있습니까? (min ssi-neun gabang-i isseumnikka)
Gyeonghui: Min, do you have a bag?
민: 네. 가방이 있습니다. (ne. gabang-i isseumnida.)
Min: Yes. I have a bag.

명수 : 지연 씨는 오빠가 있습니까? (jiyeon ssi-neun oppa-ga isseumnikka)
Myeongsu: Jiyeon, do you have an older brother?

지연 : 네, 오빠가 있습니다. 명수 씨는 형이 있습니까? (ne. oppa-ga isseumnida. myeongsu ssi-neun hyeong-i isseumnikka?)
Jiyeon: Yes. I have an older brother. Myeongsu, do you have an older brother?

☞ remember ☜

Asking about the absence or non-presence of something - 없습니까? (eopsseumnikka)

The sentence structure used to ask a question about the absence of something is as follows:

▷ Construction

“Noun 1 는(은) Noun 2가(이) 없습니까?”

This conversation featured the use of this:
(4)윤설: (Keith 씨는) 여자친구가 없습니까? (Keith ssi-neun yeojachingu-ga eopsseumnikka?)
(5)Keith : 네. 없습니다. (ne. eopsseumnida.)

Grammar Point #4 - Subject marking particle - i/ga -이/가

The subject marking particle was used in this context of this conversation because of the verbs 있다 (itda) and 없다 (eoptda). These two verbs use the subject marking particle - 이/가 (i/ga), as part of a set. Generally speaking, whenever the verbs 있다 (itda) and 없다 (eoptda) are used in a sentence, the subject marking particle is used in conjunction to mark what exist and what what doesn't exist.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

When someone asks a negative question in Korean, a response is in the positive, as to agree with the question that was presented before. For example: 여자친구가 없습니까? (yeoja chingu-ga eopsseumnikka?) - You do not have a girlfriend? To answer, "No, I don't have a girlfriend" in Korean, one would say "네, 없습니다" (ne, eopsseumnida) - Yes, I don't have one. The last 네 (ne - yes) is agreeing with the negative question presented.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
학생	haksaeng	student	noun
선생님	seonsaengnim	teacher	noun
중국	jungguk	China	noun
친구	chingu	friend	noun

SAMPLE SENTENCES

저는 아직 학생이에요. Jeoneun ajik haksaengieyo. "I'm still a student."	오늘은 선생님이 없습니다. Oneureun seonsaengnimi eopseumnida. "Teacher is not here today."
저는 중국 사람이 아닙니다. jeoneun jungguk sarami animnida. "I'm not Chinese."	그 남자는 친구만큼 똑똑해요. geu namjaneun chingumankeum ttokttokhaeyo. “He is as smart as his friend.”
제 친구는 선생님입니다. je chinguneun seonsaengnimimnida. "My friend is a teacher."

GRAMMAR

In this lesson we'll be focusing on a few aspects of the topic marking particle and the subject marking particle.

Grammar Point #1 - The Subject Marking Particle - i/ga - 이/가

1.Generally speaking, the subject marking particle -이/가 (i/ga) is the standard particle used to mark the subject of the sentence.

2.The subject marking particle is used when a subject is introduced for the first time. (This property is not displayed in the conversation).

3.There are certain verbs that are used with the subject marking particle as part of a set.
Here are some of the more commonly used verbs that use -이/가 (i/ga) as a set.

▷ 아니다 / 있다 / 없다 (anida/itda/eopta)

학생이 아닙니다. - haksaeng-i animnida. - (I) am not a student.
선미 씨가 있습니다. Seonmi ssiga itseumnida. - Seon Mi is (here).
선생님이 없습니다. seonsaengnim-i eopseumnida. - The teacher is not (here).

Grammar Point #2 - The Topic Marking Particle - eun/neun - 은/는

---

1. When a conversation can go any way, the topic marking particle is used to bring attention to what the speaker wishes to talk about. When nothing is being said by either party in a conversation, and a speaker wishes to bring up a topic to talk about, the topic marking particle is used to introduce a new topic to the conversation.

2. If a topic has already been introduced into the conversation, it is old information. If it is old information, it is no longer necessary to mention the topic again (topics and subjects may be dropped in sentences). But if the speaker wishes to clarify what is being spoken about, the topic marking particle is used to clarify the topic of the sentence.

3. The topic marking particle may be used to contrast.

♣ More Examples ♣

1.저는 한국 사람입니다 - jeo-neun hanguk saram-imnida.
2.저는 일본 사람입니다 - jeo-neun ilbon saram-imnida.

Sentence 1 uses the topic marking particle because it is bringing a new topic of conversation to attention. Sentence 2 uses the topic marking particle to make the contrast that the person is not Korean, but rather Japanese.

Grammar Point #3 - Double Subjects - eun/neun, i/ga - 은/는, 이/가

Generally, Korean often contains "double subjects" one being marked by the topic marker, and the other marked by the subject marker. This is a very comprehensive subject to tackle. There are numerous books and linguistic research on this very specific topic. A simplified explanation is:

저는 학생이 아닙니다. - jeo-neun haksaeng-i animnida. - I am not a student.
Literally, this is "I, student, not."

☞ remember ☜

The topic of the sentence is 저 (jeo - I). This can be translated as "As for me, I'm not a student." The topic of the sentence lays the foundation, and gives a back drop for the rest of the sentence.

In English, sometimes there are pauses between subjects. In the case of the sentence above, it can be translated as "Me (pause) I'm not a student."

GRAMMAR

This lesson introduces the Korean numbers. In Korean, there are two number systems: Chinese character-based Korean numbers and Native-Korean numbers. Knowing which system to use depends on the context and purpose. For example, when dealing with phone numbers, the Sino-Korean system is used. We will introduce the Sino-Korean system first.

Grammar Pointe #1 - Chinese Character-Based Korean Numbers - 숫자 (일, 이, 삼, 사...)

Chinese character-based Korean numbers are used for reciting phones numbers, counting money, telling time (minutes), and generally reciting numbers when numbers are not being counted in a sequential order.

Learning the chinese character-based Korean numbers is very easy to do. If you know the numbers one through ten, you can count all the way to 99. This is because the numbers build on each. The only numbers that need to be memorized are numbers one to ten.

The number 11 is formed by saying the number 10 and then saying the number 1.
10 - 십 (sip)
1 - 일 (il)
10 + 1 = 11
sip + il = sib-il = 11

The number 12 is formed by saying the number 10 and then saying the number 2.
10 - 십 (sip)
2 - 이 (i)
10 + 2 = 12
sip + i = sib-i = 12

The number 20 is formed by saying the number 2 and then saying the number 10.
2 - 이 (i)
10 - 십 (sip)
2 x 10 = 20
i x sip = i-sip = 20

The number 24 is formed by saying the number 2, then 10, then 4.
2 - 이 (i)
10 - 십 (sip)
4 - 사 (sa)
2 x 10 + 4 = 24
i x sip + sa = i-sip-sa = 24

This can continue on till 100

♣ More Examples ♣
---
67 육십칠 yuk-sip-chil
92 구십이 gu-sib-i
44 사십사 sa-sip-sa

♣ Pronunciation Tip ♣

When reciting numbers, the number 1 (il) and the number 2 (i) sound very similar. Even native-Korean speakers occasionally mistake one for the other. The numbers 3 (sam) and 4 (sa) frequently get confused as well.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The way people count numbers with their fingers are different from culture to culture; the way Korean people count is to first stretch out their fingers. Then they start by folding the thumb inside for "1." For "2" they fold in the index finger. Then they fold the middle finger for "3," the ring finger for "4," and at "5" they form a fist. And they count "6" by unfolding the pinky finger that was just folded to make a "5." They unfold in the opposite order they were folded in until "10," where all the fingers are stretched out once again.

GRAMMAR

In this lesson, we introduce two important grammar points. The first will be an introduction of a new and quite useful verb, 가다 (gada), which means "to go." We will show the formal present tense conjugation of the verb 가다 (gada) and also demonstrate how our conjugation pattern for 가다 can also be applied to many other verbs. The second grammar point concerns the time/directional particle -에 (-e).

Grammar Point #1 - To Go - 가다

가다 (gada), means "to go" and the verb is typically preceded by the destination/time-point particle, 에 (e), which we will cover shortly. To conjugate the verb and express it in the formal present tense, attach -ㅂ니다 (mnida) to the verb stem [the verb without 다 (da)]:

▷ Construction

---

dictionary form: 가다 (to go) verb stem: 가
가 + ㅂ니다 -> 갑니다 ga + mnida -> gamnida

This formal present-tense conjugation is performed to construct declarative sentences. Please note that this formal present-tense conjugation can similarly be performed on similar verbs. The exact spelling for the conjugation will depend on whether the verb stem ends with a vowel or a consonant. A chart below shows more examples:

-ㅂ니다 (verb stems ending with vowel)	-습니다 (verb stems ending with consonant)
가다: 가 + ㅂ니다 -> 갑니다	먹다: 먹 + 습니다 -> 먹습니다
gada: ga + mnida -> gamnida	meokda: meok + seumnida -> meokseumnida
이다: 이 + ㅂ니다 -> 입니다	읽다: 읽 + 습니다 -> 읽습니다
일하다: 일하 + ㅂ니다 -> 일합니다	있다: 있 + 습니다 -> 있습니다

☞ remember ☜

Once the verb is conjugated with -ㅂ/습니다 (-m/seumnida), the formal present tense, a further alteration of substituting the 다 (da) ending with 까 (kka), transforms the sentence containing the verb into the formal interrogative. In other words, substituting 다 (da) with 까 (kka) can change a formal declarative sentence into a formal interrogative sentence (a question). Some examples below:

♣ More Examples ♣

영수는 학교에 갑니다 - (Yeongsu-neun hakgyo-e gamnida.) - Yeongsu goes to school.
영수는 학교에 갑니까? - (Yeongsu-neun hakgyo-e gamnikka?) - Does Yeongsu go to school?

정경은 집에 갑니다 - (Jeonggyung-eun jib-e gamnida.) - Jeonggyung goes home.
정경은 집에 갑니까? - (Jeonggyung-eun jib-e gamnikka?) - Does Jeonggyung go home?

영수는 일합니다 - (Yeongsu-neun ilhamnida.) - Yeongsu works.
영수는 일합니까? - (Yeongsu-neun ilhamnikka?) - Does Yeongsu work?

정경은 먹습니다 - (Jeonggyung-eun meokseumnida.) - Jeonggyung eats.
정경은 먹습니까? - (Jeonggyung-eun meokseumnikka?) - Does Jeonggyung eat?

Grammar Point #2 - The Directional Particle - 에

This particle can be used to indicate time, direction, or a static activity. In this lessons' specific context, it is used to indicate direction. When -에 (-e) is attached to a place noun (home, school, theater, etc) and is followed by either 가다 (gada) - to go, 오다 (oda) - to come or one of their variants, the particle -에 (-e) indicates the direction the subject is either going or coming towards. In this specific conversation -에 (-e) is translated as “to.”

The directional particle, -에 (-e) was used in Line 8:

(8)경희: 극장에 갑니다.
(8)Gyeong-hui: Geukjang-e gamnida.
(8)Gyeong-hui: I'm going to the movie theater.

Taken from the conversation: 극장에 갑니다. (geukjang-e gamnida) (I'm) going to the theater. (literally: theater, to, go)

Taken from the conversation: 어디에 갑니까? (eodi-e gamnikka) To where (are you) go(ing)? (literally: where, to, go?)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

When you are in Korea and get to make some acquaintances in your neighborhood, you will often be asked by your neighbors "Where are you going?" This phrase is "어디 가? (eodi ga?)" or "어디 가세요? (eodi gaseyo?)" in Korean. This might be somewhat embarrassing at first and you might wonder why everyone's asking you where you're going. But do not take this question seriously. No one really needs to or wants to know where you are actually going. It is a question that serves as a way of showing interest and a lot of Korean people think that at least asking this kind of question is much better than just greeting people with a simple "안녕하세요 (annyeonghaseyo)." When asked "어디 가?" (eodi ga? - Where are you going?), you can just tell the person where you are going if you don't mind doing that, but if you don't really feel liking telling them about your private plans, you can just reply with "안녕하세요" or "네, 어디 좀 가요 (ne, eodi jom gayo)" which means "Yes, I am going somewhere."

저는 부모님과 같이 살고 있습니다. Jeoneun bumonimgwa gachi salgo itseumnida. "I'm living with my parents."	우리 모두 함께 갑시다. uri modu hamkke gapsida. "Let's all go together."

GRAMMAR

In this lesson, we introduce the useful phrase “갑시다”(gapsida). But first, we present a new particle, 의 (ui), also known as the possessive particle.

Grammar Point #1 - The Possessive Particle - -의

The possessive particle is used to indicate possession, or relationship, and is similar to the English "of" or "'s." In the structure 'A 의 B', 'B is of A', or 'A's B.'

▷ Construction

Object1-의 Object2
Object1-ui Object2

Object1's Object2 -> Object2 is of Object1 or Object1's Object2

♣ More Examples ♣

1.윤설의 엄마는 선생님입니다.
Yunseol-ui eomma-neun seonsaengnim-imnida.
Yunseol's mother is a teacher.

2.제 (저의) 여자친구는 미국사람입니다.
je (jeo-ui) yeojachingu-neun miguksaram-imnida.
My girlfriend is American.

The possessive particle was also used in Line 4 of this conversation:

▷ In This Dialog

---

(4)스티브: ...경희 씨의 남자친구는 어느 나라 사람입니까?
(4)seutibeu: ...gyeonghui ssi-ui namjachingu-neun eoneu nara saram-imnikka?
(4)Steve: ... What is your boyfriend's nationality?

Grammar Point #2 - Demonstrative Pronouns - 여기, 거기, 저기, 어디

Finally, there are demonstrative place words that are used when speaking about non-specific locations.

여기 (yeogi) - here
거기 (geogi) - there
저기 (jeogi) - over there
어디 (eodi) - where

▷ In This Dialog

A demonstrative place word was used in Line 8 of this conversation:

(8)스티브: 저도 거기에 갑니다... (8)Seutibeu: Jeo-do geogi-e gamnida... (8)Steve: I'm going there as well...

♣ More Examples ♣

Some sample sentences using demonstrative pronouns:

1. 책이 여기에 있습니다. chaegi yeogie itseumnida. The book is here.

2. 스티브는 어디에 갑니까? seutibeu-neun eodi-e gamnikka? Where is Steve going?

3. 저도 거기에 삽니다. jeo-do geogi-e samnida. I live there as well.

4. 스티브는 저기에 있습니다. seutibeuneun jeogie itseumnida. Steve is over there.

Grammar Point #3 - Let's Go! - 갑시다

갑시다 (gapsida) is a common phrase used in a group of two or more people. It means, “let’s go.” The root verb is 가다 (gada), which means “to go.” 갑시다 (gapsida) results from the propositive conjugation of 가다 (gad). This type of conjugation will appear and be explained more in future lessons.

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces the standard politeness level and focuses on the differences between the standard and the formal politeness level. This conversation also points out some ambiguities when dropping certain aspects of speech.

Grammar Point #1 - Formal and Standard Politeness Levels

Korean can be generally be divided into three different politeness levels: Formal, Standard, and Intimate. This conversation introduces the Standard Politeness Level for the first time. The Standard Politeness Level is used much more often than the Formal Politeness Level. This is because the Formal Politeness Level is quite formal.

Because the Formal Politeness Level is so formal, it can be intimidating at times.

For example, an excerpt from today's conversation:

(6)영호: 어... 그래요? (Eo... geuraeyo?) - Oh is that so? (7)스티브: 네. 그렇습니다. (Ne. Geureoseumnida.) Yes, it is so.

In this conversation, Yeongho is using the Standard Politeness Level and Steve is using the Formal Politeness Level. Because the Formal Politeness Level can be quite formal, it can be seen as intimidating. This example can give off the impression that Steve is standing, chest in the air. Yeongho is using Standard Politeness Level, so there is not much that can be drawn about his posture and his tone of voice. Yeongho can be seen as neutral.

When listening to everyday speech between strangers, the Standard Politeness Level can be heard most of the time.

Grammar Point #2 - Dropping Parts of Speech

Korean has the ability to drop certain aspects of speech because they can be inferred from context. In our previous lessons, the dropping of subjects has been introduced.

Example: (저는) 학생입니다. (Jeoneun) haksaeng-imnida. (I) student am. -> I am a student. Here, "I" is inferred.

This can be quite useful for one starting to learn Korean because one does not have to have all the parts of speech in a sentence, and still be correct. This can, however, cause some ambiguity. Many times, even native Korean speakers will be confused, and will need to clarify what they are specifically talking about.

Example, an excerpt from today's conversation: (8)영호: 왜... 같이... 있어요? (Wae... gachi... isseoyo?) Why... are you... together? (9)스티브: 여기에 데이트 약속이 있습니다. (Yeogie deiteu yaksogi itseumnida.) (I) have a date here.

Here Yeongho misunderstands Steve's statement because it is missing a topic. Yeongho infers incorrectly from the context and assumes that "(They) have a date here." Steve's sentence, complete with topic is as follows:

저는 여기에 데이트 약속이 있습니다. (jeo-neun yeogi-e deiteu yaksok-i isseumnida.) - I have a date here.

Even native Korean speakers occasionally make incorrect assumptions and sometimes need to clarify what they are talking about.

GRAMMAR

Korea has two number systems. This lesson focuses on the Native Korean numbers. The native Korean numbers are used for counting things in sequential order, when order items at a restaurant, buying multiple items in a store, counting age, and also used when telling the time (hours).

Grammar Point #1 - Telling Time

This grammar point focuses on using the Native Korean numbers to tell the time. When discussing the hour, the Native-Korean system is used while the Sino-Korean system is used to tell the minutes. We covered the Sino-Korean system in Beginner Lesson #8 - Exchanging Phone Numbers, so this time we will cover the Native-Korean system.

1 하나 (한) - hana (han)
2 둘 (두) - dul (du)
3 셋 (세) - set (se)
4 넷 (네) - net (ne)
5 다섯 - daseot
6 여섯 - yeoseot
7 일곱 - ilgob
8 여덟 - yeodeol
9 아홉 - ahop
10 열 - yeol
11 열하나 (열한) - yeol-hana (yeol-han)
12 열둘 (열두) - yeol-dul (yeol-du)
13 열셋 (열세) - yeol-set (yeol-se)
14 열넷 (열네) - yeol-net (yeol-ne)
15 열다섯 - yeol-daseot
16 열여섯 - yeol-yeoseot
17 열일곱 - yeol-ilgop
18 열여덟 - yeol-yeodeol
19 열아홉 - yeol-ahop
20 스물 - seumul
21 스물하나 - seumul-hana
22 스물둘 - seumul-dul
30 서른 - seoreun
40 마흔 - maheun
50 쉰 - swin
60 예순 - yesun
70 일흔 - ilheun
80 여든 - yeodeun
90 아흔 - aheun
99 아흔아홉 - aheun-ahop

♣ More Examples ♣
---
67 예순일곱 - yesun-ilgop
92 아흔둘 - aheun-dul
44 마흔넷 - maheun-net

Now that we know the Native-Korean system, we can now tell time beginning with the hour. Simply state the hour in Native-Korean and suffix 시 (si).

Korean	Romanization	English
한 시	han si	1 o’clock
두 시	du si	2 o’clock
세 시	se si	3 o’clock
네 시	ne si	4 o’clock
다섯 시	daseot si	5 o’clock
여섯 시	yeoseot si	6 o’clock
일곱 시	ilgop si	7 o’clock
여덟 시	yeodeol si	8 o’clock
아홉 시	ahop si	9 o’clock
열 시	yeol si	10 o’clock
열한 시	yeolhan si	11 o’clock
열두 시	yeoldu si	12 o’clock

*Note:*Numbers 1-4 change slightly in pronunciation when a counter, or a noun comes directly after it.

To tell the minutes, state the number in Sino-Korean and suffix 분 (bun). For example, to say 1:15 is 한 시 십오 분 (han si sibo bun; literally 1 hour, 15 minutes). To say either AM or PM, the following words can be placed before the time 오전 (ojeon; before noon, AM), 오후 (ohu; after noon, PM), 저녁 (jeonyeok; evening, PM) or 밤 (bam; night, PM).

1:15 PM 오후 한 시 십오 분 - (ohu han si sibo bun)
7:45 PM 밤 일곱 시 사십오 분 - (bam ilgop si sasibo bun)
6:30 AM 오전 여섯 시 삼십 분 - (ojeon yeoseot si samsip bun) Note: These words are not essential, but are used to specify the time of day.

☞ remember ☜

Additional usages

In addition to time, the native-Korean numbers are used for talking about age, or, generally speaking, when counting things sequentially. This can be counting people in a party when going to a restaurant, ordering food/drinks at a restaurant, buying multiple items at a store, counting sheets of paper, etc. And because this number system is used when counting sequentially - it is uncommon for one to count to high numbers (i.e. it's not very common to count more than 30 people in a party, nor order more than 30 drinks at once). And just for that reason, the native-Korean numbers, after about 30, are not so commonly used. It is fairly common to use the Sino-Korean numbers for higher numbers, when the Native-Korean numbers should be used.

Counters

There are counters that can be added onto the end of the Native Korean numbers to be more specific about what is counted. There are a few different counters, most of which are fairly general, and can include many different things.

▷ 명 (myeong) - people (non-honorific)
- 한 명 (han myeong) - one person

▷ 장 (jang) - paper, tickets, CD's, and other flat objects
- 여섯 장 (yeoseot jang)- six (papers)

▷ 잔 (jan) - cups, mugs, glasses
- 스무 잔 (seumu jan) - twenty (cups)

▷ 대 (dae) - electronic equipment, vehicles, instruments
- 네 대 (ne dae) - four (cars)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korea is a country which uses the 24-hour clock in digital clocks (aka. military time). Although many clocks use the 12-hour clock, 24-hour clocks are quite common in Korean And example of 24-hour clocks 6:00 = 18:00.

GRAMMAR

The main grammar point of this lesson is to show how to tell minutes in regards to time. Also, we come across the particle -에 (-e), which is used, not only as a static location particle, but also a directional, and time particle in this conversation. And we will also be going over the very useful and common verb 하다 (hada).

Grammar Point #1 - Minutes - 분

To tell the minutes when speaking about the time, one must know the Sino-Korean numbers. When talking about the hour, the native-Korean numbers are used. Below is the basic construction of time.

▷ Construction

(Native Korean #) 시 (Sino-Korean #) 분
(Native Korean #) hour (Sino-Korean #) minute

♣ More Examples ♣

1시 1분 - 한 시 일 분
han si il bun
1:01

2시 10분 - 두 시 십 분 du si sip bun 2:10

6시 8분 - 여섯 시 팔 분 yeoseot si pal bun 6:08

When one is talking about minutes not regarding the time of day, the same construction is used.

삼십 분 동안 잤어요.
samsip bun-dongan jasseoyo.
I slept for 30 minutes.

Grammar Point #2 - The Time Particle - -에

The particle -에 (-e) can be translated into English as "at," "to," "on" or "in," depending on the context. It can be used to indicate time, direction, or a specific location where an action takes place. In this specific lesson it is used to indicate time and can be translated as "at," "on," or "in."

Time Particle: The particle -에 (-e) can be used to indicate the time at which an action takes place. This particle is attached to time specific words, which includes time, day of the week, date, month, and year. Depending on context this particle can be translated as "at," "on," or "in."

♣ More Examples ♣

[두 시 반에 끝나요.] (du si ban-e kkeutnayo.) - It ends at two thirty.
In this sentence, the particle -에 (-e) indicates the time it ends - 2:30.

[천 구백 오십 일년에 태어났습니다] (cheon gubaek osip ilnyeon-e taeeonasseumnida) - (I) was born in 1951.
In this sentence, the particle -에 (-e) indicates the year (I) was born.

[월요일에 학교에 안 갑니다.] (woryoil-e hakgyo-e an gamnida]
I don't go to school on Monday. In this specific sentence the particle -에 (-e) is used twice. The first is to mark the time (월요일/woryoil - Monday) and the other one marks the direction (because it is used with the verb 가다 (gada) - to go.

Grammar Point #3 - To Do - hada - 하다

하다 (hada) is a very flexible and important verb in Korean. It is generally translated as "to do," but sometimes there is a need to interpret according to specific circumstances. 하다 (hada) verbs can be used as follows:

1. A transitive verb (a verb that needs an object)
숙제를 하다.
sukje-reul hada.
To do homework.

2. Post-nominal verb
공부하다.
gongbuhada.
To (do) study.

(The difference between the transitive 하다 (hada) and the post-nominal 하다 (hada) verb is that the transitive verb puts a bit more emphasis on the object. Where as the post-nominal 하다 is neutral and doesn't place an emphasis on something.)

3. Post-nominal descriptive verb
행복하다. haengbokada
To (be) happy.

4. Auxiliary Transitive Verb (only used for 2nd or 3rd persons) 무서워-하다 museowo-hada to (be) afraid

5. Intransitive Verb for Reported Speech
바쁘다고 했어요.
bappeudago haesseoyo.
(He) said (he) was busy.

☞ remember ☜

A large percentage of verbs in Korean end in 하다 (hada). This is because, generally speaking, 하다 (hada) can attach to a noun and create a verb (post nominal verb). This is commonly used for English words that have made its way into the Korean language. Some examples of this is as follows.

♣ Examples ♣

컴퓨터 하다 (keompyuteo hada)- to use a computer
조깅 하다 (joging hada) - to jog

CULTURAL INSIGHT

When asking for the time, in English, many people say "Do you have the time?" However, when it is translated into Korean 시간 있으세요? (sigan isseuseyo?), it is not asking for the time but time. It is asking if the person has some time to do something with you, or go somewhere with you. Men typically use this phrase as a pick-up line.

이름	ireum	name	noun
뭐	mwo	what	adjective

SAMPLE SENTENCES

지금은 사장님이 안 계십니다. jigeum-eun sajangnim-i an gyesimnida. "The president isn't in the office now."	제 이름 기억하세요? je ireum gieokhaseyo? "Do you remember my name?"
이건 뭐예요? Igeon mwo-yeyo? "What is this?"	네 역할은 뭐야? Ne yeokhareun mwoya? "What's your role?"

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces the Standard Politeness Level and shows the relationship dynamic between an employer and employee. This conversation also covers the question word 뭐 (mwo).

Grammar Point #1 - Standard Politeness Level

Verbs are not just conjugated according to tense, voice, mood, negation, but are also conjugated according to the relationship between the people involved in the conversation. This conversation shows the conjugation of verbs in both the standard politeness level and formal politeness levels.

The Formal Politeness Level is used in very formal situations, or when one feels the utmost respect is required. Because the Formal Politeness level was used in this conversation, it can be inferred that the relationship between this specific employer and employee is not a very close relationship and has somewhat of a distance between the two.

The standard politeness level is not considered "less polite" than the formal politeness level. The standard politeness level is considered the standard language used towards strangers and people that you wish to convey respect towards. The formal politeness level can be considered "extra polite."

The employee's usage of the Formal Politeness Level can be easily contrasted with the employer's usage of the Standard Politeness Level. The most noticeable difference is the way the sentences end. The following is and contrast between the two politeness levels:

▷ Formal:
- 저는 한국 사람입니다.
- jeo-neun hanguk saram-imnida
- I'm Korean.

▷ Standard:
- 저는 한국 사람이에요.
- jeo-neun hanguk saram-ieyo
- I'm Korean.

These two sentences mean the same thing, but convey a different level of respect (the speaker's level of respect towards the listener).

▷ Construction

The copula, 이다 (ida), when conjugated into the standard politeness level, is conjugated as either 예요 (yeyo) or 이에요 (ieyo). The only difference between the two is to make the words they are attaching to easier to pronounce. This can replace 입니다 (imnida), which is the copula in the formal politeness level.

예요 (yeyo) - This is attached to words that end in vowels.
1.저는 유리카예요. (jeo-neun yurika-yeyo)
I am Yurika.

2.이 건물은 학교예요. (i geonmul-eun hakgyo-yeyo.)
This building is a school.

이에요 (ieyo) - This is attached to words that end in consonants.
1.저는 필진이에요. (jeo-neun piljin-ieyo)
I am Piljin.

이 가게는 김밥집이에요. (i gage-neun gimbapjip-ieyo)
This store is a Kimbap store.

The copula, as well as many other verbs, when conjugated in the standard politeness level, can be both a statement and a question. The intonation is key. A rising intonation poses a question, and a dropping intonation makes a statement. Both a question and answer can have the same exact word order, yet be different because of the intonation.

수진 씨는 학생이에요. - sujin ssi-neun haksaeng-ieyo.
(With a dropping intonation) - Sujin is a student.
수진 씨는 학생이에요? - sujin ssi-neun haksaeng-ieyo? (With a rising intonation) - Is Sujin a student?

For verbs other than the copula 이다 (ida), there is a set of conjugation rules [the 아/어/여 (a/eo/yeo) conjugation]. This will be covered in future lessons.

Grammar Point #2 - What - 뭐

뭐 (mwo) is a question word equivalent to the English "what." Here are a few examples of 뭐 (mwo) and it's usage:

▷ In This Dialog

이름이 뭐예요?
ireum-i mwo-yeyo?
What is your name?

♣ More Examples ♣

이거는 뭐예요?
igeo-neun mwo-yeyo?
What is this?

지금 뭐를 먹어요?
jigeum mwo-reul meogeoyo?
What are you eating now?

CULTURAL INSIGHT

There are some words in Korean, of which the politeness level cannot be lowered. Three of the most common words are 선생님 (teacher), 사장님 (president of a company), and 교수님 (professor at a university). These words CAN be lowered in politeness level (선생, 사장, 교수) and these words can be heard sometimes, but they are rarely used in addressing someone directly because they have an insulting connotation. This conversation was between an employer and employee. The employee, in this conversation was referred to as 사장님 (sajangnim), which is a general term used to mean "boss, president, owner." The following are a couple of examples where 사장님 (sajangnim) is used to refer to someone. (1) President/CEO of a company. (2) Owner of a business. (3) Employer.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
김치찌개	gimchijjigae	kimchi stew	noun
나	na	I, me (informal/neutral)	noun
먹다	meokta	to eat	verb
된장찌개	doenjangjjigae	soy bean stew

SAMPLE SENTENCES

나도 알아! nado ara! "I know, too!"	우리는 하루에 적어도 세 번 먹어야 한다. urineun harue jeogeodo se beon meogeoya handa. "We are supposed to eat at least three times a day."
갈비 먹고 싶어요. galbi meokgo sipeoyo. "I want to eat galbi."	같이 밥 먹으러 가요. gachi bap meogeoreo gayo. "Let's go eat together."
저는 된장찌개 안 먹어요. jeoneun doenjang-jjigae an meogeoyo. "I don't eat the bean-paste stew."

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces a new particle, the object marking particle. This conversation also introduces the intimate politeness level, 1st person pronoun, 나 (na).

Grammar Point #1 - The Object Marking Particle - eul/leul - 을/를

The object marking particle is a post position particle, which marks the object of the sentence. If a verb requires an object, the post position, object marking particle attaches to the object of the sentence to mark the object of the sentence. -을/를 (eul/reul) marks the object of the sentence, the noun that the verb of the sentence is acting upon. This particle is typically used in conjunction with action verbs.

The two object marking particles 을/를 (eul/reul) act exactly the same and serve the same purpose. They only differentiate in that 을 (eul) attaches to objects that end in consonants, and 를 (reul) attaches to objects that end in vowels.

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 저는 짬뽕을 먹었습니다.
jeoneun jjamppongeul meokeoseumnida.
I ate jjamppong.

Here the verb is 먹다 (meokda) - to eat. The object of the sentence is 짬뽕 (jjamppong). Here 을 (eul) is used because 짬뽕 (jjamppong) ends in a consonant. The object marker 을 (eul) marks what was eaten, the object of the sentence.

2.신디 씨는 액션 영화를 싫어해요.
sindi ssineun aeksyeon yeonghwareul sirheohaeyo.
Sindy doesn't like action movies.

Here the verb is 싫어하다 (sileohada) - to hate. The object of the sentence is 액션 영화 (aeksyeon yeonghwa). Here the object marking particle 를 (reul) is used because 영화 (yeonghwa) ends in a vowel.

3. 한국어를 좋아하죠?
hangugeoreul joahajyo?
You like Korean right?

Here the verb is 좋아하다 (joahada) - to like. The object of the sentence is 한국어 (hangugeo) - Korean. Here the object marking particle 를 (reul) is used because 한국어 (hangukeo) ends in a vowel.

Grammar Point #2 - 1st person pronoun - na - 나

나 (na) is a first-person pronoun which means "I." This is in the intimate or neutral way to refer to oneself. Because it is neutral, it can be seen as casual, or impolite especially when using this pronoun to an elderly, one's boss, or to a stranger.

This pronoun is used with close friends, close family members, or when one doesn't feel the need to respect the other person. In this conversation, 사장님 (sajangnim) - boss, used this pronoun because he didn't feel the need to respect 수진 (sujin), his employee.

Grammar Point #3 - a/eo/yeo conjugation - -아/어/여

아/어/여 are the syllables that start the simple present tense conjugation for the simple present tense (both intimate and standard politeness levels), the past tense (both intimate and standard politeness levels) and also start a few other grammatical constructions. This lesson will briefly focus on the simple present tense conjugation.

ㅏ(a) - is used for verbs that have ㅏ(a) or ㅗ(o) as the last vowel in the verb stem. ㅓ(eo) - is used for verbs that do not have ㅏ(a) or ㅗ(o) as the last vowel in the verb stem. ㅕ(yeo) - is used for 하다 (hada) verbs.

Many times there are deletions and contractions with repeating vowels (If a verb stem ends in a consonant there are no deletions or contractions). Please refer to the Premium Learning Center for the deletion/contraction chart.

▷ In This Dialog

The verb that was conjugated in the standard present tense in this conversation was 먹다 (meokda) - to eat. 먹다 (meokda) - to eat 먹 (meok) - verb stem 먹 + 어요 = 먹어요 - eat (standard politeness level)

♣ More Examples ♣

1.Verb stem with ㅏ(a) 사다 (sada) - to buy 사(sa) + 아(a) - 사(sa) (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense) 사요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

2.Verb stem with ㅗ(o) 오다 (oda) - to come 오(o) + 아(a) - 와(wa) (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense) 와요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Stew is the important food among typical Korean diet. A typical Korean family meal consists of rice, kimchi, various side dishes and a type of 찌개 (jjigae - stew). Families will typically make one pot of stew, and the family will share with one pot. So there can be as many as 3 or 4 spoons in the same pot, which is considered normal in Korean dining ettiquette.

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces three demonstrative pronouns and their usages in Korean. This conversation also introduces the post-position politeness particle -요 (-yo).

Grammar Point #1 - Demonstrative Pronouns - 이거, 그거, 저거

이거 (igeo) is a demonstrative pronoun used for inanimate objects. It translates to the English word "this." As discussed in the audio this word can be broken down a little further.

이 (this) + 것 (thing) = 이것 (this, this one, this thing) = 이거 (spoken)
- 이 (i) - a preposition demonstrative modifier - this.
- 것 (geot) - noun which translates as "thing."

The pronunciation of 이것 (igeot) can hinder smooth and flowing speech because of its sudden stop. Therefore, to make speech flow smoothly, 이거 (igeo) is used more often in spoken Korean. However, it is also used in instances where Korean is written as it would be used in speech (i.e. chatting, blogs, letters, e-mails).

The topic marking particle that follows 이것 (igeot) is -은 (-eun) because 이것 (igeot) ends with a consonant but 이거 (igeo) is followed by -는 (-neun) since it ends in a vowel. Therefore 이것은 (igeos-eun) is the same as 이거는 (igeo-neun). 이거는 (igeo-neun) is often shortened to 이건 (igeon). And just as the case was in this conversation, the topic marking particle can often be dropped.

The same applies to 그것 (geugeot) and 저것 (jeogeot):

그 (that) + 것 (thing) = 그것 (that, that one, that thing) = 그거 (spoken)
그 (geu) - a preposition demonstrative modifier - that.
것 (geot) - noun which translates as "thing."

그것은 = 그거는 = 그건
(geugeos-eun) = (geugeo-neun) = (geugeon)

저 (that... over there) + 것 (thing) = 저것 (that over there, that one over there, that thing over there) = 저거 (spoken) 저 (jeo) - a preposition demonstrative modifier - that over there.
것 (geot) - noun which translates as "thing."

저것은 = 저거는 = 저건
(jeogeos-eun) = (jeo-geot) = (jeogeon)

The difference between 그거 (geugeo) and 저거 (jeogeo) is that the two refer to things in different proximities to the listener.
Both are used for items that are far from the speaker, however:
그거 (geugeo) is used for things that are close to the listener.
저거 (jeogeo) is used for things that are far from the listener (and the speaker).

When referring to something that is beyond the physical reach or sight of both the listener and speaker, the word 그거 (geugeo) would be used as the demonstrative pronoun. In English, the word would be 'it' or 'that.'

Grammar Point #2 - The Politeness Particle - -요

-요 (-yo) is a post-position politeness marker, typically regarded for use in the standard politeness level. Many intimate level speech patterns can be made respectful by attaching the politeness particle, -요 (-yo). In addition, stand-alone nouns can also be made polite by using this politeness particle.

♣ More Examples ♣

바쁘다 (bappeuda) - to be busy
- 바빠 (bappa) - busy (intimate and casual - non-past)
- 바빠요 (bappayo) - busy (standard polite - non-past)

밝다 (balkda) - to be bright
- 밝아 (balga) - bright (intimate and casual - non-past)
- 밝아요 (balgayo) - bright (standard polite - non-past)

시원하다 (siwonhada) - to be refreshing
시원했어 (siwonhaesseo) - was refreshing (intimate and casual - past)
시원했어요 (siwonhaesseoyo) - was refreshing (standard polite - past)

☞ remember ☜

Note: The copula 이다 (ida) does not follow this simple add-on procedure.

이다 (ida) - to be (standard)
야/이야 (ya/iya) - is/are/am (intimate and casual - non-past)
예요/이에요 (yeyo/ieyo) (standard polite - non-past)

When it is attached to nouns, it acts as a post-position politeness particle. Typically, when nouns are stated as is, it is not considered polite. However, in order to express respect towards the listener, one can attach -요 (-yo) as a politeness particle.

♣ More Examples ♣

Nouns
Q:그거는 뭐예요? (geugeo-neun mwo-yeyo?) - What is that?
A1:가방 (gabang) - bag
A2:가방요 (gabangyo) - bag (standard polite)

Q:뭐를 먹어요? (mwo-reul meogeoyo?) - What are you eating?
A1: 김밥 (gimbap) - gimbap
A2: 김밥요. (gimbap-yo) - gimbap (standard polite)

However, when answering questions to those who deserve respect, it is generally more polite to refrain from giving one word answers.

☞ remember ☜

-요 (-yo) also attaches to question words.

왜? (wae) - why?
왜요? (waeyo) - why? (polite)

누구? (nugu) - who?
누구요? (nuguyo) - who? (polite)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korea has a huge black market for knock-offs. There are some extremely highly quality bags in certain places. Typically, these places will be located in separate room to avoid getting caught from the police, where the clerk will show customers bags. These bags have grades as well as'A' being the highest grade. Sometimes these bags can cost up to around 75% the price of a genuine bag. This is a testament to the quality that these counterfeiters produce.

GRAMMAR

In this lesson, we cover something very similar to demonstrative pronouns, demonstrative place words. And as demonstrative places words and pronouns are related, we'll go over the missing link, demonstrative modifiers. In addition, we will also be going over the static location particle.

Grammar Point #1 - Place Words - 여기, 거기, 저기

여기 (yeogi), 거기 (geogi), and 저기 (jeogi) are place words, which are roughly equivalent to "here," "there," and "over there" in English. These words are pronouns used to describe places.

☞ remember ☜

여기 (yeogi) - means here

♣ More Examples ♣

여기는 한국입니다.
(yeogi-neun hanguk-imnida.)
Here is Korea. (literally, here, korea, is)

☞ remember ☜

거기 (geogi) means 'there," However, the nuance with this word is that the listener is close to the place under discussion.

♣ More Examples ♣

(a phone call)
A: 저는 지금 학교에 있어요. (jeo-neun jigeum hakgyo-e isseoyo.)
B: 거기 수현이 있어요? (geogi suhyeon-i isseoyo?)

A: I'm at school now.
B: Is Suhyeon there?

In this instance, 거기 (geogi) is used because A is at the area under discussion, where as B is not at that location. A is close to the location, B is not.

☞ remember ☜

저기 (jeogi) means over there, "however, the nuance with this word is that both the listener and speaker are far from the place under discussion.

♣ More Examples ♣

(asking for directions)
A: 맥도날드는 어디예요? (maekdonaldeu-neun eodi-yeyo?)
B: 저기에 있어요. (jeogi-e isseoyo.)

A: Where is McDonald's?
B: It's over there.

In this instance, 저기 (jeogi) is used because both A and B are far from the place under discussion, McDonalds.

☞ remember ☜

어디 is the question word, which is equivalent to the English question word 'where."

☞ remember ☜

Quicktip: These place words, 여기 (yeogi), 거기 (geogi), 저기 (jeogi), when used in conjunction with the existential verb, 있다 (itda), the location particle -에 (-e) is often dropped. Also, there are contractions that occur as well.

♣ More Examples ♣

The following are a few examples:

(full standard sentence) = (sentence without location particle) = (contracted sentence) 여기에 있다 = 여기 있다 = 여깄다 거기에 있다 = 거기 있다 = 거깄다
저기에 있다 = 저기 있다 = 저깄다

Grammar Point #2 - Demonstrative Modifiers - 이, 그, 저

Demonstrative Adjectives are used in conjunction with nouns in order to modify them. They can be expressed as follows.

이 [명사] - i [noun] - this [noun]
그 [명사] - geu [noun] - that [noun]
(this demonstrative modifier indicates that the noun is far from the speaker, but close to the listener)
저 [명사] -jeo [noun] - that [noun] (over there)
(this demonstrative modifier indicates that the noun is far from both the speaker and listener)
어느 [명사] - eoneu [noun] - which [noun]

To modify a noun simply place 이 (i), 그 (geu), 저 (jeo), 어느 (eoneu) before any noun to describe the noun as such.

이 [명사] - i [noun] - this [noun]
그 [명사] - geu [noun] - that [noun]
저 [명사] -jeo [noun] -that [noun] (over there)
어느 [명사] - eoneu [noun] - which [noun]

♣ More Examples ♣

1.그 사람은 미국사람입니다.
geu saram-eun miguk-saram-imnida.
That person is American.

2. 어느 극장에 갈꺼야?
eoneu geukjang-e galkkeoya?
Which theater are you going to?

3. 이 친구는 중학교 친구예요.
i chingu-neun junghakgyo chingu-eyo.
This friend is a junior high school friend.

4. 저 건물이 뭐예요?
jeo geonmuri mwoyeyo?
What is that building over there?

Grammar Point #3 - The Static Location Particle - 에

The particle -에 (-e) can be translated into English as "at," "to," "on" or "in," depending on the context. It can be used to indicate time, direction, or a specific location where an action takes place. In this specific lesson it is used to indicate a static location action and can be translated as "in" or "at."

Static location: The particle -에 (-e) can be used to indicate that a stationary action is taking place at a certain location. Inactive verbs are used to show these stationary actions [i.e. 있다 (itda) - to exist, 없다 (eoptda) - to not exist, 살다 (salda) - to live, 많다 (manta) - to be many]. Depending on the verb used, -에 (-e) can be translated as "in" or "at."
Static Location: The particle -에 (-e) is attached to a place noun and then followed by an inactive verb.

☞ remember ☜

Place word + 에 + 있다/없다/살다/많다
Place word + (e) + (itda/eopta/salda/manhta).
Place word + at/in + to exist/to not exist/to live/to be many.

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 과장님은 지금 중국에 있어요. (gwajangnimeun jigeum jungguge isseoyo.)
The manager is in China now.

2.요세프는 어디에 살아요? (yosepeu-neun eodi-e sarayo)
Where do you live, Yosef? (Where at do you live, Yosef?)

3.누나가 집에 없어? (nunaga jibe eopseo?)
Is your sister not home? (Is your sister not at home?)

4.강남에 예쁜 여자들이 많아요. (gangnam-e yeppeun yeoja-deul-i manhayo)
There are many pretty girls in Gangnam.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Unlike some countries, in Korea, public toilets are totally free of charge. You can easily find toilets just about anywhere, especially if you are in Seoul. The surest place you can go to is a subway station, but if you are not anywhere near a subway station, you can just go into a coffee shop or a fast food restaurant and easily use the bathroom.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
알다	alda	to know
잘	jal	well	adverb
모르다	moreuda	to not know	verb

SAMPLE SENTENCES

알고 싶어요. algo sipeoyo. "I want to know."	일본어 잘 해요. ilboneo jal haeyo. "I can speak Japanese well."
제가 모르는 사람입니다. jega moreuneun saramimnida. "It's somebody I don't know."	저도 잘 몰라요. jeodo jal mollayo. "I don't know much about it either."

GRAMMAR

This conversation reviews the static location particle -에 (-e), as well as it goes over the adverb 잘 (jal).

Grammar Point #1 - Well - 잘

As Korean is a language that strays away from directness, Korean uses certain words and grammatical structures to soften the language. One of the words that are used for this purpose is the adverb 잘 (jal) - well. This adverb is commonly used in conjunction with the verb 모르다 (moreuda) - to not know.
Instead of saying outright that one does not know something, it is better (in terms of being indirect) to say that one does not know so well.

♣ More Examples ♣

몰라요.
Mollayo
I don't know.

잘 몰라요.
Jal mollayo
I don't know well.
In sentence 2, the adverb 잘 (jal) makes the sentence a little less direct.

Grammar Point #2 - Static Location Particl - e - 에

The particle -에 (-e) can be translated into English as "at," "to," "on" or "in," depending on the context. It can be used to indicate time, direction, or a specific location where an action takes place. In this specific lesson it is used to indicate a static location action and can be translated as "in" or "at."
Static location: The particle -에 (-e) can be used to indicate that a stationary action is taking place at a certain location. Inactive verbs are used to show these stationary actions [i.e. 있다 (itda) - to exist, 없다 (eoptda) - to not exist, 살다 (salda) - to live, 많다 (manta) - to be many]. Depending on the verb used, -에 (-e) can be translated as "in" or "at."

▷ In This Dialog
---
(1)엄마: 진우는 어디에 있습니까?
Eomma: Jinuneun eodie itseumnikka?
Mother: Where is Jinu?
In this sentence, the static location particle, -에 (-e) is suffixed to the question word 어디 (eodi) - here.

(3)엄마: ...여기에 없습니까?!
Eomma: ...Yeogi-e eopseumnikka?!
Mother: ...He's not here?!
The static location particle, -에 (-e) is suffixed to the demonstrative place word 여기 (yeogi), which means 'here.'

(6)베이비시터: 아... 진우가 저기에 있습니다.
Beibisiteo: A, jinuga jeogie itseumnida.
Babysitter: Oh, Jinu's over there!
The static location particle, -에 (-e) is suffixed to the demonstrative place word 저기 (jeogi), 'over there,' in this sentence.

♣ More Examples ♣

저는 집에 있습니다.
Jeoneun jibe itseumnida.
I am at home.
In this sentence, the particle -에 (-e) indicates the location of where "I" exists - home.

지성은 영국에 삽니다.
Jiseongeun yeongguge samnida
Jiseong lives in England.
In this sentence the particle -에 (-e) indicates the location where 지성 (jiseong) lives - in England.

학교에 학생들이 많아요.
Hakgyoe haksaengdeuri manayo.
There are many students at school.
In this sentence the particle -에 (-e) indicates the location where 학생들 (haksengdeul, students) are many - school.

☞ remember ☜

Notice that 살다 (salda) - to live, 있다 (itda) - to exist, 많다 (manta) - to be many, are all inactive verbs.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Koreans often tend to say '잘 몰라요' (jal mollayo; literally meaning "I don't know well.") as a habit even when they actually know nothing about the topic and should be just saying '몰라요' (mollayo). If you say '잘 몰라요,' (jal mollayo) it literally means that you know something about it but not too well. But even when someone knows nothing at all about what you're asking, you might get this answer '잘 몰라요' (jal mollayo). However, when somebody says 잘 모르겠지만~ and connects the sentence, then it literally means 'i don't know well but~'.

GRAMMAR

This lesson is a review of a few grammatical structures that have been introduced so far. This lesson also introduces essential vocabulary words for conversational Korean.

Vocabulary Break Down #1 - 네

네 (ne) is one of the most basic words used in conversational Korean. It is used as a positive answer to mean "yes" for "yes" or "no" questions. In addition to an answer for questions it is also used quite frequently in other contexts. In most other contexts, it's used to recognize something.

In this conversation, 네 (ne), was used in line 2. After Tom introduces himself on the phone. Mina replies "아. 네. 톰 씨. 안녕하세요." (a. ne. tom ssi. annyeonghaseyo.). Here, 네 (ne), does not mean "yes," but is rather used to recognize Tom. Mina is recognizing one or more of the following: Tom's call, Tom's existence, Tom's presence, or something else.

♣ More Examples ♣

Here are a few examples where 네 (ne) is used to recognize someone or something:

1. A boss handing an employee some papers:
The first word one might hear from the employee is 네 (ne). In this situation the employee would be recognizing the boss, or recognizing the work that is handed to him/her.

2. An uncle asks for some water.
The response would be 네 (ne). Here, 네 (ne), is used to recognize the uncle's request.

Vocabulary Break Down #2 - Well/Then - 그럼

그럼 (geureom) is used as a sentence connector. It means "well," or "then," but it can also mean "if it is so." And so the speaker takes the information from the first sentence, analyzes that information, and then gives a response to that sentence.

The origins of this word is from the verb 그렇다 (geureota) - to be so. Then the conditional (-이라면) derivation makes it 그러면 (geureomyeon) - if that is so. And that is contracted to 그럼 (geureom).

Vocabulary Break Down #3 - The Propositive - 갑시다 (Let's Go)

갑시다 (gapsida) is the verb 가다 (gada) - to go - in the Formal propositive. The propositive is used when making a proposition to a person or a group of people, asking them to do something together. It can be translated as 'lets (verb).'

The following is the verb 가다 (gada) in the propositive conjugated into different politeness levels.

갑시다 (gapsida) - Formal propositive
가지요 (gajiyo) -> 가죠 (gajyo) - Standard propositive
가자 (gaja) - Informal propositive

CULTURAL INSIGHT

남대문 (The South Gate) used to be the main gate of the citadel that surrounded Seoul in the Chosun Dynasty. It is also Korea's official National Treasure no.1. Its construction started in 1395 and was finished 3 years later in 1398. And now it is the oldest wooden architecture that still remains in Korea. The area around it has now developed into a market place, and now 남대문 시장 (The Namdaemun Market) is one of the most popular budget shopping places in Korea along with 동대문 시장 (The Dongdaemun Market). While 동대문 시장 is usually famous for shopping for clothes, 남대문 시장 has a wider range of products, which is why it is one of the most sought-after sites in Korea, along with the fact that it is within a walking distance from 명동 (myeongdong), another popular touristic district in Seoul. A tragic incident happened on February 10th, 2008. To the shock of the entire Korean people, a man in his 70's set 남대문 (namdaemun) on fire out of personal grudge that had nothing to do with the Gate. The Korean government has announced its plan to rebuild it using as much material from what is left from the fire as possible, and the reconstruction is expected to take 3 years.

4. 톰 : 미나 씨… 여기 쌉니다. 돈이 없습니까?
5. 미나 : 네, 없습니다.

ENGLISH

1. Employee : Welcome!
2. Tom : Hello...
3. Mina : Tom, it's expensive here.
4. Tom : Mina, it's cheap here. Don't you have money?
5. Mina : No, I don't have money.

ROMANIZATION

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
비싸다	bissada	to be expensive
싸다	ssada	to be cheap, to be inexpensive
돈	don	money	noun
어서오십시오	eoseoosipsio	Welcome (a greeting used when entering a business establishment)

SAMPLE SENTENCES

저 자동차는 너무 비쌉니다. jeo jadongchaneun neomu bissamnida. That car is too expensive.	이 책은 아주 쌉니다. i chaekeun aju ssamnida. "This book is very cheap."
계산대로 가서 돈을 내자. gyesandaero gaseo doneul naeja. "Let's go to the counter and pay the bill."	돈 줘! don jwo! "Give me money!"

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Descriptive Verbs (Adjectives)

Predicates in Korean can be categorized into two different categories, verbs and adjectives. Adjectives, however, must be inflected and conjugated, in an almost identical fashion to verbs; because they are so similar to verbs, they are commonly referred to as "descriptive verbs."

Descriptive verbs describe things without the help of the copula.

♣ More Examples ♣

저는 행복해요.
jeoneun haengbokaeyo.
I (am) happy. (lit. I, happy)

이 영화는 재미 없어요.
i yeonghwa-neun jaemi eopseoyo.
This movie (is) not interesting. (Lit. this, movie, not interesting)

☞ remember ☜

Notice in these examples how the copula (an auxiliary verb in English) is not included, but the meaning is still conveyed.

Grammar Point #2 - Particle Omissions

In this conversation the phrase 여기 비쌉니다 (yeogi bissamnida) was used. It doesn't literally mean "Here is expensive," but means "As for here... It is expensive." The word 'here' should actually have the topic marking particle - 는 (-neun) at the end, but it is left off because particles can often be omitted in speech.

Particle omission is quite common in Korean because many times, sentences can be clear even with the omission of particles. In this conversation, the topic of the sentence is quite clear, even without the topic marking particle. The same applies to many other particles as well (subject marking, directional, etc.).

The topic marking particle should be used in this context because there is no reference point as to where to start the conversation. Because Mina is speaking first, the topic marking particle is used to set the topic of conversation. However, it was dropped in this conversation.

Grammar Point #3 - Acknowledgment of Others - 네

네 (ne) is one of the most basic words used in conversational Korean. It is used as a positive answer to mean "yes" for "yes" or "no" questions. In addition to an answer to questions it is also used quite frequently in other contexts. In most other contexts, it's used to recognize someone or something.

In this conversation, 네 (ne), was used in line 2. After the store employee welcomes Tom and Mina to the store, Tom replies with 네 (ne). Here, 네 (ne), does not mean "yes," but is rather used to recognize the store employee and his greeting.

Here are a few examples where 네 (ne) is used to recognize someone or something.

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. A boss handing an employee some papers.
The first word one might hear from the employee is 네 (ne). In this situation the employee would be recognizing the boss, or the work that was handed to him/her.

2. An uncle asks for some water.
The response would be 네 (ne). Here, 네 (ne), is used to recognize the uncle's request.

3. A store employee welcomes you to the store.
A typical response would be 네 (ne). Here, 네 (ne) recognizes the employee's greeting.

Vocabulary Breakdown #1 - expensive/inexpensive - 비싸다/싸다

싸다 (ssada) means 'cheap,' and 비 (非) means "not" or "no", so 비싸다 (bissada) literally means "not cheap."

비싸다 (bissada) - to be expensive
- 바쌉니다 - Formal Present Tense
- 비싸요 - Standard Politeness Level
- 비싸 - Intimate Politeness Level

싸다 - to be inexpensive, to be cheap
- 쌉니다 - Formal Present Tense
- 싸요 - Standard Politeness Level
- 싸 - Intimate Politeness Level

GRAMMAR

This conversation introduces an essential adverb, 안 (an) - the Negative Adverb.

Grammar Point #1 - The Negative Adverb - 안

안 (an) is an adverb which functions to negate a verb. It is typically translated as "not" or "do not." It is usually used with verbs (both action and description), and placed before the verb. When used in conjunction with action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is usually placed after the 하다 (hada) noun and right before the actual verb 하다 (hada). For non-action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is placed before the whole verb.

▷ Construction

Action or Descriptive Verbs [안] + [동사]
[an] + [dongsa]
[not] + [verb]

Action 하다 (hada) Verbs
[명사] + [안] + [하다 동사]
[myeongsa] + [an] + [hada dongsa]
[noun] + [not] + [hada verb]

Non-action 하다 Verbs
[안] + [하다 동사]
[an] + [hada dongsa]
[not] + [hada verb]

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 오늘 학교 안 갔어요.
oneul hakgyo an gasseoyo.
I didn't go to school today.

2. 저는 공부 안 해요.
jeo-neun gongbu an haeyo.
I don't study.

3.커피를 안 좋아해요.
keopireul an joahaeyo.
I don't like coffee.

▷ In This Dialog

(2)톰: 여기는 안 비쌉니다.
(2)tom: yeogi-neun an bissamnida.
(2)Tom: It's not expensive here.

(3)미나: 안 쌉니다.
(3)mina: an ssamnida.
(3)Mina: It's not cheap (It's not inexpensive).

(4)톰: 안 비쌉니다!!
(4)tom: an bissamnida!!
(4)Tom: It's not expensive!!

☞ remember ☜

Note: Another way to negate a sentence is to use the sentence ending -지 않다 (-ji anta). The difference between the negative adverb 안 (an) and the negative sentence ender is that 안 (an) is seen as colloquial, whereas the negative sentence ending -지 않다 (-ji anta) is seen as the standard way in which to negate a sentence.

저 사람을 만났어요? jeo sarameul mannasseoyo? "Did you meet that person?"

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Demonstrative Adjectives - 이/그/저

Demonstrative Adjectives are used in conjunction with nouns in order to modify them. They can be expressed as follows.

▷ Construction

Simply place 이 (i), 그 (geu), 저 (jeo), 어느 (eoneu) before any noun to describe the noun as such.

이 [명사] - i [noun] - this [noun]
그 [명사] - geu [noun] - that [noun]
저 [명사] -jeo [noun] -that [noun] over there
어느 [명사] - eoneu [noun] - which [noun]

▷ In This Dialog
---
(1)민영: 이 사람이 누구예요? (1)minyeong: i saram-i nuguyeyo? (1)Minyeong: Who is this person?

The demonstrative adjective 이 (i) - this, is modifying the noun 사람 (saram) - person. The result is 이 사람 (i saram) - this person.

♣ More Examples ♣

1.그 사람이 미국사람입니다.
geu saram-i miguk-saram-imnida.
That person is American.

2.어느 극장에 갈 거야?
eoneu geukjang-e gal geoya?
Which theater are you going to?

3.이 친구는 제 중학교 친구예요.
i chingu-neun je junghakgyo chingu-yeyo.
This friend is a friend from junior high school.

4.저 건물이 뭐예요?
jeo geonmul-i mwo-yeyo?
What is that building over there?

☞ remember ☜

Note: The Demonstrative pronouns (이거, 그거, 저거 - this, that, that over there) indicate, not visibility, but proximity to the listener.

Review #1 - Object Marking Particle - 을/를

-을/를 (-eul/reul) is an object marking particle. It marks the object of the sentence, the noun that the verb of the sentence is acting upon. This particle is typically used in conjunction with action verbs.

-을 (eul) is attached to nouns which end in consonants.
-를 (reul) is attached to nouns which end in vowels.

▷ Construction

[받침으로 끝나는 목적격] + [을]
[batchim-euro kkeutna-neun mokjeokgyeok] + [eul]
[objects ending in a consonant] + [eul]

[받침이 없는 목적격] + [를]
[batchim-i eops-neun mokjeokgyeok] + [reul]
[object not ending in a consonant] + [reul]

♣ More Examples ♣

1.저는 짬뽕을 먹었습니다.
jeo-neun jjamppong-eul meogeosseumnida.
I ate jjampong.

2.신디 씨는 액션 영화를 싫어해요.
sindi ssi-neun aeksyeon yeonghwa-reul silheohaeyo.
Cindy doesn't like action movies.

3.한국어를 좋아하죠?
hangukeo-reul johahajyo?
You like Korean right?

Review #2 - Standard Politeness - 이에요/예요

The Standard politeness level is used when the speaker is speaking to someone older, to a stranger, or to someone the speaker wishes to respect. The following relationships would be appropriate for a speaker to use standard politeness: older family members, older friends, strangers, teachers, acquaintances, colleagues, sales associates, waiters, etc. The standard politeness level typically ends with the politeness particle 요 (yo).

The copula 이다 (ida) in the standard politeness level is 이에요 (ieyo) and 예요 (yeyo).

이에요 (ieyo) is used with nouns that end in consonants. 예요 (yeyo) is used with nouns that end in vowels.

In the standard politeness level, questions and statements/answers can be formed with the same word order and the same pronunciation, but with different intonations. Typically a rising intonation at the end of the sentence indicates that the speaker is asking a question, and a falling intonation at the end of the sentence indicates a statement.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

When answering a negative question, Koreans say 네 (ne - yes) to agree with you, while the answer would be 'No' in English. So 네 (ne) in Korean means that you agree with the other person's statement/question. Example: A: 밥 안 먹었지? - bap an meokeotji? - You haven't eaten yet, right? B: 네, 아직. - ne, ajik - No, not yet. (Literally: Yes, not yet.)

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Hada - a Post-Nominal Verb - 하다

When foreign words are introduced into the Korean language, they are not assimilated as verbs, but rather as nouns (specifically verbal nouns) - regardless of if the loan word is a noun or a verb. These words never function as independent predicates and must be Koreanized with a native predicate.

하다 (hada) functions as this native predicate to "Koreanize" the foreign loan word. Most words are from Chinese, and thus most have accompanying Hanja characters. However, since the assimilation of Chinese words into Korean was over a long period of time and such a long time ago, they are not regarded as Chinese words, but Korean words with Chinese roots. Recently, many English words are being verbalized as well using 하다 (hada) as well.

▷ Construction

명사 + 하다 = (명사)하다
(Noun) + hada = (Noun)hada

♣ More Examples ♣

시작 + 하다 (sijak + hada) - start + to do
시작하다 (sijakhada) - to start

공부 + 하다 (gongbu + hada) - study + to do
공부하다 (gongbuhada) - to study

☞ remember ☜

While 하다 (hada) helps Koreanize foreign loan words, it can also form new verbs combined with some pure Korean words.

▷ Construction

일 + 하다 (il + hada) - work + to do
일하다 (ilhada) - to work

사랑 + 하다 (love + hada) - love + to do
사랑하다 (saranghada) - to love

♣ More Examples ♣

1.학교가 오늘 시작해요? (hakgyo-ga oneul sijakhaeyo?) - Does school start today?
2.지금 공부해요? (jigeum gongbuhaeyo?) - Are you studying now?
3.토요일에도 일해요? (toyoil-edo ilhaeyo?) - Do you also work on Saturdays?

Grammar Point #2 - Hada - a Transitive Verb - 하다

하다 (hada) verbs can also be used as transitive verbs (a verb that requires an object). When this happens, there is a space between the noun and 하다 (hada). The noun typically requires an object marker, but that is often dropped in colloquial speech.

When 하다 (hada) verbs are used in their transitive state, it puts more emphasis on the object, the noun. Where as the post-nominal 하다 (hada) is neutral and doesn't place any emphasis on anything. However, most transitive verbs can be used as post-nominal verbs by simply removing the object marking particle.

♣ More Examples ♣

공부하다 (gongbuhada) - to study
공부를 하다 (gongbu-reul hada) - to study (with object marker)
-this places emphasis on the noun

공부 하다 (gongbu hada) - to study (without object marker)
-should place emphasis on the noun, but is indecipherable between the post-nominal verb and transitive verb.

☞ remember ☜

Negation: When this verb is negated, it can be negated in two ways. The first is with the grammatical structure -지 않다 (-ji anta), or the negative adverb -안 (-an). When the verb is negated using -안 (-an), the 하다 (hada) verb must be used as a transitive (with or without the object marker) as it was in this conversation.

♣ More Examples ♣

공부를 하다 (gongbu-reul hada) - as a transitive verb (with object marker)
공부 하다 (gongbu hada) - as a transitive verb (without object marker)
공부를 안 하다 (gongbu-reul an hada) - negated transitive verb (with object marker)
공부 안 하다 (gongbu an hada) - negated transitive verb (without object marker)

Grammar Point #3 - Negative Adverb - 안

안 (an) is an adverb which functions to negate a verb. It is typically translated as "not" or "do not." It is usually used with action verbs, and placed before the verb. When used in conjunction with action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is placed after the 하다 (hada) noun and right before 하다 (hada). For non-action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is placed before the whole verb.

▷ Construction

[안] + [동사]
[an] + [dongsa]
[do not] + [verb]

[명사] + [안] + [하다 동사]
[myeongsa] + [an] + [hada dongsa]
[noun] + [not] + [hada verb]

[안] + [하다 동사]
[an] + [hada dongsa]
[not] + [hada verb]

♣ More Examples ♣

1.오늘 학교 안 갔어요.
oneul hakgyo an gasseoyo.
I didn't go to school today.

2.저는 공부 안 해요.
jeo-neun gongbu an haeyo.
I don't study.

3.커피를 안 좋아해요.
keopi-reul an johahaeyo.
I don't like coffee.

Grammar Point #4 - Telling Time

Sino-Korean Numbers:
1 하나 (한) hana (han)
2 둘 (두) dul (du)
3 셋 (세) set (se)
4 넷 (네) net (ne)
5 다섯 daseot
6 여섯 yeoseot
7 일곱 ilgop
8 여덟 yeodeol
9 아홉 ahop
10 열 yeol
11 열하나 (열한) yeol-hana (yeol-han)
12 열둘 (열두) yeol-dul (yeol-du)

To construct state an hour simply state the hour with a Native-Korean number and add the counter 시 (si).

Korean	Romanization	English
한 시	han si	1 o’clock
두 시	du si	2 o’clock
세 시	se si	3 o’clock
네 시	ne si	4 o’clock
다섯 시	daseot si	5 o’clock
여섯 시	yeoseot si	6 o’clock
일곱 시	ilgop si	7 o’clock
여덟 시	yeodeol si	8 o’clock
아홉 시	ahop si	9 o’clock
열 시	yeol si	10 o’clock
열한 시	yeolhan si	11 o’clock
열두 시	yeoldu si	12 o’clock

Note: Numbers one through four change slightly in pronunciation when a counter follows.

Typical Pronunciation	Pronunciation Change	Number with 시 (si)
하나 (hana)	한 (han)	한 시 (han si)
둘 (dul)	두 (du)	두 시 (du si)
셋(set)	세(se)	세 시 (se si)
넷(net)	네(ne)	네 시 (ne si)

To express minutes, state the minute using a Sino-Korean number and add the counter 분 (bun).

♣ More Examples ♣

1:00 - 한 시 (han si)
8:00 - 여덟 시 (yeodeolp si)
3:10 - 세 시 십 분 (se si sip bun) - note the pronunciation change for 3
7:15 - 일곱 시 십오 분 (ilgop si sipo bun)
5:30 - 다섯 시 삼십 분 (daseot si samsip bun)
9:45 - 아홉 시 사십오 분 (ahop si sasipo bun)
12:57 - 열두 시 오십칠 분 (yeoldu si osipchil bun)

Grammar Point #5 - Time Particle - e - 에

The particle -에 (-e) can be used to indicate the time at which an action takes place. This particle is attached to time specific words, which includes time, day of the week, date, month, and year. Depending on context this particle can be translated as "at," "to," or "in."

♣ More Examples ♣

[두 시 반에 끝나요.] (du si ban-e kkeutnayo.) - It ends at two thirty.
In this sentence, the particle -에 (-e) indicates the time it ends - 2:30.

[천 구백 오십 일년에 태어났습니다] (cheon gubaek osip ilnyeon-e taeeonasseumnida) - (I) was born in 1951.
In this sentence, the particle -에 (-e) indicates the year (I) was born.

[월요일에 학교에 안 갑니다.] (woryoil-e hakgyo-e an gamnida]
I don't go to school on Monday. In this specific sentence the particle -에 (-e) is used twice. The first is to mark the time (월요일/woryoil - Monday) and the other one (학교에) marks the direction (because it is used with the verb 가다 (gada) - to go.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Hada as a Post-Nominal Verb - 하다

하다 (hada) functions as a predicate to change a noun into a verb.

▷ Construction

명사 + 하다 = (명사)하다
(Noun) + hada = (Noun)hada

In this dialog, 하다 (hada) combined with 공부 (gongbu), 일 (il) and 시작 (sijak) to form verbs.

▷ Construction

공부 + 하다 (gongbu + hada) - study + to do
공부하다 (gongbuhada) - to study

일 + 하다 (il + hada) - work + to do
일하다 (ilhada) - to work

시작 + 하다 (sijak + hada) - start + to do
시작하다 (sijakhada) - to start

♣ More Examples ♣

1.학교가 언제 시작해요? (hakgyo-ga eonje sijakhaeyo?) - When does school start?
2.지금 무엇을 공부해요? (jigeum mueos-eul gongbuhaeyo?) - What are you studying now?
3.오늘은 몇 시까지 일해요? (oneul-eun myeot si-kkaji ilhaeyo?) - When are you working till today?

Grammar Point #2 - The Negation Adverb - -안

안 (an) is an adverb which functions to negate a verb. It is typically translated as "not" or "do not." It is usually used with action verbs, and placed before the verb. When used in conjunction with action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is usually placed after the 하다 (hada) noun and right before 하다 (hada). For non-action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is placed before the whole verb.

▷ Construction

Action and Description Verbs [안] + [동사]
[an] + [dongsa]
[do not] + [verb]

Action Hada Verb [명사] + [안] + [하다 동사]
[myeongsa] + [an] + [hada dongsa]
[noun] + [not] + [hada verb]

Non-Action Hada Verb [안] + [하다 동사]
[an] + [hada dongsa]
[not] + [hada verb]

In this dialog, 안 (an) negated 공부하다 (gongbuhada), 일하다 (ilhada) and 시작하다 (sijakhada) using the construction:
[명사] + [안] + [하다 동사]
[noun] + [an] + [hada verb]

1. 공부하다 --> 공부 안 하다
2. 일하다 --> 일 안 하다
3. 시작하다 --> 시작 안 하다

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Verb Conjugation - 아/어/여

아/어/여 (- a/eo/yeo) are the syllables that start the present tense conjugation for the simple present tense (both intimate and standard politeness levels), the past tense (both intimate and standard politeness levels) and also start a few other grammatical constructions.

▷ Construction

ㅏ - is used for verbs that have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
ㅓ - is used for verbs that do not have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
ㅕ - is used for 하다 (hada) verbs.

Many times there are deletions and contractions with repeating vowels (If a verb stem ends in a consonant there are no deletions or contractions). The following is a list for deletion and contractions:

ㅗ/ㅏ Verb Stems
1.ㅏ + ㅏ -> ㅏ
2.ㅗ + ㅏ -> ㅘ

All other verbs
3.ㅓ + ㅓ -> ㅓ

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Possessive Pronoun

Possessive pronouns are used to attribute ownership of an object to someone. Like any other pronoun, these replace the nouns. Different possessive pronouns are used according to the speakers relationship with the listener. Humbling pronouns, neutral pronouns, and intimate pronouns, all indicate the relationship between the listener and the speaker. The possessive pronoun covered in this lesson was 제 (je), the humbling pronoun.

Possessive Pronouns are in reality a contraction of pronouns and the possessive particle.

제 = 저의 (jeo-ui) - 저 + 의 - first person humbling pronoun + possessive particle
제 (je) is used to humble oneself in the presence of someone the speaker respects.

♣ More Examples ♣

1.제 친구가 호주에 살아요. (je chingu-ga hoju-e sarayo.)
My friend lives in Australia.

2.제 회사는 삼성이에요. (je hoesa-neun samseong-ieyo.)
My company is Samsung.

Grammar Point #2 - Standard/Intimate Politeness Conjugation - a/eo/yeo - 아/어/여

아/어/여 are the syllables that start the present tense conjugation for the simple present tense (both intimate and standard politeness levels), the past tense (both intimate and standard politeness levels) and also start a few other grammatical constructions.

▷ Construction

ㅏ - is used for verbs that have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
ㅓ - is used for verbs that do not have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
ㅕ - is used for 하다 (hada) verbs.

Many times there are deletions and contractions with repeating vowels (If a verb stem ends in a consonant there are no deletions or contractions). The following is a list:

ㅗ/ㅏ Verb Stems
1. ㅏ + ㅏ -> ㅏ
2. ㅗ + ㅏ -> ㅘ

All other verbs
3. ㅓ + ㅓ -> ㅓ
4. ㅜ + ㅓ -> ㅝ
5. ㅡ + ㅓ -> ㅓ
6. ㅣ + ㅓ -> ㅕ
7. ㅐ + ㅓ -> ㅐ

하다 verbs
8. 하 + ㅕ -> 해

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. Verb stem with ㅏ [ㅏ + ㅏ -> ㅏ]
- 사다 (sada) - to buy

8. 하다 (hada) verb [하 + ㅕ -> 해]
- 하 + 여 -> 해
- 해 (Intimate politeness level - simple present tense)
- 해요 (Standard politeness level - simple present tense)

Grammar Point #3 - Irregular 'ㅡ' Verbs

Verbs that end with the vowel '으' are conjugated differently than other verbs when the conjugation starts with a vowel. Essentially, 'ㅡ' is replaced with the vowel that starts the conjugation. When the conjugation starts with a consonant, the verb is conjugated as normal. The conjugation must start with a vowel. In addition, the verb must end with the '으' vowel, and not with a consonant for this irregular conjugation to take place (e.g. 늦다 (neutda) to be late - this verb is conjugated as normal).

In addition, there is an irregular conjugation when the verb that is being conjugated has two or more syllables and the vowel in the syllable immediately preceding the '으' syllable is either '아' or '오.' The preceding syllable affects the conjugation and instead of determining which conjugation to use according to 으 (which would be typically be a 어 conjugation), the verb is conjugated as if '아' or '오' was the determining vowel (which would be typically be a 아 conjugation).

In this conversation, three verbs followed this irregular conjugation. (1)바쁘다 (bappeuda), (2)나쁘다 (nappeuda), and (3)크다 (keuda).

- 크 (keu) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation
- ㅋ (k) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem (with the vowel 으 removed) + 어 (this conjugation is used because 어 is the default conjugation)
- 커 (keo) - big (Intimate Politeness Level simple present tense conjugation)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

The word 나쁘다 (nappeuda) is very direct, and doesn't leave a lot of room for interpretation. In Korea, being indirect is a valued virtue, and as a result, the word 나쁘다 (nappeuda) - to be bad - is not commonly used. More commonly, the phrase 안 좋다 (an jota) - to be not good - is used with much more frequently to describe things. It is way of saying 나쁘다 (nappeuda) to be bad, without being too direct.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Hada Verbs - 하다 동사

하다 (hada) can be used as follows:

(Note: Usages 1 and 2 were introduced in Beginner Lesson #24 - these are not used in this conversation)

1. A transitive verb (a verb that needs an object)
- 숙제를 하다.
- sukje-reul hada.
- To do homework.

2. Post-nominal verb
- 공부하다.
- gongbuhada.
- To (do) study.

3. Post-nominal descriptive verb
- 미안하다. - In this conversation
- mianhada. - To (be) sorry.

When foreign words are introduced into the Korean language, they are not assimilated as verbs, but rather as nouns (specifically verbal nouns) - regardless of the loan word being a noun or a verb. These words never function as independent predicates and must be Koreanized with a native predicate.

하다 (hada) functions as this native predicate to "Koreanize" the foreign loan word. Most words are from Chinese, and thus most have accompanying Hanja characters. Recently, English words are being verbalized as well. Generally speaking, 하다 (hada) can attach to a noun and create a verb (post nominal verb).

미안 (mian) from 미안하다 (mianhada - to be sorry) does have Hanja characters. However, 미안 (mian) is rarely used as a noun.

4. Auxiliary Transitive Verb (only used for 2nd or 3rd persons)
- 좋아하다 - In this conversation [also 싫어하다 (silheohada)]
- joahada
- to like

하다 (hada) is used to make descriptive verbs actions. Descriptive verbs describe the topic of the sentence, whether it be a state, emotion, a feeling, etc. However, as these are just descriptions of the topic under discussion, 하다 (hada) is used to actionize the topic. 무섭다 (museopda) describes the topic as being scared. Whereas 무서워하다 (museowohada) - expresses that the topic under discussion is acting afraid, or is performing an action that translates to being afraid.

These verbs are used as action verbs. These verbs originally were descriptive verbs but have been "actionized" by 하다 (hada).

Grammar Point #2 - Negative Adverb - 안

안 (an) is an adverb which functions to negate a verb. It is typically translated as "not" or "do not." It is usually used with action verbs, and placed before the verb. When used in conjunction with action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is usually placed after the 하다 (hada) noun and right before 하다 (hada). For non-action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is placed before the whole verb.

▷ Construction

[안] + [동사]
[an] + [dongsa]
[do not] + [verb]

[명사] + [안] + [하다 동사]
[myeongsa] + [an] + [hada dongsa]
[noun] + [not] + [hada verb]

[안] + [하다 동사]
[an] + [hada dongsa]
[not] + [hada verb]

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 오늘 학교 안 갔어요.
- oneul hakgyo an gasseoyo.
- I didn't go to school today.

2. 저는 공부 안 해요.
- jeo-neun gongbu an haeyo.
- I don't study.

3. 커피를 안 좋아해요.
- keopi-reul an johahaeyo.
- I don't like coffee.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(6)태현: 네… 좀… 안 좋아해요.
(6)Taehyeon: ne... jom... an johahaeyo.
(6)Taehyeon: Yea. I kind of don't like you.

☞ remember ☜

Here, 안 (an) is placed in front of 좋아하다 (johahada) because it is a 하다 (hada) descriptive verb.

Grammar Point #3 - Speech Softener - 좀

좀 (jom) is an abbreviated form of the word 조금 (jogeum). These both literally mean "a little" or "a bit." However, 좀 (jom) is often used as a speech softener when asking someone to do something. Indirectness is often paralleled with politeness, and 좀 (jom) is often used in conjunction with the sentence ending -주다 (-juda), which is used for requests.

In this conversation, 좀 (jom) is used to be indirect so as to be nicer. He didn't want to hurt her feelings, so he chose to use 좀 (jom) to be less direct, and hopefully, not hurt her feelings too much.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 혜경 씨를 좀 안 좋아해요.
- (hyegyeong ssi-reul jom an johahaeyo.)
- I don't like you.
- In this context, 좀 (jom) doesn't literally mean "a little," but is used as a speech softener to be less direct
- to try not to hurt the person's feelings.

2. 물 좀 주세요.
- (mul jom juseyo.)
- Please give me water.
- In this context, 좀 (jom) doesn't literally mean "a little," but is used as a speech softener to be more polite.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Desire or Want - -고 싶다

-고 싶다 (-go sipda) is a grammatical structure which expresses desire. This is used in conjunction with action verbs (and the static verb 있다). This ending can be translated as "want to (verb)."

The verb stem is inflected with the grammatical structure -고 싶다 (-go sipda). 싶다 (sipda) then can express mood, tense, politeness level, like any other verb.

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -고 싶다

1. 노래하다 (noraehada) - to sing
- [노래하] + [-고 싶다] (noraeha) + (go sipda)
- 노래하고 싶다 (noraehago sipda) = to want to sing

2. 살다 (salda) - to live
- [살] + [-고 싶다] (sal) + (go sipda)
- 살고 싶다 (salgo sipda) = to want to live

▷ In This Dialog
---
(1)태현: 혜경 씨. 미안해요. 저는 집에 가고 싶어요.
- 가다 ▶ 가 + -고 싶다 = 가고 싶다 (I want to go)

(2)혜경: 저는 얘기하고 싶어요.
- 얘기하다 ▶ 얘기하 + -고 싶다 = 얘기하고 싶다 (I want to talk)

(3)태현: 저도 혜경 씨를 좋아하고 싶어요. 근데… 근데…
- 좋아하다 ▶ 좋아하 + -고 싶다 = 좋아하고 싶다 (I want to like)

(5)태현: 저는 결혼 안 하고 싶어요.
결혼하다 ▶ 결혼하 + -고 싶다 = 결혼하고 싶다 (I want to marry)

(6)혜경: 아... 울고 싶다.
울다 ▶ 울 + -고 싶다 = 울고 싶다 (I want to cry)

Grammar Point #2 - Negative Adverb - 안

안 (an) is an adverb which functions to negate a verb. It is typically translated as "not" or "do not." It is usually used with action verbs, and placed before the verb. When used in conjunction with action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is usually placed after the 하다 (hada) noun and right before 하다 (hada). For non-action 하다 (hada) verbs, it is placed before the whole verb.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(5)태현: 저는 결혼 안 하고 싶어요. (jeo-neun gyeolhon an hago sipeoyo.)
I don't want to get married.
-> The adverb comes between 결혼 (gyeolhon) and 하다 (hada) because this is a [Noun] + [hada] verb.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Can't - 못

못 (mot) is an adverb which expresses impossibility, inability, strong denial, or strong refusal. This adverb is used mostly with action verbs. This adverb can be translated as "can't," "won't," "not (possible)," "unable to."

▷ Construction

못 (mot), an adverb, immediately precedes verbs.

[못] [Verb]
놀다 (nolda) - to play
못 놀다 (mot nolda) - to not be able to play

With [noun] + [하다 (hada)] verbs, 못 (mot) is placed between the [noun] and [하다 (hada)].
[Noun + 하다] verbs:
공부하다 (gongbuhada) - to study
공부 못 하다 (gongbu mot hada) - to not be able to study

With other 하다 (hada) verbs, which are not [noun] + [하다 (hada)] verbs, 못 (mot) immediately precedes the whole verb.
Other 하다 verbs: 싫어하다
못 싫어하다: to not be able to dislike

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 많이 먹었어요. 케이크를 못 먹어요.
(mani meogeosseoyo. keikeureul mot mogeoyo.)
I ate a lot. I can't eat cake.

2. 시끄러워! 나 공부 못 해!
(sikkeureowo! na gongbu mot hae!)
It's too loud! I can't study!

3. 지혜 씨를 못 만났어요.
(Jihye ssi-reul mot mannasseoyo.)
I wasn't able to meet Jihye.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(2)혜경: 싫어요. 안 먹어요. 못 먹어요... (2)Hyegyeong: sireoyo. an meogeoyo. mot meogeoyo... (2) Hyegyeong: No. I'm not going to eat. I can't eat...

(4)혜경: 싫어요. 안 자요. 못 자요... (4)Hyegyeong: sireoyo. an jayo. mot jayo... (4)Hyegyeong: No. I'm not going to sleep. I can't sleep...

Grammar Point #2 - Imperative - 명령형

One of the imperative conjugations of Korean verbs has the same set of conjugations as the simple present tense (in regards to the Standard and Intimate Politeness Levels). Verbs can be conjugated the same as the simple present tense, yet have different usages. One of which is the imperative. Although these verbs can be conjugated in the same manner, they have a different function.

The imperative, as stated above, is the same as the simple present tense, in regards to the standard and informal politeness levels.

▷ Construction

[Verb Stem] + [아/어/여]

1. 하다 (hada)
[하] + [여] = 해
(ha) + (yeo) = hae

2. 가다 (gada)
[가] + [아] = 가
(ga) + (a) = ga

3. 보다 (boda)
[보] + [아] = 봐
(bo) + (a) = bwa

4. 쓰다 (sseuda)
[쓰] + [어] = 써
(sseu) + (eo) = sseo

For more on this conjugation, please refer to the 아/어/여 (a/eo/yeo) conjugation rules for the Standard and Intimate Politeness Levels.

♣ More Examples ♣

1.빨리 밥 먹어.
(ppalli bap meogeo.)
Hurry and eat.

2.집에 가세요.
(jibe gaseyo.)
Please go home.

3.물 마셔요.
(mul masyeoyo.)
Drink water.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(1)태현: 혜경 씨... 밥 먹어요. (1)Narae: hyegyeong ssi... bap meogeoyo. (1)Narae: Hyegyeong, please eat.

(3)태현: 그럼 자요. 네? (3)Narae: geureom jayo. ne? (3)Narae: Then please sleep.

☞ remember ☜

Note: This conjugation is the same as the simple present tense, only in regards to standard and intimate politeness levels. The formal politeness level has a different set of conjugations for the imperative. There is another form of the imperative under the intimate politeness level which has another set of conjugations for the and also carries a different nuance. These forms will be covered in future lessons.

Grammar Point #3 - Want to - -고 싶다

-고 싶다 (-go sipda) is a grammatical structure which expresses desire. This is used in conjunction with action verbs (and the static verb 있다). This ending can be translated as "want to (verb)."

The verb stem is suffixed by the grammatical structure -고 싶다 (-go sipda). 싶다 (sipda) then can express mood, tense, politeness level, like any other verb.

▷ Construction

[verb stem] + [고 싶다]

1. 노래하다 (noraehada) - to sing
[노래하] + [-고 싶다] (noraeha) + (go sipda)
노래하고 싶다 (noraehago sipda) = to want to sing

2. 살다 (salda) - to live
[살] + [-고 싶다] (sal) + (go sipda)
살고 싶다 (salgo sipda) = to want to live

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 저는 한국에서 살고 싶어요.
(jeoneun hangugeseo salgo sipeoyo.)
I want to live in Korea.

2. 오늘 아침에 삼겹살을 먹고 싶었어요.
(oneul chime samgyeopsareul meokgo sipeosseoyo.)
This morning, I wanted to eat Korean bacon.

3. 말해 줘... 나 알고 싶어.
(mal haejwo... na algo sipeo.)
Tell me... I want to know.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(2)혜경: ...울고 싶어요. (2)Hyegyeong: ...ulgo sipeoyo. (2)Hyegyeong: ...I want to cry.

(4)혜경: ...태현 씨가 보고 싶어요. (4)Hyegyeong: ...taehyeon ssi-ga bogo sipeoyo. (4)Hyegyeong: ...I want to see Taehyeon.

(5)나래: 노래방 가고 싶어요? 나이트 클럽 가고 싶어요? 술 마시고 싶어요? (5)Narae: noraebang gago sipeoyo? naiteu keureop gago sipeoyo? sul masigo sipeoyo? (5)Narae: Do you want to go to a karaoke? Do you want to go to a night club? Do you want to drink?

CULTURAL INSIGHT

In Korea, 노래방 (noraebang - karaoke) has been in fashion for a long time. The age range of people who go to 노래방 is very wide, so it's almost impossible to find any Korean person who has never been to a 노래방. The price varies and cheap places cost about 5,000 to 6,000 won an hour. Expensive places can be three or four times as expensive; but on average, it is around 10,000 an hour. A typical 노래방 would be just a small room with a TV screen, two microphones and two song books, but some places have very unique features. Some places will make recordings of your songs to take home, and there are places where the rooms have one transparent glass wall so that passers-by can watch the people inside the room singing and dancing. Although 노래방 is a considered a ''safer'' place for teenagers to go to have fun than PC방 (internet cafe) or 비디오방 (movie rooms), most places don't allow minors to enter after 10 p.m.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - With - -랑

-(이)랑 [-(i)rang] is used to link nouns in coordination in a sentence. It can be translated as "with," or "and," both of which must be implied from context. -(이)랑 links the nouns in consecutive order. -(이)랑 can be used with as many nouns as desired. However, it must be linked to each noun in the sequence.

▷ Construction

-랑 attaches to nouns that end in vowels.
-이랑 attaches to nouns that end in consonants.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 선생님이랑 밥 먹었어요.
(seonsaengnim-irang bap meogeosseoyo.)
I ate with the teacher.

2. 밥이랑, 찌개랑, 갈비랑, 김치 먹었어요.
(babirang, jjigaerang, galbirang, gimchi meogeosseoyo.)
We ate rice, stew, galbi, and kimchi.

☞ remember ☜

Note: -(이)랑 is suffixed to all the nouns in the sequence, with the exception of the last noun when means -(이)랑 and.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(1)혜경: 태현씨랑 얘기 하고 싶어요.
(1)Hyegyeong: Taehyeon ssi-rang yaegi hago sipeoyo. (1)Hyegyeong: I want to talk with you Taehyeon.

Grammar Point #2 - Past Tense - 았/었/였

-(았/었/였)- is a verbal infix, which is used to convey the past tense.

았 - is used for verbs that have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
었 - is used for verbs that do not have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
였 - is used for 하다 (hada) verbs.

Many times there are deletions and contractions with consecutive vowels (If a verb stem ends in a consonant there are no deletions or contractions). These contraction and deletion rules follow the 아/어/여 conjugation. Please refer to the grammar bank entry on "-아/어/여 conjugation" to refer to rules for contraction and deletion.

▷ Construction

(Contraction and Deletion Rules follow the same rules as the "아/어/여 conjugation." Please refer to the grammar bank entry on "아/어/여 conjugation" for contraction and deletion rules.)

[Verb Stem] + [았/었/였] + [Conjugation (politeness level/mood/etc.]

1.
(ㄱ) Example: 먹다 - to eat
- 먹 - verb stem
- [Verb Stem] + [었] + [Intimate Politeness Level - 아/어/여]
- [먹] + [었] +[어]
- 먹었어. - Simple Past Tense (Intimate Politeness Level)

(ㄴ) Example: 먹다 - to eat
- 먹 - verb stem
- [Verb Stem] + [었] + [Standard Politeness Level - 아/어/여 + 요]
- [먹] + [었] +[어요]
- 먹었어요. - Simple Past Tense (Standard Politeness Level)

(ㄷ) Example: 먹다 - to eat
- 먹 - verb stem
- [Verb Stem] + [었] + [Formal Politeness Level - 습니다]
- [먹] + [었] +[습니다]
- 먹었습니다. - Simple Past Tense (Formal Politeness Level)

2.
(ㄱ) Example: 배우다 - to learn
- 배우 - Verb Stem
- [Verb Stem] + [었] + [Intimate Politeness Level - 아/어/여]
- [배우] + [었] + [어]
- 배웠어. - Simple Past Tense (Intimate Politeness Level)

(ㄴ) Example: 배우다 - to learn
- 배우 - Verb Stem
- [Verb Stem] + [었] + [Standard Politeness Level - 아/어/여 + 요]
- [배우] + [었] + [어요]
- 배웠어요. - Simple Past Tense (Standard Politeness Level)

(ㄷ) Example: 배우다 - to learn
- 배우 - Verb Stem
- [Verb Stem] + [었] + [Formal Politeness Level - 습니다]
- [배우] + [었] + [습니다]
- 배웠습니다. - Simple Past Tense (Formal Politeness Level)

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 저는 한국에서 십년 동안 살았어요.
(jeoneun hangugeseo simnyeon dongan sarasseoyo.)
I lived in Korea for 10 years.

Verb: 살다 - to live
살 + 았 + 어요 [Standard Politeness Level Conjugation - 아/어/여 + 요]

2. 누구였지?
(nuguyeotji?)
Who was it?

Verb: 이다 - to be
이 + 었 + 지 (Confirmation/Agreement Conjugation - 지)

3. 만두 만들었는데.
(mandu mandeureonneunde.)
I made dumplings...

Verb: 만들다 - to make
만들 + 었 + 는데 [Introductory Non-Final Ending - (ㄴ/은/는)데]

▷ In This Dialog
---
(3)혜경: 왜 전화 안 했어요?...
(Hyegyeong: was jeonhwa an haesseoyo?...)
(3)Hyegyeong: Why didn't you call?...

(6)태현: ...몰랐어요?
(Taehyeon: ...mollasseoyo?)
(6)Taehyeon: ...You didn't know?

Grammar Point #3 - Irregular 'leu' Verbs - 르 Verbs

With irregular '르'(leu) verbs and adjectives, the stem ends with '르.' If this is followed by a construction that starts with 아(a) or 어(eo), then the 'ㅡ' in '르' drops, and then another 'ㄹ' is added.

▷ Construction
---
1. 다르다 [da-reu-da]- to be different
다르다 -> 다르 (verb stem) + 다
다르 [da-reu] -> 다 + 르 -> 다 + ㄹ + 아요 [a-yo] ----> 달라요 [dal-la-yo]

2. 모르다 [mo-reu-da] - not to know
모르다 -> 모르 (verb stem) + 다
모르 [mo-reu-da] -> 모 + 르 -> 모 + ㄹ + 으면 [eu-myeon] ----> 모르면 [mo-reu-myeon]

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 당신과 나는 완전 달라요.
(Dang-sin-gwa na-neun wan-jeon dal-la-yo.)
You and I are totally different.

2. 사용법을 모르면 저한테 물어보세요.
(sa-yong-beo-beul mo-reu-myeon jeo-han-te mu-reo-bo-se-yo.)
Ask me if you don't know how to use it.

▷ Construction
---
(6)태현: ...몰랐어요?
(Taehyeon: ...mollasseoyo?)
(6)Taehyeon: ...You didn't know?
▷ 모르다 + 았 + 어요.
- (to not know) + (past tense infix) + (intimate politeness level)
- 모르 (verb stem)
- 모ㄹ (vowel ㅡ removed)
- 몰ㄹ (another ㄹ added)
- 몰ㄹ + 았 + 어요
- 몰랐어요 - didn't know.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Irregular 'b' verbs - 'ㅂ' 불규칙 동사

With irregular 'ㅂ' verbs, the verb stem ends with 'ㅂ.' If this is followed by a construction which starts with a vowel, then the ㅂ is changed to 오 or 우 (mostly, ㅂ is changed to 우). The conjugation then affects 오 or 우.

▷ Construction:

The last consonant of the verb stem (which is ㅂ) is changed to either 우 or 오. The conjugation then affects 오 or 우. (Most of the time, ㅂ changes to 우. There are only a few cases where ㅂ changes to 오).

덥다 (deopda) - to be hot
덥 (deop) - verb stem
더우 (deou) - irregular verb stem
더우 + (verb conjugation that starts with a vowel).

▷ Sample Sentences:
---
1. 춥다 - (chupda) - to be cold
춥 (chu) - verb stem
ㅂ - (b) - changes to 우
추우 + conjugation

추우 + (어) - (chuu + eo) - irregular verb stem + simple present tense conjugation ☞ 추워 (chuwo)

2.줍다 - (jupda) - to pick up
줍 - (jup) - verb stem
ㅂ - (b) - changes to 우
주우 + conjugation

주우 + 어 (juu + eo) - irregular verb stem + simple present tense conjugation ☞ 주워 (juwo)

▷ In This Dialog:
---
(4)나래의 사촌: 아… 누구야. 시끄러워
(4)Narae's Cousin: Ah... Who is that? Be quite.

시끄럽다 (sikkeureopda) - to be loud
시끄럽 (sikkeureop) → 시끄러우 (sikkeureou)
시끄러우 + 아/어/여 conjugation (intimate politeness level)
☞ 시끄러워 - it's loud (be quite)

Grammar Point #2 - 2nd Person Pronouns - 너

Second-person pronouns are those which refer to the listener. Each word has their own nuance, and specific relationship for which they should be used.

너 (neo) - 'You' - Singular - Generally, this second-person pronoun is used by a speaker who holds a great deal of power in the relationship, or when both speakers share an equal amount of power in the relationship. This word is used when the speaker does not feel the need to respect the listener. (i.e. extremely close friends, older people talking to younger people, people of high positions)

Note: A boss would not use this word because respect would be necessary in an office atmosphere (even with the difference in social hierarchy).

1.너 밥 먹었어? (Did you eat?)
▷This sentence can generally be used for the following relationships: close friends, older people talking to younger people (when they are on familiar terms), classmates of the same age, etc.

2.너 여기 와! (You, come here!)
▷Because this sentence is an imperative sentence, it shows that the speaker has a great deal of superiority, or doesn't feel the need to respect the other person in the relationship (i.e. a parent scolding a son, a teacher scolding a student).

▷ In This Conversation:
---
(1)혜경: 야! 너 나와!
(1)Hyegyeong: Hey! You! Come out!
▷혜경 (Hyegyeong) uses the second-person pronoun 너 (neo) because she doesn't feel the need to respect the other person, 나래 (narae), who betrayed her.

Grammar Point #3 - Intimate Politeness Level - 아/어/여 Conjugation
---

아/어/여 are the syllables that start the present tense conjugation for the simple present tense (both intimate and standard politeness levels), the past tense (both intimate and standard politeness levels) and also start a few other grammatical constructions.

ㅏ - is used for verbs that have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
ㅓ - is used for verbs that do not have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
ㅕ - is used for 하다 (hada) verbs.

When a verb is conjugated simply with 아/어/여 - the verb is in the intimate politeness level. To make it the standard politeness level 아/어/여 + 요.

Many times there are deletions and contractions with repeating vowels (If a verb stem ends in a consonant there are no deletions or contractions - See the Grammar Bank for a more detailed explanation).

Grammar Point #4 - - The Copula (Affirmative/Negative) in the Intimate Politeness Level
---

◆이다 is the Korean affirmative copula. This is roughly equivalent to the English verb "to be." Using 이다 is the most useful and basic way to identify people and objects. It expresses definition, equation, identification, but it does not express existence (see 있다).

이다 (ida), when conjugated in the intimate politeness level, has an irregular conjugation. 이야 (iya) or 야 (ya).이야 (iya) is used to attach to words that end in a consonant. 야 (ya) attaches to words that end in vowels.

▷ Sample Sentences:

1.지금 몇 시야? (What time is it now?)
-Standard politeness level:
지금 몇 시예요?

2.이거는 책이야. (This is a book.)
-Standard politeness level:
이거는 책이에요.

◆아니다 (anida) is the Korean negative copula. This is roughly equivalent to "to not be" in English. Using 아니다 (anida) is the most useful and basic way to identify that people and objects are not something. It expresses non-(definition, equation, identification) but it does not express non-existence (see 없다).

아니다 (anida), when conjugated in the intimate politeness level, has an irregular conjugation. 아니다 is conjugated as 아니야 (aniya) in the intimate politeness level.

▷ Sample Sentences:

1.나 학생 아니야. (I am not a student.)
- Standard politeness level:
저는 학생 아니에요.

2.오늘 일요일 아니야. (Today is not Sunday.) - Standard politeness level:
오늘 일요일 아니에요.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Second-person pronouns are considered very direct and often can be used in a confrontational manner if the relationship between the speaker and listener are not very close. Korean-learners should be careful to use this word as it can be taken as confrontational. The safest way to call someone in Korean is to use their name and 씨(ssi), i.e. 현우 씨, 민경 씨, 천홍 씨 and so on.

GRAMMAR

Intimate Politeness Level - 반말

The intimate politeness level (반말 banmal) is widely used in everyday Korean, but mostly between close friends who are in the same age group or by an older person talking to a younger person. Younger people also sometimes use the intimate politeness level when talking to older people, typically family members or people who have agreed to be on closer terms with each other. The intimate politeness level is a conjugation used at the end of verbs to convey the amount of politeness the speaker holds towards the listener.

In Today's Dialogue
너 어디 가?
"Where are you going?/Are you going somewhere?"

너 어디 가? (neo eodi ga?)
나 지금 친구 집에 가. (na jigeum chingu jibe ga)
내 친구 마유미 기억해? (nae chingu mayumi gieokhae?)
니 친구 기억해! (ni chingu gieokhae!)
근데 너 밥은 먹었어? (geunde neo babeun meogeosseo?)

Verb stem + -아/-어/-여

☞ Construction #1: Verb stem + -아☜

We use this ending with verbs that have a either the vowel ㅗ (o), or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

♣ Examples: ♣

Construction	Korean (Romanization)	"English"
보(다) + -아	봐 (bwa)	"I see. I watch."
사(다) + -아 ▶ 사 + 아	사 (sa)	"I buy."
잡(다) + -아	잡아 (jaba)	"I catch. I grab."

☞ Construction #2: Verb stem + -어☜

We use this ending with verbs that have any vowel other than the vowels ㅗ (o), or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

♣ Examples: ♣

Construction	Korean (Romanization)	"English"
먹(다) + -어	먹어 (meogeo)	"I eat."
싫(다) + -어	싫어 (sireo)	"I hate."

☞ Construction #3: Verb stem + -여☜

We use this ending with 하다 (hada) verbs.

♣ Examples: ♣

Construction	Korean (Romanization)	"English"
공부하(다) + -여	공부해 (gongbuhae)	"I study."
일하(다) + -여	일해 (ilhae)	"I work."

☞ Note: ☜

There are a number of different contractions and/or deletions for conjugations that have consecutive vowels. Please refer to the Verb Conjugation Chart for a full chart and explanation.

https://www.koreanclass101.com/learningcenter/reference/conjugation_list

Possessive Pronouns

나 지금 친구 집에 가.

"I'm going to my friend's house."

We use possessive pronouns to attribute ownership of an object to someone. Like any other pronoun, these replace the nouns. We use different possessive pronouns according to the speaker's relationship with the listener. Humbling pronouns, neutral pronouns, and intimate pronouns, all indicate the relationship between the listener and the speaker.

☞ Construction: Possessive Pronouns ☜

Pronoun + Possessive Particle = Possessive Pronoun (Contraction)

Pronoun + Possessive Particle	Possessive Pronoun	Romanization	"English"
나의	내	nae	"my"
너의	니	ni	"your"
저의	제	je	"my" (humbling)

Past Tense (review)

근데 너 밥은 먹었어?

"By the way, did you eat?"

았/었/였 (as/eos/yeos) is a verbal infix, which is used to convey the past tense. We use 았 for verbs that have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem. We use 었 for verbs that do not have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem. We use 였 for 하다 (hada) verbs.

Many times, there are deletions and contractions with consecutive vowels. If a verb stem ends in a consonant, there are no deletions or contractions. These contraction and deletion rules follow the 아/어/여 conjugation. Please refer to the grammar bank entry on "아/어/여 conjugation" to view the rules for contraction and deletion.

☞ Construction ☜

(Contraction and Deletion Rules follow the same rules as the 아/어/여 conjugation. Please refer to the entry on "아/어/여 conjugation" for contraction and deletion rules.)

Korean Titles

Koreans don't usually use second person pronouns, unless it is between close friends, because they are too direct in many situations. Otherwise, they use titles or titles with names much more commonly in Korea. For example:

1. 김 선생님, 어디 가세요? "Kim Teacher, where are you going?
2. 박 과장님께서 아까 말씀하신... "What Section Chief Park said before..."
3. 사장님은 몇 시에 퇴근하세요? "Boss, what time are you going home?"

GRAMMAR

Honorific Infix (으) 시

This makes a standard verb (descriptive or action) 존댓말, honorific speech. We don't necessarily only use it towards people who are in the conversation, but we also use it widely in order to lift up (honor) the topic of the sentence, a person, or a group of people.

Construction:
아프셔?
"Is she sick?"

To make a verb honorific, take the verb stem, and add -시 or -(으)시. This is now the honorific form of the verb in the dictionary form.

-시다 is used for verbs ending with vowels
아프다 (apeuda) "to be hurt"
아프 - verb stem
아프 + 시다 - verb stem + honorific infix
아프시 + conjugation
아프시 + 입니다 (verb stem + formal politeness level conjugation)
아프십니다.

(으)시 is used with verb stems ending in consonants
괜찮다 (gwenchanta) "to be ok, to be alright"
괜찮 - verb stem
괜찮 + 으시 - verb stem + honorific infix
괜찮으시 + conjugation
괜찮으시 + 어요(verb stem + standard politeness level conjugation)
괜찮으셔요.

☞ Remember ☜

The actual politeness level used in the speech is for the person you are talking with. A sentence can have either a polite ending or the honorific infix, or can also include both.

In Today's Dialogue

아프다 (apeuda) "to be sick"
아프시다 (apeusida) "to be sick" (honorific)
아저씨: 왜? 아프셔?
Man: What? Is she sick?

아저씨: 왜? 어디가 아프셔?
Man: What? What's wrong?

괜찮다 (gwaenchanta) "to be okay"
괜찮으시다 (gwaenchanta) "to be okay" (honorific)
아저씨: 어머니는 괜찮으셔?
Man: Is your mother all right?

Irregular 으 Verbs: 아프다 Conjugation

We conjugate verbs that end with the vowel -으 differently than other verbs when the conjugation starts with a vowel. Essentially, we replace 'ㅡ' with the vowel that starts the conjugation. When the conjugation starts with a consonant, we conjugate the verb as normal. The conjugation must start with a vowel. In addition, the verb must end with the '으' vowel, and not with a consonant for this irregular conjugation to take place. For example, we conjugate the verb 늦다 (neutda), "to be late" in English, as normal.

Additionally, there is an irregular conjugation when the verb that is being conjugated has two or more syllables, and the vowel in the syllable immediately preceding the '으' syllable is either '아' or '오.' Thus, the preceding syllable affects the conjugation. Instead of determining which conjugation to use according to 으 (which would be typically be a 어 conjugation), the verb is conjugated as if '아' or '오' was the determining vowel (which would be typically be a 아 conjugation).

☞ Examples:☜

1. 쓰다 (sseuda) + 아/어/여 conjugation - "to write" + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation
   A. 쓰 (sseu) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation
   B. ㅆ + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem (with the vowel 으 removed) + 어 (this conjugation is used because there is no 아 or 오 vowel to affect the conjugation)
   C. 써 (sseo) - "to write" (Intimate Politeness Level simple present tense conjugation)
2. 끄다 (kkeuda) + 아/어/여 conjugation - "to turn off" + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation
   A. 끄 (kkeu) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation
   B. ㄲ + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem (with the vowel 으 removed) + 어 (this conjugation is used because there is no 아 or 오 vowel to affect the conjugation)
   C. 꺼 (kkeo) "to turn off" (Intimate Politeness Level simple present tense conjugation)
3. 바쁘다 (bappeuda) + 아/어/여 conjugation - "to be busy" + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation
   A. 바쁘 (bappeu) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation
   B. 바ㅃ (bapp) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem (with the vowel 으 removed) + 아 (this conjugation is used because 아 influences the conjugation)
   C. 바빠 (bappa) - "to be busy" (Intimate Politeness Level simple present tense conjugation)

In Today's Dialogue

혜진: 응... 엄마는 아퍼.
혜진: 배가 아퍼.

Conjugation

아프(다) + 아/어/여 ▶ 아파

In both of the sentences above, 혜진(hyejin) said "아퍼" instead of "아파." This is very common among younger people and especially children.

GRAMMAR

Affirmative Imperative 명령형 돈 주세요!!
"Give me money!!"

We use the affirmative imperative to give a command, request, or an order directly to someone.

Construction

The conjugation is identical to the intimate politeness level (아/어/여) and standard politeness level (아/어/여요). These stay in their respective politeness levels.

Intimate Politeness Level

공부하다 (gongbuhada) "to study"
공부하 + (아/어/여) = 공부해 "study" (imperative - intimate politeness level)

Standard Politeness Level

자다 (jada) "to sleep"
자 + (아/어/여요) = 자요 "sleep" (imperative - standard politeness level)

Note: Many times the standard politeness imperative uses the honorific infix 시 (si) because it's asking someone or telling someone to do something. This is to be polite.

Formal Politeness Level

The formal politeness level uses the conjugation: 십시오 (sipssio)
Verb Stem + (으)십시오

오다 (oda) "to come"
오 + (으)십시오 = 오십시오 "come" (imperative - formal politeness level)

We do not use the formal politeness imperative often in casual spoken Korean, or even in formal situations. We generally reserve it for people of extreme importance (i.e. Kings, Queens, Royalty, Presidents, High-ranking military officials, etc.).

Note: Often, we can find the written form (으)시오 on signs on the street, giving warning or directions to the public. The spoken version of this can be found in many historical Korean dramas as well, however, its use is only relegated to written Korean in modern Korean.

In This Dialogue

직원: 안녕하세요... 여기 앉으세요.
Waiter: "Hello. Please, sit here."

아저씨: 돈 주세요!!
Man: "Give me money!!"

혜진: 아저씨... 진정해...
Hyejin: "Calm down..."

직원: ... 여기.. 오세요...
Waiter: "...Please...Come here..."

아저씨: 타코?!? 타코?!?? 네!!! 많이 주세요!!
Man: "Tacos?!? Tacos?!?! Please, give me a lot!"

Korean	Romanization	"English"
빨리 밥 먹어.	ppalli bam meogeo	"Hurry and eat." (intimate)
집에 가세요.	jibe gaseyo	"Please go home." (standard)
물 마셔요.	mul masyeoyo	"Drink water." (standard)
문을 닫으십시오.	muneul dadeusipsio	"Please close the door." (formal)
문을 닫으시오.	muneul dadeusio	"Please close the door." (written)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Business Greeting: 어서오십시오

어서오십시오 (eoseoosipssio) is a phrase used in business establishments. Koreans use it to welcome customers when they enter a store, restaurant, or an office. Typically, customers don't respond to greeting. In response, saying 안녕하세요 (annyeonghaseyo, or "hello" in English) can even be too polite; but to acknowledge the person that has greeted the customer, most people will simply nod their head. However, it is not considered rude to ignore this greeting as well since it stays more like formality.

GRAMMAR

Express Ability, Capability, or Possibility: ㄹ/을 수 있다
일본어 할 수 있습니다.
Ilboneo hal ssu isseumnida.
"I can speak Japanese."

-ㄹ/을 수있다 (-l/eul ssu itta) is a grammatical structure we use to express ability, capability, or possibility (i.e., whether you can or can't speak English, or you can or can't use a computer, etc.). This structure adds on to the end of both descriptive and action verbs to express the possibility or capability of that verb. We can translate it as "can," or "able to." The word 수(su) in this structure means "a way," "a method," or "a possibility," thus making the entire structure express possibility or ability.

We can conjugate the last verb 있다 (itta) to express politeness level, tense, and mood. Traditionally, the verb can inflect negation as well, but in this grammatical structure the negated form would come from the verb opposite the verb 있다 (itta), which is 없다 (eoptta). We can translate the construction -ㄹ/을 수 없다 (-l/eul ssu eoptta) as "cannot" or "not able to." However, when using the construction ㄹ/을 수 없다 (l/eul su eopda), it carries the notion that the speaker (or subject of the sentence) was unable to do something because they did not have the capacity to perform that activity. Using this structure implies that the subject does not possess the ability to perform that action. For example, 먹을 수 없어, which means "I can't eat," in English, implies "I don't have the ability to eat." When expressing "can't" because of factors other than inability, we use the impossibility adverb 못 (mot) instead.

Construction: Verb Stem + -ㄹ/을 수 있다/없다.

Verbs Ending with Vowels

We use ㄹ/수 있다, ㄹ/ 수 없다 for verbs ending with vowels.
Verb Stem + -ㄹ/을 수 있다/없다.

-ㄹ 수 있다/없다 attaches to verbs stems that end in a vowel.

하다 (hada) "to do"
하 - verb stem
하 + ㄹ 수 있다 = verb stem + ㄹ 수 있다
할 수 있다 "to be able to do"
할 수 없다 "to not be able to do"

Formal Politeness Level - 습니다/습니까?

The Formal Declarative Sentence Ending -ㅂ/습니다 (m/seumnida)- You can attach this to any verb to form a present tense declarative sentence. This conjugation is in the formal politeness level.

The Formal Interrogative Sentence Ending -ㅂ/습니까 (m/seumnikka)- This can be attached to any verb to form a present tense question with that verb. This conjugation is in the formal politeness level and we use it for very formal situations.

Construction

For both declarative and interrogative statements, add the constructions onto the verb stems.

Verb Stems Ending in Vowels

We use -ㅂ니다/-ㅂ니까 (-mnida/-mnikka) for verb stems ending in vowels:
Verb Stem + -ㅂ니다/-ㅂ니까

We add ㅂ onto the verb stem to form a new syllabic block. 니다/니까 (nida/nikka) comes after the new syllabic block.

Verb stem + ㅂ니다/-ㅂ니까?

이다 (ida) "to be" (copula)
이 - verb stem
이 + ㅂ 니다 = 입니다 "is" (formal declarative)
이 + 습니까 = 입니까? "is?" (formal interrogative)

오다 (oda) "to come"
오 - verb stem
오 + ㅂ 니다 = 옵니다 "come" (formal declarative)
오 + ㅂ 니까 = 옵니까? "come?" (formal interrogativel)

공부하다 (gongbuhada) "to study"
공부하 - verb stem
공부하 + ㅂ 니다 = 공부합니다 "study" (formal declarative)
공부하 + ㅂ 니까 = 공부합니까? "study?" (formal interrogative)

Verbs Ending in Consonants

We use 습니다/-습니까 (-seumnida/-seumnikka) for verb stems ending in consonants:
Verb Stem + -습니다/-습니까

앉다 (antda) "to sit"
앉 - verb stem
앉 + 습니다 = 앉습니다 "sit" (formal declarative)
앉 + 습니까 = 앉습니까? "sit?" (formal interrogative)

잡다 (japda) "to catch"
잡 - verb stem
잡 + 습니다 = 잡습니다 "catch" (formal declarative)
잡 + 습니까 = 잡습니까 "catch" (formal interrogative)

Irregular 으 Verbs

We conjugate verbs that end with the vowel 으 differently than other verbs when the conjugation starts with a vowel. Essentially, we replace '—' with the vowel that starts the conjugation. When the conjugation starts with a consonant, we conjugate the verb as normal. The conjugation must start with a vowel. In addition, the verb must end with the '으' vowel, and not with a consonant for this irregular conjugation to take place. For example, we conjugate the verb 늦다 (neutta), which means "to be late" in English, as normal.

Additionally, there is an irregular conjugation when the verb that we are conjugating has two or more syllables, and the vowel in the syllable immediately preceding the '으' syllable is either '아' or '오.' Thus, the preceding syllable affects the conjugation. Instead of determining which conjugation to use according to 으 (which would typically be a 어 conjugation), we conjugate the verb as if '아' or '오' was the determining vowel (which would typically be a 아 conjugation).

Construction

Examples:

1. 쓰다 (sseuda) + 아/어/여 conjugation - "to write" + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation 쓰 (sseu) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation 쓰 + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem (with the vowel 으 removed) + 어 (this conjugation is used because there is no 아 or 오 vowel to affect the conjugation) 써 (sseo) - "to write" (Intimate Politeness Level simple present tense conjugation)

2. 끄다 (kkeuda) + 아/어/여 conjugation - "to turn off" + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation 끄 (kkeu) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation ㄲ + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem (with the vowel 으 removed) + 어 (this conjugation is used because there is no 아 or 오 vowel to affect the conjugation) 꺼 (kkeo) "to turn off" (Intimate Politeness Level simple present tense conjugation)

3. 바쁘다 (bappeuda) + 아/어/여 conjugation - "to be busy" + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation 바쁘 (bappeu) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem + Intimate Simple Present Tense conjugation 바ㅃ (bapp) + 아/어/여 conjugation - verb stem (with the vowel 으 removed) + 아 (this conjugation is used because 아 influences the conjugation) 바빠 (bappa) - "to be busy" (Intimate Politeness Level simple present tense conjugation)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Interviews

Just like any other places, Korea has an interview system to get a job or to enter a university. Most Korean companies have a paper screening, one test, and two interviews. After the paper screening, there is an exam made by the company. If you pass that test, you are eligible to undergo the first interview. Usually, the first interview is with five or six members of the company who ask general questions about the institution and the applicant's motive for applying. If you pass the first interview, there will be a chance to have a second interview. The second interview is with a higher supervisor. If you pass both interviews, they accept you to work for the institution. Sometimes there are more than two interviews. Some large enterprises have up to three or four interviews, and it differs from year to year as well.

GRAMMAR

Well - 잘
야구 잘 합니다.
"I'm good at baseball."

잘 (jal) is an adverb that means "well," and we use it to describe one's adequate ability or capability of an action verb. When used in conjunction with the impossibility adverb 못 (mot), it describes one's inadequate ability or capability of an action verb.

Construction

---

1. 잘 is an adverb and comes directly before action verbs as in 잘 + 동사 (well + verb).
   For example: 잘 먹어. "I eat well."
2. When used in conjunction with 하다 verbs that contain nouns, we place it between the noun and 하다, as in 명사 + 잘 + 동사 (noun + well + verb).
   For example: 농구 잘 해. "I'm good at basketball."
3. When the negative adverb 못 (mot) is used, the order is: 잘 + 못 + 동사 (well + can't + verb).
   For example: 농구 잘 못 해. "I'm not good at basketball."

GRAMMAR

Desired Intentions: ㄹ/을래 "Intentional"
나 케이크 먹을래.
"I want to eat cake."

We use this grammatical structure (-ㄹ/을래) to convey one's desired intention for the future. It does not express one's actual intention, but one's desired intention of the future. One can translate it as "to want to (verb)." We use this construction with action verbs.
This grammatical construction is in the intimate politeness level. The standard politeness level adds the politeness particle -요 (ㄹ/을래요). We use this structure in colloquial situations. There is no formal politeness conjugation for this in the same structure, but in formal situations we use -겠습니다 or -(으)렵니다.

Construction

Verb Stem + -ㄹ/을래

We use -ㄹ래 for verb stems ending in vowels.
주다 (juda) "to give"
주 + -ㄹ래
줄래(요) "I want to give (something)."

We use -을래 for verb stems ending in consonants.
잡다 (japtta) "to grab"
잡 - verb stem
잡 + -을래
잡을래(요) "I want to grab."

In This Dialogue

아빠: 딸, 아이스크림 먹을래?
appa: ttal, aiseukeurim meogeullae?
Father: "Daughter, do you want ice cream?"

딸: 싫어. 나 케이크 먹을래.
ttal: sireo. na keikeu meogeullae.
Daughter: "No, I want to eat cake."

딸: 아니. 나 주스 마실래.
ttal: ani. na juseu masillae.
Daughter: "No, I want juice."

아빠: 주스? 그래. 오렌지 주스 마실래?
appa: juseu? geurae. orenji juseu masillae?
Father: "Juice? All right, do you want orange juice?"

딸: 아니. 안 마실래. 집에 갈래.
ttal: ani. an masillae. jibe gallae.
Daughter: "No, I don't want to drink orange juice. I want to go home."

아빠: 집에? 케이크 싫어? 주스 싫어? 딸, 아빠하고 노래방 갈래?
appa: jibe? keikeu sireo? juseu sireo? ttal, appahago noraebang gallae?
Father: "Home? You don't want cake? You don't want juice? Do you want to go to noraebang with daddy?"

Korean Conjunction하고 "And/With"
딸, 아빠하고 노래방 갈래?
"Do you want to go to noraebang with daddy?"

We use 하고 (-hago) to link nouns in coordination in a sentence. We can translate it as "with" or "and," both of which we must be imply from context. -하고 (-hago) links the nouns in consecutive order. We can use -하고 (-hago) with as many nouns as desired. However, we must link it to each noun in coordination, with the exception of the final noun. When we use this particle with one noun, we assume there is a non-present noun connected to the linked noun. In this case, it is still translated as "with" or "and."

Construction

Noun + 하고, (Noun + 하고, Noun + 하고, etc.)

In This Dialogue

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Karaoke

노래방 (noraebang) or "karaoke" is different in Korea than it is in non-Asian countries. Instead of open stages with strangers in bar type, there is a private room for an individual or a group to borrow with the karaoke machine inside, sofa and other equipments. Also there are two kinds: one for purely singing, 노래연습장, another with the alcohols where over 18 years could only get in, 노래주점.

GRAMMAR

Verb Nominalization: Part 1 기
아빠하고 달리기 할래?
"Do you want to go for a run with daddy?"

We can nominalize most Korean action verbs by taking the verb stem and attaching -기 (gi) at the end. This nominalization is very important to remember since we use it with many other grammatical structures. With the new construction, we can use the verb as a noun.
These verbal nouns indicate activity, quality, quantity, extent, or state of being. When nominalized, we translate these nominalized verbs as "(verb)ing, to (verb), (adjective)ness."
Another way of nominalizing a verb is to attach -는 것 (neun geot) at the end. Please see the next section for the difference between these two methods of nominalization.

Construction

Verb Stem + -기

가다 (gada) "to go"
가 - verb stem
가 + -기
가기 (gagi) "going" (명사형 - noun).
나 오늘 학교 가기 싫어. (na oneul hagyo gagi sirheo.)
I don't want to go to school today.

In This Dialogue

아빠: 아빠하고 달리기 할래?
appa: appahago dalligi hallae?
Father: "Do you want to go for a run with daddy?"

딸: 달리기? 싫어요. 나 달리는 것 싫어!
ttal: dalligi? sireoyo. na dallineun geot sireo!
Daughter: "A run? No, I don't like running."

딸: 응? 나도 달리기 할래! 내 운동화, 운동화, 운동화...
ttal: eung? nado dalligi hallae! nae undonghwa, undonghwa, undonghwa...
Daughter: "Huh? I want to run, too! My sneakers, sneakers, sneakers..."

♣ More Examples ♣

먹기 시합	meokki sihap	"Food fighting."
먹기 좋아요.	meokki johayo	"It's easy to eat."
미안해. 나 내일 수영하기가 싫어.	mianhae. na naeil suyeonghagiga silrheo	"Sorry, I don't want to swim tomorrow."
쇼핑하기 힘들어요.	syopinghagi himdeuleoyo.	"It's tiring to shop."
걷기는 몸에 좋아요.	geokkineun mome joayo.	"Walking is good for your body."
제 취미는 음악 듣기예요.	je chwimineun eumak deukkiyeyo.	"My hobby is listening to the music."

☞ Remember ☜

In Korean, we cannot use the infinitive form of verbs as nouns. We must nominalize these verbs with a verb nominalizer such as -기 - (gi).

When we use these nominalized verbs as subjects, they take the subject marking particle -가 (-ga). When we use them as objects, they use the object marking particle -를 (-reul).

Verb Nominalization: Part 2 는 것

싫어요. 나 달리는 것 싫어!
"No, I don't like running!"

Another, more general way of nominalizing a verb is to use the grammatical construction -는 것 (-neun geot). We use this structure to nominalize action verbs and it indicates "the act of (verb)ing." It stresses the fact or manner of "(verb)ing." It can be translated as "(verb)ing."
Often times, 것 (geot) is changed to 거 (geo) to make pronunciation easier and for speech to flow more easily. We use 거 (geo) in spoken Korean. Although the subject marking particle -가 (ga) would naturally follow 거 (geo), we change 거 (geo) to 게 (ge), assuming that the other subject marking particle -이 (i) is following right behind it.

것이 = 거이 = 게

When we use 거 (geo) in conjunction with the object marking particle, -를 (reul), it becomes 거를 (geo-reul). But this is often contracted to 걸 (geol) in speech.

것을 = 거를 = 걸

Construction

가다 (gada) "to go"

가 + -는 것
가는 것 (ganeun geot) "going" (명사형 - noun)

The Difference Between -기 and -는 것

We use both -기 (-gi) and -는 것 (-neun geot) to nominalize verbs in Korean. Although these two ways of nominalizing are interchangeable in most contexts, one suits the situation better than the other one does in some contexts.

☞ Generally☜
We can use 는 것 (-neun geot) for almost every context where -기 (-gi) is used, with the exception of -기 좋다 / 어렵다 / 편리하다 (*-gi jota/eoreopda/pyeonrihada/*etc.) ("good"/"difficult"/ "convenient for doing something," etc.).

☞ Note: ☜
We can use -는 것 (-neun geot) for the context that can be translated in English as "(someone) doing (something)" or "the fact that (someone) does (something)," whereas -기 (-gi) cannot be translated this way.

♣ More Examples ♣

C. 엄마는 아빠가 달리기를 좋아해요. (X)
(eommaneun appaga dalligireul joahaeyo.)
D. 엄마는 아빠가 달리는 것을 좋아해요. (○)
*(eommaneun appaga dallineun geoseul joah*aeyo.)
= "My mom likes my father running."/ "My mom likes it when my father runs.)"

☞ Note: ☜
Often times, we can use -기 and -는 것in the same context at the same time, just as in the dialogue for this lesson. 기 usually represents an immediate or current action, whereas -는 것 means the general act of doing something.

GRAMMAR

Negative Sentence Ending: 지 않다
춥지 않아!
"I'm not cold!"

지 않다 (-ji anta) is a negative sentence ending we use for negating a sentence. It is considered the standard in which to negate a sentence. People often use it in written Korean (i.e. books, novels, manuals, newspapers) as well as in spoken Korean. This construction can be translated as "no" or "not."

This structure is attached to the end of verbs (both descriptive and action) to negate these verbs. 않다 (anta) can be conjugated to reflect politeness level, tense, mood, etc.

Construction

Verb Stem + 지 않다

마시다 (masida) "to drink"
마시 (masi) - verb stem
마시 + -지 않다
마시지 않다 (masiji anta) "not drink"
저는 술을 마시지 않습니다. (jeo-neun sul-eul masiji anhseumnida)
"I don't drink alcohol." (formal politeness level)

In This Dialogue

딸: 아빠... 춥지 않아?
ttal: appa...chupji anha?
Daughter: "Daddy...aren't you cold?"

아빠: (떨면서) 괜찮아. 춥지 않아! 춥지 않아! 춥지 않아.
appa: gwaenchanha. chupji anha! chupji anha! chupji anha.
Dad: (trembling with cold) "I'm okay. I'm not cold. I'm not cold! I'm not cold!"

아빠: (혼잣말로) 춥지 않아... 춥지 않아... 춥지 않아...
Appa: chupjji ana...chupjji ana...chupjji ana...
Dad: (to himself) "I'm not cold... I'm not cold... I'm not cold..."

딸: 아빠... 힘들지 않아?
Ttal: appa...himdeulji anha?
Daughter: "Daddy...aren't you tired?"

아빠: 아빠는 힘들지 않아...
appa: appaneun himdeulji ana...
Dad: "I'm not tired..."

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"
나는 외롭지 않아!	naneun oeropjji ana!	"I am not lonely!"
오늘 진짜 덥지 않아?	oneul jinjja deopji ana?	"Isn't it really hot today?"
저는 학교에 다니지 않습니다.	jeoneun hakkyoe daniji ansseumnida.	"I don't go to school."
그렇지 않아요.	geureochi anayo.	"That's not true."
내가 먹지 않았어.	naega meokjji anasseo.	"I didn't eat it."
어제 그렇게 말하지 않았어?	eoje geureoke malhaji anasseo?	"Didn't you say so yesterday?"
아무도 놀라지 않았어요.	amudo nollaji anasseoyo.	"Nobody was surprised."
여기는 아무도 오지 않아요.	yeogineun amudo oji anayo.	"Nobody comes here."

☞ Remember ☜
Another way a sentence can be negated is by using the negative adverb 안 (an). The difference between the two is that we consider 안 (an) more colloquial, and we consider 지 않다 (ji anta) the standard way to negate a sentence. 지 않다 (ji anta) would be the negation most likely found in novels, textbooks, and newspapers, however, it is still used commonly in colloquial situations. You would most likely hear 안 (an) during a conversation and typically, you would not find it in formal written documents.

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 가지 않아요. (gaji anayo.) = 안 가요. (an gayo.)
2. 먹지 않아요. (meokji anayo.) = 안 먹어요. (an meogeoyo.)
3. 보이지 않아요. (boiji anayo.) = 안 보여요. (an boyeoyo.)

Irregular ㅂ Verb Conjugations: 'ㅂ' 불규칙 동사

With irregular ㅂ (b) verbs, the verb stem ends with ㅂ. If this is followed by a construction that starts with a vowel, then the ㅂ is changed to 오 (o) or 우 (u) (most of the time ㅂ is changed to 우). The conjugation then affects 오 or 우. When the verb stem ends with the vowel -ㅏ or -ㅗ, it is followed by 오. When verb stem ends with any vowel other than -ㅏ and -ㅗ, it is followed by 우.

Construction

The last consonant of the verb stem (which is ㅂ) is changed to either 우 or 오. The conjugation then affects 오 or 우.

덥다 (deoptta) "to be hot"
덥 (deop) - verb stem
더우 (deou) - irregular verb stem
더우 + (verb conjugation that starts with a vowel).

In This Dialogue

This conversation does not show the irregular conjugation because the construction that adds onto the verb stem starts with a consonant.

딸: 아빠... 춥지 않아?
ttal: appa...chupjji ana?
Daughter: "Daddy...aren't you cold?"

춥 + 지 않다
(chup + jjianta)
verb stem + conjugation starting with a consonant

GRAMMAR

The Particle (이)나 "Or"
음... 요가나... 골프를 해요.
Um... yogana... golpeureul haeyo.
"Well...I do yoga or play golf."

(이)나 [-(i)na] is a particle that attaches to nouns. It has a number of usages that can change the translation. In the context of this conversation, we used -(이)나 as demonstrated below in Usage 1.

Usages:

1. It is a particle that separates two nouns to express different options. In this situation, we use it as "or."
   A. For example: 일요일이나 월요일 "Sunday or Monday"
2. When we use it with only one noun, -(이)나 usually means "just" or "and don't even think about others (or other things)."
   A. For example: 숙제나 해! "Just do your homework."
3. When we use it in conjunction with time phrases, the time given is an approximation. (이)나, in this situation, is often translated as "about" or "approximately."
   A. For example: 몇 시간이나 걸렸어요? "About how many hours did it take?"

4. We can use it to express one's missed expectations. In this situation, we use it when it is much more than one expects. When used in this manner it gives off the nuance "much more than I expected."
   A. For example: 그 영화는 3시간이나 걸렸어요. "That movie lasted three hours, much more than I expected."

Construction

(이)나 [-(i)na] is a particle and we attach it to the end of nouns. For all the following constructions, we use -이나 (-ina) with nouns ending in consonants, and -나 (-na) with words ending in vowels.

1. Usage 1
   A. 명사 + -(이)나 + 명사
   B. myeongsa + -(i)na + myeongsa
   C. noun + or + noun
   D. Example: 매일 한국어나 영어를 공부해요. (maeil hangugeo-na yeongeo-reul gongbuhaeyo.) "I study Korean or English every day."
2. Usage 2
   A. 명사 + -(이)나 + 명령형 동사
   B. *myeongsa + -(i)na + myeongnyeonghyeon don*gsa
   C. noun + or + imperative verb
   D. Example: 너나 많이 먹어. (neo-na manhi meogeo.) "You go ahead and eat a lot but don't force me to eat it."
3. Usage 3
   A. 시간 표현 + -(이*)나*
   B. sigan pyohyeon+ -(i)na
   C. time phrase + about
   D. Example: 몇 시간이나 걸렸어요? (myeot sigan-ina geollyeosseoyo?) "About how many hours did it take?"
4. Usage 4
   A. 표현 + -(이)나
   B. pyohyeon + -(i)na
   C. phrase + (more than I expected)
   D. Example: 그 영화는 3시간이나 걸렸어요. (geu yeonghwa-neun se sigan-ina geollyeosseoyo.) "That movie was three hours long(much more than I expected)."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean "Meetings"

미팅 (miting) is the Koreanized English word for "meeting." Koreans use it to refer to a group blind date. Typically, a friend will meet someone, and ask that person to bring friends to an agreed place and time. Both parties will usually bring the same number of people for each party so that everyone can have a matching pair. Also synonym is 소개팅(sogaeting) which people meet by introducting each other's friend. Also for reference, 미팅 is also used to literally mean 'meeting' as well at work or business.

GRAMMAR

Korean Particles: 부터/까지 "From/Until"
1시부터 약속이 있어요.
"I have an appointment from one o'clock."

-부터 (-buteo) is a particle which marks a point in time or a certain location in which a certain action starts. We can translate it as "from," "since," or "starting from."

Conversely, -까지 (kkaji) is a particle which marks a point in time or a certain location in which a certain action ends. We can translate it as "until," or "up to."

Generally speaking, we use these two particles to mark the length or duration of an action.

Construction

Time word / Location word + 까지/부터

1. Time word + 부터
   A. 어제 (eoje) "yesterday"
   B. 어제 + 부터 = 어제부터 (eojebuteo) "since yesterday"
   C. Example: 어제부터 피곤했어. (eojebuteo pigonhaesseo.) "I was tired since yesterday."
2. Location word + 부터
   A. 학*교 (hakgyo)* "school"
   B. 학교 + 부터 = 학교부터 (hakkyobuteo) "starting from school"
   C. Example: 학교부터 집까지 걸었어. (hakkyobuteo jipkkaji georeosseo.) "I walked from school to home."
3. Time word + 까지
   A. 6시 (yeol si) "six o'clock"
   B. 6시 + 까지 = 6시까지 (yeoseossikkaji) "until six o'clock"
   C. Example: 친구랑 6시까지 있을 거야. (chingurang yeoseossikkaji isseul kkeoya.) "I'm going to be with my friend until six o'clock."
4. Location word + 까지
   A. 시장 (sijang) "market"
   B. 시장 + 까지 = 시장까지 (sijangkkaji) "up to the market"
   C. Example: 시장까지 데려다 줄게. (sijangkkaji deryeoda julkke.) "I'll drive you up to (until) the market."

여기까지 왔어?	yeogikkaji wasseo?	"You came all the way here?"

☞ Remember ☜

In certain situations -까지 (-kkaji) can also mean "even." In this case, 까지 (kkaji) is linked to nouns.

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 친구들까지 만났어?
   chingudeulkkaji mannasseo?

   "You even bought milk?"

Indefinite Pronoun: 뭔가 "Something"
얼굴에 뭐 묻었어요.
"You have something on your face."

We can use the question word 뭐 (mwo) as the indefinite pronoun "something" by adding on a simple conjugation. We can use this as an undefined noun.

Construction

뭐 + ㄴ가
뭔가 (mwonga) "something"
뭔가 샀어? (mwonga sasseo?) "Did you buy something?"

In This Dialogue

민수: ... 얼굴에 뭔가 묻었어요.
minsu: ... eolgul-e mwonga mudeosseoyo.
Minsu: "...you have something on your face."

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanized	"English"

뭔가 알고 있어?	mwonga algo isseo?	"Do you know something?"
아까 뭔가 떨어졌어.	akka mwonga tteoreojyeosseo.	"Something fell earlier."

☞ Remember ☜

1. We often pronounce the indefinite noun 뭔가 (mwonga) the same as the interrogative, 뭐 (mwo). This was the case in this lesson's dialogue.
2. You may apply the conjugation to different interrogative words, but there is an exception. KoreanClass101.com suggests you memorize these indefinite nouns as is.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Korean Possessive Pronouns

수진아. 니 얼굴에 뭐 묻었어.
Sujina. Ni ulgeure mwo mudeosseo.
"Sujin, you have something on your face."

We use possessive pronouns to attribute ownership of an object to someone. Like any other pronoun, these replace the nouns. We use different possessive pronouns according to the speaker's relationship with the listener. Humbling pronouns, neutral pronouns, and intimate pronouns, all indicate the relationship between the listener and the speaker.

Construction

In reality, possessive pronouns are a contraction of pronouns and the possessive particle (의).

1. 제 = 저의 (jeo-ui) - 저 + 의: first person humbling pronoun + possessive particle
   We use - 제 (je) to humble oneself in the presence of someone the speaker respects.
2. 내 = 나의 (na-ui) - 나 + 의: informal first person pronoun + possessive particle
   We use - 내 (nae) in informal contexts where the speaker feels that 제 (je) is too polite and inappropriate for the relationship with the listener. We use it in informal contexts, and when the speaker does not feel the need to show the highest respect to the listener.
3. 니 = 너의 (neo-ui) - 너 + 의: informal second person pronoun + possessive particle
   We use - 니 (ni) in informal contexts when the speaker feels very comfortable with the listener, and the power relationship is at least equal. We commonly use it when the speaker has the upper hand in the relationship.
4. 저희 = 저희 + 의 - 저희 (의): humbling first person plural noun + (possessive particle)
   We actually drop the possessive particle for this possessive pronoun (as we do in many cases.) We use this possessive particle in formal situations, for example, when the speaker does not know the listener well or when the listener holds much of the power in the relationship.
5. 우리 = 우리 + 의 - 우리 (의): intimate first person plural pronoun + (possessive particle)
   We actually drop the possessive particle for this possessive pronoun (as we do in many cases.) We use this possessive particle in informal situations, when the speaker feels that 저희 (jeohui) is too polite.

In This Dialogue

---

1. 수진: 어머, 어머... 내 거울...
   sujin: eomeo, eomeo... nae geoul...
   Sujin: "Oh my, oh my...my mirror."
2. 보라: 수진아. 니 얼굴에 뭐 묻었어.
   Bora: sujina. ni eolgul-e mwo mudeosseo.

Bora: "Sujin, you have something on your face."

3. 보라: 여기! 내 거울.
   Bora: yeogi! nae geoul.
   Bora: "Here! My mirror."

More Examples

1. 제 친구가 호주에 살아요.
   je chinguga hojue sarayo.
   "My friend lives in Australia."
2. 이게 내 차야.
   ige nae chaya.
   "This is my car."
3. 니 연필 줘.
   ni yeonpil jwo.
   "Give me your pencil."
4. 우리 집은 넓어.
   *uri jibeun neolb*eo.
   "My home is big." (neutral/intimate)
5. 저희 집은 좁아요.
   jeohui jibeun jobayo.
   "My home is small." (polite)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Addressing People in Korean

We only use second-person pronouns ("you") with those on familiar terms. Rather than saying "you," Korean speakers often choose to use the person's name to address the person. This was the case in this conversation. 보라 (Bora) who is friends with 수진 (Sujin) uses the second person possessive pronoun 니 (ni) towards 민수 (minsu), since they just met for the first time. Therein, it is better to use their names to address them than calling 니(ni), 야(ya).

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Korean Linking Particles
학교하고, 영화관하고, 중국하고, 피씨방 갔어요.
Hakkyohago, yeonghwagwanhago, junggukhago, pissibang gasseoyo.
"We went to school, the movie theater, China, and PC Bang."

In this lesson, we will discuss the Korean linking particles -하고 (-hago), -(이)랑 [-(i)rang], and -와/과 (-wa/gwa). We will also discuss the Korean verbal infix we use to convey the past.

- 하고(-hago)
"And, With"

We use -하고 (-hago) to link nouns in coordination in a sentence. We can translate it as "with," or "and," both of which must be implied from context. -하고 (-hago) links the nouns in consecutive order. We can use -하고 (-hago) with as many nouns as desired. However, we must link it to each noun in coordination. When we use this particle with one noun, a non-present noun is assumed to be connected to the linked noun. In this case, we still translate it as "with" or "and." This particle is interchangeable with -(이)랑 [(-i)rang], and is considered conversational Korean.

Construction

---

noun + -하고 (-hago)

In This Dialogue

---

1. 현석: 학교하고, 영화관하고, 중국하고, 피씨방 갔어요.
   hakkyohago, yeonghwagwanhago, junggukhago, pissibang gasseoyo
   Hyeonseok: "We went to school, the movie theater, China, and PC Bang."

More Examples

Korean	Romanized	"English"
선생님하고 밥 먹었어요.	seonsaengnimhago bap meogeosseoyo.	"I ate with the teacher."
밥하고, 찌개하고, 갈비하고, 김치 먹었어요.	baphago, jjigaehago, galbihago, gimchi meogeosseoyo.	"We ate rice, stew, galbi, and kimchi."
한국어 사전하고 일본어 사전 주세요.	hangugeo sajeon-hago ilboneo sajeon juseyo.	"Please give me a Korean dictionary and a Japanese dictionary."
저하고 같이 가요!	jeohago gachi gayo!	"Let's go with me."
친구하고 영화 보러 가요.	chinguhago yeonghwa boreo gayo.	"I'm going to the movies with my friend."

Please note: -하고 (-hago) is suffixed to all the nouns in the sequence.

- (이)랑 [-(i)rang]
And, With

We use -(이)랑 [-(i)rang] to link nouns in coordination in a sentence. We can translate it as "with," or "and," both of which must be implied from context. -(이)랑 links the nouns in consecutive order. We can use -(이)랑 with as many nouns as desired. However, we must link it to each noun in coordination. When we use this particle with one noun, a non-present noun is assumed to be connected to the linked noun. In this case, we still translate it as "with" or "and." This particle is interchangeable with -하고 (-hago), and we consider it conversational Korean.

Construction

-랑 attaches to nouns that end in vowels.
-이랑 attaches to nouns that end in consonants.

In This Dialogue

1. 엄마: 너 누구랑 같이 있었어?!
   neo nugurang gachi isseosseo?!
   Mom: "Who were you with?"
2. 현석: 지혜랑, 수업이랑, 수희랑, 지업이랑 같이 있었어요.
   jihyerang, sueobirang, suhuirang, jieobirang gachi isseosseoyo
   Hyeonseok: "I was with Hyejin, Sueop, Suhui, and Jiyeop."

More Examples

---

1. 선생님이랑 밥 먹었어요.
   seonsaengnimirang bam meogeosseoyo.
   "I ate with the teacher."

2. 밥이랑, 찌개랑, 갈비랑, 김치 먹었어요.
   babirang, jjigaerang, galbirang, gimchi meogeosseoyo.
   "We ate rice, stew, galbi, and kimchi."

3. 엄마랑, 아빠랑, 할아버지랑, 누나랑 다 같이 여행했어요.
   eommarang, apparang, harabeojirang, nunarang, da gachi yeohaenghaesseoyo.
   "We all went on a trip with my mom, dad, grandfather, and my sister."

Please note: -(이)랑 is suffixed to all the nouns in the sequence.

- 와/과 (-wa/gwa)
And, With

We use -와/과 (-wa/gwa) to link nouns in coordination in a sentence. We can translate it as "with," or "and," both of which must be implied from context. -와/과 (-wa/gwa) links the nouns in consecutive order. We can use -와/과 (-wa/gwa) with as many nouns as desired. However, we must link it to each noun in coordination. When we use this particle with one noun, a non-present noun is assumed to be connected to the linked noun. In this case, we still translate it as "with" or "and." This particle is interchangeable with -하고 (-hago) and -(이)랑 [-(i)rang], and we consider it formal Korean. We do not use -와/과 (-wa/gwa) as often as -하고 (-hago) and -(이)랑 [-(i)rang] in conversational Korean, but we can find it more often in written Korean.

Construction

We use -와 (wa) to link nouns ending in vowels.
We use -과 (gwa) to link nouns ending in consonants.

-았/었/였
Past Tense

-(았/었/였)- is a verbal infix, which we use to convey the past tense.

We use 았 for verbs that have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
We use 었 for verbs that do not have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
We use 였 for 하다 (hada) verbs.

Many times, there are deletions and contractions with repeating vowels. If a verb-stem ends in a consonant, there are no deletions or contractions. These contraction and deletion rules follow the 아/어/여 conjugation. Please refer to the grammar bank entry on -아/어/여 conjugation to refer to rules for contraction and deletion.

In This Dialogue

1. 엄마: 조현석! 늦었어!

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Using Full Names in Korea!

When people are being scolded by their family members or by someone they are on close terms with, many times they will be addressed by their full name (as was the case in today's situation). It is an attempt to bring attention to the person by calling a full name.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing One Action "Before" Another With - 기 전에 텔레비전 보기 전에 숙제 해!
terebijyeon bogi jeone sukjje hae!
"Do your homework before you watch TV."

We use this grammatical pattern to set a timeline and express an action that occurs before another action. This pattern emphasizes the last action in the construction. We use the first action to give a time reference. We translate this construction as "before (verb1), (verb2)."
We use this pattern to connect two verbs. We express politeness level, tense, negation, and mood through the second verb.

Construction

This construction uses two verbs. The second verb expresses the politeness level, tense, negation, and mood.

For example:

[Verb 1 - verb stem] + 기 전에 + [Verb 2]
Before [Verb 1], [Verb 2]

Verb 1 - 자다 (jada) - "to sleep"
자 (ja) - verb stem
Verb 2 - 먹다 (meoktta) - "to eat"

자 + 기 전에 + 먹다
자기 전에 먹다 (jagi jeone meoktta) - "eat before sleeping"
자기 전에 먹었어 (jagi jeone meogeosseo) "I ate before sleeping."
자기 전에 못 먹었어 (jagi jeone mon meogeosseo) "I couldn't eat before sleeping."

In This Dialogue

1. 엄마: 텔레비전 보기 전에 숙제 해!
   tellebijyeon bogi jeone sukjje hae!
   Mom: "Do your homework before you watch TV."
2. 엄마: 텔레비전 보기 전에 밥 먹어.
   tellebijyeon bogi jeone bam meogeo.
   Mom: "Eat something before you watch TV."
3. 엄마: 텔레비전 보기 전에 샤워 해.
   tellebijyeon bogi jeone syawo hae.
   Mom: "Take a shower before you watch TV."

More Examples

Korean	Romanized	"English"
한국에 가기 전에 러시아에 갔습니다.	hanguge gagi jeone reosiae gasseumnida.	"Before going to Korea, he went to Russia."
자기 전에 책을 읽어.	jagi jeone chaegeul ilgeo.	"Read a book before sleeping."
저는 농구하기 전에 샤워했어요.	jeoneun nongguhagi jeone syawohaesseoyo.	"Before playing basketball, I took a shower."
너랑 만나기 전에 민호 만났어.	neorang mannagi jeone minho mannasseo.	"I met Minho before I met you."
오기 전에 전화해 줘.	ogi jeone jeonhwahae jwo.	"Please call me before you come over!"

Remember

This grammatical construction is actually the nominalization of Verb 1 followed by the 전에 (jeone). 전 (jeon) means "before" and 에 (e) is the time marking particle.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Sitting on the Floor in Korea

Just as there is Western style to sit, there is an original Korean style which is to sit on the floor. So when watching TV, many Korean families will still sit on the floor. Also not only watching television, but other many activities also take place on the floor as well such as having a meal.

VOCABULARY

Hangul	Romanization	English	Class
방	bang	room	noun
청소하다	cheongsohada	to clean	verb
힘들다	himdeulda	to be difficult, to be arduous	verb
빨래하다	ppallaehada	to do laundry
숙제하다	sukjehada	to do homework
피곤하다	pigonhada	to be tired	verb
만들다	mandeulda	to make	verb
아침밥	achimbap	breakfast	noun

SAMPLE SENTENCES

이 방은 먼지투성이에요. i bangeun meonjituseongieyo. "This room is dusty."	난 오늘밤에 내 방을 청소해야한다. nan oneulbbame nae bangeul cheongsohaeyahanda. "I need to clean up my room tonight."

매일 매일 빨래해! maeil maeil ppallaehae! "Do your laundry everyday!"	나 지금 숙제하고 있어. na jigeum sukjehago isseo. "I'm doing my homework now."
어제는 피곤해서 일찍 잤어. eojeneun pigonhaeseo iljjik jasseo. "I was tired yesterday, so I went to bed early."	오늘 너무 피곤해요. oneul neomu pigonhaeyo. "I'm so tired today."
뭐 만들고 있어요? mwo mandeulgo isseoyo? "What are you making?"	간단한 요리를 만들었어요. gandanhan yori-reul mandeureosseoyo. "I made a simple dish."
나는 아침 밥을 먹지 않아. naneun achimbabeul meokji ana. "I don't eat breakfast!"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Korean Conjunction "and" - ...고
엄마... 저 방 청소했고, 빨래했고, 숙제했고, 공부했어요.
Umma... jeo bang cheongsohaekko, ppallaehaekko, sukjjehaekko, gongbuhaesseoyo.
"Mom...I cleaned my room, did the laundry, did my homework, and studied."

We use 고 (go) to connect verbs together. Generally, we translate it as "and" in English, and it works like the English conjunction "and." We also use it for connecting two or more clauses together in a single sentence. When used in a sequence of verbs, the last verb in the sequence does not carry 고 (go).

Construction

Present Tense / Future Tense
Verb Stem + 고
(Verb Stem 1)고, (Verb Stem 2)고, (Verb 3)

1. 쇼핑하다 (syopinghada) "to shop"
   (verb stem = 쇼핑하)
2. 밥 먹다 (bap meoktta) "to eat food"
   (verb stem = 밥 먹)
3. 커피 마시다 (keopi masida) "to drink coffee"
4. (쇼핑하 + 고), + (밥 먹 + 고), + (커피 마시다) =
5. 쇼핑하고, 밥 먹고, 커피 마시다.
   syopinghago bap meokgo keopi masida
   "To shop and eat and drink coffee."

Clause 1 + 고, Clause 2 (Clause 3, Clause 4, etc.)
*In this construction, we attach 고 (go) to the verb stem in the clause.

Past Tense
Verb Stem + 았/었/였 + 고
(Verb Stem 1) + 았/었/였 + 고, (Verb Stem 2) + 았/었/였 + 고, (Verb 3)

1. 공부하다 (gongbuhada) "to study"
2. 가다 (gada) "to go"
3. 한국어 공부했고, 집에 갔어요.
   hangugeo gongbu haekko, jibe gasseoyo.
   "I studied Korean and went home."

In This Dialogue

---

1. 현석: 엄마... 저 방 청소했고, 빨래했고, 숙제했고, 공부했어요. 텔레비젼 볼래요.
   eomma... jeo bang cheongsohaetgo, ppallaehaetgo, sukjehaetgo, gongbuhaesseoyo. tellebijyeon bollaeyo.
   Hyeonseok: "Mom...I cleaned my room, did the laundry, did my homework, and studied. I want to watch television."
2. 엄마: 안 돼! 밥 만들고, 엄마 빨래 하고, 아빠 빨래 하고, 내일 아침 밥도 만들어!
   an dwae! bap mandeulgo, eomma ppallae hago, appa ppallae hago, naeil achim baptto mandeureo!
   Mom: "No! Make dinner, do my laundry, do your father's laundry, and make tomorrow's breakfast!"
3. 현석: 엄마... 저 힘들고, 피곤해요... 텔레비젼 안 볼래요. 잘래요.
   eomma... jeo himdeulgo, pigonhaeyo... tellebijyeon an bollaeyo. jallaeyo.
   Hyeonseok: "Mom...I'm tired and exhausted. I don't want to watch television. I want to sleep."

Remember

1. The last verb in the sequence does not carry 고.
2. Even when았/었/였 does not precede -고, if the whole sentence is in the past tense (determined by the last verb of the sentence), -고 can refer to the past, as it's shown in example numbers 3 and 4 below.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Performing Multiple Actions at Once in Korean 지금 디비디 보면서 맥주를 마셔요.
jigeum dibidi bomyeonseo maekjjureul masyeoyo.
"I am watching a DVD while I am drinking beer."

-(으)면서 ((eu)myeonseo) indicates a simultaneous action performed by one person. We can translate this as "while," And it attaches directly to verb stems. We express tense, negation, and politeness level in the final clause. We can only use this with two simultaneous actions, not consecutive actions.

Construction

I. Verb stems ending in a vowel or the consonant ㄹ + -면서

For example:

1. 보다 (boda "to see, to watch")
   보(다) + -면서 = 보면서 ("while watching")
2. 돌다 (dolda "to turn, to spin")
   돌(다) + -면서 = 돌면서 ("while turning")

I. Verb stems ending in a consonant other than ㄹ + -으면서

For example:

1. 먹다 (meokda "to eat")
   먹(다) + -으면서 = 먹으면서 ("while eating")

Remember

The verbs 듣다 ("to listen"), 걷다 ("to walk"), 싣다 ("to load"), and 묻다 ("to ask") change the ending of the verb stems and we combine them with -으면서 to become 들으면서, 걸으면서, 실으면서, and 물으면서.

ㅂ irregular verbs such as 줍다 ("to pick up") and 굽다 ("to bake") change the ending of the verb stems and we combine them with -우면서 to become 주우면서 and 구우면서.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Korean Work Ethic

Koreans are world-renowned for their work ethic. Family members who bring household income typically spend only a few hours a week at home (typically the men). These working hours can also lead to 과로사 (gwarosa), which is a phenomenon recognized in Korea as a shock. This phenomenon literally means when one works oneself to death. For these reasons, there has been a labor law set the bar on maximum working hours as 40 hours a week, 5 days of work a week. In the same manner, Korean students noe do not have classes on Saturday since they also push themselves to death as well for perfectionism. I am sure it is not so new to all of you guys as well that Korean is also well-known for obssession towards education.

맥주 마셔. maekjju masyeo. "Drink some beer."	영국에 가고 싶어요. yeonguge gagosipeoyo. "I want to go to England."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Volitional Form and Connecting Actions With "and" -아/어/여+서 그럼 하와이에 가서, 골프를 칠까요?
geureom hawaie gaseo, golpeureul chilkkayo?
"Then do you want to go to Hawaii and play golf?"

We use this grammatical pattern to connect one action to another. The first clause gives reason or logical basis for what happens in the second clause. This is similar to -고, but -아/어/여+서 express a more logical bond between the two actions or the order in which the two actions happen.

Construction

I. We use -아서 (-aseo) with verbs that have either the vowel ㅗ (o) or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

For example:

1. 가다 (gada) "to go"
   - 가 (ga) - verb stem
2. - 오다 (oda) "to come"
   - 오 (o) - verb stem

Note: We often fuse -아 (-a) in -아서 (-aseo) into verb stems if the verb stem doesn't end in a consonant.

For example:

1. 가(다) + -아서 = 가서
2. 오(다) + -아서 = 와서

II. We use -어서 (-eoseo) with verbs that have any vowel other than the vowels ㅗ (o) or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

For example:

1. 늦다 (neutta) "to be late"
   - 늦 (neut) - verb stem
2. - 크다 (keuda) "to be big"
   - 크 (keu) - *v*erb stem

Note: We often fuse -어 (-eo) in -어서 (-eoseo) into verb stems if the verb stem doesn't end in a consonant.

For example:

1. 늦(다) + -어서 = 늦어서
2. 크(다) + -어서 = 커서

III. We use -여서 (-yeoseo) with 하다 (hada) verbs.

Note: We fuse -여 (-yeo) in -여서 (-yeoseo) into 하 (ha) - the verb stem of 하다 (hada). This results in 해 (hae).

The Volitional Form -ㄹ(을)까요?

We use the volitional form to express intention on the part of the speaker or to invite someone to do something. Specifically, we use it when asking someone if one would like to do something with the speaker, or with a group that includes the speaker. In English, we can translate it as, "shall we...?"

In addition to inviting someone to do something, we also use it to ask for one's opinion, view, or appraisal about a certain fact. In this specific usage, we translate it as, "will it be (verb)?"

Construction

-ㄹ/을까요? - (-l/eulkkayo) - Standard Politeness Level
-ㄹ/을까? - (-l/eulkka) - Intimate Politeness Level

We use -ㄹ까요? (-lkkayo?) with verbs that end in vowels.

For example:

보다 (boda) "to see, to watch"
보 - verb stem
보 + ㄹ까요? (bo + lkkayo)
볼까요? (bolkkayo?) "Shall we watch?" (Standard Politeness Level)
볼까? (bolkka?) "Shall we watch?" (Intimate Politeness Level)

We use -을까요? (-eulkkayo?) with verbs that end in consonants.

For example:

재미있다 (jaemiitta) "to be fun, to be interesting"
재미있 (jaemiit) - verb stem
재미있 + -을까요 (jaemiit) + (-eulkkayo?)
재미있을까요? (jaemiisseulkkayo?) "Will it be fun?" / "What do you think?" (Standard Politeness Level)
재미있을까? (jaemiisseulkka?) "Will it be fun?" / "What do you think?" (Intimate Politeness Level)

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is to Express Reasons in Korean: "Because" -기 때문에 오늘 비가 왔기 때문에 못 갔어요.
oneul biga wakki ttaemeune mot gasseoyo.
"It was raining today so I couldn't go."

-기 때문에 (-gi ttaemune) means "because" and we use it to show the reason for an action or a state. Originally, 때문에 in Korean means "because of," so by adding -기 at the end of the [verb stem] or the [verb stem + past infix], you literally nominalize the verb and say "because of verb(-ing) ."

There are several ways to express reasons in Korean:

1. Verb stem + (past infix if necessary) + -아/어/여 + 서
2. Verb stem + (past infix if necessary) + -(으)니까
3. Verb stem + (past infix if necessary) + -(으)므로
4. Verb stem + (past infix if necessary) + -기 때문에

때문에 generally expresses a stronger justification of the consequence than -아/어/여서, and is equally as strong as -(으)니까. So if you say -기 때문에 or 때문에, you are (in most cases) indicating that what has happened, is happening, or will happen as a consequence, has all the right reasons to happen.

Construction

I. Verb stem + (past infix if necessary) + -기 때문에

II. Noun + 때문에

Remember

The syntax order in Korean is often different from that in English, so we can also translate -기 때문에 as "therefore" or "so," depending on which part of the entire sentence you translate first.

In This Dialogue

1. 유근: 오늘 비가 왔기 때문에 못 갔어요.
   yugeun: oneul biga watgi ttaemune mot gasseoyo.
   Yugeun: "It was raining today so I couldn't go."
2. 유근: 어제는 춥기 때문에 못 갔어요.
   yugeun: eojeoneun chupkki ttaemune mot gasseoyo.
   Yugeun: "It was cold yesterday so I couldn't go."

More Examples

그렇기 때문에 그만두었어요.	geureoki ttaemune geumandueosseoyo.	"That's why I quit."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Middle School and High School Attendance in Korea

In Korea, when you attend middle school or high school, many students and parents automatically assume the 100% attendance. This can be because they consider it to educate students to be dilligent and take the responsibility on what they do since they are young. Therein, many students barely consder to be absent for school except when they are very sick. So when you graduate from elementary, middle, and high school, you get a certificate called 개근상,gaegeunsang, for not being absent at all for the entire three years or even 6 years.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing Reasons for Actions: "Because" -아/어/여서 오늘은 정말 피곤해서 쉴래요.
oneureun jeongmal pigonhaeseo shillaeyo.
"I am very tired today so I am going to rest."

-아/어/여서 is similar to -기 때문에, expressing a reason for an action or a state. -기 때문에 is slightly more formal and less colloquial, and -아/어/여서 is more colloquial and therefore we use it more commonly in everyday conversations. Unlike -기 때문에, to which you can add the past infix -었/았/였-, you cannot add the past infix to -아/어/여서 and we should express the tense through the other parts of the sentence.

Construction

I. We use -아서 (-aseo) with verbs that have either the vowel ㅗ (o) or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

For example:

1. 가다 (gada) "to go"
   가 (ga) - verb stem
   ▶ 가 + 아서 ▶ 가서 (gaseo)
2. 오다 (oda) "to come"
   오 (o) - verb stem
   ▶ 오 + 아서 ▶ 와서 (waseo)

Note: We often fuse -아 (-a) in -아서 (-aseo) into verb stems if the verb stem doesn't end in a consonant.

II. We use -어서 (-aseo) with verbs that have any vowel other than the vowels ㅗ (o) or ㅏ (a) in the verb stem's final syllable.

For example:

1. 늦다 (neutta) "to be late"
   늦 (neut) - verb stem
   ▶ 늦 + 어서 ▶ 늦어서

2. 크다 (keuda) "to be big"
   크 (keu) - *v*erb stem
   ▶ 크 + 어서 ▶ 커서

Note: We often fuse -어 (-eo) in -어서 (-eoseo) into verb stems if the verb stem doesn't end in a consonant.

III. We use -여서 (-yeoseo) with 하다 (hada) verbs.

Note: We fuse -여 (-yeo) in -여서 (-yeoseo) into 하 (ha) - the verb stem of 하다 (hada). This results in 해 (hae).

IV. Verb stems that end in -르 change to -ㄹ, then we attach them to the previous syllable, and -라서 follows them.

For example:

1. 모르다 ("to not know")
   ▶ 모르(다) ▶ 몰 + 라서 ▶ 몰라서 ("because I don't know")
   전화번호를 몰라서 연락을 못 해요.
   "I can't contact him because I don't know his phone number."
2. 고르다 ("to choose")
   ▶ 고르(다) ▶ 골 + 라서 ▶ 골라서 ("because I choose")
   너무 비싼 것을 골라서, 남자친구가 화가 났어요.
   "My boyfriend is upset because I chose something too expensive."

In This Dialogue

1. 유근: 오늘은 몸이 안 좋아서 학교 못 가요.
   Yugeun: oneureun momi an joaseo hakkyo mot gayo.
   Yugeun: "I am sick so I can't go to school today."
2. 유근: 오늘은 정말 피곤해서 쉴래요.
   Yugeun: oenureun jeongmal pigonhaeseo swillaeyo.
   Yugeun: "I am very tired today so I am going to rest."

Remember

For situations in which you make suggestions as to what to do and say, -자 or -ㅂ시다, you use -(으)니까, and can't use -아/어/여서.

For example:

1. Incorrect: 오늘은 추워서, 집에 있자
2. Correct: 오늘은 추우니까, 집에 있자

For situations in which you connect two separate actions in logical order and say, "I did XX because I did YY," you can use both -기 때문에 and -아/어/여서. However, when you are apologizing for a past action, you can't say -기 때문에, but must use -아/어/여서 + 죄송합니다/미안해요/미안해.

For example:

1. Incorrect: 늦게 왔으니까 미안해.
2. Correct: 늦게 와서 미안해.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing Reasons Related to the Future: Because, Since -(으)니까 그래도 졸업식이니까, 선생님이랑 사진 찍자.
geuraedo joreopssiginikka, seonsaengnimirang sajin jjikjja.
"But still, it is graduation day, so let's take a picture."

We use -(으)니까 when expressing a reason, along with -기 때문에 (gi ttaemune) and -서 (seo). While we usually use the other two to express reasons related to the past tense, we usually use -(으)니까 to express a future decision or a command, or when we use it to discuss a past action, it expresses something that was rightfully supposed to be that way.

Construction

▶ verb stem ending in a vowel + -니까
▶ verb stem ending in a consonant + -으니까

For example:

1. 일기를 쓰다 (ilgireul sseuda) "to write a diary"
   일기를 쓰 (verb stem ending in a vowel) + 니까 = 일기를 쓰니까
   일기를 쓰니까 (ilgireul sseunikka) "because I write a diary"
2. 돈이 있다 (itta) "to have money"
   돈이 있 (verb stem ending in a consonant) + 으니까 = 돈이 있으니까
   돈이 있으니까 (doni isseunikka) "because I have money"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Intentional Sentence Ending -(으)려고 하다 지금 공부 하려고.
"I'm going to study."

-(으)려고 하다 (-ryeogo hada) is an intentional sentence ending we use with action verbs and the verb of existence, 있다 (itda). This expresses the subject's intention or determines the subject's actions. We can use it with all persons (first person, second persons, and third persons), whereas other intentional sentence endings are limited.

We can translate this grammatical structure as "intend to (verb)," "going to (verb)," and "plan to (verb)."

We express mood, tense, negation, and politeness levels in the latter part of the grammatical structure, 하다 (hada).

Construction

Verb Stem + -(으)려고 하다
Conjugation differs slightly (according to the verb stem).

I. Verb Stem that ends in a vowel + 려고 하다
쉬다 (swida) "to rest"
쉬 (swi) - verb stem
쉬 + 려고 하다
쉬려고 하다 "to intend to rest"
저는 쉬려고 해요.
"I intend to rest." / "I'm going to rest." / "I plan to rest."

II. Verb Stem that ends in a consonant + 으려고 하다
받다 (batda) "to receive"
받 (bat) - verb stem
받 + 으려고 하다
받으려고 하다 "to intend to receive"
제가 받으려고 합니다.
"I intend to receive it."

Remember

Many times, we shorten this grammatical structure. The following are a few different colloquial variations of this grammatical structure:

Original Construction:
-(으)려고 하다

For example:

1. 자다 (jada) "to sleep"
   자 (verb stem)
   자 + 려고 하다
   자려고 하다. "to intend to sleep"
   자려고 해. "to intend"

Abbreviated/Shortened Variations:
I. -(으)려고
We remove 하다 from the construction. As we remove 하다 from this construction, there is no way to inflect politeness level. Generally speaking, to end a sentence in this manner makes it is closer to the intimate politeness level.

For example:

1. 자다 (jada) "to sleep"
   자 (verb stem)
   자 + 려고
   자려고. "I intend to sleep."

II. -ㄹ/을라구
In addition to removing 하다, we have changed the construction itself. This is closest to the intimate politeness level.

For example:

1. 자다 (jada) "to sleep"
   자 (verb stem)
   자 + ㄹ라구
   잘라구. "I intend to sleep."

In This Dialogue

1. 오빠: 세진아 지금 뭐 하려고?
   oppa: sejina jigeum mwo haryeogo?
   Older brother: "Sejin, what are you going to do now?"
2. 세진: 지금 공부 하려고.
   sejin: jigeum gongbu haryeogo.
   Sejin: "I'm going to study."
3. 세진: 과자는 나중에 먹으려고.
   sejin: gwajaneun najunge meogeuryeogo.
   Sejin: "I'm going to eat snacks later."

More Examples

1. 친구 집에서 영화 보려고 해.
   chinju jibeseo yeonghwa boryeogo hae.
   "I'm going to watch a movie at a friend's house."
2. 내일 교수님을 만나려고 합니다.
   naeil gyosunimeul mannaryeogo hamnida.
   "Tomorrow, I'm going to meet my professor."
3. 한국어를 공부 하려고 해.
   hangugeoreul gongbu haryeogo hae.
   "I plan on studying Korean."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Showing Intention in Korean -ㄹ/을게 세진아, 오빠 컴퓨터 할게.
sejina, oppa keompyuteo halkke.
"Sejin, I'm going to use the computer, okay?"

-ㄹ/을게 (eulkke) is the grammar structure that shows intentions. We use it to indicate a person's intention or plan, but usually as a response to someone's remarks or as a reaction to something that happened. We use this sentence final-ending construction with action verbs and the verb of existence 있다 (itta). Since we use it to express the speaker's intentions, we cannot use it in a question.

Construction

Verb stems ending in a vowel + -ㄹ게

1. 보다 (boda) - "to see"
   보(다) + -ㄹ게 ▶ 볼게 ("I will see it")

▶ Verb stems ending in a consonant (other than ㄹ)+ -을게

1. 잡다 (japtta) - "to catch"
   잡(다) + -을게 ▶ 잡을게 ("I will catch it")

▶ Verb stems ending inㄹ + -게

1. 놀다 (nolda) - "to play"
   놀(다) + -게 ▶ 놀게 ("I will play")

In This Dialogue

---

1. 오빠: 세진아 오빠 컴퓨터 할게.
   oppa: sejina oppa keompyuteo halge.
   Older brother: "Sejin, I'm going to use the computer okay?"
2. 오빠: 그럼 오빠 이 과자 먹을게.
   oppa: geureom oppa i gwaja meogeulge.
   Older brother: "Then, I'm going to eat this okay?"
3. 오빠: 그럼 오빠 TV 볼게.
   oppa: geureom oppa TV bolge.
   Older brother: "Then, I am going to watch TV okay?"

☞ Remember ☜

Even when you're directly asked about your intentions or plans, if what you're intending to do has not been affected or decided by what the other person has just said, you cannot use -ㄹ/을게 because this is more of a reactive statement or decision when it's in the middle of a conversation. In this case, -ㄹ/을 것이다 is more natural (-ㄹ/을 거예요, -ㄹ/을 거야). But you CAN use -ㄹ/을게 when you are starting a conversation and just giving the person an idea of what you're going to do as in 나 갈게! ("I'm leaving!").

♣ More Examples ♣

Korean	Romanization	"English"
나 먼저 갈게. 안녕! [가다]	na meonjeo galkke. annyeong!	"I'm leaving first. Bye!"

자꾸 잊어버려요. jakku ijeobeoryeoyo. "I keep forgetting it."	자꾸 전화하지 마. jakku jeonhwahaji ma. "Don't keep calling me."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing a Future Action or Intention -ㄹ(을) 것이다 자꾸 싸울 거야?
jakku ssaul kkeoya?
"Are you two going to keep fighting?"

We use this grammar point to express a future action or an intention. This is stronger than the other intentionals, -ㄹ(을)게(요) and -려고 하다, since -ㄹ(을)게(요) has the partial nuance of asking for permission or agreement, and -려고 하다 is an expression of a plan or an intention without being absolutely resolute about it. And different from -ㄹ(을)게(요), which can't be made into a question, we can use this grammar pattern to make a question.

We can change the latter part, 것이다, to 거야, 거예요, and 것입니다 in the present tense, depending on the politeness levels.

Construction

▶ Verb stems ending in a vowel + -ㄹ 것이다

1. [가다] (gada) - "to go"
   가(다) + ㄹ 것이다 = 갈 것이다 ("will go")
   갈 거야 (intimate)갈 거예요 (standard)
   갈 것입니다 or 갈 겁니다 (formal)
2. [보다] (boda) - "to see"
   보(다) + ㄹ 것이다 = 볼 것이다 ("will see")
   볼 거야 (intimate)
   볼 거예요 (standard)
   볼 것입니다 or 볼 겁니다 (formal)

▶ Verb stems ending in a consonant + -을 것이다

1. [잡다] (japda) - "to catch"
   잡(다) + 을 것이다 = 잡을 것이다 ("will catch")
   잡을 거야 (intimate)
   잡을 거예요 (standard)
   잡을 것입니다 or 잡을 겁니다 (formal)

▶ Verb stems ending with -ㄹ + 것이다

1. [살다] (salda) - "to live"
   살(다) + 것이다 = 살 것이다 ("will live")
   살 거야 (intimate)
   살 거예요 (standard)
   살 것입니다 or 살 겁니다 (formal)

In This Dialogue

1. 엄마: 자꾸 싸울 거야?
   eomma: jakku ssaul geoya?
   Mom: "Are you two going to keep fighting?"
2. 엄마: 자꾸 동생 괴롭힐 거야?
   eomma: jakku dongsaeng goeropil geoya?
   Mom: "Are you going to keep bugging your sister?"
3. 엄마: 너희들 현석이네 보낼 거야!

밥 먹었어요? bap meogeosseoyo? "Did you eat?"	나도 몰라. nado molla. "I don't know either."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Present Progressive -고 있다 진용아, 지금 뭐하고 있어?
jinyonga, jigeum mwohago isseo?
"Jinyong, what are you doing now?"

-고 있다 (go itta) is the present progressive and shows an action that is continual. We use it with action verbs and we express tense and politeness level in the final verb 있다 (itda), which means "to be." You can also use this grammar pattern to tell someone to be doing something.

Construction

Action Verb Stem + 고 있다 (go itda)

1. 먹다 (meoktta) - "to eat"
   먹 - verb stem
   먹고 있다 - "to be eating"
2. 목욕하다 (mogyokhada) - "to bathe"
   목욕하 - verb stem
   목욕하고 있다 - "to be bathing"

집에 데려다 주세요. jibe deryeoda juseyo. "Please take me home."	우리 오늘 헤어졌어. uri oneul heeojyeosseo. "We broke up today."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Requestive -주다
진용아, 나 밥 사 줘!
Jinyonga, na bab ssa jwo!
"Jinyong, buy me food!"

We can use the verb 주다 as the requestive when it's in an imperative sentence or in a question. We use the requestive to make a request to someone such as requesting an action from someone, and we use it in conjunction with action verbs. The action we request is always a request on behalf of, or for the sake of a person (the speaker, a third party, etc.) or an entity (a group, a school, etc.). The request we make must be on behalf of another party.

We can literally translate this phrase as "please do (verb) for (me)." We can conjugate the final verb 주다 (juda), which literally means "to give," according to tense, politeness level, and negation.

We can replace the final verb 주다 (juda) with its humbling version, 드리다 (deurida) in this grammatical construction. To use the humbling version, simply replace 주다 with 드리다 and use the same grammatical pattern.

When the action itself is 주다 ("to give") however, you use 주다 only once.

For example:

1. Incorrect: 줘 주다
2. Correct: 주다

Construction

(Action verb stem) + 아/어/여 주다

보다 (boda) - "to see, to watch, to look"
보 (bo) - verb stem
보 + 아 주다. (bo + a juda)
봐 주다. (bwa juda).
봐 줘. (bwa jwo).
"Watch for me." (Imperative / Intimate Politeness Level)

애들 좀 봐 줘.
aedeul jom bwa jwo.
"Please watch the kids (for me)."

유라: 그러면 나 집에 데려다 줘.	yura: geureomyeon na jib-e deryeoda jwo.	Yura: "Then, take me home."
유라: 흑... 헤어져 줘!	yura: heuk... heeojyeo jwo!	Yura: (crying) "Break up with me!"

♣ More Examples ♣

엄마! 밥 해 줘!	eomma! bap hae jwo!	"Mom! Make me some food!"
좋은 남자 소개해 주세요.	joeun namja sogaehae juseyo.	"Please introduce me to a good man."
내일 전화해 줘.	naeil jeonhwahae jwo.	"Call me tomorrow."
할머니 생일 선물 사 드릴게요.	halmeoni saengil seonmul sa deurilgeyo.	"I'll buy you a birthday present, Grandma."
죄송한데요... 문 좀 열어 주실래요?	joesonghandeyo... mun jom yeoreo jusillaeyo?	"I'm sorry, but...would you please open the door?"

☞ Remember ☜

When we use this construction in the question along with the grammatical pattern "-ㄹ/을까 (요) [-l/eulkka (yo)], the speaker is asking if he/she should perform that specific action on behalf of the other person. When used as a question, we can translate it as, "Should/Shall I (verb) for you?"

For example:

1. 지워 줄까?
   jiwo julkka?
   "Shall I erase it (for you)?"
2. 나가 줄까?
   naga julkka?
   "Do you want me go outside (so that you can do things in private)?"

 Note: It is also possible to say 지워 줘? and 나가 줘? to mean the same thing as the sentences above. This is quite common, but it's more correct and clearer to say 지워 줄까? and 나가 줄까?

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Reviewing "Because," "and," "Before," and Simultaneous Actions 아니면 수업 시작하기 전에 밥을 안 먹어서 배고파?
animyeon sueop sijakagi jeone babeul an meogeoseo baegopa?
"Or are you hungry because you didn't eat anything before class?"

-(으)니까 (nikka) is a conjunction that we used to combine two clauses together. This clause indicates that the first clause is the reason the second clause happened or occurred. We can translate -(으)니까 (nikka) as "because," "since," or "so."
We use -(으)니까 when expressing a reason, along with -기 때문에 (gi ttaemune) and -서 (seo). While we usually use the other two to express reasons related to the past tense, we use -(으)니까 to express a future decision or a command, or when we use it to discuss past actions, to talk about something that was rightfully supposed to be that way.

Construction

We attach 으니까 to the end of clauses that end in consonants.
(Clause 1) 으니까 (Clause 2)

For example:

1. 매운 것을 못 먹으니까, 김밥 만들자.
   Maeun geoseul mon meogeunikka, gimbbap mandeulja.
   "They can't eat spicy food, so let's make gimbap."

We attach 니까 to the end of clauses that end in vowels.
(Clause 1) 니까 (Clause 2).

For example:

1. 지금 비 오니까 우산 가져가.
   Jigeum bi onikka usan gajyeoga.
   "It's raining now so take your umbrella with you."

In This Dialogue

---

1. 지선: 안 적어 놓으니까 자꾸 까먹지!
   Jiseon: an jeogeo noeunikka jakku kkameokjji!
   Jiseon: "You keep forgetting because you don't have it written down."

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 맨날 술을 마시니까 돈이 없지.
   Maennal sureul masinikka doni eopjji.
   "You have no money because you drink every day."

2. 거짓말을 하니까 친구가 없지.
   Geojinmareul hanikka chinguga eopjji.
   "You have no friends because you tell lies."

아니면 수업 시작하기 전에 밥을 안 먹어서 배고파?
Animyeon sueop sijakhagi jeone babeul an meogeoseo baegopa?
"Or are you hungry because you didn't eat anything before class?"

We use this grammatical pattern to set a time line and express an action before another action. This pattern emphasizes the last action in the construction. We use the first action to give a time reference. We translate this construction as "before (verb1), (verb2)."
We use this pattern to connect two verbs. We express the politeness level, tense, negation, and mood through the second verb.

Construction

[Verb 1 - verb stem] + 기 전에 + [Verb 2]
Before [Verb 1], [Verb 2]

Verb 1: 자다 (jada) - "to sleep"
자 (ja) - verb stem
Verb 2: 먹다 (meoktta) - "to eat"

자 + 기 전에 + 먹다
자기 전에 먹다. (Jagi jeone meoktta) - "Before sleeping, eat."
자기 전에 먹었어. (Jagi jeone meogeosseo) "I ate before sleeping."
자기 전에 못 먹었어. (Jagi jeone mon meogeosseo)"I couldn't eat before sleeping."

In This Dialogue

---

1. 장훈: 아니면 수업 시작하기 전에 밥을 안 먹어서 배고파?
   Janghun: animyeon sueop sijak hagi jeone babeul an meogeoseo baegopa?
   Janghun: "Or are you hungry because you didn't eat anything before class?"

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 밥 먹기 전에 손 씻어.
   Bam meokki jeone son ssiseo.
   "Wash your hands before you eat."

2. 저는 자기 전에 책을 읽어요.
   Jeoneun jagi jeone chaegeul ilgeoyo.
   "I read before I go to sleep."

혹시 숙제 까먹고 집에 놓고 온 거 아니야?
Hokssi sukjje kkameokko jibe nokko on geo aniya?
"Maybe you forgot your homework and left it at home. No?"

We use 고 (go) to connect verbs together. We generally translate it as "and" in English, and it works as the English conjunction "and." We also use it for connecting two or more clauses together in a single sentence.
When used in a sequence of verbs, the last verb in the sequence does not carry 고 (go).

Construction

Verb Stem + 고
(Verb Stem 1)고, (Verb Stem 2)고, (Verb 3).

1. 쇼핑하다 (syopinghada) - "to shop"
   verb stem = 쇼핑하
2. 밥 먹다 (bam meoktta) - "to eat food"
   verb stem = 밥 먹
3. 커피 마시다 (keopi masida) - "to drink coffee"
   (쇼핑하 + 고), + (밥 먹 + 고), + (커피 마시다)

= 쇼핑하고, 밥 먹고, 커피 마시다.
syopinghago bap meokko keopi masida.
"To shop and eat and drink coffee."

Clause 1 + 고, Clause 2 (Clause 3, Clause 4, etc.)
*In this construction, we attach 고 (go) to the verb stem in the clause.

공부하다 (gongbuhada) - "to study"
가다 (gada) - "to go"
한국어 공부했고, 집에 갔어요.
hangugeo gongbuhaetgo, jib-e gasseoyo.
"I studied Korean and went home."

In This Dialogue

---

1. 지선: 혹시 숙제 까먹고 집에 놓고 온 거 아니야?
   Jiseon: hokssi sukjje kkameokko jibe noko on geo aniya?
   Jiseon: "Maybe you forgot your homework and left it at home. No?"

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 친구들하고 밥을 먹고, 노래방에 갔어요.
   Chingudeurago babeul meokko, noraebange gasseoyo.
   "I ate with my friends and went to a karaoke."
2. 영화를 보고, 옷을 사고, 햄버거를 먹을 거예요.
   Yeonghwareul bogo, oseul sago, haembeogeoreul meogeul kkeoyeyo.

"I'm going to watch a movie, buy some clothes, and eat a hamburger."

아니면 일하면서 학교 다녀서 힘들어?
animyeon irhamyeonseo hakkyo danyeoseo himdeureo?
"Or maybe you're tired because you're working while going to school?"

We use -(으)면서 [-(eu)myeonseo] to express two simultaneous actions taking place. We can translate this as "while." It can also link two clauses that are taking action at the same time.
We only use this construction with actions verbs. We express tense, negation, and politeness level in the final verb or clause. We can only use this construction with two simultaneous actions, not consecutive or subsequent actions.

Construction

Action 1 (Verb stem) + -(으)면서 Action 2

Verb stems ending in consonants use -으면서
먹다 (meokda) - "to eat"
먹 (meok) - verb stem
먹 + -으면서
먹으면서 영화를 봐요.
Meogeumyeonseo yeonghwareul bwayo.
"While eating, I watch a movie."

Verb stems ending in vowels use -면서
자다 (jada) - "to sleep"
자 (ja) - verb stem
자 + -면서
자면서 말해요.
Jamyeonseo malhaeyo.
"While I sleep, I talk."

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Simple Present - -아/어/여(요)

-어/어/여(요) (a/eo/yeo(yo)) is the basic way to conjugate Korean verbs in the simple present tense. 요 (yo) is attached to the end of a sentence to make it more polite (standard politeness level). This grammar structure can be used as is to form a question. You just need to raise the intonation at the end of the sentence.

▷ Construction

▶ㅏ - is used for verbs that have ㅏ(a) or ㅗ(o) as the last vowel in the verb stem.
▶ㅓ - is used for verbs that do not have ㅏ(a) or ㅗ(o) as the last vowel in the verb stem.
▶ㅕ - is used for 하다 (hada) verbs.

Often, there are deletions and contractions with repeating vowels (if a verb stem ends in a consonant, there are no deletions or contractions). See the following list:

ㅗ(o)/ㅏ(a) Verb Stems
1. ㅏ(a) + ㅏ(a) -> ㅏ(a)
2. ㅗ(o) + ㅏ(a) -> ㅘ(wa)

All other verbs
3. ㅓ(eo) + ㅓ(eo) -> ㅓ(eo)
4. ㅜ(wo) + ㅓ(eo) -> ㅝ(weo)
5. ㅡ(eu) + ㅓ(eo) -> ㅓ(eo)
6. ㅣ(i) + ㅓ(eo) -> ㅕ(yeo)
7. ㅐ(ae) + ㅓ(eo) -> ㅐ(ae)

하다(hada) verbs
8. 하(ha) + ㅕ(yeo) -> 해(hae)

♣ Remember ♣

In Korean, the simple present tense can replace the present progressive tense. It can also express something that will happen in the near future.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(3)주연: 그럼 배 운동은 안 해요?
Juyeon: geureom bae undongeun an haeyo?
Juyeon: Aren't you going to do abs?

(4)영철: 지금 해요.
Yeongcheol: jigeum haeyo.
Yeongcheol: I am doing it now.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 지금 놀아요.
Jigeum norayo
I'm hanging out now.

2. 공부해?
Gongbuhae?
Are you studying?

3. 영화 봐요.
Yeonghwa bwayo.
I'm watching a movie.

4. 내일 친구 만나요.
Naeil chingu mannayo.
I'm meeting a friend tomorrow.

5. 아직도 담배 피워요?
Ajikdo dambae piwoyo?
Do you still smoke?

Grammar Point #2 - Future - ㄹ/을 것이다

-ㄹ/을 것이다 (l/eul geosida) is used to express a future action or an intention. This is the most common way of expressing the future, and it is stronger than the other intentionals such as -ㄹ(을)게(요) and -려고 하다, since -ㄹ(을)게(요) has the partial nuance of asking for permission or agreement and -려고 하다 expresses a plan or an intention without being absolutely resolute about it. Also, this grammar pattern can be used to ask a question; -ㄹ(을)게(요) cannot.
The latter part, 것이다 can be changed to 거야, 거예요 or 것입니다 in the present tense, depending on the politeness level.

▷ Construction

▶ Verb stems ending in a vowel + -ㄹ 것이다

[가다] (gada) - to go
= 가(다) + ㄹ 것이다 = 갈 것이다 (will go)
= 갈 거야 (intimate)
= 갈 거예요 (standard)
= 갈 것입니다 or 갈 겁니다 (formal)

[보다] (boda) - to see
= 보(다) + ㄹ 것이다 = 볼 것이다 (will see)
= 볼 거야 (intimate)
= 볼 거예요 (standard)
= 볼 것입니다 or 볼 겁니다 (formal)

▶ Verb stems ending in a consonant + -을 것이다

[잡다] (japda) - to catch
= 잡(다) + 을 것이다 = 잡을 것이다 (will cach)
= 잡을 거야 (intimate)
= 잡을 거예요 (standard)
= 잡을 것입니다 or 잡을 겁니다 (formal)

▶ Verb stems ending with -ㄹ + 것이다

[살다] (salda) - to live
= 살(다) + 것이다 = 살 것이다 (will live)
= 살 거야 (intimate)
= 살 거예요 (standard)
= 살 것입니다 or 살 겁니다 (formal)

Juyeon: When are you going to do arm exercises?

(6)영철: 곧 할 거예요.
Yeongcheol: got hal kkeoyeoyo.
Yeongcheol: I'll do it soon.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 영화 볼 거야. [보다]
Yeonghwa bol geoya.
I'm going to watch a movie!

2. 이거 먹을 거야? [먹다]
Igeo meogeul geoya?
Are you going to eat this?

3. 동생이랑 놀 거야. [놀다]
Nae dongsaengirang nol geoya!
I'm going to hang out with my younger sister!

4. 언제 잘 거예요? [자다]
Eonje jal kkeoyeyo?
When are you going to sleep?

5. 오늘은 제가 요리할 거예요. [요리하다]
Oneureun jega yorihal kkeoyeyo.
I'm going to cook today.

Grammar Point #3 - Past - -았/었/였다

-았/었/였다 (at/eot/yeotda) is the grammar structure used to express the past tense. -았/었/였 is the verbal infix used to convey the past tense.

았 - is used for verbs that have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
었 - is used for verbs that do not have ㅏ or ㅗ as the last vowel in the verb stem.
였 - is used for 하다 (hada) verbs.

Many times, deletions and contractions have repeating vowels (if a verb stem ends in a consonant, there are no deletions or contractions). These contraction and deletion rules follow the 아/어/여 conjugation.

▷ Construction

(Contraction and Deletion Rules follow the same rules as the 아/어/여 conjugation.)

[Verb Stem] + [았/었/였] + [Conjugation (politeness level/mood/etc.]

1. 먹다 (to eat)

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - I Will - ㄹ/을게(요)

-ㄹ/을게 (l/eulge) is the grammar structure that shows intentions. It is used to indicate a person's intention or plan, but usually as a response to someone's remarks or as a reaction to something that happened. It is a sentence-final ending construction used with action verbs and the verb meaning "to exist," 있다 (itda).

▷ Construction

-ㄹ/을게요 - (-l/eulge) - Standard Politeness Level
-ㄹ/을게 - (-l/eulge) - Intimate Politeness Level

(a) -ㄹ게요 (-lgeyo) is used with verbs that end in vowels.

사다 (sada) - to buy
사 (sa) - verb stem
사 + -ㄹ게요 (sa + lgeyo)
살게요 (salgeyo) - (I) will buy (it). - Standard Politeness Level
살게 (salge) - (I) will buy (it). - Intimate Politeness Level

(b) -을게요? (-eulgeyo) is used with verbs that end in consonants.

있다 (itda) - to be
있 (it) - verb stem
있 + 을게요 (iss + eulgeyo)
있을게요 (isseulgeyo) - (I) will be (here). - Standard Politeness Level
있을게 (isseulge) - (I) will be (here). - Intimate Politeness Level

4. 연락할게.
Yeollakhalge.
I'll keep in touch.

5. 알았어. 일찍 갈게.
Arasseo. iljjik galkke.
Alright. I'll be there early.

Grammar Point #2 - I Am Going To - ㄹ/을 것이다

This grammar point is used to express a future action or an intention. This is stronger than the other intentionals, -ㄹ(을)게(요) and -려고 하다, since -ㄹ(을)게(요) has the partial nuance of asking for permission or agreement, and -려고 하다 is an expression of a plan or an intention without being absolutely resolute about it. It is different from -ㄹ(을)게(요) which can't be made into a question so this grammar pattern can be used to ask a question.

The latter part, 것이다 can be changed to 거야, 거예요, and 것입니다 in the present tense, depending on the politeness levels.

▷ Construction

▶ Verb stems ending in a vowel + -ㄹ 것이다

[가다] (gada) - to go
= 가(다) + ㄹ 것이다 = 갈 것이다 (will go)
= 갈 거야 (intimate)
= 갈 거예요 (standard)
= 갈 것입니다 or 갈 겁니다 (formal)

[보다] (boda) - to see
= 보(다) + ㄹ 것이다 = 볼 것이다 (will see)
= 볼 거야 (intimate)
= 볼 거예요 (standard)
= 볼 것입니다 or 볼 겁니다 (formal)

▶ Verb stems ending in a consonant + -을 것이다

[잡다] (japtta) - to catch
= 잡(다) + 을 것이다 = 잡을 것이다 (will cach)
= 잡을 거야 (intimate)
= 잡을 거예요 (standard)
= 잡을 것입니다 or 잡을 겁니다 (formal)

▶ Verb stems ending with -ㄹ + 것이다

[살다] (salda) - to live
= 살(다) + 것이다 = 살 것이다 (will live)
= 살 거야 (intimate)
= 살 거예요 (standard)
= 살 것입니다 or 살 겁니다 (formal)

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Adnominal Suffixes - -ㄴ/은, -는, -ㄹ/을

-ㄴ/은(eun), -는(neun), -ㄹ/을(eul) are adnominal suffixes that make a verb into an adjective. Depending on which of these suffixes is attached to the verb stem, the verb can work as an adjective expressing a state or an action of the past, the present or the future.

▷ Construction

★ The Past Tense : -ㄴ/은

Verb stems ending in a vowel + ㄴ
- 가다 (gada - to go) → 가(다) + ㄴ = 간
- 어제 간 곳 = the place (I/we/you/he/they/...) went to yesterday

Verb stems ending in a consonant + 은
- 심다 (simtta - to plant) → 심(다) + 은 = 심은
- 내가 심은 나무 = the tree that I planted

★ The Present Tense : -는

Verb stem + 는
- 보다 (boda - to see) → 보(다) + 는 = 보는
- 지금 보는 책 = the book (I am/You are/...) reading now

Verb stems ending with ㄹ : ㄹ drops + -는
- 울다 (ulda - to cry) → 우(ㄹ다) + 는 = 우는
- 우는 아이 = the child who is crying

★ The Future Tense : -ㄹ/을

Verb stems ending in a vowel + ㄹ
- 하다 (hada - to do) → 하(다) + ㄹ = 할
- 할 말 = words (I/you/...) will say = things to say

Verb stems ending in a consonant + 을
- 읽다 (iktta - to read) → 읽(다) + 을 = 읽을
- 내일 읽을 책 = the book (I/you/...) will read tomorrow

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Counter For People - 명

명 (myeong) is a word used to count people. It can come after numbers and also 몇 (myeot), the interrogative adjective, to ask "how many people". A noun specifying the social title or the identity of the person usually comes before the number, but it can be omitted when you're answering a question.

Ex)
A: 친구 몇 명 있어? (chingu myeot myeong isseo? - How many friends do you have?)
B: 두 명 있어. (du myeong isseo - I have two (friends).)

▷ Construction

(Nouns specifying a social status or a position) + Number + 명

Ex)
▷ 3 friends = 친구 세 명 (chingu se myeong)
▷ 3 teachers = 선생님 세 명 (seonsaengnim se meyong)
▷ 10 taxi drivers = 택시 기사 열 명 (taekssi gisa yeol myeong)

▷ In This Dialog
---
(1)동민: 가족이 몇 명이세요?
(1)dongmin: gajogi myeot myeongiseyo?
(1)Dongmin: How many people are there in your family?

(2)지수: 저희 가족은 10명이에요.
(2)jisu: jeohui gajogeun yeol myeongieyo.
(2)Jisu: My family has 10 people.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 몇 명 정도 왔어요? (myeot myeong jeongdo wasseoyo?)
- About how many people came?

2. 다섯 명 앉을 자리 있어요? (daseot myeong anjeul jari isseoyo?)
- Are there seats for five people to sit?

3. 한 명만 오세요. (han myeong-man oseyo)
- One person, come over here, please.

☞ Remember ☜

명 is replaced with 분 when you want to be polite or honorific.

Ex)
- (In a restaurant) 몇 분이세요? (myeot bbuniseyo? - Party of how many?)
- 선생님 한 분이 안 오셨어요. (seonsaengnim han buni an osyeosseoyo - One teacher isn't here.)

Grammar Point #2 - Counter for Animals - 마리

마리 (myeong) is a word used to count animals. It can come after numbers and also 몇 (myeot), the interrogative adjective, to ask 'how many animals'. A noun specifying the kind of animal usually comes before the number, but it can be omitted when you're answering a question. 마리 is also used for an animal or fish that is already dead and made into food.

Ex)
A: 나 개 2마리 있어. (na gae du mari isseo - I have two dogs.)
B: 나는 3마리 있어. (na se mari isseo - I have three.)

▷ Construction

(Nouns specifying the kind of animal) + Number + 마리

Ex)
▷ 3 cats = 고양이 세 마리 (goyangi se mari)
▷ 5 birds = 새 다섯 마리 (sae daseot mari)

▷ In This Dialog
---

(5)동민: 10명이 아니고 5명이랑 개 5마리 아니에요?
(5)dongmin: yeolmyeongi anigo daseonmyeongirang gae daseonmari anieyo?
(5)Dongmin: Isn't it rather five people and five dogs, not ten people?

(6)지수: 5마리 아니에요!!!
(6) jisu: daseonmari anieyo!!!
(6)Jisu: They are not five dogs!!!

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 모기 한 마리가 들어왔어요.
Mogi han mariga deureowasseoyo
A mosquito came in.

2. 강아지 한 마리 키우고 있어요.
Gangaji han mari kiugo isseoyo
I'm raising a puppy.

3. 닭 한 마리 다 먹었어요.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - From - -부터/에서

부터 (buteo) and -에서 (eseo) are words that mean "from", and both can be used for indicating time, range and distance. They are often paired with 까지 (kkaji), which means "until" or "up to". Although 부터 and 에서 are of the same meaning, 부터 is much more commonly used than 에서. Also, 에서 doesn't sound very natural with some nouns, but there is no set rule for this.

▷ Construction

Noun + 부터/에서

Ex)
- 오늘 (oneul) - today
- 오늘 + 부터 = 오늘부터 = from today

Ex)
- 여기 (yeogi) - here
- 여기 + 에서 = 여기에서 = from here

☞ remember ☜

Note that -에서 can also work as a location particle, expressing the place where an action takes place.

▷ In This Dialog

(1)선생님: 자, 오늘부터 마라톤 연습을 할 거예요.
Seonsaengnim: ja, oneulbuteo maraton yeonseubeul hal kkeoyeyo.
Teacher: So, from today, we're going to practice for the marathon.

(3)선생님: 다음 달에 마라톤 대회가 있으니까, 오늘부터 준비할 거예요.
Seonsaengnim: daeum dare maraton daehoega isseunikka, oneulbuteo junbihal kkeoyeyo.
Teacher: We have a marathon competition next month, so we'll prepare for it from today.

(7)선생님: 여기에서 공원까지 갈 거예요. 자... 준비!!
Seonsaengnim: yeogieseo gongwonkkaji gal kkeoyeyo. ja... junbi!!
Teacher: From here, we'll go up to the park. Now... get ready!!

(9)선생님: 그리고 연습은 월요일부터 금요일까지 일주일에 5번 할 거예요.
Seonsaengnim: geurigo yeonseubeun woryoilbuteo geumyoilkkaji iljuire daseot bbeon hal kkeoyeyo.
Teacher: And we'll do the practice five times a week, from Monday to Friday.

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 내일부터 담배 안 피울게요. [피우다]
Naeilbuteo dambae an piulkkeyo.
I won't smoke from tomorrow on.

2. 저부터 시작할게요. [시작하다]
Jeobuteo sijakhalkkeyo.
I'll start first.

3. 언제부터 한국어 공부했어요? [공부하다]
Eonjebuteo hangugeo gongbuhaesseoyo?
Since when did you study Korean?

4. 다음 주부터 오지 마세요. [오다]
Daeum jjubuteo oji maseyo.
Stop coming here, starting next week.

5. 커피부터 시키자. [시키다]
Keopibuteo sikija.
Let's start with ordering coffee.

Grammar Point #2 - To, Until, Up To - -까지

-까지 (kkaji) is a particle that expresses "until", "to", "up to", or sometimes "as much/many as" and "even". It has the nuance of covering a certain range or distance, and it can be applied to time to mean "until." It is often paired with -부터 or -에서.

▷ Construction

Noun + 까지

Ex)
지금 (jigeum) - now
지금 + 까지 = 지금까지 = until now

▷ In This Dialog

(6)학생: 선생님, 어디까지 뛰어요?
Haksaeng: seonsaengnim: seonsaengnim, eodikkaji ttwieoyo?
Student: Teacher, where do we run?

(7)선생님: 여기에서 공원까지 갈 거예요. 자... 준비!!
Seonsaengnim: yeogieseo gongwonkkaji gal kkeoyeyo. ja... junbi!!
Teacher: From here, we'll go up to the park. Now... get ready!!

(9)선생님: 그리고 연습은 월요일부터 금요일까지 일주일에 5번 할 거예요.
Seonsaengnim: geurigo yeonseubeun woryoilbuteo geumyoilkkaji iljjuire daseot bbeon hal kkeoyeyo.
Teacher: And we'll do the practice five times a week, from Monday to Friday.

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 하나부터 열까지
Hanabuteo yeolkkaji
From one to ten (= every little detail)

2. 오늘은 여기까지예요.
Oneureun yeogikkajiyeyo
Today, it's until here. (= That's it for today.)

3. 어디까지 가세요?
Eodikkaji gaseyo?
Until where do you go? (= Where are you going?)

4. 이것까지 해야 돼요?
Igeotkkaji haeya dwaeyo?
Do I even have to do this?

5. 언제까지 시간 있어요?
Eonjekkaji sigan isseoyo?
Until when do you have time?

GRAMMAR

▷ Grammar Point #1 - When + Subject + Verb - -ㄹ/을 때

-ㄹ/을 때 (l/eul ttae) is the grammatical structure that expresses "when + subject + verb" in Korean. This grammatical structure is used to express the time of the verb, or the time of occurrence of the verb. This form is used in the present and the future tenses. When you want to express the past, 았/었/였(at/eot/yeot) is added between the verb stem and this grammatical structure.

This construction can be translated as "when (subject) (verb)" as in "When I eat..." This clause is a non-final clause, so it must have another clause to form a complete sentence.

▷ Construction

Verb stems ending in a vowel + -ㄹ 때

Ex)
- 가다 (gada) = to go
- 가(다) + ㄹ 때 = 갈 때 = when (you) go

Verb stems ending in a consonant + -을 때

Ex)
- 읽다 (igda) = to read
- 읽(다) + 을 때 = 읽을 때 = when (you) read

▷ In This Dialog

(1)희선: 밥 먹을 때 깨끗이 먹어!
Huiseon: bap meogeul ttae kkaekkeusi meogeo!
Huiseon: When you eat, eat in a clean manner.

(3)희선: 그리고 잘 때 조용히 자!
Huiseon: geurigo jal ttae joyonghi ja!
Huiseon: And when you sleep, sleep quietly.

(5)희선: 집에서 쉴 때는 청소도 해. 참! 늦게 올 때는 연락해 줘!
Huiseon: jibeseo swil ttae-neun cheongsodo hae. cham! neutge ol ttaeneun yeollakhae jwo!
Huiseon: When you are resting at home, do some cleaning too. Oh, and when you're going to come home late, give me a call!

(7)희선: 아! 또, 나갈 때는 열쇠 꼭 챙겨!
Huiseon: a! tto, nagal ttaeneun yeolsoe kkok chaenggyeo!
Huiseon: Oh, and, when you go out, don't forget the keys!

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 집에 갈 때는 자전거를 타요. [가다] [타다]
Jibe gal ttaeneun jajeongeoreul tayo.
I ride a bicycle when I go home.

2. 학교 갈 때 같이 가자. [가다]

GRAMMAR

▷ Vocab Focus #1 - Time Terms - Days, Months and Years

▶ Days (= 일, 날)

 There are native Korean names used to express the number of days. Sino-Korean numbers + 일(il) is a more formal usage than the native names for the number of days.

1 day = 하루 (haru) = 1일 (iril)
2 days = 이틀 (iteul) = 2일 (iil)
3 days = 사흘 (saheul) = 3일 (samil)
4 days = 나흘 (naheul) = 4일 (sail)
5 days = 닷새 (dassae) = 5일 (oil)
6 days = 엿새 (yeossae) = 6일 (yugil)
7 days = 이레 (ire) = 7일 (chiril)
8 days = 여드레 (yeodeure) = 8일 (paril)
9 days = 아흐레 (aheure) = 9일 (guil)
10 days = 열흘 (yeolheul) = 10일 (sibil)
15 days = 보름 (boreum) = 15일 (siboil)

▶ Months (= 달, 월)

 달 is combined with the native numbers, and 월 is combined with the sino-Korean numbers. When counting the months with sino-Korean numbers, the counter word 개(gae) is added.

1 month = 한 달 (han dal) = 1개월 (ilgaewol)
2 months = 두 달 (du dal) = 2개월 (igaewol)
3 months = 세 달 (se dal) = 3개월 (samgaewol)
4 months = 네 달 (ne dal) = 4개월 (sagaewol)
5 months = 다섯 달 (daseot ddal) = 5개월 (ogaewol)
6 months = 여섯 달 (yeoseot ddal) = 6개월 (yukgaewol)
7 months = 일곱 달 (ilgop ddal) = 7개월 (chilgaewol)
8 months = 여덟 달 (yeodeol ddal) = 8개월 (palgaewol)
9 months = 아홉 달 (ahop ddal) = 9개월 (gugaewol)
10 months = 열 달 (yeol ddal) = 10개월 (sipgaewol)

When 개 is not placed between the sino-Korean numbers and 월, the words become the names of the months of the year. (1월, 2월, ...)

▶ Years (= 해, 년)

 해 is combined with the native numbers, and 년 is combined with the sino-Korean numbers. For years, using the sino-Korean numbers + 년 is more common, both in formal and informal situations. In fact, native numbers are usually used in formal situations.

1 year = 한 해 (han hae) = 1년 (illyeon)
2 years = 두 해 = 2년 (inyeon)
3 years = 세 해 = 3년 (samnyeon)
4 years = 네 해 = 4년 (sanyeon)
5 years = 다섯 해 = 5년 (onyeon)
6 years = 여섯 해 = 6년 (yuknyeon)
7 years = 일곱 해 = 7년 (chillyeon)
8 years = 여덟 해 = 8년 (pallyeon)
9 years = 아홉 해 = 9년 (gunyeon)
10 years = 열 해 = 10년 (sipnyeon)

GRAMMAR

▷ Grammar Point #1 - It Has Been + Time / In + Time - -만

-만 (man) is a particle used to indicate how much time has passed since a previous action happened or a state began until the present moment, when another action is happening or the state is changing. There isn't a direct translation for this particle that always works, but it is usually translated as “it has been + time” or “after/in + time.” The form time + 만 is a noun, so -에 can be attached to it to modify an action.

▷ Construction

Time + -만 + 이다
- 1년 (1 year) + 만 + 이다
- 1년만이에요 = It's been one year.

Time + -만 + 에
- 3달 (three months, sedal) + 만 + 에
ex. 3달만에 한국에 왔어요.
Sedalmane hanguge wasseoyo.
I came back to Korea three months after I left.

▷ In This Dialog

(1)형우 엄마: 어머! 민수 엄마! 오랜만이야!
Hyeongu eomma: eomeo! minsu eomma! oraenmaniya!
Hyeongu's mother: Huh? Minsu's mother! Long time no see!

(2)민수 엄마: 어머, 형우 엄마! 1년만이지?
Minsu eomma: eomeo, hyeongu eomma! ilnyeonmaniji?
Minsu's mother: Huh? Hyeongu's mother! It's been a year, right?

(3)형우 엄마: 어제 3달만에 나왔어.
Hyeongu eomma: eoje sedalmane nawasseo.
Hyeongu's mother: He came out yesterday after three months.

(4)민수 엄마: 민수는 미국으로 유학 갔는데, 3달만에 돌아왔어.
Minsu eomma: minsuneun migugeuro yuhak gatneunde, sedalmane dorawasseo.
Minsu's mother: Minsu went to America to study, but he came back in three months.

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 3일만에 집에 돌아왔어요. [돌아오다]
Samilmane jibe dorawasseoyo.
He came back home after three days (of not coming home).

2. 한달만에 학교에 갔어요. [가다]

GRAMMAR

▷ Grammar Point #1 - At Least, Some, Even - -라도

-(이) 라도 ((i)lado) is a grammatical structure that expresses "even," "even just" or "at least." It is often used along with words of suggestion.

▷ Construction

(명사) + (이)라도
(Noun) + (i)rado

▶ -라도 (-rado) is used with nouns that end in vowels.
주스 (juseu) - Juice
주스 + 라도
주스라도 (juseurado) - at least some juice

▶ -이라도 (-irado) is used with nouns that end in consonants.
물 (mul) - water
물 + 이라도
물이라도 - at least some water, even just some water

▷ In This Dialog

(2)진희: 그러면 먹을 거라도 사올까? 김밥이라도 사올까?
Jinhui: geureomyeon meogeul kkeorado saolkka? gimbabirado saolkka?
Jinhui: Then shall I go buy some food? Shall I go buy some gimbap at least?

If it's okay even if it's me...

5. 영화라도 볼까? [보다]
Yeonghwarado bolkka?
Shall we at least watch some movies (although we don't have much to do)?

▷ Grammar Point #2 - Even, So Far As - - 까지

-까지 (kkaji) is most commonly used to express a range (paired with -부터 (buteo) which means “from”), and depending on the context, it can mean “even” or “so far as.”

▷ Construction

Noun + 까지

비(bi)- rain
비 + 까지 (bikkaji) - plus the rain

Ex)
날씨도 추운데 비까지 와.
Nalssido chuunde bikkaji wa.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Might/Maybe - -ㄹ/을지도 모르다

-ㄹ/을지도 모르다 (-l/euljido moreuda) is the grammatical structure used to express probability or possibility about a present state or future action. This structure literally means "I don't know either whether or not," and it is most commonly translated as "Subject + might + verb." This structure is similar in meaning to -ㄹ/을 수도 있다 (-l/eul su-do itda).

▷ Construction

▶ Verb stem ending in a vowel + -ㄹ지도 모르다
- 가다 (gada, - to go)
- 가 + ㄹ지도 모르다 = 갈지도 모르다
▷▷ 갈지도 몰라(요). (galjjido mollayo, I might go.)

▶ Verb stem ending in a consonant + -을지도 모르다
- 없다 (eoptta, - to not have/ to not be there)
- 없 + 을지도 모르다 = 없을지도 모르다
▷▷ 없을지도 몰라(요). (eopsseuljjido mollayo, It might not be there.)

▶ Verb stem ending in the consonant ㄹ + -지도 모르다
- 울다 (ulda - to cry)
- 울 + 지도 모르다 = 울지도 모르다
▷▷ 울지도 몰라(요). (He might cry.)

▷ In This Dialog

(3)정수: 감기일지도 몰라.
Jeongsu: gamgiiljido molla.
Jeongsu: It might be a cold.

(4)미희: 응. 그럴지도 몰라.
Mihui: eung. geureoljido molla.
Mihui: Yeah, it might be.

(5)정수: 너 설사일지도 몰라! ... 너 죽을지도 몰라!!!
Jeongsu: anida. neo seolsailjjido molla! neo jugeuljido molla!!
Jeongsu: No, you might have diarrhea! You might die!

☞ remember ☜

In colloquial situations and most commonly when the speakers are talking in casual language, 반말 (banmal), the latter part, 몰라(molla) is often dropped when what the speaker is saying is very obvious and expected.

Ex)
그럴지도 몰라. (geureoljjido molla.) ▷ 그럴지도. (geureoljjido.)
아마 내일 비 올지도 몰라. (ama naeil bi oljjido molla.) ▷ 아마 내일 비 올지도. (ama naeil bi oljjido.)

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 이쪽이 빠를지도 몰라요. [빠르다]
Ijjogi ppareuljido mollayo.
This way might be faster.

2. 내일 민경이 만날지도 몰라. [만나다]
Naeil mingyeongi mannaljjido molla.
I might meet Mingyeong tomorrow.

3. 나 일 그만둘지도 몰라. [그만두다]
Na hoesa geumanduljjido molla.
I might quit my job.

4. 오늘 늦을지도 몰라요. [늦다]

GRAMMAR

▷ Grammar Point #1 - Before + Verb - -기 전에

-기 전에 (-gi jeone) is the grammatical structure used to express "before + verb." Similar to the English "before + -ing" form, the tense of the sentence is not expressed in the structure. Instead, it is expressed through the verb that comes after it. 전 (jeon) means “before,” and -기 nominalizes the verb before you put 전에(jeone) after it.

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -기 전에 (-gi jeone)

Ex) 자다 (jada - to sleep)
- 자 + 기 전에 = 자기 전에
- 자기 전에 = before going to sleep, before you go to sleep
- 자기 전에 공부해 = Study before you go to sleep.

Ex) 죽다 (juktta, - to die)
- 죽 + 기 전에 = 죽기 전에
- 죽기 전에 = before dying, before I die
- 죽기 전에 가 보고 싶은 곳이 100 군데 있어요. = There are 100 places I want to visit before I die.

▷ In This Dialog

(2)미진: 방금 밥 먹기 전에 있었어...
Mijin: banggeum bap meokki jeone isseosseo...
Mijin: I had it right before I ate.

(7)미정: 그럼... 티비 보기 전에는 있었어?

▷ Grammar Point #2 - After + Verb - -ㄴ/은 다음에 (-n/eun daume)

-ㄴ/은 다음에 (-eun daeume) is the grammatical structure that expresses "after + verb." Similar to the English "after + -ing" form, the tense of the sentence is not expressed in the structure. Instead, it is expressed through the verb that comes after it. 다음 (daeum) means “next,” and -ㄴ/은 changes the verb to the adjective form.

▷ Construction

Verb stem ending in a vowel + -ㄴ 다음에

Ex) 오다 (oda, - to come)
- 오 + ㄴ 다음에 = 온 다음에 (after coming, after you come)
- 너 온 다음에 비가 왔어. (After you came, it rained.)

Verb stem ending in a consonant + -은 다음에

Ex) 먹다 (meoktta, - to eat)
- 먹 + 은 다음에 = 먹은 다음에 (after eating, after you eat)
- 밥 먹은 다음에 어디 갈 거야? (After we finish eating, where are we going?)

▷ In This Dialog

(3)미정: 그럼 밥 먹은 다음에는 있었어?
Mijeong:geureom bap meogeun daeumeneun isseosseo?
Mijeong: Then did you have it with you after you ate?

(5)미정: 그럼 밥 먹은 다음에는 뭐 했어?
Mijeong: geureom bap meogeun daeumeneun mwo haesseo?
Mijeong: Then what did you do after eating?

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 술 마신 다음에 노래방 가자. [마시다, 가다]
Sul masin daeume noraebang gaja.
After drinking, let's go to the singing room.

2. 일어난 다음에 전화해. [일어나다, 전화해]
Ireonan daeume jeonhwahae.
Call me after you get up.

3. 집에 간 다음에 바로 잠들었어. [가다, 잠들다]
Jibe gan daeume baro jamdeureosseo.
I fell asleep right after I went home.

4. 목욕한 다음에 청소할 거야. [목욕하다, 청소하다]
Mokyokhan daeume cheongsohal kkeoya.
I will clean the room after taking a bath.

5. 시험 본 다음에 술을 마셨어요. [보다, 마시다]
Siheom bon daeume sureul masyeosseoyo.
I drank alcohol after I took the test.

GRAMMAR

▷ Grammar Point #1 - Easy/Hard To + Verb - -기 쉽다/어렵다

-기 쉽다/어렵다 (-gi swipda/eoryeoptta) is used to describe something that is “easy/hard to + verb.” Adding -기 at the end of a verb stem is one of the ways to nominalize a verb in Korean. -기 쉽다/어렵다 is sometimes used with the subject particle in it. In this case, it becomes -기가 쉽다/어렵다, but it's more common to hear -기 쉽다/어렵다.

▷ Construction
- Verb stem + -기 쉽다/어렵다(-gi swipda/eoryeoptta)

☆ Note that 쉽다 and 어렵다 take the ㅂ(b) irregular conjugation.

Ex) 졸다 (jolda) - to fall asleep
▷ 졸 + -기 쉽다 = 졸기 쉽다 (jolgi shiptta)
▷▷ 졸기 쉬워요. (It is easy to fall asleep.)

Ex) 읽다 (ilgda) - to read
▷ 읽 + -기 어렵다 = 읽기 어렵다 ▷▷ 읽기 어려워요. (It is hard to read.)

▷ In This Dialog
(2)민경: 저기요... 거기 찾기 힘들어요?
Mingyeong: jeogiyo... geogi chakki himdeureoyo?
Mingyeong: Excuse me... is your restaurant difficult to find?

(3)식당 주인: 찾기 쉬워요. 제가 알기 쉽게 설명해 드릴게요.
Sikdang juin: chakki swiwoyo. jega algi swipkke seolmyeonghae deurilgeyo.
Restaurant owner: No, it's easy to find. I'll explain it in a way that’s easy to understand.

(7)식당 주인: 찾기 쉽죠?
Sikdang juin: chakki swipjjyo?
Restaurant owner: It's easy to find, right?

♣ More Examples ♣
1. 오늘은 추워서 감기 걸리기 쉬워요.
Oneureun chuwoseo gamgi geolligi swiwoyo.
It's cold outside today, so it’s easy to catch a cold.

2. 그 수업은 너무 이해하기 어려워요.
Geu sueobeun neomu ihaehagi eoryeowoyo.
That class is too hard to understand.

3. 너는 너무 사기 당하기 쉬워.
Neoneun neomu sagi danghagi swiwo.
You‘d fall for a fraud too easily.

4. 김치는 만들기 어려워요.
Gimchineun mandeulgi eoryeowoyo.

5. 이 책은 글씨가 너무 작아서 읽기 어려워요.
I chaegeun geulssiga neomu jagaseo ilkki eoryeowoyo.
This book's print is too small, so it's difficult to read.

☞ remember ☜
-기 어렵다 (-gi eoryeoptta) is often interchanged with -기 힘들다 (-gi himdeulda).

Ex)
- 찾기 어려워요. (-chakki eoryeowoyo.) = - 찾기 힘들어요. (chakki himdeureoyo.)
- 먹기 어려워요 (-meokki eoryeowoyo.). = - 먹기 힘들어요. (meokki himdeureoyo.)

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Don't + verb - -지 마(요/세요)

-지 마(요/세요) (-ji ma(yo/seyo) is the grammatical structure used to tell someone not to do something. Therefore, it can be used only with action verbs. Descriptive verbs should be changed into their action verb form to be used correctly with this structure. -지 마요 and -지 마세요 are both in the standard politeness level, but -지 마세요 is more commonly used. This structure comes from 말다 (malda), which means to stop, to give or to quit.

▷ Construction

- Verb stem + -지 마 (intimate)
- Verb stem + -지 마요/마세요 (standard)

Ex) 기다리다 (gidarida - to wait)
- 기다리 + -지 마세요 = 기다리지 마세요 (standard)
= Don't wait.

Ex) 전화하다 (jeonhwahada - to call)
- 전화하 + -지 마 = 전화하지 마 (intimate)
= Don't call.

GRAMMAR

Grammr Point #1 - The More, The Better - -(으)면 -(으)ㄹ수록

-(으)면 -(으)ㄹ수록 [(eu)myeon (eu)lsurok] is the grammatical structure that can express the English pattern "the more A, the more B." The ending -(으)면 makes a conditional clause, and -(으)ㄹ수록 is the main part that expresses "the more A, the more B". And the tense is expressed through the clause that follows this structure.

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -(으)면 + (the same) verb stem + -(으)ㄹ수록

( Note that the same verb is used twice in the structure. But the first half of the structure is often dropped when you want to keep the sentence short.)

Ex) 먹다 (meokda - to eat)
- 먹 + 으면 + 먹 + 을수록 = 먹으면 먹을수록 (the more I eat, the ...)

Ex) 하다 (hada - to do)
- 하 + 면 + 하 +ㄹ수록 = 하면 할수록 (the more I do it, the ...)

▷ In This Dialog

(3)채리: 보면 볼수록 예뻐.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1- The Most + Adjective/Adverb - 가장, 제일

가장 (gajang) and 제일 (jeil) both have the meaning of "most." These two words can always be used interchangably. 가장 or 제일 comes before descriptive verbs in their adjective/adverb/verb form and also before some action verbs that work like descriptive verbs. 제일 is sometimes changed to 제일로 in colloquial situations.

▷ Construction

▶ 가장/제일 + Descriptive Verb (in the adjective/adverb/verb form)
- Action verbs cannot be used alone right after 가장 or 제일.

Ex)
예쁘다 (yeppeuda - to be pretty) [verb]
예쁜 (yeppeun - pretty) [adjective]
예쁘게 (yeppeuge - beautifully) [adverb]

▷▷ 가장 예쁘다 / 가장 예쁜 / 가장 예쁘게

▶ 가장/제일 + Action verbs that work like descriptive verbs
- Verbs related to emotions, and verbs in the passive form can be used with 가장 or 제일 alone.

Ex) 알려지다 (to be known), 좋아하다 (to like), 싫어하다 (to hate), and etc.

▷ In This Dialog

(1)명수: 미연 씨는 무슨 음식을 가장 좋아해요?
Myeongsu: miyeon ssineun museun eumsigeul gajang joahaeyo?
Myeongsu: Hello, Miyeon. you are hungry, right? Let's go eat. What's your favorite food?

(2)미연: 피자를 제일 좋아해요.
Miyeon: pijareul jeil joahaeyo.
Miyeon: I like pizza the best.

(4)명수: 이 중에서 제일 맛있는 피자가 뭐예요?
Myeongsu: i jungeseo jeil masinneun pijaga mwoyeyo?
Myeongsu: What is the most delicious one out of these?

(5)미연: 이게 가장 맛있어요. 제가 피자 중에서 제일 좋아하는 거예요.
Miyeon: ige gajang massisseoyo. jega pija jungeseo jeil joahaneun geoyeoyo.

Jeoneun suhagi jeil sireoyo.
I hate Mathematics the most.

5. 제일 비싼 거 보여주세요. [보여주다]
Jeil bissan geo boyeojuseyo.
Show me the most expensive one.

Grammar Point #2 - Among/Between - 중에(서)

중에서 (jungeseo) means "among," "between," or "out of," and it is often used together with the word 가장 or 제일. The last letter, 서 (seo) is often dropped in colloquial speech, and the word becomes 중에 (junge). 중 comes from the Chinese character 中 (중), which means center or middle. So together with the location particle '에서,' 중에서 (center + at) has the meaning "among/between".

▷ Construction

Noun + 중에서
Ex) 이 학생들 (i haksaengdeul - these students)
- 이 학생들 + 중에서 = 이 학생들 중에서 (among these students)

Ex) 둘 (dul - two)
- 둘 + 중에서 = 둘 중에서 (between these two)

♣ Remember ♣

Often the last letter, '서' drops in colloquial situations.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 'to the extent of', 'as much as' - -만큼

-만큼 is used to indicate an extent or a degree, by comparing the subject or object to something else. It comes after a noun and it means 'as much as' or 'equal to'.

▷ Construction
---

(1) Noun + -만큼

♣ 손예진 (Son Yejin) - a Korean actress
▷ 손예진 + -만큼
▷ 손예진만큼 (Son Yejinmankeum) - as much as Son Yejin
▷▷ 저는 손예진만큼 예뻐요. (naneun SonYejinmankeum yeppeoyo)
= I am as pretty as Son Yejin.

▷ 그것만큼 (geugeotmankeum) - as much as that
▷ 이것은 그것만큼 좋지 않아요. (igeoseun geugeotmankeum jochi anayo)
= This one is not as good as that one.

(2) Verb A + -ㄴ/는/은/ㄹ/을 + 만큼 + Verb B

♣ Verb A should be in the adnominal form to modify 만큼, and this structure can be translated as "Verb A + so much that + Verb B" or "Verb A + enough to + Verb B".

▷ 놀라다 (Verb A - to be surprised) + 비싸다 (Verb B - to be expensive)
▷▷ 놀랄 만큼 비싸다 = to be expensive enough to be surprising

▷ 날아가다 (Verb A - to fly away) + 세다 (Verb B - to be strong) ▷▷ 날아갈 만큼 바람이 세다 = The wind is so strong that I might fly away.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - called - -(이)라는

-(이)라는 (iraneun) came from "(이)라고 하는" which is equivalent to "called as" in English. It is used to indicate or refer to something or someone by the name. -라는 is used for a noun that ends in a vowel, and -이라는 is used for a noun that ends with a consonant.

▷ Construction

Noun ending in a vowel + 라는

- 제주도 (jejudo) - Jeju Island
▷ 제주도 + 라는
▷ 제주도라는 (jejudoraneun) = (a place) called Jeju Island
▷▷ 제주도라는 섬을 알아요? (jejudoraneun seomeul arayo?)
= Do you know an island called Jejudo?

Noun ending in a consonant + 이라는

- 떡국 (ttokkuk) - rice cake soup
▷ 떡국 + 이라는
▷ 떡국이라는 (tteokgugiraneun) - (something) called Tteokguk
▷▷ 떡국이라는 한국 음식을 먹었어요. (tteokgugiraneun hanguk eumsigeul meogeosseoyo.)
= I ate a Korean dish called Tteokguk.

GRAMMAR

Gramamer Point #1 - 'if', 'when' - -(으)면

-(으)면 is used to indicate supposition, assumption as well as condition. It is equivalent to 'if' or 'when' in English. So the sentence which contains -(으)면 indicates the condition for the clause that comes after. And if 만일, 만약, is added usually in front of the sentence to indicate an advance signal of the condition, it emphasizes the suppositional condition.

▷ Construction

Verb stem ending in a consonant + -으면

- 좋다 (jota) - to be good

▷ 좋 + 으면 = 좋으면
= if it's good

▷ 이거 좋으면, 가져갈래요.
Igeo joeumyeon gajjyeogallaeyo
If this is good, I am going to take it.

Verb stem ending in a vowel + -면

- 가다 (gada) - to go
▷ 가 + 면 = 가면
= if I go

▷ 만약 내가 가면 넌 어떻게 할 거야?
Manyak naega gamyeon neon otteoke hal kkeoya?
If I go, what are you going to do?

▷ In This Dialog

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 -Potential - ㄹ/을 수 있다

-ㄹ/을 수 있다 (-l/eul su itta) is a grammatical structure used to express ability, capability or possibility (i.e. whether you can or can't speak English, or you can or can't use a computer). This structure adds onto the end of both descriptive and action verbs to express the possibility, or capability of that verb. This can be translated as "can," or "able to."

The last verb 있다 (itta) can be conjugated to express politeness level, tense, mood. Traditionally, the verb can inflect negation as well, but in this grammatical structure, the negated form would come from the verb "없다 (eoptta)", which is the opposite to the verb 있다 (itta). The construction -ㄹ/을 수 없다 (-l/eul ssu eoptta) can be translated as "cannot" or "not able to."

However, when using the the construction ㄹ/을 수 없다 (l/eul su eoptta), this carries the notion that the speaker (or subject of the sentence) was unable to do something because they did not have the capacity to perform that activity. Using this structure implies that the subject does not posses the ability to perform that action [i.e. 먹을 수 없어 - I can't eat (I don't have the ability to eat)]. When expressing the "can't" because of other factors other than inability, the impossibility adverb 못 (mot) is used.

▷ Construction

Verb stem ending in a vowel + -ㄹ/을 수 있다.

- 하다 (hada) - to do
▷ 하 + ㄹ 수 있다 = 할 수 있다 (hal ssu itta)
= to be able to do.

▷ 저는 한국어 할 수 있어요.
Jeoneun hangugeo hal ssu eopsseoyo.
I can speak Korean.

Verb stem ending in a consonant + -을 수 있다

- 먹다 (meoktta) - to eat
▷ 먹 + 을 수 있다 = 먹을 수 있다 (meogeul ssu itta)
= to be able to eat

▷ 김치를 먹을 수 있어요.
Gimchireul meogeul ssu isseoyo.
I can eat Kimchi.

▷ In This Dialog
---

(1)지민: 제임스, 소주 마실 수 있어요?
Jimin: Jeimseu, soju masil ssu isseoyo?
Jimin: James, Can you drink soju?

(2)제임스: 마실 수 있어요.
Jeimseu: ne. masil ssu isseoyo.
James: Yeah, I can drink soju.

(8)제임스: 저는 아침까지 놀 수 있어요!
Jeimseu: jeonneun achimkkaji nol ssu isseoyo!
James: I can hang out until the morning!

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 저는 소주 6병까지 마실 수 있어요. [마시다]
Jeoneun soju yeoseobbyeongkkaji masil ssu isseyo.
I can drink up to six bottles of soju.

2. 내 남동생은 피아노를 칠 수 있어. [치다]
Nae dongsaengeun pianoreul chil ssu isseo.
My younger brother can play the piano.

3. 너 독일어 할 수 있어? [하다]
Neo dogireo hal ssu isseo?
Can you speak German?

4. 어떻게 잊을 수 있어요? [잊다]
Eotteoke ijeul ssu isseoyo?
How can you forget?

5. 그림 그릴 수 있어요. [그리다]
Geurim geuril ssu isseoyo.
I can draw a picture.

Grammar Point #2 - Might + Verb - -ㄹ/을 수도 있다.

-ㄹ/을 수도 있다 (l/eul ssudo itta) is a grammatical structure used to express possibility. A similar structure, -ㄹ/을 수 있다 (l/eul ssu itta) withtout the particle "도", means "to be able to." Therefore -ㄹ/을 수도 있다 literally means "there is also a possibility that + Verb" and it is translated in English as "might + verb".

▷ Construction

Verb stem ending in a vowel + -ㄹ 수도 있다.

- 가다 (gada) - to go

▷ 가 + ㄹ 수도 있다 = 갈 수도 있다 (gal ssudo itta)
= might go

▷ 내일 병원에 갈 수도 있어요.
Naeil byeongwone gal ssudo isseoyo.
I might go to the hospital tomorrow.

- 먹다 (meoktta) - to eat

▷ 먹 + 을 수도 있다 = 먹을 수도 있다
= might eat

▷ 오늘은 밖에서 밥 먹을 수도 있어.
Oneureun bakkeseo bam meogeul ssudo isseo.
I might eat outside today.

▷ In This Dialog

Jimin: We might drink soju.

(5)지민: 그리고 2차로 노래방에 갈 수도 있어요.
Jimin: geurigo icharo noraebang gal ssudo isseoyo.
Jimin: And we may go to a noraebang afterward.

(7)지민: 3차는 있을 수도 있고, 없을 수도 있어요.
Jimin: samchaneun isseul ssudo ikko, eopsseul ssudo isseoyo.
Jimin: We might have a third round and we might not.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 내일 시험 볼 수도 있어요. [보다]
Naeil siheom bol ssudo isseoyo.
We might take an exam tomorrow.

2. 선생님 오늘 안 오실 수도 있어. [오다]
Seonsaengnim oneul an osil ssudo isseo.
The teacher might not come in today.

3. 저 내일 시간이 없을 수도 있어요. [없다]
Jeo naeil sigani eopsseul ssudo isseoyo.
I might not have time tomorrow.

4. 오늘 비 올 수도 있어요. [비 오다]
Oneul bi ol ssudo isseoyo.
It might rain today.

5. 그럴 수도 있어요. [그렇다]
Geureol ssudo isseoyo.
That might be the case.

▷ Remember

A similar grammatical structure to this one is "-ㄹ/을지도 모르다", which literally means "to not know if ... will happen or not".

Ex)
- 그럴 수도 있어요.(Geureol seudo itseoyo)
= 그럴지도 몰라요. (Geureuljido mollayo)
I am not sure if it would be or not. (but most likely it will happen.)

- 비 올 수도 있어요. (Bi ol sseudo isseoyo)
= 비 올지도 몰라요. (Bi ol jjido mollayo)
It might rain or not.(but most likely it will rain)

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - 'either... or', 'whether... or' - -(이)든지, (-(이)거나)

-든지 (deunji), -거나 (geona) are used to express various alternatives to choose one over another. Sometimes it is used to indicate an action that might or might not happen, and sometimes to indicate a variety of actions/states that usually take place in a similar situation. It is usually translated as "whether ... or" or "either ... or". When you're talking about "whether to do an action or not", 말든지, from the verb 말다 (matta - to discontinue, to give up) is used as a pair.

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -든지, -거나
- 놀다(nolda) - to hang out

▷ 놀 + -든지 = 놀든지 (noldeunji)
= whether you hang out or ...
= either you hang out or ...

▷ 걔랑 놀든지 말든지 나는 상관 안 해! (gyae-rang nol-deunji mal-deunji na-neun sanggwan anhae)
= Whether you hang out with her or not, I don't care!

- 가다(gada) - to go

▷ 가 + 든지 = 가든지 (gaduenji)
= whether you go or ...
= either you go or ...

▷ 노래방을 가든지 영화관을 가든지 나는 다 괜찮아. (noraebangeul gadeunji yeonghwagwaneul gadeunji naneun da gwaenchanha)
= Whether we go to a noraebang or to a movie theather, it's all fine by me.

GRAMMAR

Passive Voice : -이/기/리/히-안 보여요.
an boyeoyo.
"I can't see it/It is not seen."

In Korean, a lot of grammatical structures lie in the verb endings rather than using additional words, and it is the same for the passive voice too. Right after the verb stem, you add 이, 기, 리, or 히, depending on the word, and you have the passive. There is no set rule to this, but you can find some common patterns. The main suffixes used for changing a verb into passive voice are 이 (i), 기 (gi), 리 (ri) and 히 (hi). And a lot of phrases that would use the active voice in English with a person as the subject use the passive voice in Korean.

Construction

▷ 이

- 이 is usually used for the verb stems that end in a vowel.

보다 (boda) "to see"
보 + 이 + 다 = 보이다 (boida) "to be seen, can see, to seem"
보여요? (boyeoyo?) "Can you see it?" (lit. Is it seen?)

바꾸다 (bakkuda) "to change (something)"
바꾸 + 이 + 다 = 바뀌다 (bakkwida) "to be changed"
이름이 바뀌었어요. (ireumi bakkwieosseoyo) "The name has been changed. / The names have been switched."

▷ 기

-기 is usually used for the verb stems that end with ㄴ, ㅅ, ㅈ, ㅊ.

안다 (antta) "to hug"
안 + 기 + 다 = 안기다 (angida) "to be hugged / to be braced"
아기가 엄마에게 안겼어요. (agiga eommaege angyeosseoyo) "The baby was braced in her mother's arms."

쫓다 (jjotda) "to chase"
쫓 + 기 + 다 = 쫓기다 (jjokkida) "to be chased"
경찰에게 쫓기고 있어요. (gyeongcharege jjokkigo isseoyo) "I'm being chased by the police."

▷ 리

-리 is usually used for the verb stems that end with ㄹ.

팔다 (palda) "to sell"
팔 + 리 + 다 = 팔리다 (pallida) "to be sold"
이 책 잘 팔려요? (i chaek jal pallyeoyo?) "Does this book sell well?" (lit. Is this book sold well?)

열다 (yeolda) "to open"
열 + 리 + 다 = 열리다 (yeollida) "to be opened"
문이 안 열려요. (muni an yeollyeoyo) "The door doesn't open." (lit. The door isn't opened.)

▷ 히

-히 is usually used for the verb stems that end with ㄱ, ㄷ and ㅂ.

먹다 (meoktta) "to eat"
먹 + 히 + 다 = 먹히다 (meokhida) "to be eaten"
토끼가 사자에게 먹혔어요. (tokkiga sajaege meokhyeosseoyo) "The rabit was eaten by the lion."

잡다 (japhida) "to catch"
잡 + 히 + 다 = 잡히다 (japhida) "to get caught"
도둑이 잡혔어요. (dodugi japhyeosseoyo) "The thief got caught."

▷ Exception

-하다, the most commonly used verb type in Korean, becomes -되다 (doeda)

초대하다 (chodaehada) "to invite" becomes 초대되다 (chodaedoeda) "to be invited"
수리하다 (surihada) "to fix" becomes 수리되다 (suridoeda) "to be fixed"

GRAMMAR

To look/to seem : -아/어/여 보이다 오늘 예뻐 보여요.
oneul yeppeo boyeoyo.
"You look pretty today."

-아/어/여 보이다 (-a/eo/yeo boida) is the grammatical structure that expresses "to seem" or "to look.". This structure is added at the end of the verb stem, and the tense and the mood are expressed through the verb 보이다 (boida). When used with nouns, the verb 같다 (gatta), which means "to be like," is used with this structure.

Construction

(Descriptve Verb) Verb Stem +아/어/여 보이다

예쁘다 (yeppeuda) "to be pretty"
예쁘 - verb stem
예쁘 + 어 보이다 = 예뻐 보이다 (yeppeo boida) "to look pretty"
너 오늘 진짜 예뻐 보여. (neo oneul jinja yeppeo boyeo) "You look really pretty today."

Noun + 같아 + 보이다

학생 (hakssaeng) "student"
학생 같다 (hakssaeng gatta) "to be like a student"
학생 같 - verb stem
학생 같 + 아 + 보이다 = 학생 같아 보이다 (hakssaeng gata boida) "to look like a student"

In This Dialogue

정희: 어려 보여? 성숙해 보여?
Jeonghui: eoryeo boyeo? seongsukhae boyeo?
Jeonghui: Do I look young? Or do I look mature?

GRAMMAR

I think/It seems : -ㄴ/은/는 것 같다 나는 예쁜 것 같아.
naneun yeppeun geot gata.
"I think I'm pretty."

-ㄴ/은/는 것 같다 (n/eun/neun geot gatta) is a verb ending that expresses one's opinions in a moderate way. 같다 (gatta) literally means "it's like" or "it's the same as." Instead of using the verb 생각하다 (saenggakhada), which means "to think," Korean people use the expression -ㄴ/은/는 것 같다 (n/eun/neun geot gatta). This makes the statement a little less straightforward since the speaker is just saying that it "looks like" or "seems" to be that way.

Construction

Present Tense: Action Verbs
Verb Stem + -는 것 같다

오다 (oda) "to come"
오 (o) - verb stem
오 + 는 것 같다 = 오는 것 같다 (oneun geot gatta)
오는 것 같아요 (oneun geot gatayo) "I think it's coming."

모르다 (moreuda) "to rise"
모르 (moreu) - verb stem
모르 + 는 것 같다 = 모르는 것 같다 (moreuneun geot gatta) "I think he doesn't know."

Present Tense: Descriptive Verbs
Verb Stem + -ㄴ 것 같다

예쁘다 (yeppeuda) "to be pretty"
예쁘 (yeppeu) - verb stem
예쁘 + ㄴ 것 같다 = 예쁜 것 같다 (yeppeun geot gatta)
에쁜 것 같아요 (yeppeun geot gatayo) "I think it's pretty."

Past Tense: Action Verbs
Verb Stem + -ㄴ/은 것 같다

도착하다 (dochakhada) "to arrive"
도착하 (dochakha) - verb stem
도착하 + ㄴ 것 같다 = 도착한 것 같다 (dochakhan geot gatta)
도착한 것 같아요 (dochakhan geot gatayo) "I think we've arrived."

Future Tense:
Verb Stem + -ㄹ/을 것 같다

사다 (sada) "to buy"
사 (sa) - verb stem
사 + ㄹ 것 같다 = 살 것 같다 (sal geot gatayo)
살 것 같아요 (sal geot gatayo) "I think I'll buy it."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

It's very common that Korean people comment on each other's weight changes, so when you're meeting your Korean friends in a long while, especially if they're on the older side, they might say something like "you've lost some weight" or "you've gained some weight," and even if you haven't either lost or gained any weight, they might say something like "you haven't gained any weight." There is not specific reason for this, but a lot of Korean people actually hate hearing people talking about their weight, while they themselves tend to be very quick in commenting about the other people's weight changes.

GRAMMAR

Like : -처럼
나처럼 책을 많이 읽어.
nacheoreom chageul mani ilgeo.
"Read a lot of books like I do."

처럼 (cheoreom) means "like" and it's attached to "after," the noun that it modifies, unlike in English. Sometimes we can replace 처럼 (cheoreom) with 같이 (gachi) or -와 같이 (wa gachi) but 처럼 (cheoreom) is the most neutral word.

Construction

Noun + 처럼

1. 어제 (eoje) "yesterday"
   어제 + 처럼 = 어제처럼
   (eojecheoreom) "like yesterday"
2. 강아지 (gangaji) "puppy"
   강아지 + 처럼 = 강아지처럼
   (gangajicheoreom) "like a puppy"
3. 번개 (beongae) "lightning"
   번개 + 처럼 = 번개*처럼*
   (beongaecheoreom) "like lightning"
   번개처럼 빠르다 (beongae-cheoreom ppareuda) "to be as fast as lightning"

가방이 너무 무거워요. gabangi neomu mugeowoyo. "The bag is too heavy."	거실이 너무 좁아요. geosiri neomu jobayo. "The living room is too small."

GRAMMAR

...but : -지만
너는 돈이 많지만 우리는 결혼 못해.
neoneun doni manchiman urineun gyeorhon mothae.
"You have a lot of money, but we can't get married."

-지만 (-jiman) is a verb ending that expresses "but" or "although." This is similar to the ending -ㄴ/는데 (n/neunde), but -지만 (-jiman) has a narrower meaning and can only mean "but" or "although," whereas -ㄴ/는데 (n/neunde) has a wide range of meanings. So when you want to be very specific in contrasting two states or actions, you can use -지만 (-jiman).

Construction

Verb Stem + 지만

1. 없다 (eoptta) "to not have"
   없 (eop) - verb stem
   없 + 지만 = 없지만 (eopjjiman)
   돈이 없지만 (don-i eopjiman) "I don't have money, but"
2. 춥다 (chuptta) "to be cold"
   춥 (chup) - verb stem
   춥 + 지만 = 춥지만 (chupjjiman)
   춥지만 괜찮*아요 (chupjjiman gwaenchanayo*) "It's cold but it's okay."

In This Dialogue

종철: 우리는 어리지만, 괜찮아.

GRAMMAR

이렇게 / 저렇게 / 그렇게 + adverb/adjective: "This/that/so + adverb/adjective" 종철이가 그렇게 멋있어?
jongcheoriga geureoke meosisseo?
"Is Jongcheol that cool?"

이렇게/저렇게/그렇게 (ireoke/jeoreoke/geureoke) originally means "like this/like that/like it." However, when we use it before other adverbs or adjectives, it emphasizes the words. Instead of "like this/like that/like it," it's translated as "this + adverb/adjective," as in the example 이렇게 많이 (ireoke mani) which means "this many" or "this much."

Construction

이렇게 / 저렇게 / 그렇게 + Adjective/Adverb

많이 (mani) "a lot, many, much" [adverb]

A. 이렇게 + 많이 = 이렇게 많이 (ireoke mani) "this much/many"
B. 저렇게 + 많이 = 저렇게 많이 (jeoreoke mani) "that much/many"
C. 그렇게 + 많이 = 그렇게 많이 (geureoke mani) "that/so much/many"

GRAMMAR

Should not/Must not: -(으)면 안 되다 지금 그만두면 안 돼.
jigeum geumandumyeon an dwae.
"You shouldn't quit your job now."

-(으)면 안 되다 (-(eu) myeon an doeda) is a verb ending that means "should not" or "must not." Here, 되다 (doeda) literally means "to become" and has the meaning of "things work out well" or "things go smoothly." So -(으)면 안 되다 literally means "if you do it, it's a problem." When we use it in a question, this structure can also ask for permission. In this case, we translate it as "can't I ___ " or "can I ___?"

Construction

Verb Stem + -(으)면 안 되다

For Example:

1. 뛰다 (ttwida) "to run"
   뛰 (ttwi) - verb stem
   뛰 + 면 안 되다 = 뛰면 안 되다 (ttwimyeon an doeda)
   뛰면 안 돼요. (ttwimyeon an dwaeyo)
   "You shouldn't run."
2. 자다 (jada) "to sleep"
   자 (ja) - verb stem
   자 + 면 안 되다 = 자면 안 되다 (jamyeon an doeda)
   자면 안 돼요? (*j*amyeon an dwaeyo?)
   "Can't I sleep?"

In This Dialogue

1. 준태: 지금 그만두면 안 돼.

나 도와주면 안 돼?	na dowajumyeon an dwae?	"Can't you help me?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

In Korea, young kids going for a study-abroad is very common. The earliest could start from elementary school or even when they were born, the latest goes up to usually university-year. Though it has been huge boom for last five years or even longer, there have been lots of negative opinions rising on such matter as well since it is challenging and not everyone survives successfully achieving what they have expected such as language, degree or so.

GRAMMAR

While: -는 동안
기다리는 동안 뭐 했어요?
gidarineun dongan mwo haesseoyo?
"What did you do while you were waiting?"

-는 동안 (-neun dongan) is a conjunction that expresses the meaning of "while + action." 동안 (dongan) is a rough equivalent to the English word "during" or "for" as in "during" a certain period or "for" a certain length of time. And -는 동안 (neun dongan) is a way to combine the meaning of "during" and a verb. Therefore, -는 동안 (-neun dongan) means, "while + action."

Construction

Verb Stem + 는 동안

1. 자다 (jada) "to sleep"
   자 (ja) - verb stem
   자 + 는 동안 = 자는 동안 (janeun dongan)
   자는 동안 비가 왔어요. (janeun dongan biga wasseoyo) "It rained while I was sleeping."
2. 있다 (itda) "to be"
   있 (it) - verb stem
   있 + 는 동안 = 있는 동안 (*it*neun dongan)
   밖에 있는 동안 전화가 왔어요. (bakke inneun dongan jeonhwaga wasseoyo) "I got a phone call while I was outside."

GRAMMAR

Can Neither A nor B: -지도 -지도 않다/못 하다
아니요. 좋아하지도 싫어하지도 않아요.
aniyo. joahajido sireohajido anayo.
"No, I neither like nor hate you."

-지도 -지도 않다 (-jido -jido anta) and -지도 -지도 못 하다 (-jido -jido mot hada) express negation or impossibility to choose either one of the two actions. -지 않다 (-ji anta) means "do not + action" and -지 못 하다 (-ji mot hada) means "cannot + action." Combined with -도 (do), which means "also, too," this structure means that neither of the two actions will or can be done.

Construction

Verb Stem + 지도 + Verb Stem + 지도 + 안/못 하다/않다

1. 좋아하다 (joahada) "to like"
   싫어하다 (sireohada) "to hate"
   좋아하 (joaha) - verb stem
   싫어하 (sireoha) - verb stem
   좋아하 + 지도 + 싫어하 + 지도 않다 = 좋아하지도 싫어하지도 않다 (joahajido sireohajido anta)
   술 마시는 것을 좋아하지도 싫어하지도 않아요.
   (sul masineun geoseul joahajido sireohajido anayo)
   "I neither like nor hate drinking alcohol."
2. 전화를 받다 (jeonhwareul batta) "to receive a phone call"
   전화를 하다 (jeonhwareul hada) "to make a phone call"
   받 (bat) - verb stem
   하 (ha) - verb stem
   전화를 받 + 지도 + 하 +지도 못 하다 = 전화를 받지도 하지도 못 하다 (jeonhwareul batjjido hajido mot hada)
   지금은 전화를 받지도 하지도 못 해요.

(jigeumeun jeonhwareul batjjido hajido mot haeyo)
"I can neither take nor make phone calls."

GRAMMAR

To have + p.p. before: -(으)ㄴ 적이 있다/없다 본 적이 있어요!
bon jeogi isseoyo!
"I've seen you before!"

-(으)ㄴ 적이 있다/없다 (-(eu)n jeogi itta/eoptta) is a way to express a past experience or the fact that you have or have not done something before. Here, 적 (jeok) has the meaning of "time" or "experience." We express whether you have that past experience or not through 있다 (itda) and 없다 (eopda), which mean "to have" and "to not have." We often drop the subject marking particle -이 (i) in colloquial situations.

Construction

Verb Stem + -(으)ㄴ 적이 있다/없다

보다 (boda) "to see"
보 (bo) - verb stem
보 + -(으)ㄴ 적이 있다 = 본 적이 있다 (bon jeogi itta)
보 + -(으)ㄴ 적이 없다 = 본 적이 없다 (bon jeogi eoptta)
본 적이 있어요 (bon jeogi isseoyo) "I've seen it before."
본 적이 없어요 (bon jeogi eopsseoyo) "I've never seen it before."

In This Dialogue

1. 남자2: 저는 이 여자를 만진 적이 없어요.
   namja2: jeoneun i yeojareul manjin jeogi eopsseoyo.
   Man 2: "I've never touched her."
2. 남자2: 저는 그런 적 없어요!

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is: "to seem/to look" -아/어/여 보이다
응. 많이 피곤해 보여.
un. mani pigonhae boyeo.
"Yes, you seem very tired."

-아/어/여 보이다 (a/eo/yeo boida) is the grammatical structure that means "to seem" or "to look." The verb 보이다 (boida) originally means "to be seen" or "to be visible." So this structure describes what something looks like or seems to be like. We express the tense and mood of the sentence through the verb 보이다 (boida).

Construction

Verb Stem + 아/어/여 보이다

맛있다 (masitta) "to be delicious"
맛있 (masit) - verb stem
맛있 + 어 보이다 = 맛있어 보이다 (masisseo boida)
맛있어 보여요. (masisseo boyeoyo) "It looks delicious."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Korean Phrase - 짜리, Meaning "worth of"

이건 10만 원짜리예요.

igeon simmaneonjjariyeyo.

"This one costs one hundred thousand won."

짜리 (jjari) is a noun that comes after nouns that indicate amount, size, or price and modifies the noun that follows it. The noun that comes before 짜리 (jjari) expresses how much, how long, how big, how expensive, or even how old the following noun is.

Construction

Nouns indicating amount, size, or price + 짜리

1. 만 원 (man won) "a hundred thousand won"
   5미터 (omiteo) "five meters"
   1시간 (hansigan) "one hour"
   + 짜리
   = 만 원짜리, 5미터짜리, 1시간짜리, and etc...

♣ Examples ♣

1. 만원 (manwon/10,000 won) + 짜리 (jjari) + 시계 (sigye)"watch" 만 원짜리 시계
   "a ten-thousand-won watch"
2. 한 시간 (han sigan/1 hour) + 짜리 (jjari) + 수업 (sueop) "class" 한 시간짜리 수업
   "a one-hour class"
3. 30센치 (samsipssenchi/30 cm) + 짜리 (jjari) + 자 (ja) "ruler" 30센치짜리 자
   "a 30-centimeter ruler"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing "only/just" in Korean : -만 햄버거 한 개만 먹을게.
haembeogeo han gaeman meogeulkke.
"I'll just eat one hamburger."

만 (man) is a particle that expresses the meaning of "just" or "only." We can attach 만 (man) to all nouns and some particles, but not verbs. So if you want to describe something and add the meaning of "only" to the sentence, you add 만 (man) to a noun, whether it's the subject or object of the sentence. While in English "only" or "just" are separate words, in Korean we attach this function to the noun as a particle.

Construction

Noun + 만 (man)

1. 영화 (yeonghwa) "movie"
   영화 + 만 = 영화만 (yeonghwaman) "only movies"
   일요일에는 영화만 봐요.
   ilyoireneun yeonghwaman bwayo.
   "I only watch movies on Sundays."

Verb Stem + -기 (gi) + 만 (man) + 하다 (hada)

1. 놀다 (nolda) "to play"
   자기 (nolda) + 만 = 놀기만 (nolgiman)
   이 학생은 놀기만 해요.
   i hakssaengeun nolgiman haeyo.
   "This student only plays."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying, "only/nothing but" in Korean 아... 이 색밖에 없어요?
a... i saekbakke eopsseoyo?
"Do you have only this color?"

밖에 (bakke) is a word that literally means "outside," and it can also mean "besides" or "other than." Most of the time, when it's not used to literally indicate "outside" as in "outside the house," we combine 밖에 (bakke) with negative statements and it means "only" or "nothing but." So it means "only" in conclusion, but it's unnatural to use it in a positive statement to express the meaning of "only."

When we change the negative part of the sentence to positive, the particle -만 (man) can replace 밖에 (bakke), but not always. When implying that the number or the amount being mentioned is small or below expectations, Korean people tend to use 밖에 (bakke) rather than -만 (man), although 만 (man) is closer to the literal translation of the English word "only."

Construction

Noun + 밖에

이것 (igeot) - "this"
이것 + 밖에 = 이것밖에 (igeotbakke) "only this"
이것밖에 없어요.
igeotbakke eopseoyo.
"I only have this one." / "This is all we have."

Different verbs in Korean for "to wear"

In English, the word "to wear" can be used for clothes, accessories, hats and even makeup, but in Korean different verbs are used depending on the item.The following are the verbs that are used respectively.

입다 (iptta) - for clothes

- 오늘 이 치마 입을 거예요. (oneul i chima ibeul kkeoyeyo) "I'm going to wear this skirt today."

쓰다 (sseuda) - for hats, caps, and glasses

- 저는 모자 쓰는 거 좋아해요. (jeoneun moja sseuneun geo joahaeyo) "I like wearing hats."

- 안경 쓰세요? (angyeong sseuseyo?) "Do you wear glasses?"

하다 (hada) - for accessories and make-up

- 지금 귀걸이 하고 있어요? (jigeum gwigeori hago isseoyo?) "Are you wearng earrings now?"
- 화장 너무 많이 하지 마. (hwajang neomu mani haji ma) "Don't put on too much make-up."

차다 (chada) - for watches

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Using the Conjunctions "and/with" - 랑/ -하고
아. 간장하고 소금을 넣어요.
a. ganjanghago sogeumeul neoeoyo.
"Oh, add soy sauce and salt."

-랑 (rang) and -하고 (hago) both mean "and, with" but we only use them with nouns and not verbs or sentences. The conjunction that combines sentences that means "and" is 그리고 (geurigo). We attach -랑 (rang) and -하고 (hago) to the nouns that they combine with the following nouns. They are equally commonly used in colloquial situations and almost always interchangeable. Therefore, Korean people tend to mix these two words in their speech because using the same one word repeatedly can sound boring.

Construction

Noun + -랑 (rang)

1. 학교랑 집 hakkyorang jip
   "school and home"

Noun + -하고 (hago)

1. 엄마하고 아빠
   eommahago appa
   "mom and dad"
2. 엄마하고 eommahago
   "with mom"
3. 엄마하고 아빠하고
   eommahago appahago
   "with mom and dad"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "to/ in order to" in Korean: -(으)러 물건 받으러 왔어요.
ulgeon badureo wasseoyo.
"I came to pick up the delivery."

-(으)러 (-(eu)reo) is a verb-connecting suffix that expresses the purpose of an action or the intention of a person. Verbs that represent movement from one place to another usually follow it, such as 가다 (gada, "to go") and 오다 (oda, "to come"). We can translate it into English as "in order to" or "to." A structure that has a similar meaning, and the one that most learners pick up first, is -기 위해서 (-gi wihaeseo), but we use it more often in writing and in formal speeches. We use -(으)러 (-(eu)reo) most often in colloquial situations. The suffix we use to express the same meaning combined with other general verbs is -(으)려고 (-(eu)ryeogo).

For example:
"I came to Korea to travel."

1. Formal:
   여행하기 위해서 한국에 왔어요.
   yeohaenghagi wihaeseo hanguge wasseoyo.
2. Colloquial:
   여행하러 한국에 왔어요.
   yeohaenghareo hanguge wasseoyo.

Construction

Verb Stem + -(으) 러

1. 놀다(nolda) "to play"
   놀 (nol) - verb stem
   놀 + 러 = 놀러 (nolleo)
   놀러 왔어요. (nolleo wasseoyo) "I came here to play."
2. 자다 (jada) "to sleep"
   자 (ja) - verb stem
   자 + 러 = 자러 (jareo)
   자러 갈 거예요. (jareo gal geo-yeyo) "I'm going to go to bed."
3. 먹다 (meokda) "to eat"
   먹 (meok) - verb stem
   먹 + 으러 = 먹으러 (meogeureo)
   같이 먹으러 갈까요? (gachi meogeureo galkkayo?) "Shall we go eat together?"

In This Dialogue

1. 직원: 물건 받으러 왔어요.
   jikwon: mulgeon badeureo wasseoyo.
   Clerk: "I came to pick up the delivery."

2. 소연: 다시 가지러 오세요.
   Soyeon: dasi gajireo oseyo.
   Soyeon: "Please come back to pick up the right one."

3. 소연: 가지러 오세요.
   Soyeon: gajireo oseyo.
   Soyeon: "Please come pick it up."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing "to the extent where..."/"so much that..."
귀가 보일 정도로 짧게요.
gwiga boil jeongdoro jjalkkeyo.
"I want to have it cut short enough to reveal my ears."

-ㄹ/을 정도로 (l/eul jeongdoro) is a grammatical structure that describes an action or a state by expressing the extent or degree of the action or state. 정도 (jeongdo) literally means "degree" or "extent." Therefore, the first part -ㄹ/을 (l/eul) modifies 정도 (jeongdo), and -로 (ro) is a particle that means, "in" or "to." So all together, it means, "so much in a certain state that __," or "to the extent where __."

A similar expression is -ㄹ/을/를 만큼 (l/eul/leul mankeum), and these two expressions are interchangeable almost in all contexts.

Construction

Verb Stem + -ㄹ/을 정도로

1. 놀라다 (nollada) - "to be surprised"
   놀라 (nolla) - verb stem
   놀라 + ㄹ 정도로 = 놀랄 정도로 (nollal jeongdoro) 놀랄 정도로 비싸요.
   nollal jeongdo-ro bissayo.
   "It's so expensive that you'll be surprised."
2. 싫다 (silta) - "to not want, to hate"
   싫 (sil) - verb stem
   싫 + 을 정도로 = 싫을 정도로 (sileul jeongdoro)
   많이 먹었어요 (mani meogeosseoyo) "I ate a lot."
   햄버거가 싫어요. (haembeogeoga sireoyo) "I hate hamburgers."
   햄버거가 싫을 정도로 많이 먹었어요.
   haembeogeoga sileul jeongdoro mani meogeosseoyo.
   "I ate so many hamburgers that now I hate them."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "I am sure" / "must be" 분명히 -ㄹ/을 것이다 저 사람 분명히 아빠가 한국인일 거야.
jeo saram bunmyeonghi appaga hanguginil kkeoya.
"I'm sure his father is Korean. "

분명히 -ㄹ/을 것이다 (bunmyeonghi -l/eul goesida) is a structure that means "I am sure" or "must be." The first part, 분명히 (bunmyeonghi), is an adverb that means "clearly" or "certainly." -ㄹ/을 것이다 (-l/eul goesida) is a way to express one's assumption or guess. So together, it means "I'm sure" or "must be," and we use these two parts like a pair quite often.

You change the word 분명히 (bunmyeonghi) to other words to alter the nuance of the statement. For example, if you say 아마 (ama - "maybe") instead of 분명히 (bunmyeonghi), the phrase means, "it could be" instead of "it must be."

The last part, 것이다 (geosida), changes depending on the politeness level.

For example:

1. Intimate: 거야 (geoya)
2. Standard: 거예요 (geoyeyo)
3. Formal: 것입니다 (geosimnida)

Construction

분명히 + Verb Stem + -ㄹ/을 것이다

오늘 (oneul) - "today"
오늘이다 (oneurida) - "to be today"
분명히 + 오늘이 + ㄹ 것이다 = 분명히 오늘일 것이다 (bunmyeonghi oneuril geosida) 분명히 오늘일 거예요.
bunmyeonghi oneuril kkeoyeyo.
"I'm sure it's today." / "It must be today."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "You know," / "Can't you see" -잖아(요) 주희 오늘 아프잖아.
"You know Juhui is sick today."

-잖아 (jana) is a verb ending that expresses the meaning "as you know," "you know," "don't you see," or "isn't it." It has the nuance that what the speaker says is true and is supposed to be a commonly known fact. You can add 요 (yo) at the end to make it more polite, and if you want to say it in the formal politeness level, you can say -잖습니까 (janseumnikka).

-잖아 (jana) originally comes from the negative question form, -지 않아? (ji ana?), and we use it without the question mark in an affirmative sentence.

Construction

Verb Stem + - 잖아(요)

공부하다 (gongbuhada) "to study"
공부하 (gongbuha) - verb stem 공부하 + 잖아요 = 공부하잖아요 gongbuhajanayo.
"Can't you see that I'm studying?" / "You know I study."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing Frequency, Allocated Amounts, or Numbers 휴... 이 약 하루에 한 번씩 먹어요. 그리고 지금 이거 마셔요.
"Phew...take this medicine once a day and drink this right now."

-씩 (-ssik) is a particle that expresses frequency, or allocated amounts or numbers. There is no single word with the same function as this one in English. We express it through words such as "every, each," or "a."

For Example:

1. 하루 (haru) - "a day "
2. 한 번 (han beon) - "once "
3. 하루에 한 번씩
   *haru-e han beon-ssik
   "once a day"

Here, we can omit씩 (ssik) for the phrase to mean the same thing, but it makes the meaning of the phrases clearer by emphasizing the meaning of "each" or "per."

Construction

Number + (Counter) + -씩

1. 한 명 (han myeong) "one person"
   한 명 + 씩 = 한 명씩 (han myeong-ssik)
   한 번에 한 명씩
   han beon-e han myeong-ssik
   "one person at a time"

2. 한 번 (han beon) "one time"
   한 번 + 씩 = 한 번씩 (han beon-ssik)
   일 년에 한 번씩
   il nyeon-e han beon-ssik
   "once every year"

Words Expressing Number or Amount + -씩

1. 조금 (jogeum) "a little, a bit"
   조금 + -씩 = 조금씩
   jogeumssik
   "little by little"

2. 이만큼 (i-mankeum) "about this much"
   이만큼 + -씩 = 이만큼씩
   (i-mankeum-ssik)
   "about this much each time"

다 줄게. da julkke. "I'll give you all."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing "to do something by accident" / "to end up doing" 나... 지갑 잃어버렸어.
"I've lost my wallet by accident."

-아/어/여 버리다 (-a/eo/yeo beorida) is a sentence ending that expresses the meaning of "to do something by accident," "to end up doing," or sometimes "to boldly do something that takes some courage to do so." Alone, 버리다 (beorida) literally means "to throw away." However here, it has the nuance of "to do something once and get done with it for good." Therefore, we use it to describe situations where you have done something that you didn't mean to do, or to describe quickly going ahead and being done with an action. So you must look at the context to see which meaning the sentence takes.

Construction

Verb Stem + -아/어/여 버리다

지우다 (jiuda) "to erase"
지우 (jiu) - verb stem

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is "to be going to" / "to plan to" / "to decide to" 친구랑 저녁 먹기로 했어요.
"My friend and I have arranged to have dinner together."

-기로 하다 (-gi-ro hada) means "to decide to," "to plan to," or "to be going to." -기 (-gi) is the nominalizing suffix for verbs. Literally, this structure has the nuance of "going into the direction of doing a certain action." We can replace this with the simple future sentence ending, -ㄹ/을 것이다 (-l/eul geos-ida), but we use -기로 하다 (-gi-ro hada) when it is necessary to show the determination, arrangement, or plan to do something.

Construction

Verb Stem + -기로 하다

만나다 (mannada) "to meet"
만나 (manna) - verb stem
만나 + -기로 하다 = 만나기로 하다 (mannagi-ro hada) "to arrange to meet" / "to decide to meet"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Structure "Don't do (A) but do (B)" -지 말고 -(으)세요 사진 찍지 말고, 그냥 보세요.
"Do not take a picture, just look."

-지 말고 -(으)세요 (-ji malgo -(eu)seyo) means, "don't do A but do B" and it's a combined structure of -지 말다 (-ji malda), which means "don't do it," and -아/어/여세요 (-a/eo/yeoseyo), which means "please do it." You can use this expression when telling someone not to do something and to do something. You can sometimes change 말고 (malgo) to 마시고 (masigo) to make the sentence more polite, but it isn't always necessary because you can express the politeness level through the ending of the sentence. You can change the last -(으)세요 (-(eu)seyo) to -아/어/여 (-a/eo/yeo) to make the sentence intimate.

Construction

Verb Stem + -지 말고 + Verb Stem -(으)세요

놀다 (nolda) "to play"
공부하다 (gongbuhada) "to study"
놀 (nol), 공부하 (gongbuha) - verb stems
놀 + 지 말고 + 공부하 + 세요 =
놀지 말고 공부하세요.
nolji malgo gongbuhaseyo.
OR

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is "it happens that..." / "the circumstances are that..."
아... 미안... 나 이번 주말에 출장가게 됐어.
"Oh...I'm sorry...it happens that I'm going on a business trip this weekend."

-게 되다 (-ge doeda) is a way to express the meaning of "it happens that..." or "the circumstances are that...." We can translate this structure into English in many ways, but the focus is that the cause of the action or the state doesn't come from the person but from the circumstances or other people.

This structure literally means, "to become a certain state," so it implies many possibilities as to "how" that happened.

For Example:

가게 됐어 (gage dwaesseo) = 가다 + -게 되다 [past tense]

1. "It happens that I'm going."
2. "They're sending me."
3. "It's been decided that I'm going."

Construction

Verb Stem + -게 되다

1. 하다 (hada) "to do"
   하 (ha) - verb stem
   하 + 게 되다 = 하게 되다 (hage doeda)

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying "depending on" in Korean: -에 따라(서) 날씨에 따라 달라요.
"It depends on the weather."

-에 따라(서) (-e ttara(seo)) is a structure that expresses the meaning of "depending on." This structure comes from the verb 따르다 (ttareuda), which literally means "to follow." So we can literally translate -에 따라(서) (-e ttara(seo)) as "by following," and it takes the meaning of "depending on." We can drop the last letter, 서 (seo).

Construction

Noun + -에 따라(서)

가격 (gagyeok) "price"
가격 + -에 따라서 = 가격에 따라서 (gagyeok-e ttaraseo)
가격에 따라서 크기가 달라요.
gagyeok-e ttaraseo keugi-ga dallayo.
"The sizes vary depending on the price."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Expressing Regret with "I should have + (p.p.)" / "I regret that I didn't..." -ㄹ/을 걸 그랬다 지하철 타고 올 걸 그랬어요.
"I should have taken the subway."

-ㄹ/을 걸 그랬다 (l/eul geol geuraetda) is a way to express regret by saying "I should have done..." or "I regret that I didn't do...." The last part, 그랬다 (geuraetda) means "it was so" or "I did it." So literally, you're saying, "I did A while I could have done B." Here, 걸 (geol) is short for 것을 (geos-eul).

Construction

Verb Stem + -ㄹ/을 걸 그랬다

말하다 (malhada) "to say, to tell"
말하 (malha) - verb stem
말하 - ㄹ 걸 그랬다 = 말할 걸 그랬다 (malhal geol geuraetda)
말할 걸 그랬어요. (malhal geol geuraesseoyo) "I should have told him."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Saying, "Just Have to..." / "All You Have to Do is..."
버튼을 누르기만 하면 돼요.
"You just have to press the button."

-기만 하다 (-giman hada) is a verb ending that means "just have to" or "only need to." -기 (-gi) is a nominalization suffix for verbs, 만 (man) is a particle that means "only," and 하면 되다 literally means "if you do, it works." So all together, it means, "all you have to do is...."

Construction

오다 (oda) "come"
오 (o) - verb stem
오 + 기만 하면 되다 = 오기만 하면 되다 (ogi-man hamyeon doeda)
오기만 하면 돼. (ogi-man hamyeon dwae) "All you have to do is just come."

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Intentional - 려고 하다

-려고 하다 (-ryeogo hada) is an intentional sentence ending used with action verbs and the verb of existence, 있다 (itda). This express the subject's intention or determination of the subject's actions. It can be used with all persons (first person, second persons, and third persons), whereas other intentional sentence endings are limited.

This grammatical structure can be translated as "intend to (verb)," "going to (verb)," "plan to (verb)."

Mood, tense, negation, and politeness levels are expressed in the latter part of the grammatical structure, 하다 (hada).

▷ Construction

Verb Stem + -(으)려고 하다
[Conjugation differs slightly [according to the verb stem.]

1. Verb Stem that ends in a vowel + 려고 하다

쉬다 (swida) - to rest
쉬 (swi) - verb stem
쉬 + 려고 하다
쉬려고 하다 - to intend to rest
쉬려고 해요. (I intend to rest./I'm going to rest./I plan to rest.)

2. Verb Stem that ends in a consonant other than ㄹ + 으려고 하다

받다 (batda) - to receive
받 (bat) - verb stem
받 + 으려고 하다
받으려고 하다 - to intend to receive
받으려고 합니다. (I intend to receive it.)

3. Verb Stem that ends in ㄹ + 려고 하다
 Note that this is for the sake of easiness in pronunciation.

살다 (salda) - to live
살 (sal) - verb stem
살 + 려고 하다
살려고 하다 - to plan to live (reside)
서울에서 살려고 해요. (I plan to live in Seoul.)

4. Irregular Conjugations

- ㅂ irregular verbs
줍다 (jupda) - to pick up (from the ground)
줍 (jup) - verb stem changes to ▶▶ 주 (ju) - ㅂ drops and it becomes ㅜ.
주우 + 으려고 하다 Since 우 and 으 have the similar pronunciation, it becomes 우.
주우려고 하다 - to be about to pick (something) up
떨어진 돈을 주우려고 해요. (He's about to pick up the money that's fallen on the ground.)

- ㄷ irregular verbs
묻다 (mutda) - to ask (a question)
묻 (mut) - verb stem changes to ▶▶ 물 (mul) - ㄷ changes to ㄹ 물 + 으려고 하다
물으려고 하다 - to plan to ask
친구에게 물으려고 해요. (I'm going to ask a friend.)

- ㅅ irregular verbs
짓다 (jitda) - to build (a house)
짓 (jit) - verb stem changes to ▶▶ 지 (ji) - ㅅ drops
짓 + 으려고 하다
지으려고 하다 - to plan to build
집을 지으려고 해요. (We're planning to build a house.)

▷ In This Dialog
---
(3)아내: 오늘 친구를 좀 만나려고 하는데...
(3)anae: oneul chingu-reul jom mannaryeogo haneunde...
(3)Wife: I was thinking of meeting a friend...

(6)남편: 누구 만나려고?
(6)nampyeon: nugu mannaryeogo?
(6)Husband: Who are you going to meet?

(7)아내: 수진이랑 오랜만에 같이 저녁 식사 하려고요.
(7)anae: sujin-irang oraenmane gachi jeonyeok siksa haryeogoyo.
(7)Wife: I'm going to have dinner with Sujin, it's been a while.

☞ remember ☜

Many times this grammatical structure is shortened. The following are a few different colloquial variations of this grammatical structure:

Original Construction:
-(으)려고 하다
자다 (jada) - to sleep
자 (verb stem)
자 + 려고 하다
자려고 하다. - to intend to sleep
자려고 해. - (to intend)

Abbreviate/Shortened Variations:
1. -(으)려고
하다 is removed from the construction - as 하다 is removed from this construction, you can make this phrase more polite by adding -요 directly to the end of -(으)려고, therefore making it -(으)려고요.

자다 (jada) - to sleep
자 (verb stem)
자 + 려고
자려고. - I'm going to sleep.

2. -ㄹ/을 + 려구/라고/라구
The construction itself has been changed, in addition to 하다 being removed. This is closest to the intimate politeness level.

자다 (jada) - to sleep
▶ 자 + ㄹ려구 ▶ 잘려구
▶ 자 + ㄹ라고 ▶ 잘라고
▶ 자 + ㄹ라구 ▶ 잘라구

And these three phrases all mean the same thing - "I'm going to sleep."

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 친구 집에서 영화 보려고.
(chinju jib-eseo yeonghwa boryeogo.)
I'm going to watch a movie at a friend's house.

2. 내일은 학생들을 몇 명 만나려고 해요.
(naeil-eun haksaengdeul-eul myeot myeong mannaryeogo haeyo.)
Tomorrow, I'm going to meet some students.

3. 한국어 배우려고요.
(hangukeo baeuryeogo-yo.)
I plan on studying Korean.

4. 내년에 한국으로 여행 가려고 해요.
(naenyeon-e hanguk-euro yeohaeng garyeogo haeyo.)
I'm planning to go to Korea for traveling next year.

5. 내일부터 담배 끊으려고.
(naeil-buteo dambae kkeuneuryeogo.)
I'm going to quit smoking from tomorrow.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

In Korea, it is very common to see a family where the father is a few years older than the mother; therefore it is not strange for the wife to talk to the husband in polite language, even after many years of living together. But this depends on the families and there are a lot of couples who just use intimate language to each other regardless of their age difference.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - I Think I Will - -ㄹ/을 것 같다

-ㄹ/을 것 같다 (l/eul geot gatda) is a grammar structure to express your thought or assumption about future plans when you are not 100% sure. The word 같다 means 'to be the same' or 'to be like' and it is attached to the end of -ㄹ/을 것, which is the nominalization of the future tense.

▶ Future Tense (nominalization) + 같다 (to be like) = I think I will / I think it will ...

▷ Construction

- Verb Stem (ending in a vowel) + -ㄹ 것 같다

ex) 오다 (oda - to come)
▶ 오(다) + ㄹ 것 같다 = 올 것 같다 = I think I/he/she/you/they/it/we will come
▷ 올 것 같아 (intimate politeness level)
▷ 올 것 같아요 (standard politeness level)
▷ 올 것 같습니다 (formal politeness level)

- Verb Stem (ending in a consonant) + -을 것 같다

ex) 받다 (batda - to receive)
▶ 받(다) + 을 것 같다 = 받을 것 같다 = I think I/he/she/you/they/it/we will receive ▷ 받을 것 같아 (intimate politeness level)
▷ 받을 것 같아요 (standard politeness level)
▷ 받을 것 같습니다 (formal politeness level)

☞ remember ☜

Words that have verb stems ending with "ㄹ" are followed directly by 것 같다

ex) 만들다 (mandeulda - to make) ▶ 만들(다) + 것 같다 = 만들 것 같다

ex) 살다 (deulda - to live)
▶ 살(다) + 것 같다 = 살 것 같다

ex) 알다 (alda - to know)
▶ 알(다) + 것 같다 = 알 것 같다

The verbs 걷다(to walk), 듣다(to listen), 묻다(to ask), 싣다(to load) are changed to 걸을/들을/물을/실을 + 것 같다.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Even Before You Mentioned It - 그렇지 않아도

그렇지 않아도 (geureochi anado) literally means "even if it's not like that" or "even if you don't do it like that," and it is a shortened version of the longer phrase, "그렇게 하지 않아도" or "그러하지 않아도." Literally, 그렇게 하다 means "to do like that" and 그러하다 means "to be that way" or "to be like that." Therefore, this refers to whatever has happened or has been mentioned previously. Koreans use this phrase often when they were going to do something and someone mentions it or something happens so that now it's expected of them to do it.

▷ Construction

그렇지 않아도 is almost always used as a set phrase, and often used along with the grammatical structure -(으)려고 하다, which was means "to plan to do" or "to be about to do" something. But when "그러하다" or "그렇게 하다" needs to be replaced with a different verb to express a more specific situation, you can take the verb and add -지 않아도.

Ex) 니가 말하지 않아도 도와주려고 했어.
= I was going to help you even if you didn't ask me to.
= 그렇지 않아도 도와주려고 했어.

▷ In This Dialog

(2) 아내: 아, 그렇지 않아도, 그 얘기 좀 하려고 했어요.
(2) anae: a, geureochi anado, geu yaegi jom ha ryeogo haesseoyo.
(2) Wife: Oh, even before you mentioned, I was going to talk to you about that.

(5) 남편: 그렇지 않아도 요즘에 성주 얼굴이 많이 어두운 것 같아.
(5) nampyeon: geureochi anado yojeum-e Seongju eolgul-i manhi eoduungeot gata.
(5) Husband: Even before you mentioned that, I thought Seongju looked quite gloomy these days.

(7) 남편: 그렇지 않아도 한 번, 성주랑 시간을 보내려고 했었는데.
(7) nampyeon: geureochi anado han beon, Seongju-rang sigan-eul bonaeryeogo haesseotneunde.
(7) Husband: I wanted to spend some time with him anyway.

☞ remember ☜

As there are usually two ways to negate a verb in Korean, 그렇지 않다 is also interchangeable with 안 그렇다. So you can say 안 그래도 instead of 그렇지 않아도, but 안 그래도 is slightly more casual while 그렇지 않아도 can be used in all kind of polite situations.

그렇지 않아도 is often translated in English as 'anyway' at the end of a sentence, and the Korean word has the same meaning is 어차피, but just like 안 그래도, the word 어차피 is also more casual than 그렇지 않아도, so it's advsiable to say '그렇지 않아도' in polite situations.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 안 그래도 오늘 전화하려고 했어! (an geuraedo oneul jeonhwaharyeogo haesseo!)
- I was going to call you anyway.

2. 그렇지 않아도 내가 물어보려고 했어. (geureochi anado nae-ga mureoboryeogo hasseo.)
- Even before you mentioned it, I was going to ask you.

3. 그렇지 않아도 나는 갈 시간이 없었어. (geureochi anado na-neun sigan-i eopseo.)
- Even before that happened, I didn't have time to go anyway.

4. 안 그래도 조금 이상하다고 생각했어. (an geuraedo na-neun isanghadago saenggakhaesseo.)
- Even before you mentioned that, I thought it was strange.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

When Koreans talk about the mood or state of health that somebody is in, they often use expressions related to the face of the person. The word 안색 (안: face + 색: color) literally means the color of one's face, and it is used to describe what kind of mood or health conditions somebody seems to be in. 안색이 좋다 means 'to look well' or 'to look fine', and 안색이 나쁘다 means 'to look pale or ill'. And 안색이 어둡다 or 얼굴이 어둡다 doesn't mean that the person's face looks literally dark but it means that the person seems to have something troubling him or her. And when someone gets married and starts leading a very relaxed and happy life, and maybe gain a little weight and look healthier, Koreans say '얼굴이 피다', which literally means 'the face blooms'.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - I Did do It - 하기는 했다

This grammatical structure is generally used to show contrast between two actions or states, or two contrary characteristics of a single action or state. The basic form of this grammtical structure is:

-기는 + -ㄴ/는다 (present tense)

But the later part can be changed according to the tense.

-기는 + 아/어/여 = ㅆ다 (past tense)
-기는 + -ㄹ/을 것이다 (future tense)

Since this grammar pattern is used to show contrast, it is often translated into English as 'I Do + Verb + (but/although ...)' (present tense), 'I Did + Verb + (but/although ...)' (past tense), or 'I Will + Verb + (but/although ...)'.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - As Soon As - -자마자

-자마자 (jamaja) is the grammatical pattern used to mean "as soon as" in Korean. Just like in English, this structure is usually used along with another verb or clause to complete the sentence. The tense is expressed through the other part of the sentence, and -자마자 is always attached to the verb stem.

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -자마자

Ex) 하다 (to do) → 하(다) + -자마자 ▶ 하자마자 (as soon as + do)
- 전화를 하자마자 친구들이 왔다. (My friends came over as soon as I called them.)

Ex) 먹다 (to eat) → 먹(다) + -자마자 ▶ 먹자마자 (as soon as + eat)
- 우리는 밥을 먹자마자 잠을 잤다. (We slept as soon as we ate.)

▷ In This Dialog

(3)정호: 보자마자, 그냥 인사하고 다른 데로 갔어.
(3)Jeongho: bojamaja, geunyang insahago dareun de-ro gasseo.
(3)Jeongho: As soon as he saw me, he just said hi and went somewhere else.

(6)미현: 근데 집에 가자마자 아르바이트 가야 돼.
(6)Mihyeon: gende jib-e gajamaja areubaiteu gaya dwae.
(6)Mihyeon: But as soon as I go home, I have to go to my part-time job.

(7)정호: 난 집에 가자마자 샤워부터 해야겠다!
(7)Jeongho: nan jib-e gajamaja syawobuteo haeyagetda!
(7)Jeongho: I'm going to take a shower as soon as I go home!

☞ remember ☜

-자마자 is often used with words like 바로 (baro - right away), 빨리 (ppalli - quickly), and 곧 (got - soon).

♣ More Examples ♣

---

1. 오늘은 집에 가자마자 영화 보러 갈 거야. (oneul-eun jib-e gajamaja yeonghwa boreo gal geoya.)
Today, as soon as I get home, I'll go watch a movie.

2. 내일 일 끝나자마자 나한테 연락해. (naeil il kkeutnajamaja na-hante yeonlakhae.)
Give me a call as soon as you finish work tomorrow.

3. 너 가자마자 민수가 왔었어. (neo gajamaja minsu-ga wasseosseo.)
As soon as you left, Minsu came.

4. 먹자마자 누우면 소화가 안 돼요. (meokjamaja nuumyeon sohwa-ga an dwaeyo.)
If you lie down as soon as you eat, you can't digest.

5. 보자마자 갑자기 왜 그렇게 화를 내? (bojamaja gapjagi wae geureoke hwa-reul nae?)
Why are you getting mad at me so suddenly as soon as you saw me?

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Will It Be? - -ㄹ/을까?

-ㄹ/을까 (eulkka) is a grammatical structure that usually acts as a sentence-ending part. This is in the same form as the propositive, but the meaning is different. When -ㄹ/을까 is used when talking about an incident, a person's feelings or the state of things, it expresses a suppositive or assumptive question.

▷ Construction

▶ Future / Present Tense
- Verb stem ending in a vowel + -ㄹ까
- Verb stem ending in a consonant + -을까

▶ Past Tense
- Verb stem + -았/었/였- + -을까

* You can add -요 at the end of this structure to make the language more polite, but this grammatical structure doesn't have a formal politeness level, so you can't use the -ㅂ니다/까 ending with this structure.

Ex)
해(intimate) - 해요(standard) - 합니다(formal)
할까 (intimate) - 할까요 (standdard) - none (formal)

- I wonder if Mom has arrived safely.

5. 여기가 어디일까? (yeogi-ga eodi-ilkka?)
- I wonder where we are.

Grammar Point #2 - It Should Be. - -ㄹ/을 거야

-ㄹ/을 거야 (eul geoya) is the intimate politeness level of the structure -ㄹ/을 것이다. This is the same form as the intentional, but is not of the same meaning. While the intentional 거야 expresses an intention or a plan to do something in the future, here, when this grammatical structure can express a suppositive or assumptive statement about all tenses.

▷ Construction

▶ Future / Present Tense
- Verb stem ending in a vowel + -ㄹ 것이다
- Verb stem ending in a consonant + -을 것이다

▶ Past Tense
- Verb stem + -았/었/였- + -을 것이다

▷▷ 것이다 becomes:
- 거야 (intimate)
- 거예요 or 것이에요 (standard)
- 겁니다 or 것입니다 (formal)

- I guess it'll take about an hour.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

One of the best known places for shopping for gadgets in Korea is Yongsan, and it's because you can buy a lot of 'direct-import' goods, which means the products are cheaper, but the warranty service is not guaranteed. But some stores still guarantees warranty service to secure more customers, and even if you bought something second-handed from someone and don't have any warranty certificate with you, you can always find a place to have your broken gadgets fixed.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - In The Middle of -ing - -는 중이다

-는 중이다 (-neun jung-ida) can be broken down into two parts. -는 is a verb ending that makes the verb modify a noun in the plain form. Please note that it is different from the past tense ending '-ㄴ/은' and the future tense ending '-ㄹ/을'. And 중 (jung) means 'middle', 'center', or 'medium' so when put together, '-는 중이다' means 'to be in the middle of doing something.'

▷ Construction

♣ 보다 (boda) = to see
- 보(다) + -는 중이다 = 보는 중이다
▶▶ 지금 TV 보는 중이야. (I'm in the middle of watching TV now.)

♣ 일하다 (ilhada) = to work
- 일하(다) + -는 중이다 = 일하는 중이다
▶▶ 지금 일하는 중이에요. (I'm in the middle of working right now.)

♣ 자다 (jada) = to sleep
- 자(다) + -는 중이다 = 자는 중이다
- 자(다) + -고 있다 = 자고 있다 (present progressive)
▶▶ 자고 있는 중이다

♣ Noun (usually nouns that indicate an action) + 중이다
- 수업 중이다 (to be in a class)
- 데이트 중이다 (to be in the middle of having a date)
- 청소 중이다 (to be in the middle of cleaning)
- 요리 중이다 (to be in the middle of cooking)

☞ remember ☜
---
1. Note that when the verb stem ends in 'ㄹ', the 'ㄹ' gets dropped before the verb stem is followed by -는 중이다.
▷ 열다 (yeolda) = to open
▷ 열(다) + -는 중이다 ▶ 여는 중이다.

2. Note that even the present progressive can be used together with the structure -는 중이다. Although technically it's redundant, a lot of Korean people just use them together.
▷ 먹는 중이다 = 먹고 있는 중이다
▷ 자는 중이다 = 자고 있는 중이다
▷ 공부하는 중이다 = 공부하고 있는 중이다

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - On My Way - -는 길이다

-는 길이다 (-neun gil-ida) literally means "to be the way of" or "to be the way to". It is a way to express "to be on one's way to a place" or "to be on one's way to go do something". The conjugated part before 길 is always in the plain present tense and the tense of the entire sentence is expressed through the later part. This grammatical structure can be used with basically any verb that represents going, coming, leaving, and arriving, but in most cases it's used with the verbs 가다 and 오다.

▷ Construction

[To be on one's way to a place]
- place name + -에 가는 길이다

Ex) 회사 + -에 가는 길이다
▶ 회사에 가는 길이에요. (I'm on my way to work.)

Ex) 집 + -에 가는 길이다
▶ 집에 가는 길이에요. (I'm on my way home.)

[To be on one's way to go do something]
1. verb stems ending in consonants other than ㄹ + -으러 가는 길이다
Ex) 먹(다) + -으러 가는 길이다.
▶ 밥 먹으러 가는 길이에요. (I'm on my way to go eat.)

2. verb stems ending in a vowel + -러 가는 길이다
Ex) 보(다) + -러 가는 길이다.
▶ 영화 보러 가는 길이에요. (I'm on my way to go watch a movie.)

3. verb stems ending in ㄹ + -러 가는 길이다
Ex) 놀(다) + 러 가는 길이다.
▶ 바닷가로 놀러 가는 길이에요. (I'm on my way to go play to the beach.)

☞ remember ☜

Compound verbs with -가다 and -오다 don't follow the rules above and they are just used as is.

Ex) 올라가다, 내려가다, 달려오다, 뛰어가다... etc.

For example, 올라가다 is a compound verb of 오르다 and 가다 but it doesn't become 오르러 가는 중이다, but it stays the same as 올라가는 중이다.

▷ In This Dialog

(7)지윤: 나는 지금 서점에 가는 길이야.
(7)jiyun: naneun jigeum seojeom-e ganeun gil-iya.
(7)Jiyun: I'm on my way to the bookstore.

(8)석민: 어디에 가는 길?
(8)seokmin: eodi-e ganeun gil?
(8)Seokmin: On your way to where?

(11)지윤: 책을 사고 싶어서 서점에 가는 길이야.
(11)jiyun: chaeg-eul sago sipeoseo seojeom-e ganeun gil-iya.
(11)Jiyun: I'm on my way there because I want to buy a book.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 저는 그때 집에 가는 길이었어요. (jeo-neun geuttae jib-e ganeun gil-ieosseoyo.)
- I was on my way home at that time.

2. 지금 어디 가는 길이세요? (jigeum eodi ganeun gil-iseyo?)
- Where are you headed now?

3. 여동생이랑 편의점에 가는 길이에요. (yeodongsaeng-irang pyeonuijeom-e ganeun gil-ieyo.)
- I am on my way to go to the convenience store with my younger sister.

4. 출근하는 길이에요. (chulgeunhaneun gil-ieyo.)
- I'm on my way to go to work.

5. 이제 퇴근하는 길이에요. (ije toegeunhaneun gil-ieyo.)
- I'm on my way to go back home now.

Hanja Vocabulary

서(書)
서점(book + store) = bookstore
서예(book + art) = caligraphy
문서(writing + writing) = document

점(店)
점원(store + person) = clerk, employee
개점(open + store) = store launching
주점(liquor + store) = bar, pub

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Even when it's very obvious that they cannot make the time and have to cancel an arrangement to meet up, Korean people like to use the expression "-것 같다" which means "it looks like" or "I think". This is because they don't want to be too direct about it and hurt the other person's feelings. So note that when someone says '못 만날 것 같아', it is NOT 'I might not be able to meet you' BUT in fact it is 'I can't make it today'.

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - While You're At It - -는 김에

The word 김 (gim) can mean a lot of things in Korean. The most popular meaning is of course the name of the seaweed, laver, which is used in making 김밥 (gimbap). 김 can also mean 'steam' or 'occasion', and the meaning of 'occasion' is the one that's used in this grammatical structure. -는 김에 (-neun gim-e) expresses doing one or more things based on the fact that the other action is happening. So it can be translated as 'while you're at it', 'while it happens to be in that state', or 'since it is being done already'.

▷ Construction

[Present Tense]

▶ Verb stem + -는 김에

가(다) + 는 김에 = 가는 김에
= since you are going there

먹(다) + 는 김에 = 먹는 김에
= while I eat

▶ Excepion:
Verb stems ending in ㄹ drops the ㄹ, and are followed by -는 김에

팔(다) + 는 김에 = 파는 김에
= while you are selling it

[Past Tense]
▶ Verb stem + -ㄴ/은 김에

가(다) + ㄴ 김에 = 간 김에
= you went there, so while you are there

먹(다) + 은 김에 = 먹은 김에
= since you've already eaten it

(7)지윤: 가는 김에 컴퓨터도 좀 보려고.
(7)jiyun: ganeun gim-e keompyuteo-do jom boryeogo.
(7)Jiyun: I'm going to look at some computers while I'm there.

(8)석민: 그럼 가는 김에 내 생일 선물도!
(8)seokmin: a, jeongmal? geureom ganeun gim-e nae saengil seonmul-do!
(8)Seokmin: Oh really? Then while you're at it get me a birthday present!

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 서울에 가는 김에 현우도 만나려고. [가다] [만나다]
- I'm planning to meet Hyunwoo too in Seoul while I'm there.

2. 우리 집에 온 김에 나 영어 좀 가르쳐 줘.[오다] [가르치다]
- While you're here in my house, please teach me some English.

3. 백화점에 가는 김에 옷도 사고 싶어. [가다] [사다]
- Since I'm on my way to the departmnt store anyway, I also want to buy some clothes while I'm there.

4. 온 김에 차라도 한 잔 하고 가세요. [오다] [하다] [가다]
-While you're here, have a cup of tea at least.

5. 빨래 하는 김에 내 것까지 해 주면 안돼? [하다]
- While you are doing your laundry, how about doing mine for me as well?

♣ Remember ♣

겸사겸사 (gyeomsa gyeomsa) is an expression often used together with the pattern -는 김에 or also just on its own. 겸사겸사 can be used like an adverb and inserted in the middle of a sentence, and it can also be used as a set expression on its own. It means to "do two things at the same time to save energy and time".

Ex)
- 서점에 간 김에, 겸사겸사, 책을 좀 사 왔어. [가다] [사다] [오다]
- While I was at the bookstore, I bought some books as well.

어차피 (eochapi) means "anyway" as in, "I'm going to be doing it anyway, so..." 어차피 is used very often with the pattern -는 김에.

Ex)
- 어차피 나 밖에 나가니까, 나가는 김에 사 올게.
- I'm going to go outside anyway, so I'll buy it while I'm out.

▶ Hanja Vocabulary ◀

- 생일(生日) - life + day = birthday
- 생신(生辰) - life + day(honorific) = birthday (honorific)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

An interesting Korean proverb using this structure is '떡 본 김에 제사 지낸다.' 제사 is a ritual to commemorate the ancestors or someone in the family who passed away on the same day of their death each year. And for every 제사, Korean people make (or buy) some 떡(rice cake). Although 떡 is very cheap and easy to find these days, it was a rare item that people only made for special occasions. Therefore, when Korean people want to say "while I'm at it, let's just also do this.", they often say, "떡 본 김에 제사 지낸다고, ~~까지 하자." which literally means, "As they say that they hold a ritual while they've seen some rice cake, let's also do ~~~."

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - And Then (logical connection) - -았/었/였더니

-앗/었/였더니 (at/eot/yeotdeoni) is used to show two actions or states in a logical order. And the relationship between the two actions or states expressed through this grammatical structure can be 1) one being the reason or cause of the other, or 2) one happening after the other and the speaker is realizing it now. This grammatical structure is different from 때문에 or -아/어/여서 and not usually translated as 'because' or 'since'. This is best translated as "and then (affected by the previous action or state, the second one happened)" or "and then (what I saw happening was)".

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -았/었/였 (past infix) + 더 (retrospective infix) + 니

▶ 가다 - 갔더니
▶ 오다 - 왔더니
▶ 열다 - 열었더니
▶ 말하다 - 말했더니

☞ Remember ☜

-았/었/였더니 is often interchangeable with -니 or -니까, depending on the context.

문을 열어 봤더니 = 문을 열어 보니 [열다 + 보다]
집에 갔더니 = 집에 가니 [가다]
말했더니 = 말하니까 [말하다]

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Let Alone - -는/은커녕

-는/은커녕 (-neun/eunkeonyeong) negates the noun or verb that it follows and leads to revealing another fact by comparing the noun or verb with another noun or verb that comes after. It is often used in pair with -도 못 or -도 안 in the later part of the sentence. -는/은커녕 follows a noun, so a verb has to be in its noun form of -기 and be followed by -는 커녕. This grammatical phrase is translated as 'let alone' or 'not even that'.

▷ Construction

▶ [Noun] + -는/은커녕

밥 + -은커녕 = 밥은커녕
일본어 + -는커녕 = 일본어는커녕

▶ [Verb Stem] + -기는커녕

놀다 + -기는커녕 = 놀기는커녕
오다 + -기는커녕 = 오기는커녕

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - No Way, Can't Be- ㄹ/을 리가 없다

-ㄹ/을 리가 없다 (-eul li-ga eopda) expresses a doubt in the possibility or the likeliness of an action or a state. 리 (li) means a reason, a possibility, or a cause. This grammar structure is usually used in the present tense and the past tense, and even when it's refering to a future action, the sentence remains in the present tense.

Ex) 갈 리가 없다 (o)
- 갈 것일 리가 없다 (x)

This structure can be translated into English as 'can't + verb', 'there is no way that + sentence', or 'it's impossible that + sentence'.

☞ remember ☜

-ㄹ/을 리가 있다 is also possible but it can only be used in a question, and still has the same meaning since the question serves as a confirming statement.

▶ 그럴 리가 있어요. (x)
▶ 그럴 리가 있나요? (o)

▷ Construction

Verb stem + ㄹ/을 + 리 + -가 있다/없다

있다 (to exist, to have) [present tense]
▶ 있 + 을 리가 없다 = 있을 리가 없다 = can't be (there), can't have

있다 (to exist, to have) [past tense]
▶ 있 + 었 + 을 리가 없다 = 있었을 리가 없다 = can't have been (there), can't have had

알다 (to know) [present tense]
▶ 알 + (ㄹ) + 리가 없다 = 알 리가 없다 = can't know

하다 (to do) [past tense]
▶ 하 + 였 + 을 + 리가 없다 = 했을 리가 없다 = can't have done

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Pretend To - -ㄴ/은/는 척하다

-ㄴ/은/는 척하다 (n/eun/neun cheokhada) means "to pretend" in English. 척 works as a noun that means 'the act of pretending' and is combined with the verb 하다 to make the meaning of 'to pretend'. 척 can be replaced with 체 to mean the same thing.

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -ㄴ/은/는 척하다

Verb stem + -ㄴ/은 척하다 [past tense]
Verb stem + -는 척하다 [present tense]

보다 (to see)
▶ 보 + 는 척하다 = 보는 척하다 (to pretend to see) [present tense]
▶ 보 + ㄴ 척하다 = 본 척하다 (to pretend to have seen) [past tense]

읽다 (to read)
▶ 읽 + 는 척하다 = 읽는 척하다 (to pretend to read) [present tense]
▶ 읽 + 은 척하다 = 읽은 척하다 (to pretend to have read) [past tense]

▶ Verb stems ending in -ㄹ lose -ㄹ and are followed by -ㄴ/는 instead of -은.
Ex) 놀다 = 놀은 척 (x) 노는 척 (o)

▶ ㅂ -irregular verb stems
- 줍다 (to pick up)
- 줍는 척하다 (to pretend to pick up)
- 주운 척하다 (to pretend to have picked up)

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - In Fact - 사실은

사실은 (sasil-eun) is used when you want to reveal the truth or want to be honest. 사실, which means 'a fact,' can be used alone to mean the same inside a sentence. This phrase is used as an introduction to the truth. What comes after this introduction is the actual truth that the speakers wants to reveal. This phrase can be translated as "In fact..." "Actually..." "In reality..." This is then followed by the fact that the speaker wishes to introduce.

Similar expressions are 솔직히 (soljiki), 솔직히 말하면 (soljiki malhamyeon), and 실은 (sil-eun). 실은's 실 is the same letter as in the word 사실.

▷ In This Dialog

---

(1)주호: 선영아, 사실은...
(1)juho: seonyeong-a, sasil-eun...
(1)Juho: Seonyeong, in fact...

(2)선영: 사실은 뭐?!
(2)seonyeong: sasil-reun mwo?!
(2)Seonyeong: In fact what?!

(5)주호: 그런데 사실은... 너를 위해서 갔어.
(5)juho: geureonde sasil-eun... neo-reul wihaeseo gaseo
(5)Juho: But in fact... I went there for you.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 미안한데, 사실은 니가 먹은 거 유통기한이 지났어. [먹다] [지나다] (mianhande, sasil-eul ni-ga meogeun geo yutonggihan jinasseo)
- Sorry, but in fact what you ate is past the expiry date.

2. 실은, 유럽에 갔다 왔다는 말은 거짓말이었어. [가다] [오다] (sil-eun, yureob-e gatda watda-neun mal-eun geojitmal-ieosseo)
- In fact, I said that I went to Europe but it was a lie.

3. 사실은, 이 꽃은 너를 위해서 가져온 거야. [가져오다] (sasil-eun i kkoch-eun neo-reul wihaeseo gajyeoon geo-ya)
- In fact, I brought these flowers for you.

4. 사실은, 그 사람이 너한테는 말하지 말라고 부탁했어. [부탁하다] (sasil-eun geu saram-i neo-hanteneun malhaji mallago butakhaesseo)
- In fact, he asked me not to tell you.

5. 사실은, 내가 외계인이어서 너를 사랑할 수가 없어. [사랑하다] (sasil-eun, nae-ga oegyein-ieoseo neo-reul saranghal su-ga eopseo)
- In fact, I'm an alien so I can't love you.

Grammar Point #2 - Insisting On A Fact/Assumption Of Agreement - -잖아

The final-sentence ending 잖아 (jana) is used when the speaker is under the assumption or supposition that the listener knows and agrees with what was just said by the speaker.

This construction comes from the negative sentence ending -지 않아 (ji ana). Because of this, this grammatical construction -잖아 can often be translated as "isn't it?" "don't you?" (as rhetorical questions). It can also be translated as "as you know..."

In this form it is in the intimate politeness level. The standard politeness level can be achieved by suffixing the politeness particle -요 (-yo) at the end of the construction.

Tense can be expressed by placing the past tense suffix (았/었/였) before the verb stem and this construction. Negation can only be expressed by the adverb 안, and not by the negative grammatical construction 지 않다 because this construction is a derivation of that grammatical construction.

▷ Construction

Conjugation of verbs are the same for both descriptive and action verbs.
Verb Stem + -잖아
차갑다 (chagapda) - to be cold
차갑 (chagap) - verb stem
차갑 + 잖아 = 차갑잖아 (chagapjanha) - You know it's cold.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(4)선영: 거 봐! 갔잖아!
(4)seonyeong: gwo gwa! gatjana!
(4)Seonyeong: See? You went there!

☞ remember ☜

거 봐 (geo bwa) means "See?" or more literally, "look at it" and it is often along used with -잖아.

♣ More Examples ♣
---
1. 소리가 크잖아. [크다] (sori-ga keujana.)
You know the sound is loud.

2. 그 티셔츠는 작잖아. [작다] (geu tisyeocheu-neun jakjana.)
You know, that t-shirt is small.

3. 나는 돈이 많잖아. (na-neun don-i manchana.)
You know I have a lot of money.

4. 너는 동생이 없잖아.(neo-neun dongsaeng-i eopjana.)
You don't have younger siblings, do you?

5. 거 봐! 춥잖아! (geo bwa! chupjana!)
See? It's cold, isn't it?

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Expression Of Hesitation -ㄹ/을까 말까 (하다)

-ㄹ/을까 말까 (eulkka malkka) is the grammatical structure that expresses hesitation. The former part, 을까 is the self-interrogative form and can be translated as "should I" or "will it", and the latter part, 말까 is the verb 말다(= to not do) in the same form. Therefore 을까 and 말까 together form an expression of hesitation, and it's usually followed by verbs that express thought, discussion, worry, decision, or consideration.

The verbs that are often used along with this grammatical structure are 생각하다(saenggakhada - to think), 고민하다(gominhada - to worry, to think), 결정하다(gyeoljeonghada - to decide), and 하다(hada - to do, to think).

▷ Construction

Verb steb + -ㄹ/을까 말까 + (하다)

가다 (gada - to go)
▶ 가 + -ㄹ까 말까 하다 = 갈까 말까 하다

적다(jeokda - to write down)
▶ 적 + -을까 말까 하다 = 적을까 말까 하다

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Kind of, To Have a Feeling of - ㄴ/은/는 감이 있다

-ㄴ/는 감이 있다 (n/eun gam-i itda) is the grammar structure used to mean that something is "kind of" in a certain state or to express what you "feel" about a object/state/action. 감 (gam) comes from the Chinese character (感), which means feeling, therefore the phrase is translated like "I feel that it is ..." or "I think it's kind of ...".

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -ㄴ/은/는 감이 있다

Ex) 비싸다 (bissada - to be expensive)
- 비싸 + ㄴ 감이 있다
= 비싼 감이 있다 (It is somewhat expensive.)

Ex) 이르다 (ireuda - to be early)
- 이르 + ㄴ 감이 있다
= 이른 감이 있다 (I feel that is is a bit early.)

GRAMMAR

▷ Grammar Point #1 - To Ask Someone To Do Something - -아/어/여 달라고 하다

-아/어/여 달라고 하다 (a/eo/yeo dallago hada) is a grammatical structure that expresses "to ask someone to do something." 달라고 can be changed to 주라고 (jurago) using the verb 주다 (juda – “to give”), but 달라고 is more common. 달라고 cannot be used in its dictionary form on its own and must be used with -고, the particle that expresses a reported speech, to form a sentence. The mood, tense and voice are expressed in the last verb, 하다 (hada). Here, 하다 means “to say,” so it can be replaced with 말하다 (malhada – “to say”), 얘기하다 (yaegihada – “to talk”), 요청하다 (yocheonghada – “to request”) or 요구하다 (yoguhada – “to demand”).

▷ Construction
Verb Stem + -아/어/여 달라고 하다

* If you want to go back and study more about the -아/어/여 conjugation, please check out Beginner Season 1 Lesson 25, or check out the Grammar Bank in the Learning Center.

▷ In This Dialog
(2)아빠: 우리 딸이 가방을 사달라고 해서요.
(2)appa: uri ttal-i gabang-eul sadallago haeseoyo.
(2)Father: My daughter wants me to buy her a bag.

(6)아빠: 딸이 예쁜 가방으로 사달라고 했는데...
(6)appa: ttal-i ippeun gabang-euro sadallago haetneunde...
(6)Father: My daughter wanted a pretty bag...

♣ More Examples ♣
1. 남동생이 자꾸 놀아 달라고 해요. [놀다] (namdongsaeng-i jakku nora dallago haeyo)
- My younger brother keeps asking me to play with him.

2. 엄마 아빠가 성적표 보여 달라고 하셨어요. [보이다] (eomma appa-ga seongjeokpyo boyeo dallago hasyeosseoyo)
- My parents asked me to show them my report card.

3. 민경 씨가 전화해 달라고 했어요. [전화하다] (mingyeong ssi-ga jeonhwahae dallago haesseoyo)
- Mingyeong wants you to call her back.

4. 비한테 안아 달라고 할 거예요. [안다] (bi-hante ana dallago hal geo-yeyo)
- I will ask Rain to hug me.

5. 친구한테 숙제 도와 달라고 했어. [돕다] (chingu-hante sukje dowa dallago haesseo)
- I asked my friend to help me with my homework.

▷ Grammar Point #2 - Selection Particle - -(으)로

-(으)로 (-(eu)ro) is a particle that indicates selection. It serves the same purpose as the object marker in many cases, but since this particle has the original meaning “toward” or “to,” which represent directions, even when it is used as the selection particle, it has a nuance of “leaning toward a choice.” Therefore, -(으)로 has a narrower meaning than -을/를 and cannot always replace -을/를. -(으)로 is used and translated like the object markers -을 and -를, but it specifies the characteristics of the aforementioned topic and shows selection.

▷ Construction
Nouns ending in a vowel + -로

Ex) 피자 + -로 = 피자로

Nouns ending in a consonant + -으로

Ex) 빨간색 + -으로 = 빨간색으로

▷ In This Dialog

(4)아빠: 아... 학생이니까 책가방으로 좀 보여 주세요.
(4)appa: a... haksaeng-inikka chaekgabang-euro jom boyeo juseyo.
(4)Father: Oh... Since she's a student, show me some backpacks.

(6)아빠: 예쁘네요. 딸이 예쁜 가방으로 사달라고 했는데...
(6)appa: yeppeunuyo. ttal-i ippeun gabang-euro sadallago haetneunde...
(6)Father: It's pretty. My daughter wanted a pretty bag...

☞ remember ☜

-(으)로 has several usages, like many other particles in Korean. The following lists the main usages of the particle -(으)로:

1. 방향 (direction)
- ex) 바다(sea) + 로 = 바다로 (to the sea)
- ex) 집(house) + 으로 = 집으로 (to the house)

2. 재료 (material)
- ex) 나무(wood) + 로 = 나무로 (out of wood)
- ex) 금(gold) + 으로 = 금으로 (in gold)

3. 수단 (means)
- ex) 자동차(car) + 로 = 자동차로 (by car)
- ex) 창문(window) + 으로 = 창문으로 (through the window)

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 오늘 저녁은 피자로 먹자. [먹다] (oneul jeonyeok-eun pija-ro meokja)
- Let's have pizza for dinner tonight.

2. 여기에서 제일 맛있는 것으로 주세요. [주다] (yeogi-eseo jeil masitneun geos-euro juseyo)
- Please give me the most delicious one here.

3. 빨간색으로 보여 주세요. [보이다] (ppalgan saek-euro boyeo juseyo)
- Please show me a red one.

4. 더 큰 것으로 가지고 오세요. [가지고 오다] (deo keun geos-euro gajigo oseyo)
- Please bring something bigger.

5. 새 책으로 사세요. [사다] (sae chaek-euro saseyo)
- Please buy a new book.

GRAMMAR

▷ Grammar Point #1 - Instead Of, In Return For - 대신에

대신에 (daesin-e) is the grammatical structure that expresses “instead of” or “in return for” in Korean. Like in English, “instead of” can be used with both nouns and verbs, and when a verb comes before 대신에, the verb is conjugated into the adjective form to modify 대신에.

대신's Chinese characters, 代身, mean “replace + body(person).” Therefore, it's a noun that means “a replacement” or “a substitute.”

▷ Construction

- Nouns + 대신에
- Verbs + ㄴ/은/는 대신에

▷ Nouns + 대신에
Ex) 나 + 대신에 = 나 대신에 (instead of me)
Ex) 이것 + 대신에 = 이것 대신에 (instead of this)

▷ Verbs + -ㄴ/은/는 대신에
Ex) 학교에 가다 + 대신에
= 학교에 가는 대신에 (instead of going to school / in return for going to school)

▷ In This Dialog

(3)아빠: 핸드백 대신에 이거 쓰면 안돼?
(3)appa: haendeubaek daesin-e igeo sseumyeon andwae?
(3)Father: Can't you use this one instead?

(7)아빠: 핸드백 사 주는 대신에 아빠가 맛있는 거 사 줄게.
(7)appa:haendeubaek sa juneun daesin-e appa-ga matitneun geo sa julge.
(7)Father: Daddy will buy you something nice to eat instead.

☞ remember ☜

You can drop 에 and just say “대신,” too.

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 밥 대신 라면 먹었어요. [먹다]
(bap daesin ramyeon meogeosseoyo)
- I ate ramyeon instead of rice.

2. 나 대신 니가 갈래? [가다]
(na daesin ni-ga gallae?)
- Do you want to go in my place?

3. 니 숙제 도와주는 대신, 너는 내 방 청소해. [도와주다, 청소하다]
(ni sukje dowajuneun daesin, neo-neun nae bang cheonsohae)
- I'll help with your homework so, in return, you clean my room.

4. 감자 대신에 고구마를 샀어요. [사다]
(gamja daesin-e goguma-reul sasseoyo)
- I bought sweet potatoes instead of potatoes.

5. 약을 먹는 대신에 잠을 잤어요. [먹다, 자다]

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - While -ing, I Was -ing When - -다가

-다가 (daga) is the grammatical structure that expresses "while -ing" or "I was -ing when." This structure shows what kind of action was previously taking place when the next one happened, and it often has the nuance of the previous action not being completely over yet.

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -다가

Ex) 걷다 (to walk) = 걷 + 다가 = 걷다가 (while walking)
Ex) 자다 (to sleep) = 자 + 다가 = 자다가 (while sleeping)

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - Sometimes Verb A, Sometimes Verb B - -기도 하고 -기도 하다

This grammatical structure expresses multiple actions or states happening at the same time, giving each of the actions/states an equal probability/frequency.This structure can be used to show contrast between an action/state‘s taking place and not taking place, or contrast between two different actions/states. It is traslated into English as “sometimes + verb A, sometimes verb B” or “verb A + B at the same time.”

▷ Construction
Verb stem + -기도 하고 + verb stem + -기도 하다

Ex) 좋다 + 나쁘다
▷▷ 좋기도 하고, 나쁘기도 해요.
(= It's sometimes good, sometimes bad.)
(= It's good and bad at the same time.)

Ex) 하다 x 2
▷▷ 하기도 하고, 안 하기도 해요.
(= Sometimes I do it, sometimes I don't.)

▷ In This Dialog
(4)김씨: 운이... 좋기도 하고, 나쁘기도 해요.
(4)gimssi: un-i... jokido hago, nappeugido haeyo.
(4)Mrs. Kim: Sometimes I’m lucky, sometimes I’m not.

(6)김씨: 반대하기도 하고, 안 하기도 해요.
(6)gimssi: bandaehagido hago, an hagido haeyo.
(6)Mrs. Kim: Sometimes they are, sometimes not.

♣ More Examples ♣

1. 소주를 좋아하기도 하고, 싫어하기도 해요. [좋아하다, 싫어하다] (soju-reul joahagido hago, sireohagido haeyo.)
- I sometimes like soju, and sometimes I hate it.

2. 좋기도 하고 나쁘기도 해요. [좋다, 나쁘다] (jokido hago, nappeugido haeyo.)
- It's good and bad at the same time.

3. 맵기도 하고, 달기도 해요. [맵다, 달다] (maepgido hago, dalgido haeyo.)
- It's spicy and sweet at the same time.

4. 어렵기도 하고, 재미있기도 해요. [어렵다, 재미있다] (eoryeopgido hago, jaemiitgido haeyo)
- It's difficult and interesting at the same time.

5. 그렇기도 하고, 그렇지 않기도 해요. [그렇다] (geureokido hago, geureochi ankido haeyo)
- It is so, but it is not so at the same time.

☞ remember ☜

-기 is basically the nominalized form of a verb, so -기도 하고, -기도 하다 comes from the concept of "do this verb and also do this verb."

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - I Hope/I Wish - -기(를) 바라다

-기(를) 바라다 is the grammatical structure that means "I hope/I wish" and in Korean, the verb 바라다 takes an object (a noun or -기, the nominalized form of verbs) whereas in English one wishes 'for' or hopes 'for' something.

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -기(를) 바라다

Ex)
오다 (oda - to come)
▷ 오(다) + 기를 바라다 = 오기를 바라다
▷ ▷ 오길 바래. = I hope you'll come.

Ex)
낫다 (natda - to get better (from an illness))
▷ 낫(다) + 기를 바라다 = 낫기를 바라다
▷ ▷ 빨리 낫길 바래요. = I hope you'll get better soon.

☞ remember ☜
---
1. -기를 is often contracted to -길.

2. -기를 바라다 is often combined with the structure -ㄹ게(요).
Ex) -기를 바랄게

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - As A Result Of - -는 바람에

-는 바람에 (-neun baram-e) is the grammatical structure that expresses "as a result of + verb". 바람 (baram) originally means 'wind', so -는 바람에 can be literally translated as 'in the wind of + verb", and it has the nuance of "in conjunction with". This structure is usually used when you want to express a reason or a cause of something that happened unexpectedly or against your hope.

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -는 바람에

Ex) 늦다 (neutda) = "to be late"
▷ 늦 + 는 바람에
▷▷ 늦는 바람에 (as a result of being late)

 Verb stems ending in -ㄹ drop the -ㄹ and are followed by -는 바람에
Ex) 졸다 (jolda) "to doze off"
▷ 조 + 는 바람에
▷▷ 조는 바람에 (as a result of dozing off)

☞ remember ☜

There are many other ways of expressing 'reason' in Korean (-(아/어/여)서, -(으)니까, -기 때문에 and etc) but the one that can be most closely interchangeable with -는 바람에 is -(아/어/여)서.

Ex) 늦는 바람에 = 늦어서
Ex) 보는 바람에 = 봐서

▷ In This Dialog

GRAMMAR

Grammar Point #1 - I Wish ... - -았/었/였으면 좋겠다

-았/었/였으면 좋겠다 (ass/eoss/yeoss/eumyeon joketda) is the grammatical structure that expresses a wish or a hope, and just like when the English verb 'to wish' is used, the conjugated structure of the verb in Korean is also usually in the past tense. The form in the present tense, -(으)면 좋겠다 ((eu)myeon joketda) can also be used, but the past tense is more commonly used, especially with the ending part "좋겠다".

▷ Construction

Verb stem + -았/었/였 (the past suffix) + -으면 좋겠다

Ex)
- 오다 (oda - to come)
▷ 오 + -았/었/였
▷ 오 + 았 = 왔
▷ 왔 + 으면 좋겠다 = 왔으면 좋겠다
▷ 왔으면 좋겠어요 = I wish I/you/he/she/we/they would come.

Ex)
- 하다 (hada - to do)
▷ 하 + -았/었/였
▷ 하 + 였 = 했
▷ 했 + 으면 좋겠다 = 했으면 좋겠다
▷ 했으면 좋겠어요 = I wish I/you/he/she/we/they would do it.

▷ In This Dialog
---
(4)의사: 빨리 나았으면 좋겠어요.
(4)euisa: ppalli naasseumyeon jokesseoyo.
(4)Doctor: I hope you get better soon.

(8)의사: 안 하셨으면 좋겠는데요...
(8)euisa: an hasyeosseumyeon joketneundeyo...
(8)Doctor: I wish you wouldn't.

♣ More Examples ♣
---

1. 내일 비가 안 왔으면 좋겠어요. [오다] (naeil bi-ga an wasseumyeon jokesseoyo)
- I wish it wouldn't rain tomorrow.

2. 빨리 내 생일이 돌아왔으면 좋겠어요. [돌아오다] (ppalli nae saengil-i dorawasseumyeon jokesseoyo)
- I wish my birthday came around soon.

3. 니가 담배 끊었으면 좋겠어. [끊다] (ni-ga dambae kkeuneosseumyeon jokesseo)
- I wish you would quit smoking.

4. 내 생각이 틀렸으면 좋겠다. [틀리다] (nae saenggak-i teullyeosseumyeon joketda)
- I wish I was wrong.

5. 꿈이었으면 좋겠다. [이다] (kkum-ieosseumyeon joketda)
- I wish I was dreaming.

☞ remember ☜

When the first part of the sentence is expressed in the present tense (으)면 instead of the past tense, the ending part, 좋을 것 같아요 (joeul geot gatayo) can go along with it most naturally.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

★ 안 하다/못 하다 [an hada/mot hada] "not do"/"can't do"

Despite the difference between 안 [an] "not" and 못 [mot] "can't," we use both 안 and 못 when presenting negative meanings

1. 안 [an] means "not," which is a shortened form of 아니 [ani] "no"/"not." The component 안 is an adverb that comes before a verb.

☞ Formation: 안 [an] "not" + regular verb = [verb] 안 하다 "don't verb"

For Example:

1. 안 하다
   an hada
   "not do"/"don't do"
2. 안 먹다
   an meokda
   "not eat"/"don't eat"
3. 안 보다
   an boda
   "not see or watch"/"don't see or watch"
4. 안 읽다
   an ikda
   "not read"/"don't read"
5. 난 그거 안 할거야.
   Nan geugeo an halgeoya.
   "I will not do that."
6. 나 그거 안 먹어.
   Na geugeo an meogeo.
   "I do not eat that."

2. 못 [mot] means "can't," which is also an adverb that comes before a verb.

☞ Formation: 못 [mot] "can't" + regular verb = [verb] 못 하다 "can't verb"

For Example:

1. 못 하다 mot hada
   "can't do"
2. 못 먹다 mot meokda
   "can't eat"
3. 못 보다
   mot boda
   "can't see"/"can't watch"
4. 못 읽다 mot ikda
   "can't read"
5. 난 그거 못 해.
   Nan geugeo mot hae.
   "I can't do that."
6. 나 그거 못 먹어.
   Na geugeo mot meogeo.
   "I can't eat that."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is to Express "Cannot Be"/"Must Not Be"/"There Is No Reason Why..."
그럴 리가 없는데...
Geureol liga eomneunde...
"That can't be..."

"It can't be..."/"It must not be..."/"There is no reason why..." -ㄹ/을 리가 없다

-ㄹ/을 리가 없다 [-r/eul liga eodda], meaning "it can't be," "there is no reason why...," and "it's impossible that..." expresses a possibility that is impossible to believe in.
We use this pattern to show disbelief, doubt, or confusion.

* Note: -ㄹ/을 리가 있겠어? [-r/eul liga ikesseo?] "Can it be possible?" is an expression that also means -ㄹ/을 리가 없다 "It can't be..."

- When we use it in a declarative form, we use it in the negative form.
- When we use it in an interrogative (question) form, we use it in the affirmative form.

☞ Conjugation Rule

Rule #1: We attach ㄹ 리가 없다 to verbs ending in a vowel (without a 받침).
Rule #2: We attach 을 리가 없다 to verbs ending in a consonant (with a 받침).

Rule #1: Adjective/Verb Stem + ㄹ 리가 없다: If the verb stem ends in a vowel (without a 받침) or if the adjective or the verb stem ends with a ㄹ 받침
* 받침 = a "final" (consonant or consonant cluster) on the end of a Korean orthographic syllable.

For Example:

Verb with Stem Ending in a Vowel	Verb Stem + ㄹ 리가 없다	Becomes...	Translation...
하다 "to do"	하 + ㄹ 리가 없다	할 리가 없다	"can't be doing..."
가다 "to go"	가 + ㄹ 리가 없다	갈 리가 없다	"can't be going..."

Rule #2: Adjective/Verb Stem + 을 리가 없다: If the verb stem ends in a consonant (with a 받침).

For Example:

Verb with Stem Ending in a Consonant	Verb Stem + 을 리가 없다	Becomes...	Translation...
늦다 "to be late"	늦 + 을 리가 없다	늦을 리가 없다	"can't be late..."
먹다 "to eat"	먹 + 을 리가 없다	먹을 리가 없다	"can't be eating..."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 자장면 (jajangmyeon) and 짬뽕 (jjambbong)

About 자장면
자장면 (jajangmyeon, commonly called jjajangmyeon), meaning "Korean Black Noodle," is a popular Koreanized dish derived from Chinese food. It consists of wheat noodles topped with a thick sauce made of chunjang (hangul: 춘장; Chinese: 春醬), which is "a salty black soybean paste," diced meat and vegetables, and sometimes also seafood. 자장 (jajang), the name of the sauce, is the Korean pronunciation of the Chinese characters 炸醬, which literally means "fried sauce." Moreover, 면 (myeon) means "noodle"; therefore, 자장면 is "black noodle" in Korea. With about one hundred years of history, 자장면 is called one of the national foods of South Korea. In fact, it has been by far the most popular delivery food in Korea, and almost every Chinese restaurant in Korea has 자장면 on its menu. What's more? More than six million servings of 자장면 are sold in South Korea per day. It normally costs about $5.00 (US) per dish.

For Example:

1. 여기 자장면 주세요...
   Yeogi jajangmyeon juseyo...
   "Please give me Korean Black Noodle here..."
2. 자장면 한 그릇에 얼마지요?
   Jajangmyeon han geureuse eolmajiyo?
   "How much is (one serving of) Korean Black Noodle?"
   * Note: 한 그릇 = 한 "one" + 그릇 "serving"/"dish" = 한 그릇 "one serving"/"one dish"

About 짬뽕
짬뽕 (jjambbong) is a Japanese noodle dish with origins from China. It is made by frying pork, seafood, and vegetables with lard; we also add a soup made with chicken and pig bones. The word 짬뽕 (jjambbong) is a slang term that means "mix-up" in Korean. Just like 자장면, 짬뽕 is a one of the most popular Koreanized Chinese foods in Korea. Just be aware that 짬뽕 is spicy. It also costs about $5.00 (US) per dish.

For Example:

1. 와~~ 짬뽕 진짜 맵다!
   Wa~~ jjamppong jinjja maepdda!
   "Wow~~ Jjamppong is really spicy!"
2. 우리 짬뽕 먹으러 갈까?
   Wuri jjamppong meogeureo galkka?
   "Shall we go to eat Jjambbong?"

2. (3번) 이나 ((se-beon) ina), meaning "as many as (three times)"

(이)나 [(i)na] is a word that expresses emphasis that is much more than expected, meaning "as much as" or "as many as."

If the ending sound of the noun/counting unit is a consonant, use 이나 (ina).
If the ending sound of the noun/counting unit is a vowel, use 나 (na).

Formation: Pure Korean Numbers + Counting units + 이나 (i-na), meaning "as much as" or "as many as"

For Example:

1. 두 시간이나 기다렸는데...
   Du sigan-i-na gidaryeot-neunde...
   "(We've been) waiting for as long as two hours..."

2. 3번이나 불렀는데 모르니?
   Sebeon-ina bul-reotneunde moreuni?
   "How didn't you notice me even if I called your name as many as three times?"

3. 앗싸! (at-ssa!) "Hooray!"

앗싸 (at-ssa!) "hooray" is an expression that Korean people say when they feel lucky, fantastic, awesome, etc.

For Example:

1. (when receiving some amount of unexpected money)
   앗싸~ 고마워!
   At-ssa~ gomawo!
   "Hooray, thank you!"

2. (when receiving some special treats)
   앗싸~ 기분 최고!
   At-ssa~ gi-bun choego!
   "Hooray, awesome feeling!"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is -하든지 말든지, Which Means "Whether Or Not You Do It").
너가 다 먹든지 말든지 맘대로 해!
Neoga da meokdeunji maldeunji mamdaero hae!
"Whether or not you eat all of it, it's up to you!"

For Giving Alternatives: A든지 B든지 "either A or B..." or "whether A or B..."

-든 (-deun) is a shortened form of -든지 (-deunji), meaning "either A or B" or "whether A or B."

We use -든(지) when expressing a choice of anything between two (or more) things, which indicates that the speaker would not mind any of those (two or more) taking place. Moreover, we often repeat -든(지) in Korean sentences such as 가든지 말든지, which means "whether or not going"; 읽든지 말든지, which means "whether or not reading it"; 먹든지 안 먹든지, which means "whether or not you eat"; etc.

Two of the Most Common Uses of -(이)든/-(이)든지

---

1. A(noun) + (이)든/(이)든지 B(noun) + (이)든/(이)든지: "either A or B" - A(이)든 B(이)든

Rule #1: We attach -든(지) to nouns ending in a vowel.
Rule #2: We attach -이든(지) to nouns ending in a consonant.

Rule #1: Nouns Ending in a Vowel	Noun + -든(지)	Becomes...	"English"
너 ("you") and 나 ("I")	너+든(지) 나+든(지)	너든 나든/ 너든지 나든지	"either you or I (me)"
커피("coffee") and 과자 ("a snack")	커피+든(지) 과자+든(지)	커피든 과자든/ 커피든지 과자든지	"either coffee or a snack"

Rule #2: Nouns Ending in a Consonant	Noun + -이든(지)	Becomes...	"English"
물 ("water") and 빵 ("bread")	물+이든(지) 빵이든(지)	물이든 빵이든/ 물이든지 빵이든지	"either water or bread"
남자 아이(아들) ("a boy (a son)") and 여자 아이(딸) ("a girl (a daughter)")	아들+이든(지) 딸+이든(지)	아들이든 딸이든/ 아들이든지 딸이든지	"either a boy or a girl"

For Example:

1. 커피든 물이든 아무것이나 주세요.
   Keopideun murideun amugeona juseyo.
   "Either coffee or water, please give me anything."
2. 빵이든지 과자든지 난 상관 안 합니다.
   Ppang-i-deunji Gwajadeunji nan sangkwan an hamnida.
   "Either bread or a snack, I don't care."
3. 아들이든 딸이든 상관없습니다.
   Adeurideun ttarideun sangkwan-eopseumnida.
   "Either a boy or a girl, I wouldn't care."

2. Verbs (verb stem) + 든(지) 말든(지): "whether or not A(verb)" - A든(지) 말든(지)

Rule: We attach든 말든/든지 말든지to a verb stem.

Verbs	Verb Stem + 든 말든/든지 말든지	Becomes...	"English"
마시다 ("to drink")	마시 + 든(지) 말든(지)	마시든 말든/마시든지 말든지	"whether or not you drink it"
먹다 ("to eat")	먹 + 든(지) 말든(지)	먹든 말든/ 먹든지 말든지	"whether or not you eat"
가다 ("to go")	가 + 든(지) 말든(지)	가든 말든/ 가든지 말든지	"whether or not you go"

For Example:

1. 너가 커피를 마시든 말든, 난 상관안해.
   Neoga keopi-reul masideun maldeun nan sangkwan-anhae.
   "Whether or not you drink coffee, I don't care."
2. 당신이 빵을 먹든지 말든지, 그건 내 일이 아닙니다.
   Dangshini ppang-eul meokdeunji maldeunji geugeon nae iri animnida.
   "Whether or not you eat bread, that's not my business."
3. 집에 가든지 학교에 가든지 해.
   Jibe gadeunji hakgyo-e gadeunji hae.
   "(You) should, whether going (back) home or heading (back) to school."

NOTE: The usage of -던 (deon)/-던지 (deonji), meaning "a past cause": We often use it with 얼마나 (eolmana), which means "how" in a sentence.

Formation: Verb stem + 든 말든/든지 말든지 "whether or not A" or "whether A or B"
Formation: Verb (verb stem) + 던지

For Example:

1. 얼마나 열심히 하던지 내가 불러도 모르던데...
   Eolmana yeolsimi hadeonji naega bulreodo moreudeonde...
   "You worked so hard that you didn't even hear me call you..."

Examples from This Dialogue:

1. 우리 팀이 오든 말든 먼저 먹자.
   Uri Timi odeun maldeun meonjeo meokja.
   "Whether or not Tim comes, let's go ahead and eat first."
2. 무슨 일이 있든지 없든지...난 신경 끌래.
   Museun iri itdeunji eopdeunji...Nan sin-gyeong kkeulrae.
   "Whether or not something has happened...I don't want to think about it."
3. 너가 다 먹든지 말든지 맘대로 해!
   Neoga da meokdeunji maldeunji mamdaero hae!
   "Whether or not you eat all of it, it's up to you!"
4. 얼마나 열심히 생각하던지 3번이나 불렀는데 모르니?
   Eolmana yeolsimi saeng-gakhadeonji sebeonina bulreotneunde moreuni?
   "You're so deep in thought that you didn't even hear me call your name three times?"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

자장면과 짬뽕

자장면 (Jajangmyeon) (commonly called jjajangmyeon) is a popular Korean dish. 자장면 uses thick noodles made from white wheat flour. The noodles, which are made entirely by hand and not by machines, are called 수타면 (sutamyeon) and are praised in South Korea as an essential ingredient of good 자장면. Moreover, the sauce is made with black bean paste.
Variations of the 자장면 dish include 간자장면 (ganjajangmyeon), which is 자장면 served with the 자장 sauce without the starch, with the sauce and noodles being served separately in different bowls, and 삼선자장면 (samseon jajangmyeon), which incorporates seafood such as squid, shrimp, sea cucumber, and others (but never fish). 삼선간자장면 (Samseon ganjajangmyeon) consists of noodles served with sauce, which contains seafood on the side.

짬뽕

A Korean dish called 짬뽕 (jjambbong) tends to be the most spicy. In the late nineteenth century and early twentieth century, many Chinese emigrated to Japan and Korea. There was a regular sea route between Nagasaki and 제물포 (Jemulpo) via 부산 (Busan). Many of the Chinese immigrants opened restaurants and created new versions of their home food. In Korea, it became spicier by using red pepper, chili oil, and doubanjiang (Chinese red pepper paste). Today, it is a popular Koreanized Chinese dish that is common in Korea and even in Korean neighborhoods around the world. By the way, In Korea, 짬뽕 (jjambbong) is a slang term that means "mix-up."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. Nouns (people or things) + 하고 씨름하다 [hago ssireumhada] It literally means, "to wrestle with [nouns]".
It often means, "to tackle [nouns]", "to grapple with [nouns]", "to deal with [nouns]"

- 씨름 [ssireum] is a noun, "wrestling"
- 씨름하다 [ssireumhada] is a verb, "to wrestle"
Therefore, 명사 "noun" + 와/과/하고 [wa/kwa/hago] "with" 씨름하다 "to wrestle" = [NOUN]와/과/하고 씨름하다.

For Example:

1. 어려운 문제와 씨름하다.
   Eo-ryeo-un munjewa ssireumhada.
   "Tackle a difficult problem".
2. 차와 씨름하다.
   Chawa ssireumhada.
   "Deal with a car problem (that is broken / that has a problem)".

2. 귀가 간지럽다 [guiga ganjireopdda] "Ears are itchy."
This Korean expression, 귀가 간지럽다 [gwuiga ganjireopda], is often said when somebody is "saying something bad about someone".

- 귀 [gui] "ears"
- 간지럽다 [ganjireopda] "to itch" - "is itching"
- 귀가 간지럽다 [guiga ganjireopda] "My ears are itchy." has TWO meanings,
One is - (the literal meaning) "My ears are itchy."
The other one is - (common expression) "My ears are itchy because it seems like somebody is saying something bad about me."

For Example:

1. 누군가가 지금 내 욕하나봐, 귀가 자꾸 간지럽네...
   Nu-gun-ga-ga jigeum nae yokanabwa, guiga jakku ganjireopne...
   "It seems like somebody is saying something bad about me. My ears are itchy..."
2. 팀: 귀가 왜 이리 간지럽지!?
   Tim: Guiga wae i-li ganjireopji!?
   "Tim: Why are my ears so itchy!?"
   데비: 내가 지금 너 욕하는 중이거든...
   Debi: Naega jigeum neo yokhaneun jung-i-geo-deun...
   "Debbie: (Because) I am saying something bad about you right now..."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is -(하)느라고, Meaning "to Try to Go about Doing Something and Be Interrupted."
차하고 씨름 좀 하느라고...
Chahago ssireum jom haneurago...
"I was dealing with car problems..."

For Giving an Explanation of a Cause: -(하)느라고 "(I couldn't do it/couldn't make it because) I was busy doing something/being interrupted by something."

We use the common expression -(하)느라고 ((ha)neu-ra-go) when we are "trying to go about doing something but are being interrupted."

We often use this Verb Stem + 느라고 construction when trying to explain the cause of an action, an outcome, or a situation that is unexpected.

Formation

Verb Stem + 느라고 (neu-ra-go), meaning "I was busy doing something..."

Verbs	Verb Stem + 느라고	Becomes...	"English"
1. 하다 "to do"	하 + 느라고	하느라고...	"I was busy doing something"
2. 참다 "to be patient"/"to control"	참 + 느라고	참느라고...	"I was busy being patient/controlling"
3. 기다리다 "to wait"	기다리 + 느라고	기다리느라고...	"I was busy waiting"
4. 먹다 "to eat"	먹 + 느라고	먹느라고...	"I was busy eating"
5. 공부하다 "to study"	공부하 + 느라고	공부하느라고...	"I was busy studying"
6. 밀다 "to push"	밀 => 미 + 느라고	미느라고...	"I was busy pushing"
7. 놀다 "to play"	놀 => 노 + 느라고	노느라고...	"I was busy playing"

* Note: If the verb stem has ㄹ 받침, remove ㄹ 받침 and attach 느라고.

Sample Sentences

1. 하다, meaning "to do," (하 + 느라고)
   뭐 좀 하느라고 늦었어, 미안...
   Mwo jom haneurago neu-jeot-sseo, mian...

Some Korean Ear-Related Expressions

귀가 간지럽다, meaning "my ears are burning"
It's an expression that we commonly use in Korean, describing "my ears are burning" in English. Korean people often say 귀가 왜 이렇게 간지럽지? (gwiga wae ireoke ganjireopji?), which means "How come my ears are burning?" and 누가 내 욕하나? (Nu-ga nae yokana?) "Is someone backbiting me now?"
In the old Korean saying, "the left side of the ear would be burning if somebody speaks ill of me," 남이 욕하면 왼쪽 귀가 가렵고 (nami yokamyeon owenjjok geiga garyeopko), and "the right side of the ear would be burning if somebody speaks well of me," 칭찬하면 오른쪽 귀가 가렵다 (ching-chan-hamyeon oreunjjok gwiga garyeopda).
Here are the expression's parts:

남이 욕하면 (Nam-i yok-ka-myeon) means "if someone speaks ill of me"
왼쪽 귀가 (owen-jjok gwiga) means "the left side of the ear"
가렵고 (ga-ryeop-ko) means "is burning"
남이 욕하면 왼쪽 귀가 가렵고 means "the left side of the ear would be burning if somebody speaks ill of me"
남이 칭찬하면 (Nami ching-chanhamyeon) means "if somebody speaks well of me"
오른쪽 귀가 (o-reun-jjok gwi-ga) means "the right side of the ear"
가렵다 (ga-ryeop-da) means "is burning"
칭찬하면 오른쪽 귀가 가렵다 means "the right side of the ear would be burning if somebody speaks well of me"

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

1. 가다 [gada], meaning "to go," vs. 오다 [oda], meaning "to come"
Two of the verbs we use most commonly are 가다, meaning "to go," and 오다 , meaning "to come."

Verbs	Verb Stem	Past (+ㅆ(었/았)다)	Progressive Present (Verb Stem + 고 있다)	Future (Verb Stem + ㄹ 것이다)
가다 "to go"	가 + 다	가 + ㅆ(었)다 → 갔(었)다 "went"	가 + 고 있다 → 가고 있다 "is/are going"	가 + ㄹ거야 → 갈 것이다 "will go"
오다 "to come"	오 + 다	오 + ㅆ(었)다 → 왔(었)다 "came"	오 + 고 있다 → 오고 있다 "is/are coming"	오 + ㄹ거야 → 올 것이다 "will come"

For Example:

1. 팀은 어제 회사에 갔었다.
   Tim-eun eoje hoesa-e gatsseotda.
   "Tim went to the office yesterday."
2. 데비는 지금 오고 있다.
   Debi-neun jigeum ogo itda.
   "Debbie is coming now."
3. 나는 집에 갈 것이다.
   Naneun jibe gal geosida.
   "I will go back home!"
4. 나 내일 여기 다시 올 거야!
   Na nae-il yeogi dasi ol geoya!
   "I will come back here again tomorrow!"

2. 중독 [jung-dok], meaning "an addict"/"addiction"

Korean people often use the word 중독 (jung-dok) whenever mentioning that they are "extremely" addicted to something or someone.

☞ 중독 (jung-dok) is a noun meaning "an addict" or "an addiction"
☞ 중독된 (jung-dok-doen) is an adjective meaning "addictive"
☞ 중독되다 (jung-dok-doeda) is a verb meaning "to become/get addicted"

For Example:

1. 카페인 중독
   Kapein jung-dok
   "A caffeine addict"
2. 그는 카페인에 중독되었다.
   Geu-neun kapein-e jungdokdoe-eotdda.
   "He became/got addicted to caffeine."

3. (전화)를 끊다 [(jeonhwa)reul kkeunta] , meaning "to hang up the phone"
When Korean people say "hang up the phone," they use the verb 끊다 (kkeunta), meaning "to cut off."

☞ 전화 (jeon-hwa) "a phone," "a telephone," "a call"
☞ 끊다 (kkeunta) "to cut off," "to switch off," "to hang up," "to get off"
☞ 전화를 끊다 (jeonhwa-reul kkeunta) "to hang up the phone"

For Example:

1. 그럼, 이제 그만 전화를 끊겠습니다.
   Geu-reom, ije geu-man jeonhwareul kkeunket-seumnida.
   "Then I'll hang up the phone now."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson Is about Verb Stem + (으)ㄹ 테니까 "I will [verb]..., so..."
내가 빨리 갈 테니까 조금만 기다리고 있어.
Naega ppal-ri gal tenikka jogeum-man gidarigo itseo.
I'll be there soon, so just wait a bit.

This Korean construction tells why a speaker actually did (didn't), does (doesn't), or will do (won't do) so:
Verb Stem + (으)ㄹ 테니까 "will be ..., so ..."

There are two usages of the expression, -(으)ㄹ 테니까, "I will [verb]..., so...":
1. It is often used / spoken in order to indicate "a will (an intention)" when it is used with the subject "I".
2. It is often used / spoken in order to indicate "future actions/outcomes" that will PROBABLY occur when the subject is someone other than "I".

First, let's learn about its conjugation rule and then take a look at some examples of those two usages.

Conjugation Rule

Rule #1: Verb Stem + ㄹ 테니까: If there is no 받침 (ending in a vowel) or if the adjective or verb stem ends with a ㄹ 받침

Rule #2: Verb Stem + 을 테니까 - If there is a 받침 (ending in a consonant) at the end of the adjective or verb stem

(Rule #1) without a 받침 (ending in a vowel)	Verb Stem + ㄹ 테니까	Becomes...	"English"
1. 도와주다 [dowajuda] "to help / to assist"	도와주 + ㄹ 테니까	도와줄 테니까	"I will help, so..."
2. 가다 [gada] "to go"	가 + ㄹ 테니까	갈 테니까	"I will go, so..."
3. 오다 [oda] "to come"	오 + ㄹ 테니까	올 테니까	"I will come, so..."
4. 놀다 [nolda] "to play"	놀 → 노 + ㄹ 테니까	놀 테니까	"I will play, so..."

(Rule #2) with a 받침 (ending in a consonant)	Verb Stem + 을 테니까	Becomes...	Translation...
5. 먹다 [meokda] "to eat"	먹 + 을 테니까	먹을 테니까	"I will eat, so..."
6. 넣다 [neo-ta] "to put / to pour"	넣 + 을 테니까	넣을 테니까	"I will pour (it in), so..."

Two usages of S/V + (으)ㄹ 테니까

1. Verb Stem + (으) ㄹ 테니까 indicates "a will / an intention" when we use it with "I"
It means "will" when the speaker, "I", is talking about the speaker's own action because the speaker, "I" is sure of it.

For Example:

1. 내가 다 도와 줄 테니까 아무것도 걱정 안 해도 돼. [도와주다 "to help" → 도와줄 테니까 "I will help (you), so..."]
Naega da dowajul tenikka a-mugeotdo geokjeong-anhaedo doe.
"I will help you, so you don't have to worry about anything."

2. 내가 갈 테니까 기다려. [가다 "to go" → 갈 테니까 "I will go, so..."]
Naega gal tenikka gidaryeo.
"I will be there, so wait (for me)."

3. 내가 (다) 먹을 테니까 많이 시켜도 돼. [먹다 "to eat"→ 먹을 테니까 "I will eat, so..."]
Naega (da) meok-eul tenikka mani si-kyeodo doe.
"I will eat everything, so you can order a lot (of food)."

2. Verb Stem + (으) ㄹ 테니까 indicates "a prediction," "a factor," "a presumption," or "a guess" when the subject is someone (or something) other than "I."
It means "probably" because the sentence is talking about other people's actions; so it's more of a "guess/presumption."

For Example:

1. 조만간 비가 올 테니까 우산 가지고 와야해. [(비가) 오다"to come"→ 올 테니까 "The rain is probably coming, so..."]
Jo-man-gan biga ol tenikka u-san gajigo wa-yaha.
"It's probably going to rain soon, so you should bring an umbrella with you."

2. 아이가 놀 테니까 자리를 비켜주자. [놀다"to play"→ 놀 테니까 "The child is probably going to play (here), so..."]
Ai-ga nol tenikka jarireul bikyeojuja.
"The child is probably going to play (here), so let's move out of the way."

3. 곧 기름을 다 넣을 테니까 갈 준비를 하자. [넣다 "to put"→ 넣을 테니까 "He/she is probably filling up the gas tank, so..."]
Got gireum-eul da neoeul tenikka gal junbireul haja.
"The car is probably filled up with gas sooner or later, so let's get ready to go."

Examples From This Dialogue:

---

1. 너한테 갈 테니까 기다리고 있어.
Neohante gal tenikka gidarigo itseo.
"I will be there soon, so wait for me."

2. 편의점에서 기다릴 테니까 거기서 만날까?
Pyeon-uijeom-eseo gidaril tenikka geogiseo man-nalkka?
"I will be waiting for you at the convenience store, so should we meet there?"

3. 내가 빨리 갈 테니까 조금만 기다리고 있어.
Naega ppal-li gal tenikka jogeum-man gidarigo itseo.
"I will be there as soon as possible, so just wait a bit (for me)."

4. 길이 미끄러울 테니까 운전 조심하고!
Giri mikkeureo-ultenikka unjeon josimhago!
"The roads are probably slippery, so be careful!"

5. 이만 전화 끊을 테니까 어서 오세요.
Iman jeonhwa kkeun-neul tenikka eoseo oseyo.

"I’m hanging up (the phone) now, so please come."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

★ Counting Units - 그릇[geu-reut]:"a bowl", 병[byeong]:"a bottle"
These counting units, 그릇 "a bowl" and 병 "a bottle", are followed by 'Native(Pure) Korean Numbers'.

☞ Formation: Native (Pure) Korean Number + Counting Unit (그릇 or 병)

Counting	Native (Pure) Korean	Native Korean Number + Counting	English

Units	Number	Unit	Translation
그릇 "a bowl"	셋[set]:"three"	셋 "three" + 그릇 "a bowl" = 세 그릇[se geureot]	"three bowls of..."
병 "a bottle"	다섯[daseot]:"five"	다섯 "five" + 병 "a bottle" = 다섯 병[daseot geureut]	"five bottles of..."

Note: from 1 to 4, 하나[hana] → 한[han] "1", 둘[dul] → 두[du] "2", 셋[set] → 세[se] "3", and 넷[net] → 네[ne] "4"

For Example:

1. 자장면 두 그릇 주세요.
   Jajangmyeon du geu-reut juseyo.
   "Please give me two bowls of black bean noodles."
2. 콜라 한 병도 주세요.
   Col-ra han byeongdo juseyo.
   "Please give me a bottle of Coke as well."

★ -ㄹ(을) 때까지 [-l (eul) ttaekkaji]: "until"
This phrase, -ㄹ(을) 때까지, can be translated as "Until + Subject + Verb" or "Until + Verb-ing"

☞ Formation: Verb Stem + -ㄹ(을) 때까지 "until Subject Verb"

Verb Stem with ending in a vowel (without a 받침)	Verb Stem + ㄹ 때까지	Becomes...	Translation
자다 [jada] "to sleep" (자 + 다)	자 +ㄹ 때까지	잘 때까지 [jal ttaekkaji]	"until (subject) is sleeping... / until (subject) sleeps..."

ENGLISH

1. (at the restaurant)

2. Tim : I'm so sorry for being late! What! You ate everything by yourself—four bowls of black bean noodles and two bowls of spicy seafood noodles?

3. Cheol-su : One was an extra large bowl, and don't change the subject! This is not how you treat a friend! I've been waiting for (as long as) four hours.

4. Tim : I have nothing to say to you as your best friend. I'm sorry!

5. Cheol-su : Right? As your friend, the least you could have done was given me a call. The only way I could wait for so long was by eating. (Sobs).

6. Tim : I know. Four bowls of black bean noodles and two bowls of spicy seafood noodles.

7. Cheol-Su : One was an extra large bowl!

8. Tim : I see.one was an extra large bowl. What can I do to make you feel better?

9. Cheol-Su : By paying for everything—four bowls of black bean noodles, two bowls of spicy seafood noodles, and three bottles of beer.
