VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

счёт, "an account."

The most common collocations with this word would be открыть счёт ("to open an account") and заккрыть счёт ("to close an account"). Also, these are the most common two types of accounts - сберегательный счёт ("savings account") and расчётный счёт ("checking or transactional account").

заграничный. "the one from abroad," or "international."

With passport, заграничный паспорт.

пребывание ("stay") and жительство ("residency").

Both those words are pretty formal; you wouldn't say я пребываю в России just as you say in English "I stay in Russia." You will mostly see these words in documentation and definitely when you deal with registration and status adjustment in Russia.

Most often they are used in the phrases место пребывания ("place of temporary stay") and место жительства ("place of residence"). In the dialogue, however, we heard these phrases in more complicated interpretations...

They were used with the word for "registration." And I would say it's better just to remember them as they are, because neither the grammar nor the words are really used in any other situations.

-регистрация по месту пребывания ("temporary registration" [lit. "registration at the place of temporary stay"]).

-регистрация по месту жительства ("permanent registration" [lit. "registration at the place of residency"]).

За рубежом literally means "behind the border" and can be translated just as "abroad" or "overseas." It's pretty much the same as за границей.

рассчитывать "to count on," and just as in English, it's used with the preposition на ("on").
For example, рассчитывать на помощь ("to count on help").

Note that a noun that goes after the phrase рассчитывать на must be used in the accusative case.

предоставить, or "to provide, to give," must also be used with the nouns in the accusative. For example, предоставить возможность ("to give, grant an opportunity" and предоставить информацию ("to provide information").

дебетовая карта.

It's not hard to guess that it means a debit card, just adjusted to the Russian grammar. Both words are feminine - дебетовая карта. The same works for a credit card; take this English phrase and apply feminine gender to it - кредитная карта.

And the last words we have are минимальный and депозит.

Минимальный is an adjective and means "minimum." We can see this word in many collocations- минимальный срок ("minimum period of time"), минимальная заработная плата ("minimum salary") and минимальный депозит- "minimum deposit."

Unlike in English, the word "deposit" can't be used as a verb. To say "to deposit," you would say положить на депозит, which would literally mean "to put on deposit."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Grammar Cases как иностранцу (как туристу)

"...as a foreigner..."

For this lesson's grammar part we'll take a phrase from our lesson and it will be our tool in reviewing the most essential part of Russian grammar - the grammar cases.

We will run it through all six, which will also show you how by changing just one letter at the ending of a noun we can change the whole meaning of the phrase.

As we know, как is a word for "how" in Russian. By adding a noun to it in an appropriate grammar case we can get the following phrases:

1. как иностранец, как иностранка ("as a foreigner" - nominative case).

For Example:

1. Как иностранец, я должен зарегистрироваться в Москве в течении трёх дней.
"As a foreigner, I have to register in Moscow within three days."

2. Как у иностранца, как у иностранки ("as a foreigner" - genitive case, indicates possession).

For Example:

1. У него, как у иностранца, всегда есть с собой словарь.
"As a foreigner, he always has a dictionary with him."

3. Как иностранцу, как иностранке ("as to a foreigner" - dative case - indicates a person or a thing to which something is given, a recipient. Better understood in English when translated with the prepositions "to," "for." Dative case is also used with the words нужно and можно).

For Example:

1. Мне, как иностранцу, нужна виза для въезда в Россию.
"As a foreigner, I need a visa to enter Russia."

4. как иностранца, как иностранку ("as a foreigner" - accusative case - indicates to whom or to what the action is done).

For Example:

1. Меня, как иностранца, определили в другое общежитие.
"As a foreigner, I was placed into another dormitory."

5. Как иностранцем, как иностранкой ("as a foreigner" - instrumental case - indicates by who or by what the action is done).

For Example:

1. Идея этой исторической книги на русском языке была не понята им, как иностранцем.
"He, as a foregner, didn't understand the plot of this historical book in Russian".

6. Как о/на иностранце, как о/на иностранке ("as about/on a foreigner" - prepositional case - used with prepositions о, на, and в).

For Example:

1. О нём, как об иностранце, много говорили.
"As a foreigner, he was talked about a lot."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Bank system in Russia

The bank system in Russia is developing fast and includes state and private banks. The most famous banks are Sberbank, Vneshekonombank, VTB and Bank Moskvу. The most popular services are consumer loans, mortgage loans and deposits. The interest rates for deposits are high compared to other countries (up to ten percent) but so are loans' interest rates- between ten and twenty-five percent. The business hours are between 9:00 and 19:00 with many banks open on Saturdays from 9:00 to 15:00. Many people pay their bills directly in the banks so usually banks are very crowded. To join a queue you need to ask out loud who is the last (Kto posledniy?) and then try not to lose this person.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Как можно...

This phrase can be translated as, "as...as possible." Unlike in English, where you put a simple adjective or adverb in between the two "as," the Russian phrase КАК МОЖНО... requires adjectives in their comparative forms (i.e. faster, larger, etc).

To form a comparative form of a Russian adjective, all you have to do is:

1. Drop the ending from a normal adjective.
2. Add "-e" or "-ee" instead.

For Example:

1. быстрый
"fast"

-drop the ending (ый) = быстр...

-add "-ee" = быстрее ("faster")

Here are the examples of the phrases we can form:

1. как можно труднее
"as difficult as possible"
2. как можно холоднее
"as cold as possible"
3. как можно легче
"as easy as possible" (in this case we added one "-e")

Just like in English, there are words that undergo total modification when put into a comparative form.

For Example:

1. хорошо - лучше
"good" - "better"

2. плохо-хуже
"bad" - "worse"

3. много - больше
"much" - "more"

4. мало - меньше
"little" - "less"

Example Phrases:

1. как можно лучше
"as good as possible"

2. как можно хуже
"as bad as possible"

3. как можно больше
"as much as possible"

4. как можно меньше
"as little as possible"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Speaking about Your Health

У меня болит живот, раскалывается голова, и меня ужасно тошнит...
"I have a stomachache, a splitting headache, and I feel terribly sick..."

Health conditions, as well as a person's mood, state of mind, or physical senses and feelings, are described with the help of nouns and pronouns mainly in three cases:

1. Dative - мне плохо (Саше хорошо)
2. Genitive - у меня кашель (у Саши температура)
3. Accusative - меня тошнит (Сашу знобит)

There are certain clues you can use to identify what case to put your noun/pronoun in when talking about the conditions.

1. If the condition is an adverb (ends in "-о"), you use them with the noun/pronoun in the dative case.

For Example:

1. Мне холодно
"I am cold." (Literally, "To me it's cold.")
2. Ему жарко
"He is hot." (Literally, "To him it's hot.")
3. Ей грустно
"She is sad."
4. Нам весело
"We are having fun." (Literally, "To us it's fun.")
5. Оле тяжело
"It's hard for Olya."

6. Александр легко
"It's easy for Alexander."

2. If the condition is a noun (or a verb with a noun, usually with the verb болеть ("to hurt")), you should use it with the genitive case because it indicates possession of this noun.

For Example:

1. У меня кашель
"I have a cough."
2. У него насморк
"He has a runny nose."
3. У неё болит голова
"She has a headache."
4. У нас температура
"We have a fever."
5. У Оли болит живот
"Olya has a stomachache."
6. У Александра болит спина
"Alexander's back is sore."

3. If the condition is a verb, we usually use it with the nouns/pronouns in the accusative case.

For Example:

1. Меня тошнит
"I feel sick." (Literally, "It sickens me.")
2. Его знобит
"He feels feverish, he is shivering." (Literally, "It shivers him.")
3. Её рвёт
"She is vomiting" (Literally, "It vomits her.")

Не..., а... ("Not...but...") Conjunction *а

This conjunction can have several meanings in Russian. In the previous seasons we learned it in the connecting meaning, which could be translated as "and" into English.

For Example:

1. Я приду в 8, а Лена - в 9.
"I will come at 8, and Lena will come at 9."

It is also used to ask counter questions or make smooth transitions in a conversation.

For Example:

1. -Ты любишь теннис? ("Do you like tennis?")
-Да, а ты? ("Yes, and you?")

2. -Это твой телефон? ("Is this your phone?")
-Да. ("Yes.")
-А какой это бренд? ("And) what brand is it?")

But a in Russian can also have a meaning of "but" to either contrast the information or show the contradiction ("not...but...").

For Example:

1. Авокадо - не овощ, а фрукт.
"Avocado is not a vegetable, but a fruit."
2. Это не твои деньги, а мои.
"This is not your money, but mine."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Drugstores in Russia

Pharmacies in Russia sell all kinds of medicine- antibiotics, eye drops, pills and cough drops. You need a prescription to buy the strongest medicine, like antibiotics but unlike many countries you don't need a prescription to buy contraceptives. Pharmacies also offer a range of "health products" - from herb teas to shampoo and tooth paste. There are so-called state pharmacies that sell medicine cheaper but they usually have limited stock and only domestic brands.

"You can say whatever you want, I will still do it my way."

There are similar adverbs formed from other pronouns.

For Example:

1. по-твоему
"in your way"
2. по-вашему
"in your (plural) way"
3. по-своему
"in one's way"

Оригинальный...("Original...")

The word Оригинальный means "original" or "authentic," but in Russian this word is often used to mean "interesting" or "extraordinary."

For example, оригинальный танец would mean "an interesting dance," one different from a lot of others.

For Example:

1. Оригинальный интерьер
"original interior"

Экзотический... ("Exotic...")

The word Экзотический means "exotic-like," as in экзотические блюда ("exotic dishes"). It is an adjective which must agree with the nouns they describe in gender and number.

For Example:

1. Экзотический танцор
"exotic dancer"
2. Экзотическое место
"exotic place"

Блюдо...("Dish")

The word блюдо is a "dish," but it's mostly used in the sense of a cooked dish. We don't really use it in the context of washing the dishes, for example, unless we're talking about really big and fancy dishes.

For Example:

1. Хорошо приготовленное блюдо.
"well-cooked dish"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Diminutive Forms of Adjectives and Adverbs

Этот бар шумноватый.
"This bar is a little noisy."

шумноват - маловато - странновата

In Russian the diminutive forms of adjectives and adverbs are formed with the help of suffixes, when in English they can be translated as "a little too...," "kind of...".

Of course you can just use the word немного ("a little") and add simple adjectives or adverbs to describe quantities and degrees in Russian.

For Example:

1. немного шумный
"a little loud, noisy"
2. немного маленький
"a little small"
3. немного странно
"(it's) a little strange"

But, our today's diminutive forms of the adjectives/adverbs contain some nuances: they usually imply that something is "not enough" or "a bit too much" for a certain purpose. They contain personal attitude to what is described.

Compare:

1. он немного странный человек ("He is a bit strange person.")
2. он странноватый человек ("He is kind of a weird person.")

The difference is not significant, although in the second phrase it's clear that it's your personal opinion of a person, plus it implies your disapproval on that, when in the first one it can be just a general statement everyone agrees on and it's not necessarily a bad one.

Before we get to forming the diminutives...

...let's remember when we use adverbs, when we use normal adjectives, and when we use short adjectives.

- We use adverbs to describe verbs and adjectives of other adverbs. They usually answer the question "How?" and end in "-о."

For Example:

1. идти быстро
"to go fast" (how?)
2. здесь тихо
"It's quiet here."

- We use normal adjectives to describe nouns—people and objects. They come before nouns and their endings differ depending on a gender and number of the noun.

For Example:

1. милый щенок
"a cute puppy"
2. милая девочка
"a cute girl"
3. милое создание
"a cute creature"
4. милые люди
"nice people" (nice)

- We use short adjectives to make statements about things like "He is busy." Unlike normal adjectives, the short ones are put after the nouns but they still have to agree with nouns in gender and number. The endings of the short adjectives are "cut short."

For Example:

1. щенок мил
"The puppy is cute."
2. девочка мила
"The girl is cute."
3. создание мило
"The creature is cute."
4. люди милы
"The people are cute." (nice)

Now, back to the diminutives:

Most normal and short adjectives, as well as adverbs, can have diminutive forms.

They all have the same endings as if they weren't diminutive - the difference is in the suffixes we put before them.

Let's get back to the words from our dialogue:

шумноват - маловато - странновата

1. Шумноват ("a bit too noisy") comes from the adjective шумный.

What we did was drop the ending ый and added a masculine suffix оват. We got a short adjective in masculine gender. If we wanted to get a normal adjective, we would stick ый back to the end of the word = шумноватый.

Compare:

1. бар шумноват ("The bar is kind of/a bit too noisy.")
2. шумноватый бар ("a bit too noisy bar")

2. Странновата ("kind of weird") comes from странный.

We dropped the ending ый and added a feminine suffix овата. We got a short adjective in feminine gender. For the normal adjective we would have to add a feminine ending for normal adjectives - ая.

Compare:

1. музыка странновата ("The music is a bit weird.")
2. странноватая музыка ("kind of a weird music")

3. With adverbs, all we have to do is add the suffix овато to an adverb and forget about genders and numbers.

For Example:

1. мало ("little") + вато = маловато ("a bit too little," "kind of small")
2. быстро ("fast") + вато = быстровато ("a bit too fast," "kind of fast")

TO SUM UP:

	Masculine	Feminine	Neuter	Plural
Normal adjective	слабый	слабая	слабое	слабые
Short adjective	слаб	слаба	слабо	слабы
Adverb	слабо	слабо	слабо	слабо
Diminutive normal adjective	слабоватый	слабоватая	слабоватое	слабоватые
Diminutive short adjective	слабоват	слабовата	слабовато	слабоваты
Diminutive adverb	слабовато	слабовато	слабовато	слабовато

- Not all adjectives have short forms or diminutive forms.
- Adverbs are the same as short adjectives in neuter gender.
- Adverbs never change according to gender or number.
- Diminutive forms that we learned today have negative, derogatory meaning implying slight personal dissatisfaction with the object or person described.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Russian Night Life

In Soviet times there were very few bars and restaurants so now when there are so many options people like to go out and have a good time. Usually young people go to "bar," or Kabak, like they call them. Usually it is a place where you can drink, eat, and dance. The music is usually pop which makes it very easy for tipsy people to dance. The prices are often reasonable and the places close around 2 or 3 A.M. If you want to stay longer you would go to a night club which is open until 5 A.M. but get ready for electro- or house music. If you are not a night person then you can go to a restaurant, coffee shop, or café, which are all open until 10 P.M.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Интересовать...("Be interested in...")

This word comes from the word "interest," but in this case it's a verb, which means "to be of interest to," or "to make someone interested." This verb requires a noun or a pronoun in the genitive case.

For Example:

1. Интересовать друга or интересовать подругу
"to be of an interest to a friend"

The frequently used phrases are:

1. Меня это не интересуется. ("I'm not interested.")
2. Меня интересуется вопрос... ("I'm interested or curious about the matter of...")

And then you add what exactly you are interested in.

1. Меня интересуется китайская культура. ("I am interested in Chinese culture.")

Прежде всего...("First of all...")

This is a set phrase which can be translated as "first of all," and is usually used at the beginning of the sentence.

For Example:

1. Прежде всего, нужно сообщить об этом в полицию.
"First of all, we have to report it to the police."
2. Прежде всего, я хочу поужинать, а потом обсуждать проблемы.
"First of all I want to have dinner and then discuss the problems."

Одна из... Один из... Одно из... ("One of...")

One of the most useful expressions, "one of...," is used in both written and spoken language. The only difficulty it represents is the category of gender of the noun it is used with. If the noun's gender is feminine we will use одна из...

For Example:

1. Галина Вишневская- одна из величайших оперных певиц двадцатого века.
"Galina Vishnevskaya is one of the greatest opera singers of the XX century."

If the gender is masculine we will use один из...

For Example:

1. Один из моих чемоданов был утерян авиакомпанией.
"One of my suitcases was lost by the airline."

And if the gender of the noun is neuter we will use одно из...

For Example:

1. Вязание- это одно из моих увлечений.
"Knitting is one of my hobbies."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Adjectives in the Accusative Case

я не хочу большой телефон
"I don't want a big phone."

Of course we can't avoid the nouns talking about the adjectives, as in Russian language adjectives totally depend on the nouns - they have to agree with them in gender, number, and case.

Let's remember what the accusative case itself is about:

The nouns in the accusative case answer the questions "whom" and "what," and indicate the object on which the action is done.

For Example:

1. уважать человека
"to respect a person"
2. забыть книгу
"to forget a book"

If we want to describe a person or a book from the above examples, we need to add adjectives that would agree with those nouns in all three categories:.

For Example:

1. уважать умного человека
"to respect a smart person"

(умный ("smart") was put into a masculine gender, singular number, and accusative case because this is what the noun человек ("person") is).

1. забыть любимую книгу
"to forget a favorite book"

(любимый ("favorite") is put into a feminine gender, singular number, and accusative case to agree with the noun книга.)

Now let's take a look at the examples from our dialogue:

1. иметь большую память ("to have a big memory")
2. (иметь) хороший фотоаппарат ("to have) a good camera")
3. я не хочу большой телефон ("I don't want a big phone")

All three verbs (память, фотоаппарат, телефон) are singular in the accusative case, although there is a gender difference. память is feminine, and фотоаппарат and телефон are masculine. As you can see, when it comes to большую память, the change in the word большую is obvious:

большой (dictionary form) turns into большую.

But the latter two phrases are no different from the same in the nominative case. Why?

Because when working with the accusative case, we have to remember to separate animate (living) objects from inanimate (non-living).

Inanimate masculine and all neuter nouns never change in the accusative case! Which means, their adjectives stay the same, too.

Here is a table of how to form the adjectives in the accusative case, which will also help you understand what does and doesn't change in it.

	Nominative Case	Accusative Case
Masculine Animate	красивый человек	красив ого человека
Masculine Inanimate	красивый стол	красивый стол
Feminine Animate	красивая собака	красив ую собаку
Feminine Inanimate	красивая книга	красив ую книгу
Neuter Animate	красивое создание	красивое создание
Neuter Inanimate	красивое море	красивое море

As you can see from the highlights, the nouns and adjectives in the accusative case modify only in two cases: when they are masculine, animate, or feminine. The endings in the above examples are typical for most of the nouns and adjectives.

Here are more examples for you to get a feeling of the accusative case:

1. встретить старого друга ("to meet an old friend")
2. купить новый дом ("to buy a new house")
3. навестить бывшую сотрудницу ("to visit an ex-coworker")
4. написать грустную песню ("to write a sad song")
5. Раздавить маленькое насекомое ("to squash a small insect")
6. Прочитать длинное письмо ("to read a long letter")

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Cellular network in Russia

The first mobile phone came to operation in Russian was a car phone back in 1963. The modern mobile phones came to Russian market relatively late, in 1990s. The biggest mobile network provider is the MTC, Megaphone and Beeline. The Russian mobile companies use two standards GSM 900/1800 (European standard) and CDMA (American standard).

There a plenty of mobile plans to choose. The most popular one is the plan that you can have unlimited number of messages and internet connection without paying monthly subscription fee. If you bring your phone from home country, you can simply get a local SIM-card in Russia. By switching cards, you can use the Russian cell phone service. To get a mobile phone and Sim card in Russia, you just need a passport and some cash.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Вернуть...("Return")

This verb means "to return" something and is used with the noun in the accusative case.

For Example:

1. Вернуть ключ
"return a key"
2. Я вернула юбку моей сестре.
"I returned the skirt to my sister."

You can't use it to talk about yourself as in, "to return home." In that case you would need the reflexive verb вернуться.

Вернуться домой would mean "to come back home."

For Example:

1. Когда ты вернешься домой?
"When will you come back home?"

Обратиться ... ("Ask for...", "Contact")

The verb обратиться is a quite formal version of the word "to ask." And with the preposition за...

For Example:

1. обратиться за помощью
"to ask for help"
2. обратиться к семье за поддержкой
"ask the family for support"

It also can be translated as "to contact."

For Example:

1. Обратиться в центр поддержки
"to contact a support center"
2. Обратиться в муниципалитет
"to contact a city hall"

Через...

This preposition is used in many useful expressions and can be translated as "every other"

For Example:

1. через раз
"every other time"
2. через неделю
"every other week"
3. через год
"every other year"

The noun that follows через is used in the accusative case.
The second meaning might be translated as "through."

For Example:

1. Я узнал эту новость через него.
"I learnt about this news through him."
2. Я устроился на работу через агентство по трудоустройству.
"I found a job through the recruitment agency."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Adjectives in the Genitive Case

Нет русского меню

"There is no Russian menu."

In the previous lesson we went over the adjectives in the accusative case. In this lesson, we will do the same but in the genitive case.

Again, to talk about adjectives we need to start with the nouns, as they will define the properties of the adjectives. So here is a quick reminder for you:

The nouns are used in the genitive case in the following situations:

- If they indicate possession, which is often translated with the preposition "of" in English (ручка друга - "a pen of a friend." "Friend" is the possessor, therefore used in the genitive case)
- If they are used after the words: просить ("to ask"), хотеть ("to want"), бояться ("to be afraid of"), etc.
- If they come after the phrases "don't have" (у меня нет ручки - "I don't have a pen") and "there is/are no" (там нет воды - "there is no water there")
- After the prepositions: без ("without"), для ("for"), из ("from"), из-за ("because of"), кроме ("except for"), вокруг ("around"), недалеко от ("not far from"), and some others.

For Example:

1. кофе без сахара
"coffee without sugar"
2. подарок для подруги
"a present for a friend"
3. все, кроме него
"everyone except for him"

Masculine nouns in the genitive usually end in "-а" or "-я," feminine in "-и" or "-ы," and neuter in "-а" or "-я" (just like masculine).

Adjectives in the Genitive Case

Let's take the examples from the dialogue:

1. нет русского меню
"There is no Russian menu."
2. центр технической поддержки
"A tech support center." (literally, a center of technical support)

Let's take a look at the properties of the nouns:

1. меню ("menu") - neuter, singular
2. поддержка ("support") - feminine, singular

Adjectives that describe these nouns, "Russian" and "technical," must agree with the nouns in gender, number, and case. Adjectives in the genitive usually end in:

1. masculine and neuter - "-ого," "его"
2. feminine - "ой"
3. plural - "ых," "их"

Therefore, the adjectives that describe the nouns in the dialogue, русский and техническая, become русского and технической after applying the genitive rules.

Below is the comparative table of the examples with the nouns.

	Nominative Case	Genitive Case
Masculine	красивый человек	красивого человека
Feminine	техническая поддержка	технической поддержки
Neuter	русское меню	русского меню

Here are some more examples of the phrases in the genitive case.

For Example:

1. она боится старшего брата
"She is afraid of her older brother."
2. дом недалеко от большого парка
"A house not far from a big park."
3. День Рождения без шумной вечеринки
"Birthday without a noisy party."
4. В комнате нет яркой лампы
"There is no bright lamp in the room."
5. Завтрак для маленьких детей
"Breakfast for little kids."
6. У него нет хороших друзей
"He doesn't have good friends."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Russian Return Policies

Returning defective goods and getting a reimbursement is a tricky business in Russia. You need to follow several rules to be successful at this. First, you need a receipt of course. Some shopkeepers "forget" to give you one so make sure you don't forget to get it. You can ask for a copy of a "receipt," which is called myagkiy check in Russian. Then when you go to get a reimbursement, be confident and explain what you need. Try to complete everything in one day because if you don't, the next time it will be like starting everything all over again.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Объявление... "notice , announcement"

Доска объявлений..."Notice board, ad board"

The word объявление means "an advertisement," "a notice," or "an announcement." It can mean both a written ad and a vocal announcement, like in airports.

For Example:

1. Написать объявление
"Write an ad"
2. Прочитать объявление
"Read an ad"

The frequent set phrase is доска объявлений, which means "a notice board" or "an ad board." These are two nouns: доска ("board") in nominative case and объявлений in genitive and plural. So literally, it is an announcements' board. It's usually a simple wooden board you stick or pin your ads to.

For Example:

1. Повесить объявление на доску объявлений.
"Put out an ad on the ad board."

Повесить...("To put out...")

This word can be translated as "put out" as in the following examples:

1. Повесить объявление
"Put out a notice."
2. Повесить вывеску
"Put out a sign."

Or it can be translated as "hang" something on something. In this case it is used with the preposition на and a noun in a genitive case.

For Example:

1. Повесить костюм на вешалку.
"Hang a suit on a hanger."
2. Повесить цепочку на шею.
"Hang (put on) a chain on the neck."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Accusative, Genitive, and Instrumental Cases

Я видела объявление о продаже велосипеда с твоим номером телефона сегодня.
"I saw an ad for a bicycle sale with your phone number on it today."

In the previous lessons we reviewed genitive and accusative cases. Were you able to identify them in the dialogue?

Here are the phrases that are used in the accusative:

- продать некоторые вещи—to sell some things, items, where "some items" are used in the accusative.
- продать микроволновую печь, холодильник, посуду, пылесос - same thing, all this "items for sale" are used in the accusative.
- повесить объявление—to "hang" an ad.

...and the phrases that are used in the genitive, the "of" case:

- продаже велосипеда—sale of a bicycle ("a bicycle sale")
- доска объявлений—a board of ads ("an ad board")

We also came across the phrases in the instrumental case, which we will talk about a little more now.

There are three main situations where we use the instrumental:

- First, when we talk about how things are done and translate it into English with the prepositions "by" or "with."

For Example:

1. ехать автомобилем
"to go by car"
2. есть ножом и вилкой
"to eat with knife and fork"

- Second, when we talk about togetherness and use the preposition с ("with").

For Example:

1. я с другом
"my friend and I" (literally, "I with my friend")
2. чай с сахаром
"tea with sugar"

- Third, when we use the prepositions с ("with"), над ("above"), под ("under"), между ("between"), перед ("in front of," "before"), and за ("behind").

For Example:

1. сумка под столом
"a bag under the table" (столом is стол used in the instrumental as it came after the preposition под.)
2. остановка за домом
"a stop behind the house" (домом is дом used in the instrumental as it came after the preposition за.)

Now, the phrases from the Dialogue:

1. с номером телефона ("with a phone number")
2. перед отъездом ("before departure")
3. перед входом ("in front of the entrance")

The phrase с номером телефона is interesting because it combines two cases in it—instrumental and genitive. Let's see why.

The word номером comes from the word номер and is put into the instrumental because it goes after the preposition с. So номер becomes номером.

But the word телефона (originally телефон) is genitive because it falls under the rules of the "of" case - "the number of the phone."

The phrases перед отъездом and перед входом are instrumental because we have the preposition перед.

Let's review how to form the instrumental case.

1. Most masculine nouns change their endings into -ом.
2. Most feminine nouns change their endings into -ой.
3. Neuter nouns just need an additional -м in the end.
4. Plural nouns usually end in ами or ями.

Here are some more examples:

1. Я езжу на дачу поездом
"I go to the country house by train."
2. Она кормит котёнка молоком
"She feeds a kitten with milk."
3. Она на даче с друзьями
"She's at the country house with her friends."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Classified Ads in Russia

Many people use announcement or ad boards and newspaper ads to sell everything—from furniture that they don't need anymore to their cars and apartments. You can publish some ads, like selling furniture or books for free. Some newspapers offer to publish your ad for several weeks in a row and for free. For your safety police advise not to put your home address or home telephone number in the ad, just your name and your cell phone number. The ad about selling something usually starts with the word "Sell" (Продам) and ends with "Ask for..." (Спросить...).

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Снять... ("Rent...take off...")

There are several meanings of this verb.

1. One of the most common is "to take off," as in "to take off a coat" (снять пальто).
2. In this lesson's context it means "to rent." We can use this word only for apartments, houses, or hotel rooms.

For Example:

1. снять квартиру
"to rent an apartment"
2. снять номер в отеле
"to rent a hotel room"
3. снять комнату
"to rent a room"

And it works for other living spaces.

Готов... ("Be Ready ...")

Готов is the short version of the adjective готовый, which means "ready." In our context it can also be translated as "willing to".

As you can remember from the rules about short adjectives, they only differ by one letter in the feminine gender. So for a girl it would be готова.

There are examples of this word in both contexts.

For Example:

1. Он готов в встрече. ("He's ready for the meeting.")
Она готова ко всему. ("She is ready for everything.")
2. Она готова переехать в Сибирь ради него. ("She's willing to move to Siberia for him.")
Он готов принять это предложение. ("He is willing to accept the offer.")

Недалеко от...

This preposition means "not far from" and is used with the nouns in genitive case.

For Example:

1. Недалеко от университета
"Not far from the university."
2. Я живу недалеко от Парка Горького
"I live not far from the Gorky Park."

Another similar expression is возле ("near" or "close to")

It is also used with the nouns in the genitive case.

For Example:

1. Я сижу возле тебя.
"I sit near you."
2. Мой офис находится возле Красной Площади.
"My office is located close to the Red Square."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Sentence Как мне ("How can I...?")

Привет, ты не знаешь, как мне снять квартиру в Москве?

"Hi, do you by chance know how I can rent an apartment in Moscow?"

This phrase is a colloquial version of как я могу, or to be more exact, как мне можно ("How can I," "How is it possible to me"), where можно is simply dropped.

Compare:

1. как я могу найти/мне можно найти Николая? ("How can I find Nikolai?")
2. как мне найти Николая? ("How can I find Nikolai?")

Both phrases mean the same thing; the only difference is that как мне is much more common and colloquial.

Prepositions

The good thing about Russian prepositions is that everyone is associated with a case. So if you learn which prepositions take which cases, you won't have any problems using them with nouns.

In the lesson we came across six prepositions that take different cases.

For Example:

1. недалеко от
"not far from" (genitive)
2. возле
"close to" (genitive)
3. без
"without" (genitive)
4. с
"with" (instrumental)
5. в
"in" (prepositional)
6. у
"by," "next to," "close to" (genitive)

A noun that comes after a preposition must always be in the case that preposition requires.

The prepositions that take the genitive case are the most common. In our dialogue we heard four.

For Example:

1. недалеко от
"not far from"
2. возле
"close to "
3. без
"without "
4. у
"by," "next to," "close to"

Used after prepositions, the genitive case is mainly associated with two meanings: closeness and negation. недалеко от, возле, and у represent closeness, while без represents negation.

Now that we know to use the genitive after these prepositions, we can build phrases.

For Example:

1. Недалеко от магазина
"not far from the store" (магазин in genitive)

2. Возле стоянки
"near the parking lot" (стоянка in genitive)
3. У моря
"by the sea" (море in genitive)
4. Без вопросов
"without (any) questions" (вопросы in genitive)

The prepositions с and в take the instrumental and prepositional cases, respectively.

For Example:

1. Кофе с молоком
"coffee with milk" (молоко in instrumental)
2. Я с подружкой
"me and my friend" (подружка in instrumental)
3. В комнате
"in the room" (комната in prepositional)
4. В доме
"in the house" (дом in prepositional)

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Renting an Apartment in Russia

Just like in the rest of the world, if you have enough money it is not a problem to rent a nice apartment anywhere in Russia. It's a little more difficult if you are on a budget. A lot of students rent rooms from Russian families, mostly from elderly people who are retired and are in need of money. The reality of living in such families might not always be pleasant. The apartments are usually in bad condition and can become quite frustrating after a while. Nevertheless, it's a cheap way of getting by in Russia. If you need to rent an apartment or a room very fast for any period of time without a contract, the best way to do it would be at the railway stations where many people stay with the signs or simply come up to you with a rental offer.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

В течение...

This expression can be translated as "during" or "within" and refers to a period of time. It is relatively formal and can be seen in the newspapers and heard in news programs. The noun that follows в течение is used in the genitive case.

For Example:

1. Вы должны сдать 15 экзаменов в течение первого года в университете.
"You must pass fifteen exams during the first year at the university."
2. Мы наблюдали за химической реакцией в течение часа.
"We were observing the chemical reaction during one hour."

Всего... ("Only... in total ...")

The word всего has two main meanings:

- 1) "only" in the meaning of "a very insignificant amount."

For Example:

Ему всего 8 лет, а он уже читает серьезные книги.

He's only eight years old, but he already reads serious books.

We can add the word лишь to emphasize that the amount is very little.

For Example:

У меня всего лишь пять рублей в кошельке.

I have only five rubles in my wallet.

- 2) The second meaning is "in total" and doesn't have any nuance; it is a neutral expression.

For Example:

В супермаркете я заплатил всего двести рублей.

In the supermarket I paid two hundred rubles in total.

Окончание...("Ending...")

The word окончание is a more formal version of конец ("the end," "ending," "over"). It is a noun that is usually used with other nouns as in the following phrases:

1. окончание семестра
"the end of the semester"
2. окончание книги
"the end of the book"
3. окончание срока
"the end of the term"

The second noun is used in the genitive case.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Preposition до ("until, till")

Остался всего месяц до окончания срока подачи документов в университеты...
"There's only one month left until the last day of application to the universities..."

This preposition is used mainly in two cases:

1. When we talk about time.
2. When we talk about distance.

For Example:

1. до экзамена ещё 2 дня
"There are still two days until the exam."
2. до концерта осталось полчаса
"There's half an hour left till the concert (starts)."
3. Идите до перекрёстка, потом поверните налево
"Go till the intersection then turn left."
4. Отсюда до остановки - 200 метров
"There are 200 meters from here till the stop "

Note that no matter what we talk about, time or distance, the nouns that come after the preposition до should be used in the genitive case.

For Example:

1. экзамен (nominative) - экзамена (genitive)
2. концерт (nom) - концерта (gen)
3. перекрёсток (nom) - перекрёстка (gen)
4. остановка (nom) - остановки (gen)

The word остаться ("to be left") is used very frequently with the preposition до and usually in the past tense (just like in English "...is left"). This verb undergoes some grammatical changes in the following cases:

1) When we talk about a singular unit of time or length (distance), we modify остаться according to the gender of the unit.

For Example:

1. осталась одна минута
2. остался один километр
3. осталось одно полугодие

2) When we talk about the units in plural or in general or approximate terms, we usually use остаться in the neuter gender.

For Example:

1. осталось 10 километров
"There are ten kilometers left."
2. осталось немного времени
"There's a little time left."
3. осталось 20 минут
"There are twenty minutes left."

нужно - придётся

нужно ("it's necessary to") and придётся ("there's no other way but to") are two different words with two different meanings. The reason we put them together here is their grammatical similarity when it comes to the objects (nouns/pronouns) they refer to—they should always be put into the dative case.

For Example:

1. мне нужно идти
"I need to go."
2. Марине нужно позвонить
"Marina needs to make a phone call."
3. ему придётся уехать
"He will have to leave (he has no other choice than to leave)."
4. Владу придётся уволиться
"Vlad will have to quit his job (will have no other choice but quit his job)."

придётся is the future form of приходиться ("to have to do something," almost to be forced to do something.) It implies that the circumstances force a person to do or act in a certain way.

Just like any verb it can be used in all three tenses—past, present, and future. The good thing is, it won't change according to genders or number.

Let's take a look at the examples.

For Example:

1. Ему пришлось уехать
"He had to (was forced to, had no other choice but) leave."
2. Ей пришлось бросить институт
"She had to (was forced to, had no other choice but) drop out of school."
3. Олегу приходится рано вставать
"Oleg has to wake up early."
4. Лене приходится много работать
"Lena has to work a lot."
5. Им придётся сдаться
"They will have to give up."
6. Нам придётся это сделать
"We will have to do it."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Education in Russia

The education system in Russia differs greatly now from even a couple of years ago. Before, every Russian high-school graduate had to take final exams to graduate from high school and take entering exams in an undergrad school that s/he intended to go to. The high school exams usually included an essay on a literary topic, a math exam, and three exams on selective subjects. The preliminary exams to the universities were set by the universities themselves according to the speciality.

In 2009, Russia adopted the "Unified State Examination" (USE), the combination of final exams and the university preliminary exams. The principal feature of the new examination process is its uniformity, which is supposed to give equal chances to all students across the country. The new system has its advantages and disadvantages and is still in a developing stage, but it sure does help in elimination of subjective factors in students' evaluations, like teachers and professors' attitudes toward certain students.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Дальше...чем... ("Further....than...")

This expression is useful when we want to compare two or more things. It consists of the adverb дальше and the conjunction чем.

For Example:

1. Мой университет находится дальше от центра города, чем моя квартира.
"My university is located farther from the center of the city than my apartment."

The noun that follows чем is used in the nominative case.

For Example:

1. Я могу пробежать дальше, чем он.
"I can run farther than he can."

The word дальше is frequently used with the preposition от, which means "from." The noun that follows this preposition is used in the genitive case.

For Example:

1. В этот раз Мария села дальше от экрана, чем в прошлый раз.
"This time Maria sat farther from the screen than this time."

Граница ... ("Border...")

The word граница means "border."

For Example:

1. граница страны
"the border of a country"
2. на границе
"on the border"

In the dialogue the expression за границей was used. This expression literally means, "behind the border" but is a common way of saying "abroad" or "overseas."

For Example:

1. Учиться за границей
"to study abroad"
2. поехать за границу
"to go abroad"

There is a collocation—перейти все границы, literally, "cross all the borders," which means do something outrageous and unspeakable or cross the line, or to be out of line.

For Example:

1. Ты перешла все границы, когда проверила все мои сообщения на телефоне.
"You were out of line when you checked all my cell phone messages."

Степень...("Degree...")

The word степень is a simple noun that means "degree." Just as in English, it can mean an educational degree or any other degree, such as Степень сложности ("degree of difficulty").

For Example:

1. Получить ученую степень
"get an academic degree"

When it is used with other nouns like in Степень сложности, the second noun must be in the genitive case.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is учиться на степень... по...

Я хочу учиться дальше.

"I want to continue my education."

учиться на ("to study to become.../to major in...")

This phrase requires a profession to follow. The word however should be put into the accusative case.

Putting nouns into the accusative means adding "-a" to masculine nouns and adding "-y" to feminine.

For Example:

1. учиться на переводчика ("to study to become an interpreter")
2. учиться на биолога ("to study to become a biologist")
3. учиться на врача ("to study to become a doctor")
4. учиться на юриста ("to study to become a lawyer")
5. учиться на медсестру ("to study to become a nurse")

As you see, most of the professions are in masculine gender. Luckily, you don't have to put them into the feminine when talking about females because those are general words representing professions for both genders.

There are a few professions that are used in the feminine gender because traditionally those were solely female professions, like медсестра. Of course there are "male nurses" as well nowadays, which are called медбрат.

степень... по... ("...degree in...")

Степень ("degree") can be specified by the following:

For Example:

1. степень бакалавра ("Bachelor's Degree" - requires 4 years or higher education)
2. степень специалиста ("Specialist Degree" - requires 5 years in total or 1 year after Bachelor's)
3. степень магистра ("Master's Degree" - requires 6 years in total or 2 years after Bachelor's)

When we talk about a PhD, we don't call it a degree. We would just say that a person is a Doctor of Philosophy. See more about the degrees in Russia in the Cultural Insight section.

When we want to specify what the degree is in, we put the major of study into the dative case.

Putting nouns into the dative means adding "-у" (ю) to the masculine nouns and adding "-е" to the feminine and ам/ям to the plural.

For Example:

1. степень бакалавра по экономике ("BA in economics")
2. степень специалиста по востоковедению ("Specialist degree in Asian studies")
3. степень магистра по международным отношениям ("MA in international relations") стоит + infinitive / стоит + noun (pronoun) in the genitive ("worth doing.../worth something...")

Note: sometimes the word стоит can take on the following meanings: "had better," "should," "it wouldn't hurt," or similar to them depending on the context.

The case with the verbs in the dictionary form following the word стоит is quite straightforward. The examples will say it all.

For Example:

1. Нам не стоит ехать туда
"It's not a good idea to go there/We shouldn't..."
2. Туда стоит сходить
"It's worth going there/visiting."
3. Тебе стоит сходить к врачу
"It wouldn't hurt for you to visit a doctor."

When you put the nouns/pronouns after the word стоит, you should first put them into the genitive case.

Genitive means adding "-а" to masculine nouns/pronouns, replacing the endings with Ы/И in the feminine and replacing the endings with а/я in neuter nouns/pronouns.

For Example:

1. это того стоит (set phrase)
"it's worth it"
2. он тебя не стоит
"He's not worth you/He's not good enough for you."
3. эта поездка стоит этих денег
"This trip is worth this money."

 Don't forget about the primary meaning of this word though - "to cost."

For Example:

1. это стоит 100 рублей
"It costs 100 rubles."
2. это стоило ему карьеры
"It cost him his career."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Academic Degrees in Russian Education

The educational degrees in Russia and some other post-USSR countries differ from those in Europe and America. For example, Russia still has what is called a Specialist degree, which is a middle link between a Bachelor's and Master's degree and requires five years of higher education.

The PhD degree in Russia is divided into two levels. The first one is called a "candidate of... sciences" (for example, candidate of economical sciences) and is obtained after two to three years of studies that include extensive research, publications, and a final thesis.

The second level is called a "doctor of...sciences" and is granted for a certain contribution into science. There is no equivalent to this degree in the American system but it's common to call it a PhD when translating.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Сфера... ("Sphere...")

This word means "sphere" and is most often used in the context of a professional field. So we can easily translate it as "field."

For Example:

1. В какой сфере ты работаешь?
"What sphere do you work in?"

Some frequently used phrases with this word are:

1. Финансовая сфера ("financial sphere")
2. Юридическая сфера ("judicial sphere" - anything that has to do with law)
3. Образовательная сфера ("educational sphere")

4. Сфера обслуживания ("customer services sphere")

Опыт... ("Experience...")

This word means "experience" and is often used with the preposition в and a noun in the prepositional case.

For Example:

1. У тебя есть опыт работы в образовательной сфере?
"Do you have any experience working in the educational sphere?"
2. У меня есть опыт работы в образовательной сфере.
"I have experience in the educational sphere."
3. А у тебя есть опыт работы в юридической сфере?
"Do you have any experience in the judicial sphere?"
4. Нет, у меня нет опыта работы в юридической сфере. Но у меня богатый опыт в сфере образования.
"No I don't have any judicial experience but I have a rich experience in the educational sphere."

The usual collocations are:

1. Иметь опыт ("have experience")
2. Есть опыт ("have experience")
3. Нет опыта ("not have experience")
4. Опыт работы ("working experience")

Полставки ("Part-time")

Полная ставка ("Full time")

Две ставки ("Double time/shift")

These expressions are used when we try to explain the terms of the employment.

If we work part-time, we would say "Я работаю на полставки" (I work part-time).

If you have a full-time employment, you would say "Я работаю на полную ставку" (I work full time).

And if you accept a larger amount of work, like a double shift or work the amount of time almost equal to two jobs, you would say "Я работаю на две ставки" (I work double shifts).

Usually the last expression is used about such jobs as administrator, teacher, construction worker, and so on.

All expressions are used with the preposition на and the expression takes the genitive case because it has the noun ставка in it.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson are the phrases Из-за, Уже, and ещё

Меня не уволили, а сократили из-за кризиса.
"I was not fired, I was downsized because of the crisis."

Не..., а... ("Not..., but...")

The grammar structure не..., а... is very straightforward in its usage. It requires two parts of a sentence to be opposite in meaning, or contradict each other. It can be used in all tenses with any parts of speech.

For Example:

1. Я не Миша, а Вова
"I'm not Misha, I'm Vova."
2. Он учится не в Москве, а в Киеве
"He studies not in Moscow, but in Kiev."
3. Она любит не читать, а смотреть телевизор
"She likes not reading, but watching TV."

Из-за ("because of, for ... reason")

The meaning of из-за is identical to the English "because of," so is the context it is used in. The only thing you should watch while dealing with из-за is the grammar case of the words that follow it.

You would normally put nouns and pronouns after из-за; they can also be accompanied by the adjectives. The thing to remember is, all those words should come in the genitive case.

For Example:

1. Из-за плохой погоды
"because of bad weather"
2. Из-за ленивого сотрудника
"because of a lazy coworker"
3. Из-за маленьких детей
"because of little kids"
4. Из-за меня/ нас/ тебя/ вас/ него/ неё/ них
"because of me, us, you, you (pl), him, her, them"
5. Из-за этого/ из-за того
"because of this, that"

Уже ("already"), ещё ("yet, still")

Both of these adverbs can be used with almost any part of speech - noun, adverb, verb, etc.

For Example:

1. Уже утро
"It's morning already."
2. Ещё не вечер
Literally, "It's not night yet." Set expression for "The night is young."
3. Уже много
"It's a lot already."
4. Ещё мало
"It's still too little."
5. Мы уже приехали
"We have already arrived."
6. Они ещё не пришли
"They haven't come yet."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Russian Economy

The economy of Russia is recovering from the world crisis in a fast and confident way. Compared to 2008, the unemployment rate has dropped and makes up 6.5 - 7% today. The job market remains stable and is looking forward to some improvements—there is a plan for creating about 60,000 job openings in the near future.

In 2011, Russia entered the World Trade Organization, which opened up new opportunities for business and economic growth. The problem that is still hard to get under control for Russia is inflation (9.5%). It is believed that as soon as it is stabilized, Russian financial conditions will see much improvement.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Потянуть ("To sprain")

This perfective verb can be translated in two ways:

1. "to sprain" (a joint, an ankle, back)

For Example:

I think I sprained my ankle when I jumped. Я думаю, я потянула лодыжку, когда я подпрыгнула.

2. "to stretch" (your body, any part of your body) just to relax.

For Example:

I can't stretch my back in my yoga class. Я не могу потянуть мою спину на занятии по йоге.

Кататься на ("To ride, to take, to use ")

This verb is special because it has many translations in English: "to ride," "to take," "to ski," "to skate," "to bicycle," and so on. The logic is that if something enables you to move faster than walk you use this something with this verb.

For Examples:

1. "To skate" (кататься на коньках)
2. "To ski" (кататься на лыжах)
3. "To cycle" (кататься на велосипеде)
4. "To ride an attraction" (кататься на аттракционе)
5. "To roller-blade" (кататься на роликах - The noun is used in the prepositional case.)

Больно ("it hurts...")

This adverb is formed from the verb болеть and is used with an infinitive after it.

At the beginning of a sentence there is usually a subject which is a noun or a pronoun.

For Example:

1. "It hurt him to say that the relationship is over."
Ему было больно сказать, что отношения окончены. The pronoun is used in a dative case.
2. "It hurts to step on the left foot for the grandmother." (Grandmother's left foot hurts when she steps on it.)
Бабушке больно наступать на левую ногу.

In the past tense we need the verb "to be" (было) to use with the adverb.

For Example:

1. Мне было очень больно.
"It was hurting so much." (I was hurting so much)

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is to Express Various Symptoms When You Get Sick

Тебе больно ходить?

Tebe bol 'no hodit '?

"Does it hurt to walk?"

For this lesson's grammar part we'll take the phrase тебе больно ходить from our lesson and use it to learn how to express various symptoms when you get sick.

To denote a physical state, a special pattern where the subject is in dative case, is used. This pattern includes the adverb больно and a noun (or pronoun) in the dative case.

For Example:

1. Мне больно
"it hurts me..."
2. Тебе больно
"it hurts you ..."
3. Ей больно
"it hurts her..."
4. Ему больно
"it hurts him..."
5. Нам больно
"it hurts us..."
6. Вам больно
"it hurts them..."

This pattern can be followed by the infinitive to make the explanation of the symptom more exact.

For Example:

1. Мне больно глотать.
"It hurts me to swallow."
2. Мише больно говорить.
"It hurts Misha to talk."
3. Ей больно наступать на левую ногу.
"It hurts her to step on her left foot."

This pattern can also be used to denote the emotional state.

For Example:

1. "It hurts me just to remember that."
Мне больно вспоминать об этом.
2. "It hurts to talk about it."
Больно говорить об этом.

Болезь ("to hurt , to ache")

There are two meanings for the verb болеть in Russian, but in this lesson we are going to learn just one meaning - "to hurt " or "to ache." This verb exists only in the third person, both singular and plural.

For Example:

1. Болит ("hurts")
2. Болят ("hurt")
3. Болел ("hurt" - in the past)
4. Будет болеть ("will hurt" - singular)
5. Будут болеть ("will hurt" - plural)

It is used with names of parts of the body in the construction (nominative case) with y + noun (or pronoun) in the genitive case.

For Example:

1. У меня болят уши.
"My ears hurt."
2. У него болит желудок.
"His stomach aches."
3. У дяди Паши болит спина.
"Uncle Pasha has a backache."

У меня (тебя, него...) + именительный падеж ("I (you, he...) have" + nominative case symptom of illnesses

When we talk about the symptoms of illnesses, the construction У меня (тебя, него...) + именительный падеж - ("I (you, he...) have" + nominative case) is used.

For Example:

1. "I have a fever."
У меня жар.
2. "I have a runny nose."
У меня насморк.
3. "He has a fracture."
У него перелом.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Calling Ambulances in Russia

If you get injured in Russia, you should dial 03 which is the ambulance phone number. This is a state service—that's why it is free of charge. It takes from five to twenty minutes to arrive, although in big cities it may take more than that due to the traffic jams. Russia has universal medical insurance so normally you would not pay for admittance in the hospital. General medicines are free of charge but some of them, especially imported pain killers, you may have to pay for. If you visit Russia as a tourist you should have tourist medical insurance, otherwise the hospital may charge you the full cost of medical treatment, which may be several thousand rubles.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Adjectives: Declensions

Мне казалось, он такой спокойный, домашний, добрый и безотказный...
"I thought he was so calm, a homebody, kind and compliant (ready to help)..."

Adjectives are words denoting the characteristic of an object. They match nouns and change according to gender, case, and number. They may have full and short forms.

Just like nouns, adjectives can be changed into six cases. We have seen some of the cases in previous lessons so in this lesson we are going to review and learn all of them in all genders, in singular form. We will take three expressions from the dialogue and write all the forms in order.

1. Masculine Gender

a) inanimate noun

- N. невыносимый характер
- G. невыносимого характера
- D. невыносимому характеру
- A. невыносимый характер
- I. невыносимым характером
- P. невыносимом характере

Характер is an inanimate noun so the accusative case is identical to the nominative case невыносимый характер.

b) animate noun

Let's see the declensions where the noun is animate.

- N. невыносимый человек
- G. невыносимого человека
- D. невыносимому человеку
- A. невыносимого человека
- I. невыносимым человеком
- P. невыносимом человеке

The accusative case is identical to the genitive case.

2. Feminine Gender

A noun's animacy category doesn't matter in the adjectives declensions, it is the same for both animate and inanimate nouns.

- N. энергичная женщина
- G. энергичной женщины
- D. энергичной женщине
- A. энергичную женщину
- I. энергичной женщиной
- P. энергичной женщине

3. Neuter

Once again, the category of animacy is not important. There are no differences in the declensions of animate and inanimate nouns.

скучное кино

- N. скучное кино
- G. скучного кино
- D. скучному кино
- A. скучное кино
- I. скучным кино
- P. скучном кино

Adjectives: Forming Opposite Adjectives

We often use opposite adjectives to describe someone's features of character. Some of them have different stems so we just need to memorize that they are the opposites.

For Example:

1. Веселый - грустный
"Funny" - "sad"
2. Добрый - злой
"Kind" - "evil"
3. Интересный - скучный
"Interesting" - "boring"
4. Сумасшедший - спокойный
"Crazy" - "calm"

We also can form opposite adjectives with the prefixes без - and не-.

When we use the prefix не-, the adjective usually doesn't change its original form so it works like the prefixes un- or in- in English.

For Example:

1. Красивый - некрасивый
"pretty" - "not pretty"
2. Приятный - неприятный
"pleasant" - "unpleasant"
3. Веселый - невеселый
"happy" - "unhappy"

With the prefix без-, the adjective might be the same or a little different.

For Example:

1. Безграмотный - грамотный
2. Безвредный - вредный
3. Безвольный - волевой

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Russian Character

In American movies you can see plenty of Russians who are lazy, reserved, cruel, and drink a lot. Russian women are portrayed as beautiful but superficial and greedy for money. Although these descriptions may have some truth to them, Russians like to think about themselves as hospitable, hard-working, and generous. Russian women like to think of themselves as strong, intelligent, and caring. The reason why these features are not so obvious to foreigners is that to know this warm side of Russians, you must spend a longer time with Russians and become a part of their community. Russians are reserved about newcomers but once you are "ours," you can see the other side of Russian character.

This verb means "to excuse" and has two meanings:

1. It is used to draw someone's attention or to stop someone in the street just like in English.

For Example:

1. Извините, вы не скажете, который час?
"Excuse me, can you tell me what time it is?"
2. Извините, вы не знаете, где автобусная остановка?
"Excuse me; do you know where the bus station is?"

2. The second meaning is "to forgive."

"Please forgive me."
2. Извини, я не могу это сделать.

For Example:

1. Я потерял мой кошелек.
"I lost my wallet."
2. Я не хочу потерять мои деньги.
"I don't want to lose my money."

The verb потерять is a perfective verb which means it can't be used with such words as "usually," "always," etc. We need to use imperfective verb терять in this case.

For Example:

1. Я всегда теряю мои перчатки.
"I always lose my gloves."

Прятаться от... ("to hide (oneself) from... ")

This verb is imperfective and means "to hide (oneself) from..." it is usually used in the context of hiding from some abstract things, like problems or someone's rage.

For Example:

1. Ты больше не можешь прятаться от этих проблем.
"You can't hide from these problems anymore."

The perfective verb would be спрятаться and it means "to hide successfully."

For Example:

1. От судьбы не спрятаться.
"You can't hide from your fate."
2. Кто не спрятался, я не виноват. (Игра в прятки)
"If you haven't hidden, it is not my fault." (seek-and-hide)

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Reflexive Verbs

Прячется от Вас...

"Hiding from you..."

These are the verbs with the ending -ся or -сь.

They can be formed from many non-reflexive verbs and show that the action in the sentence affects the person or thing that does the action.

For Example:

1. Одевать ("to dress someone")
2. Одеваться ("to get dressed")
3. Порезать ("to cut")
4. Порезаться ("to cut oneself")

In other words, the ending ся gives the meaning "do something to oneself" so most of the sentences with ...-self can be translated only with the verb.

We add the ending - ся to the...

1. Infinitives:

1. Одеваться ("to get dressed")
2. Прячется ("to hide oneself")

2. Verbs in the present tense:

1. Одевается ("gets dressed")
2. Прячется ("hides oneself")

3. Verb in the past tense in masculine gender:

1. Одевался ("got dressed")
2. Прятался ("hid himself")

We add the ending -сь to the...

1. Verb in the past tense in feminine and neuter gender:

1. Одевалась ("got dressed")
2. Пряталась ("hid herself")
3. Одевалось ("got dressed")
4. Пряталось ("hid oneself")

We can form reflexive verbs from almost any non-reflexive verb that...

1. Gives the meaning-do something to oneself:

1. Извинить-извиниться ("excuse - excuse oneself")
2. Потерять-потеряться ("lose - lose oneself")
3. Прятать-прятаться ("hide - hid oneself")

2. Creates an impersonal verb:

1. Хотеть-хотеться ("want- feel like")
2. Спать-спаться ("sleep - get to sleep")

There are some verbs that exist only in the reflexive form:

1. Смеяться ("to laugh")
2. Надеяться ("to hope")
3. Кланяться ("to bow")
4. Бороться ("to fight")

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Russian Appearance

What does a typical Russian look like? We can think: tall, blond, white skin, strong jaw for men, beautiful women... The truth is that there is not any typical Russian in Russia...there are more than one hundred ethnic groups who live in Russia and all of them are Russians. The Slav ethnic group (tall, blond, and dark-blond haired, blue or green eyes) is still a majority but it counts only 55-60 percent of the population so no one is surprised to see any non-Slav Russian. Russians have white, brown, dark skin, brown, dark, blue, green, and grey eyes, blond, dark, or red hair; they are tall and short, thin and robust.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Просто

This adverb is frequently used in Russian and means "just, simply, only." Its place in the sentence is relatively flexible.

For Example:

1. Я просто пришел посмотреть.
"I just came to take a look."
2. Я хотел просто увидеть тебя.
"I just wanted to see you."
3. Я купил эти цветы просто так.
"I bought these flowers for no reason."

The expression просто так in the last sentence means "for no reason" and is often used in the spoken Russian.

For Example:

1. Зачем ты принёс это домой?
"Why did you bring this home?"
2. Просто так.
"No reason."

Давно

This adverb comes from the adjective давний and means "a long time ago."

For Example:

1. Я давно не был дома.
"I have not been home for a long time."
2. Это было давно.
"It was a long time ago."

To emphasize the meaning we can use a similar adverb, давным-давно, and it can be translated as "a very long time ago," or "once upon a time."

For Example:

1. Давным-давно жил-был старик.
"Once upon a time there was an old man."
2. Это было давным-давно.
"It was a very long time ago."

Похоже...

This adverb can be translated as the phrase "looks like" or "seems like" in English. Usually it is used at the beginning of the sentence.

For Example:

1. Похоже, будет дождь.
"It looks like it is going to rain."
2. Похоже, этот поезд никуда не поедет.
"It seems like this train is not going anywhere."

Sometimes the preposition на and a noun in the accusative case can be used to make the comparison more exact.

For Example:

1. Это похоже на депрессию.
"It looks like depression."
2. Это на него совсем не похоже.
"It doesn't look like him at all."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Impersonal Verbs

Не хочется никого видеть, нет аппетита, не хочется ничего делать...

"I don't want to see anyone, have no appetite, don't want to do anything ..."

Impersonal verbs are the verbs which denote actions or states, which happen by themselves without any active actor. They have two main functions:

1. They denote the mood, the state of mind, or human health.

For Example:

1. Знобить ("to shiver")
2. Нездоровиться ("to feel sick")
3. Хотеться ("to want, feel like doing something")
4. Взгрустнуться ("to feel sad")
5. Мне хочется мороженого.
"I feel like eating ice-cream."

In these sentences there is no subject; the pronouns are used in the dative case.

2. They denote the state of nature.

For Example:

1. Светать ("to dawn")
2. Рассветать ("to dawn")

3. Холодать ("to get chilly")
4. Вечереть ("to grow dark")
5. Смеркаться ("to start getting dark")

Many impersonal verbs are reflexive verbs formed from personal verbs.

For Example:

1. не читается ("one can't read")
2. не спится ("one can't fall asleep")
3. не верится ("one can't believe")
4. живётся ("one can live")
5. Просто не верится, что мои внуки уже пойдут в университет в этом году!
"I just can't believe my grandchildren will start university this year!"

Impersonal verbs have infinitives and the forms only in the third person in singular.

For Example:

- | | |
|------------|----------|
| 1. Знобить | Вериться |
| 2. Знобит | Верится |
| 3. Знобило | Верилось |

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Emotional Russian People

Russians are very emotional people, although it might not seem so. Boiling passion, tender love, overwhelming hatred, unlimited rage—all these emotions gave plenty of inspiration for the world's literature masterpieces. Lately, the major emotions in Russians have been anger and aggression. You can see it in the streets: people are rude to each other, fight over little things, or simply roll their eyes and keep silent. All this rudeness can be explained by difficult economic and political situations in Russia, and there is a deep understanding of this as a social problem. You can see some signs like "Be polite" or "Rudeness will lead you nowhere" in public places, so the best you can do is to be as polite and nice as you can.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Отпуск

This noun can be translated as "vacations" or "time off" and is used only in the context of time off from work. Only adults can have отпуск, children have каникулы ("time off from school"). The gender is masculine and the plural is отпусков with the stress on the last syllable. The declension of this noun is:

Отпуск
 Отпуска
 Отпуску
 Отпуск
 Отпуском
 Отпуске

For Example:

1. Я не была в отпуске два года.
 "I haven't taken time off for two years."
2. Я возьму отпуск в сентябре.
 "I will take some time off in September."

Каникулы

This noun means "vacations" but only in the context of school when we talk about children's vacation. This noun is always plural and the declension is the following:

Каникулы
Каникул
Каникулам
Каникулы
Каникулами
Каникулах

For Example:

1. Я не могу дождаться рождественских каникул!
"I can't wait for Christmas vacation."

Всё равно

This adverb can be translated as:

1. "anyway"

For Example:

1. Мы всё равно не можем поехать.
"We can't go anyway."
2. Он всё равно это не сделал.
"He didn't do it anyway."

or

2. "don't care"—in this case the subject is in the dative case.

For Example:

1. Мне всё равно.
"I don't care."
2. Ему всё равно.
"He doesn't care."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Russian Verbs and Ordinal Numbers

Иногда и дома отдохнуть неплохо.

"Sometimes it's good to have some rest at home, too."

Russian verbs are divided into perfective and imperfective verbs.

Imperfective verbs denote lasting (and finished yet) or repeating action. The action is performed at the moment of speech.

For Example:

1. Я читаю книгу.
"I am reading a book," or "I read a book."
2. Я делаю домашнее задание.
"I am doing my homework," or "I do my homework."

There is only one present tense in Russian so the nuances of present simple and present progressive are expressed by the imperfective verbs.

Perfective verbs denote finished (having come up to a definite limit) action. The action is finished, ended.

For Example:

1. Я прочитаю книгу.
"I will read a book," or "I will have read a book."
2. Я сделаю домашнее задание.
"I will do my homework," or "I will have done my homework."

The above conjugation seems to be in present tense but it expresses the meaning in the future.

Let's take a look at some examples in the past tense.

For Example:

1. Я прочитал книгу.
"I have read a book," or "I read a book."
2. Я сделал домашнее задание.
"I have done my homework," or "I did my homework."

Both present perfect and past simple are translated into Russian the same way and with the use of the perfective verb.

Perfective verbs are formed in different ways but in this lesson we are going to learn just one way - with the prefix по-.

For Example:

1. Любить-полюбить ("to like")
2. Нравиться-понравиться ("to like")
3. Ехать-поехать ("to go")
4. Путешествовать-попутешествовать ("to travel")
5. Смотреть-посмотреть ("to look")

The exception is "to buy" (Покупать - купить). The imperfective verb is with the prefix по- and the perfective is without.

For Example:

1. Я покупаю билеты в кино.
"I am buying the tickets to the movies."
2. Я купил билеты в кино.
"I have bought the tickets to the movies."

Numbers: Ordinal

There are two types of numbers: ordinal and cardinal.

Ordinal numbers describe position in the sequential order and can be changed according to the gender and number in Russian.

We will learn about declensions of 1-digit and 2-digit numbers.

For example, we will declense the collocation "the first doctor:"

Первый врач
Первого врача
Первому врачу
Первого врача
Первым врачом
Первом враче

The next one is "the third place:"

Третье место
Третьего места
Третьему месту
Третье место
Третьим местом
Третьем месте

As you can see, it is quite similar to the forms of an adjective.

Next let's decline a two-digit number, "the 25th of May:"

Двадцать пятое мая
Двадцать пятого мая
Двадцать пятому мая
Двадцать пятое мая
Двадцать пятым мая
Двадцать пятом мая

As you can see, only the word "5th" is changing but the number "20" and the word "may" doesn't change because the number "20" takes a form of a cardinal number and the word "may" depends on the number and is already in the genitive case, which is consistent.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Popular Holiday Destinations for Russians

Russians love vacations just like anybody else. The longest vacations are New Year's (from 1-10th of January) and in May (1-4). Also, every working person is entitled to have at least three weeks of paid vacation. The popular overseas destinations are Turkey, Dubai, China, Thailand, and Goa in India. These are the cheapest destinations and they have beaches and great shopping options which are the essential elements of vacation. Europe is less popular, although lately the visa requirements have become looser so it does make Europe more attractive. In Russia the popular destinations are the Baikal Lake, Moscow, and Saint-Petersburg. Although there are so many options, some Russians still prefer to stay home and finish off some housework or just take it easy.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Russian Barbecue

Barbecue is very popular in Russia but the word barbecue (shashlyki) is not a Slav word. It has roots in Caucasus languages so we can guess this tradition was brought to the Russian culture from there. Russians have barbecues in summer and winter. Usually the preparations start two days before when we soak meat in wine and some spicy sauce. On the day of the barbecue we put pieces of meat with onions on skewers which length is about 30cm. Shashlyki are cooked on a grill for about 20-30 minutes and are served on a plate without the skewer. Salads and bread usually accompany the barbecue feast.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Traffic in Russia

Are there any traffic jams in Russia? Of course there are. The Soviet times when it was almost impossible to buy a car are long gone. The number of cars has tripled in Russia and it happened so fast that the infrastructure—road and highway construction—could not keep up. Therefore all big cities such as Moscow, Saint-Petersburg, Irkutsk, and Novosibirsk struggle with traffic jams. Moscow is especially notorious for its traffic jams which can last up to six hours. There are special lanes for public transport but sometimes other drivers don't respect them and also there are so many cars with special lights (government officials get those). Usually in the city you can take a bus, microbus (with six or so seats which are private public transportation) or taxi to get to your destination.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Научить

This perfective verb is translated as "teach" and can be used in two collocations:

1. to teach someone

For Example:

1. Я научила мою маму говорить по-английски.
"I taught my mom to speak English."
2. Учитель научит нас считать быстро.
"The teacher will teach us how to count fast."

2. to teach something

For Example:

1. Я научу тебя английскому.
"I will teach you English."

If a noun is used after the verb, this noun is used in the dative case.

For Example:

1. Моя мама научит меня готовке.
"My mother will teach me cooking."

Натереть

This perfective verb can be translated as "grate."

The conjugation in the present tense is the following:

Натру
Натрешь
Натрёт
Натрём
Натрёте
Натрут

For Example:

1. Она легко может натереть миску сыра.
"She can easily grate a bowl of cheese."
2. Я никогда не смогу натереть эту твёрдую редиску.
"I will never be able to grate this hard raddish."

Нарезать

This perfective verb can be translated as "cut" and "slice."

For Example:

1. Нарежь немного хлеба на завтрак.
"Please slice some bread for breakfast."
2. Я нарезала несколько помидоров для салата.
"I cut some tomatoes for the salad."

The nouns are used in the genitive case so it means I cut some bread or tomatoes, not all of them. To emphasize the meaning "slice" we can add the word "fine" (тонко).

For Example:

1. Нарежь сыр тонко, пожалуйста.
"Please slice the cheese (in fine slices)."

In this case we used the noun in the accusative case so it means we will cut all cheese that we have.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Perfective Verbs

Сначала нужно сварить бульон из говядины.

"First you need to cook a beef broth."

Perfective verbs denote the action that is finished, ended.

Today we start learning about how to conjugate verbs. There are three tenses in Russian and the verb takes six forms in each tense according to the pronouns. The order is usually the following: I, you, he, she, it, we, you, they.

We can conjugate perfective verbs only in the present and past tenses. The conjugation in the present tense has the notion of the future tense. Not to get confused with too many forms at once, we are going to start conjugating only in the present tense.

For Example:

Сделаю	I will do
Сделаешь (singular)	you will do
Сделает	he, she, it will do
Сделаем	we will do
Сделаете (plural)	you will do
Сделают	they will do

Our main topic is the cooking verbs so in the grammar part we are going to conjugate all the cooking verbs we have in this lesson.

We will start with the perfective verbs that are given:

Научить	to teach
Научу	I will teach
Научишь	you will teach
Научит	he, she, it will teach
Научим	we will teach
Научите	you will teach
Научат	they will teach

Сварить	to cook
Сварю	I will cook
Сваришь	you will cook
Сварит	he, she, it will cook
Сварим	we will cook
Сварите	you will cook
Сварят	they will cook

Натереть	to grate
Натру	I will grate
Натрешь	you will grate
Натрёт	he, she, it will grate
Натрём	we will grate
Натрете	you will grate
Натрут	they will grate

Потушить	to steam
Потушу	I will steam
Потушишь	you will steam
Потушит	he, she, it will steam
Потушим	we will steam
Потушите	you will steam
Потушат	they will steam

Пожарить	to fry
Пожарю	I will fry
Пожаришь	you will fry
Пожарит	he, she, it will fry
Пожарим	we will fry
Пожарите	you will fry
Пожарят	they will fry

Нарезать	to cut, slice
Нарежу	I will cut
Нарежешь	you will cut
Нарежет	he, she, it will cut
Нарежем	we will cut
Нарежете	you will cut
Нарежут	they will cut

As you can see, the verbs with the pronoun "I" usually end with y-ю-.

For Example:

1. сделаю
2. потушу

The verbs with "you" (*singular) end with -шь.

For Example:

1. нарежешь
2. потушишь

The verbs with "he, she, it" end with -т.

For Example:

1. сварит
2. нарежет

Verbs with "we" end with -м.

For Example:

1. сварим
2. нарежем

Verbs with the pronoun you (plural) end with -те.

For Example:

1. нарежете
2. сварите

Verbs with the pronoun "they" end with -т.

For Example:

1. сварят
2. нарежут

Perfective verbs with the prefix на-

We have learned some prefixes already, like по-, за-, с-, etc. Today we add one more prefix to form the perfective verbs- на-

For Example:

1. Научить ("to teach")
2. Натереть ("to grate")
3. Нарезать ("to cut")

Sample Sentences:

1. Пожалуйста, научи меня готовить!
"Please teach me how to cook."
2. Я натру морковь, а он натрёт редис.
"I will grate a carrot and he will grate a raddish."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Cooking in Russia

Cooking is one of the favorite hobbies among Russians. Men like to cook meat dishes: "barbecue" (shashlyk), holodets ("cold meat dish"), and steaks. Women like to cook pretty much everything but the most popular dishes are various soups, salads which might look as an independent dish, and pies, or pirozhki of course. The main ingredients are fish, meat, vegetables, mils, and eggs. There are not many cooking herbs used except for dill and parsley, and the condiments are usually salt and butter. The ingredients are delicious on their own so the taste is very simple, plain for someone who prefers spicy food.

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Прийти

This perfective verb can be translated as "to come" but only on foot. If you want to say "come by bus or train," you will need to use another verb—приехать.

The conjugation in the present tense would be:

Приду
 Придёшь
 Придёт
 Придём
 Придёте
 Придут

For Example:

1. Вы можете прийти около пяти часов?
 "Can you come around 5 o'clock?"
2. Когда ты придёшь?
 "When will you come?"

Вместе

This adverb is translated as "together" and usually is used with verbs.

For Example:

1. Мы будем готовить ужин вместе.
 "We will cook dinner together."
2. Легче собирать мебель вместе, чем одному.
 "It is easier to assemble furniture together than alone."

За...

This preposition can be translated as

1. "to..." (like in the given dialogue)

For Example:

1. Давайте выпьем за наших замечательных родителей!
"Let's drink to our incredible parents."

2. "for, instead"

For Example:

1. Если ты не можешь готовить, я могу сделать это за тебя.
"If you can't cook, I can do it instead of you."
2. Сколько за всё?
"How much is it for all?"

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Imperative Mood

Давайте выпьем!

"Let's drink!"

The imperative mood is used to make a request, order, or suggestion to an action.

There are several ways to form the imperative mood and in this lesson, we are going to learn two ways to form them. The imperative forms usually exist in the second person both plural and singular. Ты ("you") and вы ("you").

1. The first way to make a verb imperative is to take the part of the verb without ending in the present tense conjugation (2nd person) and add -и (й) for singular and -ите for plural.

For Example:

We take the verb Читать—the form in the present tense in second person is читаешь. We take away the ending -ешь and add й at the end -читай. To form the plural form we add -йте and it becomes читайте. To sum up,

Читать- читаешь- читай-читайте

A similar example is...

Выпить-Выпьешь- Выпей-выпейте

In both cases the part of the verb without the ending finished with a vowel so we add й, not и.

If the part of the verb without the ending ends with a consonant we add и. For Example,

1. Поднять- поднимешь-подними-поднимите
2. Сказать-скажешь-скажи-скажите

For Example:

1. Скажите пожалуйста, который час?
"Tell me what time it is?"
2. Выпей всё лекарство сразу.
"Drink this medicine right away."

2. The second and probably easier way to form imperatives is to take the verb Давай ("let's") *for singular and Давайте *for plural, and add an infinitive (for imperfective verbs) or a form in the present tense which is used with the pronoun "we."

a. Imperfective verbs

For Example:

1. Давай петь!
"Let's sing!"
2. Давай говорить по-русски!
"Let's speak Russian."
3. Давайте пить шампанское!
"Let's drink champagne!"

b. Perfective verbs

For Example:

1. Давай споем!
"Let's sing!"
2. Давай поговорим по-русски!
"Let's speak Russian!"
3. Давайте выпьем!
"Let's drink!"

Imperfective verbs can be formed from the perfective verbs as well. Usually we use different affixes to change the aspect of a verb:

1. affixes -а-яспасти - спасать "to save(once)-to save (many times)" ступить - ступать "to step(once)-to step (many times)"

When we use the affixes -а-я- some sounds in the roots of the words can vary:

a. vowels а/о, е/ и предложить - предлагать ("to offer")

запереть - запира́ть ("to lock up")

b. consonants-т /ч, ст/щ ,в/ вл ответить - отвечать ("to answer")

простить - прощать ("to forgive") вставить - вставля́ть ("to put into")

2. affix -ва-

дать - давать ("to give") одеть - одевать ("to dress")

3. affixes -ива-ыва-разглядеть - разглядыва́ть ("to stare, to look") оттаять - оттаива́ть ("to melt")

When we use the affixes -ива-ыва- the vowels -о and -а may vary.

For Example:

1. вздрагнуть - вздрагива́ть ("to shudder")

2. расколоть- раскалы́вать ("to crack")

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Giving Toasts in Russia

Giving toasts is a very good tradition in Russia. Russians always drink to something and this something can be very elaborate. There is no one universal word like "Cheers" in English; Russians always come up with something interesting. The first toast is usually for "the meeting"—Za vstreču, the second is for "the parents"—Za roditeley, the third is "to love"—Za lyubov, and if you continue drinking you can come up with your own. Many Georgian toasts are popular in Russia so we can say that this toasting tradition has its roots in the Caucasus. Georgian toasts are like stories full of humor and unexpected endings so it is sometimes very difficult to tell them the right way. Only those who are real fans of the toasting tradition can do this.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Verb Conjugation in the Present Tense

Вон, парню надевают наручники.

"There, they are handcuffing that guy."

Verbs are words describing actions and states. They change according to tenses (present, past, and future), to person (in the present and future), to gender (in the past), and to number. Russian verbs are divided into two conjugations.

Verbs of the first conjugation end with -ать and -ять. The verbs of the second conjugation end with -ить and -еть.

The examples of the verbs of the first conjugation are:

1. Читать ("to read")
2. Знать ("to know")
3. Слушать ("to listen")
4. Делать ("to do")
5. Заниматься ("to practice")
6. Кататься ("to ride")
7. Писать ("to write")
8. Поздравлять ("to congratulate")

And in this lesson we have:

1. Вынимать ("take out")
2. Украсть ("to steal")

3. Поймать ("to catch")

We conjugate the verbs according to person.

For Example:

Вынимать ("to take out")
Я вынимаю ("I take out")
Ты вынимаешь ("you take out")
Он вынимает ("he takes out")
Мы вынимаем ("we take out")
Вы вынимаете ("you take out") вынимают ("they take out")

And

Украсть ("to steal")
Украду ("I will steal")
Украдёшь ("you will steal")
Украдёт ("he, she will steal")
Украдём ("we will steal")
Украдёте ("you will steal")
Украдут ("they will steal")

For Example:

1. Он вынимает мелочь из карманов.

"He is taking out the change from his pockets," Or "He takes out the change from his pockets."

There is just one present tense in Russian so it can be translated as present simple or present progressive in English, depending on the context.

The verbs of the second conjugation which end with -ить and -еть are:

1. Говорить ("to speak")
2. Болеть ("to be sick")
3. Учить ("to teach")
4. Ходить ("to walk, to go")
5. Нравиться ("to like")
6. Купить ("to buy")

And in this lesson we had:

1. Случиться ("to happen")

We can conjugate the verb like this:

Говорить ("to speak")
Говорю ("I speak")
Говоришь ("you speak")
Говорит ("he speaks")
Говорим ("we speak")
Говорите ("you speak")
Говорят ("they speak")

And

Ходить ("to walk")
Хожу ("I walk")
Ходишь ("you walk")
Ходит ("he walks")
Ходим ("we walk")
Ходите ("you walk")
Ходят ("they walk")

There can be a slight change with the sounds [d] and [zh], [sh] and [s].

For Example:

Носить ("to take, to bring on foot") conjugates as:

Ношу ("I take") Несишь ("you take")
Носит ("he, she, it takes")
Носим ("we take")
Носите ("you take")
Носят ("they take")

The verb Случиться ("happen") is an impersonal verb so it has forms only in the third person.

Случиться

There are some verbs that look like the verbs of the second conjugation but they are in fact the verbs of the first conjugation. For example, the verb "to be" - быть

Быть
Буду
Будешь
Будет
Будем
Будете
Будут

Other examples are:

1. жить ("to live")
2. плыть ("to swim")
3. ехать ("to go by transport")

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Crime in Russia

Every country struggles with increasing crime rates and Russia is not an exception. The most common crimes are thefts, robbery, mugging, assault, fraud, and bribery. If something unfortunate happens to you, you should go to the police and fill out an application form. The police will process the application, although, don't have high hopes for the little crimes; the police are very busy so with a little theft they probably won't use many resources to resolve it. By the way, the police used to be called "militia" (militsiya) in Russia but recently have been renamed and became "police" (politsiya).

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Прямо на...

This couple of prepositions can be translated as "right in" or "right on."

For Example:

1. Метеорит упал прямо на меня.
"The meteorite fell right on me."
2. Автобус ехал прямо на меня.
"The bus was coming right at me."

Жениться

This imperfective verb means "to marry" but is used when the subject is male or we refer to the couple.

For Example:

1. они не хотят жениться до тридцати лет.
"They don't want to marry before their 30s."
2. Он жениться на ней, как только закончит службу в армии.
"He will marry her as soon as he finishes his military service."

If we talk about a woman we must use the verb выходить замуж.

For Example:

1. Она не хочет выходит замуж за полицейского, слишком уж они грубые.
"She doesn't want to marry a policeman, they are too rude."

Выглядеть

This imperfective verb is translated as "look like" and is usually used with adjectives or comparisons which start with "like" (как) or "if" (как будто).

For Example:

1. Она выглядит очень усталой с тёмными кругами под глазами.
"She looks very tired with these dark circles under her eyes."
2. Он выглядет так, как будто увидел призрака.
"He looked like he had seen a ghost."

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is Verb Conjugation in the Past Tense

Вон те двое только что развелись.

"Those two have just got divorced."

Russian verbs change according to the tenses (present, past, and future), to person (in the present and future), to gender in the past, and to number.

In this lesson we are going to talk about the past tense.

The past tense is made up with the help of the suffix -л-

For Example:

Делать-делал ("do - did")

Читать-читал ("read - read")

Говорить-говорил ("speak - spoke")

There is just one past tense in Russia. Sentences in the past simple will be formed with perfective verbs.

For Example:

1. Я сделал мою домашнюю работу вчера.
"I did my homework yesterday."
2. Он выпил всё молоко в доме.
"He drank all the milk in the house."

The verbs in our lesson describe the main events in human life that happened in the past so we will use mostly perfective verbs.

For Example:

1. Жениться- женился ("get married" - "got married")

2. Родиться-родился ("be born" - "was born")
3. Усыновить-усыновил ("adopt" - "adopted")

Sample Sentences:

1. Я родился в 1985.
"I was born in 1985."
2. Он женился в возрасте 30 лет.
"He got married at the age of 30."

To translate a sentence in the past progressive we will use imperfective verbs in Russian.

For Example:

1. Делать-делал ("do" - "was doing")
2. Читать-читал ("read" - "was reading")
3. Ходить-ходил ("walk" - "was walking")
4. Встречаться-встречался ("date" - "was dating")
5. Работать-работал ("work" - "was working")

The verbs in the past tense have the form in the third person only and change according to gender and number.

For Example:

1. Он родился
"He was born"
Она родилась
"She was born"
Они родились
"They were born"
2. Он работал
"He worked"
Она работала
"She worked"
Они работали
"They worked"

If we want to say "I" or "you," it would be he or she form depending on your gender. And in the case of "you" and "we," it would be the same verb as with "they."

For Example:

1. Я родилась в Москве.
"I was born in Moscow."
2. Ты работал в Нью-Йорке.
"You worked in New York."
3. Мы жили в России.
"We lived in Russia."

There is a group of verbs that don't have the suffix -л- in the past tense, but only the form in singular and masculine gender. These verbs' infinitives usually end with -ти.

For Example:

1. Нести ("to carry"), нёс ("he was carrying")
2. Расти ("to grow"), рос ("he was growing")
3. Везти ("to take" by transport), вёз ("he was taking")

Other forms will have the suffix as usual.

For Example:

1. Несла, несли ("she (they) was/were carrying")
2. Росла, росли ("she (they) was/were growing")
3. Везла, везли ("she (they) was/were taking")

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Getting Married in Russia

In soviet times religion didn't have place in social life so all the major events—weddings, divorces, funerals needed to be registered in the civil service which is known as ZAGS—city hall or register office. There are several ZAGS in one city but there is always a central office with the nicest facilities. If you want to get married in the central ZAGS you must fill out an application at least one month before and wait. It may be even longer for the central ZAGS because the queue can be very long, especially for some popular dates like July 7th, or 11.11.11. There is one month though when there is not much queue for weddings—it is May. It is considered to be bad luck to get married in May because it is similar to the word mayat'sya, which means "suffer," and of course no one wants to get married and suffer the rest of one's life.

"The older generation will never stop criticizing the youth."

Конечно, экспатриаты скучают по родине.

"Surely, the expats miss their homeland."

VOCABULARY PHRASE USAGE

Скучать

This imperfective verb can be translated as to "miss" someone or something and is used with the preposition по and a noun in dative case.

For Example:

1. Я очень скучаю по моей семье.
"I miss my family very much."
2. Я буду скучать по тебе каждую минуту.
"I miss you every minute."

One difficult example that sometimes even native speakers struggle with is "I miss you" (plural). Many people would say я скучаю по вас, but the correct is actually я скучаю по вам.

Именно

This adverb is translated as "exactly" specifically and is used rather flexibly in the sentence.

For Example:

1. Что именно вы хотите сказать?
"What exactly do you want to say?"
2. Я хочу именно это платье.
"I want exactly this dress."

Здесь

This adverb means "here" and is used in both spoken and written language.

For Example:

1. Я подожду тебя здесь.
"I will wait for you over here."
2. здесь мы можем купить наши билеты на поезд.
"And here we can buy our train tickets."

Mind the spelling, first -з and then -с, because even native speakers sometimes get the spelling wrong and write it like сдесь or сдесь.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Declension of Cardinal Numbers

Я уже 20 лет живу в Англии.

The numbers 5,6,8,9,10-20, 30, 40 etc will have similar declensions.

In the case of two-digit numbers both of them change the forms according to the case.

Двадцать пять рублей ("twenty-five rubles")
Двадцати пяти рублей
Двадцати пяти рублям
Двадцать пять рублей
Двадцатью пятью рублями
Двадцати пяти рублях

Сорок книг ("forty books")
Сорока книг
Сорока книгам
Сорок книг
Сорока книгами
Сорока книгах

This is one of the easiest declension because it has only two forms.

For Example:

1. у меня нет сорока трёх рублей!
"I don't have 43 rubles!"
2. Я думаю о восьми главных проектах на этот год.
"I am thinking about the eight major projects for this year."

Да

This conjunction is used very often in spoken Russian, but you can always find it in the proverbs, fairytales, etc. The meaning can be:

1. "and"

For Example:

1. Совет да любовь!
"Harmony and love!" (wishing to the newly weds)
2. Мне тяжело об этом говорить, да ты и не поймёшь!
"It is hard for me to talk about it and you would not understand anyway."

2. "but"

For Example:

1. Мал золотник да дорог.
"A little body often harbors a great soul."
2. Я бы это сделал, да у меня нет времени.
"I would do this, but I don't have time."

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Nostalgic Russians

Nostalgia is a very common emotion in Russia. Many people are still nostalgic about old Soviet times when people were nicer and the country was stronger than ever. It is difficult to explain exactly what it is that these people miss but this sentiment exists and must be respected. There is another type of nostalgia in Russians as well; those who left Russia and emigrated overseas miss Russia too. There were several immigration waves out of Russia—at the beginning of the 20th century after the revolution, in the 90s after the collapse of the USSR. Some people did return but the majority stayed overseas and built their new lives. Many Russian artists make money on that feeling of nostalgia- they go to the US, have concerts with their old hits, and gain a lot of money.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of this Lesson is Verb Conjugation in the Past Tense

Ты наступил мне на ногу в автобусе.

"You stepped on my foot in a bus."

As we already know, the past tense is formed with the suffix -л- and there are three forms of the verb.

For the pronouns Я, ты, он, она ("I," "you," "he," "she") we use two forms.

For Example:

1. работал or работала depending on gender.

For the pronouns мы, вы, они ("we," "you," "they") we use работали.

Today we are going to add one more pronoun, оно ("it"), although not every verb has a form with it. Sometimes it doesn't make any sense.

Anyway, the pronoun "it" is used with the verb which ends in -о.

For Example:

1. работало

So we can have four forms of verbs in the past, for example, the verb "to work" would be:

Работал
Работала
Работало
работали

Let's conjugate the verbs from this lesson in the past:

познакомиться ("to get to know") познакомился познакомилась познакомились.

The verb in neuter doesn't exist.

Наступить ("to step") наступил наступила наступили

The verb Наступило does exist but it will have a different meaning—"to come" (like a season).

For Example:

1. Наступило лето.
"Summer has come."

Назвать ("to call") назвал назвала назвали

Пролить ("to spill") пролил пролила пролили

Опоздать ("to be late") опоздал опоздала опоздали.

Получиться ("to result in, turn out well, to succeed") получился получилась получилось получились

Всё отлично получилось ("everything turned out well")

For Example:

1. У меня получилось поступить в университет
"I succeeded to enter the university."

And we are going to mention two verbs that have unusual conjugation in the past:

The verbs "to go" (идти) and "to eat" (есть).

The verb "to go" would be Идти- шёл, шла, шли, шло.

The verb "to eat" would be Есть-ел, ела, ело, ели.

And here are some examples with the verb in neuter gender:

1. Всё шло по плану.
"Everything was going according to the plan."
2. Странное существо ело рыбу.
"A strange creature was eating a fish."

The verbs which infinitives end with -ти don't have the affix -л- in the masculine singular form.

Нести-нёс
Везти-вёз

There is an exception—the verb doesn't end with the -ти, but doesn't have the affix either.

Умереть-умер

The verbs which infinitives end with -чь have a variation of consonants in the root.

For Example:

1. Течь-тёк, текла ("to leak")
2. Мочь-мог, могла ("to be able to")
3. Помочь-помог, помогла ("to help")

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Maintaining the Memories

How do Russians keep their memories alive? Many Russians have family albums with the most important events' photos. In Soviet times not everyone had a camera so people would invite a photographer to take a picture of the family. It is not surprising then that when cameras became available everyone tried to purchase one. Nowadays almost every family in Russia owns a camera or a videocamera, at least a simple one. Nowadays even real photos don't seem like enough so many people use Photoshop or professional photographers' services to make their photos look amazing. Social networks, blogs, etc. are also popular to make the memories come alive.

GRAMMAR

The Focus of This Lesson is the Unreal Conditional

Какой бы была моя жизнь, если бы я не приехал в Россию.

"What would my life be like if I hadn't come to Russia."

Unreal conditional denotes a condition that was not met in the past or that is unlikely to be fulfilled in the future. In other words, trying to express our dreams or suggest some situations that are not real.

The unreal conditional is formed by если бы + verb in past tense.

For Example:

1. Если бы я только мог познакомиться с ней!
"If only I had gotten to know her."
2. Если бы я знал её номер, то позвонил бы ей.
"If I knew her phone number, I would call her," or "If I had known her phone number, I would have called her."

We usually use the unreal condition to express our regret.

For Example:

1. Если бы я мог помочь, я бы сделал это не раздумывая.
"If only I could help, I would do it in a heartbeat."

The main clause may be left out:

1. Если бы мы знали!
"If only we had known!"
2. Если бы я только умел летать!
"If only I could fly!"

Если ("if")

Если is also used to introduce a condition and the results if the condition is met.

For Example:

1. Я пойду, если она там будет.
"I'll go if she is there."
2. Если ты знала, почему же ты мне не сказала!?
"If you knew, why didn't you tell me!?"
3. Если никто не будет голосовать, нечего не изменится!
"If no one votes, nothing will change!"

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Russian Beliefs

Russians like to believe in many things and destiny is one of those beliefs. Many Russians like to believe that there is a higher plan and one day everything will be fixed in some magical way. There are many fairytales where the destiny takes the main character to unexpected places and challenges him to a reward at the end. But destiny is not the only thing Russians believe in. They also believe in the free will of a person and chance. In fact, which element—free will, destiny, or chance—is crucial in human life has been the main topic of many literature masterpieces with Master and Margarita being the most famous one.

Russian Superstitions

The superstitions in Russia meet you everywhere. People knock on the wood and avoid black cats everywhere. There are some unusual superstitions like sitting on your suitcase before you go on a trip to have a safe trip or show an ugly face to the mirror if you have to return home after you have left once but forgot something. The superstitions used to be considered pagan by the Russian orthodox church but they are rooted so deep in Russians, even the Church could not eradicate them. So Russians continue spitting over the left shoulder, running away from black cats, and sitting on the suitcases.
